Misfortune has followed the Killingly team this year, as it has for several years. A Killingly football team has not won a game in three years, and meanwhile members of its squads have figured in four major accidents, including broken legs. This year the injury of Edward Mulligan, who suffered a broken leg early in the season, has been a particularly difficult one for the team, as its squad numbered only 13 or 14 players. It has played valiantly under various handicaps and its loyal supporters watched it suffer Thanksgiving with regret. In view of the fact that all of this year's team with the exception of four or five members will be graduated next June and because of lack of replacement material and opposition of parents to boys of the school playing the game until such time as an adequate squad can be recruited it is likely, Principal Ernest M. Warren said Thanksgiving afternoon, that football at Killingly high will be abandoned until conditions for playing are more favorable. Only a brave and militant group of boys would have gone through a season like that of 1926, when there was great lack of material for replacements and substitutions and where the players had to taken the entire brunt of any sort of uneven contest in which they happened to find themselves.

Football was not played at Killingly high school for more than a score of years until shortly after the World war, when it was re-introduced. In the meantime the school has turned out such fine players as Arthur "Pop" Williams, fullback this season for the Connecticut Aggies and rated by many good judges as of all-American calibre; Antonio Longo, 4 regular tackle this year on the Connecticut Aggies, and Teddy Reeves, who also starred in football at Storrs, and others. So happens that Killingly's football material is at a minimum just now, so the game seems destined to be abandoned until conditions are more favorable for developing a team with plenty of material to select from.

There was some confusion as to the final score of Thanksgiving day's game but it was given out as 47 to 0 in Putnam's favor.

WESTERLY BEATS STONINGTON IN FINAL QUARTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 25.—Westerly high school football eleven, on Thanksgiving day morning defeated their old time rivals, the Stonington high school football team by the score of 7 to 3 in a hard fought contest on the Westerly athletic field, clinching the championship of the Eastern Connecticut-Southern Rhode Island Football association.

In the first quarter Westerly kicked off and were successful in holding their adversaries. In the second quarter punts were exchanged and Stonington following a 30-yard forward pass by Cragan to Levanti on Westerly's 12-yard line, Levanti kicked a field goal, the ball being held by Cragan. In this quarter Westerly protested a 12th Stonington player being on the field but Referee Guyer did not recognize it.

In the third period Stonington had the ball on Westerly's five-yard line but the Westerly line held Stonington for downs and following gains by Salemano and Turco Westerly punted the ball out of danger to Stonington's 40-yard line.

The Westerly score in the fourth quarter followed Turco's 15-yard gain through the line to Stonington's eight yard line, where Salemano gained four more yards. Turco two more, while R. Meikle carried the ball over for a touchdown and kicked his goal.

The following is the summary:

Westerly		Stonington

OKLAHOMA WINS MISSOURI VALLEY CONFERENCE TITLE

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Oklahoma A. & M. college, youngest member of the Missouri Valley conference, today won the mythical gridiron championship of the valley.

The Oklahoma team finished the conference season with three victories, no defeats and a 14-14 tie this afternoon with Oklahoma university on the home field at Stillwater.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers, who closed the season today on the Pacific coast by losing to Washington, finished second in the conference on a percentage basis. Missouri, last year's champions, held third place.

SPRINGFIELD BEATS VERMONT BY SMALL SCORE, 2 TO 0

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Springfield college wound up its football season here this afternoon by defeating Vermont, 2 to 0. The safety was scored in the third period when Roller touched down a punt on Vermont's one-yard line and on the ensuing play Candon was tossed behind his own line by Captain Hafner and Craig of Springfield.

Hake Elected Penn Captain

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Edward W. Hake, varsity tackle for two years, was elected captain of the 1927 University of Pennsylvania football team today after the game with Cornell. Hake was chosen unanimously.

ARMY AND NAVY TEAMS VIEW SCENE OF BATTLE AND THEN SEEK SECLUSION

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP)—In a dripping fog which overhung the city, the football squads of the United States military and naval academies came to Chicago today and viewed the huge stadium where 100,000 persons will watch them battle Saturday.

The Navy squad arriving in the early afternoon detrained at the Englewood suburban station, and went from its hotel to Soldiers field to get its bearings. The men ran up and down the field a few times, and then went to the hotels Windermere for a Thanksgiving dinner.

The Army contingent, reaching the city on the heels of the midshipmen, also quit its train outside the business district to avoid the ovation which was waiting downtown, and was taken late in the afternoon to see the scene of Saturday's game. Then the Cadets hastened to the South Shore Country club, not to emerge until they start to the stadium Saturday.

Tomorrow morning the student bodies of the two schools will arrive to find themselves in the center of two days of festivity occasioned by the game. They will take part tomorrow in the dedication of Soldiers field, at which Vice President Charles G. Dawes will make the principal address.

Governors, senators, cabinet officials and other notable guests will come to the city tomorrow. Many of them will attend the dinner dance tendered tomorrow night by the city to the visiting service men of the two schools.

Other guests at the game will be coaches and football teams from several institutions.

Reports that counterfeit tickets are floating about the city for the contest drew today from officials the news that they long since prepared to combat the use of duplicates of admission. A hundred expert sagravers will stand at the gates to pass judgment of tickets of doubtful authenticity.

Despite the Navy's defenseless season and the tendency of the "experts" to regard it as a favorite, Chicago sentiment favors the Army and betting odds are in the Cadets' favor, though only slightly.

Most of the throng which will attend, if the two students bodies are expected, cares little who wins, and is attending for the spectacle it hopes to see. Social leaders and thousands of persons with little interest in scientific football will be in the front seats for the big game.

Mayor William E. Dever met both football squads today, and assured them of the city's desire to make their stay a pleasant one. Army fans were scouting about tonight for a mule to symbolize the Cadet host at the game. The Navy, more fortunate, is bringing its goat along, and if the favored animal suffers from the trip, several Navy adherents here are prepared to substitute animals which they are holding in leash.

BIG TEAM DIRECTORS AT MEETING IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP)—All of the excitement in Chicago tomorrow will not concern the arrival of the Cadets and the Middies to root for their teams in the big game of the gridiron season. The athletic directors of the Big Ten and the football coaches will meet in a two-day session to arrange their 1927 schedule and indications were tonight that a vigorous fight would develop over new reforms expected to be presented.

The directors will consider a proposal that each university develop two teams, one to play at home and the other to play on the campus of the opposing school on the same day.

Under such an arrangement, for example, a Michigan-Minnesota game would be played at Ann Arbor and at Minneapolis on the same day. This proposal has the indorsement of President Clarence Cook Little of the University of Michigan, who believes a change in the present system is imperative.

There is a persistent and growing demand for some sort of compulsory action to make various members of the Big Ten meet each other in football. The rotating schedule proposed two years ago and voted down will come up again tomorrow. The scheme seems to have gained more supporters than when the subject first was broached but Chicago, Illinois and Northwestern are reported to be opposed to it.

Minnesota is strongly in favor of a compulsory method to make other teams play the Gophers, who claim they have been dodged by several conference universities.

BRICKER WINS ANNUAL BERWICK MARATHON RACE

BERWICK, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Clifford Bricker of Gault, Ont., carried the colors of Canada to the dominion's first victory in the annual Berwick marathon today over a nine and one quarter mile course in 49 minutes, five seconds.

Gonsolo Moreno of the Panama canal zone was second in 50 minutes 20 seconds.

Charles W. Snell of Toronto, scored third for Canada with a time of 50 minutes, 49 seconds for the course.

The course was over mountain roads in bad condition, but the race proved one of the best yet held. At the halfway point the majority of runners were bunched within 150 yards.

Fifth: Frank Wendling, Buffalo.
Sixth: Albert Michelson, Stamford, Conn.
Seventh: William Meyer, Philadelphia.
Eighth: Cri Koski, New York city.
Ninth: John Bell, St. Bonaventure college.
Tenth: Clarence Demar, Melrose, Mass.

WASHINGTON HOLDS TEAM FROM NEBRASKA, 10 TO 6

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 25.—(AP)—The University of Washington football team defeated the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers here today, 10 to 6. With only 10 seconds to play Howell failed to dive over the line for a touchdown for the Cornhuskers after they had pushed the pigskin to Washington's three yard line. Nebraska had marched from its own 20-yard line.

MR. HALL DISAPPROVES OF THE LETTERS FROM SUSIE

Can the following letter which was received by the sports editor of The Bulletin be a criticism of the young lady who signs herself as "Susie"? The editor has read it and then reread it, referred to the dictionary and the works of the most prominent lexicographers and although overcome with a dizzy feeling has at last concluded that the writer of the letter does not approve of Susie nor yet her letters. Not caring to become entangled in any controversy of rhetoric with so learned a man as Hepzitab Hooper Hall apparently thinks himself, it is passed on to a suffering public. The letter follows:

The Gables,
Nov. 22, 1926.

Editor of Sports,
Norwich Evening Bulletin.

Dear Sir: Before further degradation is thrust upon our beautiful municipality, may I bespeak the indignation so universally prevalent among the citizens hereabouts in the matter of this crass person, operating under the nom-de-plume of "Susie". What indignities are thrust upon us! What shameless disregard of diction! What utter abandon!

In the days when gentile demeanor was paramount and dress the symbol of virtue, such expressions as prevail promiscuously in the scrivenings of the creature of the streets would have been suppressed without delay, and rightly so. In those days men were chivalrous but never vulgar. Ladies were demure perhaps and prudish but it may be affected slight articialities in the matter of adornment but construed the forward mien as symbolical of commonness. To address ones immediate acquaintances one was circumspect, and, as for airing ones views in the press, be the indignation at its utter zenith, it was never contemplated. It seems preposterous that such liberty of movement, such familiarity of expression, such preversity of spirit on the part of this person "Susie" could reach our sensitive observation, and upon behalf of these among us who abhor the raucous voice and the shameless snivellings of this misguided female, I protest vehemently (painful as such action of public nature is) against the continuance of these distressing and disgraceful efforts.

Yours with timorous dignity.
HEPZITAB HOOPER HALL.

SYRACUSE SWARMS OVER COLUMBIA WINNING 19 TO 2

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Under the impetus of two powerful wings, Syracuse swooped over the Polo grounds this afternoon in its fourth successive gridiron triumph at the expense of Columbia, 19 to 2.

Captain Vic Hanson and Julius Archoska, ends of the Orange eleven, led the triumphant dash, contributing to all of Syracuse's three touchdowns. The'r wing play stood out as the most impressive seen in New York this season.

Hanson, whose broken field running surpassed the efforts of the rival Zuckfields, brought off a spectacular twenty yard dash for the first Syracuse touchdown in the opening period.

The second and third touchdowns followed in quick succession after the opening of the second quarter.

This ended the Syracuse scoring, the central New York team being content to protect its lead dring the second half with long punts by Bayley. Columbia threatened only once. In the third period a sharp overhead attack, Rieger to Kaplan carried the ball to the Syracuse six-yard line, but Columbia was unable to push it across. Bayley made no attempt to kick out on the next play, however, sending down the ball for a safety which saved Columbia from a shuto t.

WEIGHT OF W. AND J. TEAM PROVES TOO MUCH FOR W. VA.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 25—(AP)—Presenting a powerful and varied running attack that slowly but surely crushed the lighter West Virginia university eleven, Washington & Jefferson took the twenty-fifth annual Thanksgiving day clash with the Mountaineers here today, 13 to 3. The game was hard fought throughout.

During the first quarter the West Virginians checked two threatened drives but the third time W. & J. gathered in three points when Edwards' kick, from a different angle, went through the uprights.

West Virginia tied the tally in the second quarter, Keefer booting a placement. The Presidents took the lead over the middle of the third period when Amos kicked a placement, and they held on to this slender lead until the game moved into its closing minutes, when a series of plays by Heisel, Cook and Kirkman, subbing for Captain Amos paved the way for the latter to make a touchdown. Edwards made the extra point.

PITTSBURGH PANTHERS CLAW WAY TO EASY VICTORY

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 25.—(AP)—An embattled University of Pittsburgh Panther won a smashing 26-6 victory over the Penn State Lion here today in the annual Thanksgiving day tilt before a throng of nearly 45,000.

The beats of Mr. Nittany, eager to break Pitt's six-year winning streak, in the first three periods outplayed the Panther clan with one of the best aerial attacks seen here this season. In the final period, however, the defense of Hugo Bezdek's warriors crumbled under an onslaught which enabled the opposing eleven to pile up 17 of the 26 points.

Welch, Pitt left halfback, scored two touchdowns on dashes of 54 and 30 yards. John Roepke, playing the same position for Penn State, was a tower of strength in his team's attack.

The Panther thrilled the crowd in the first and third periods by repulsing the Lion as it worked the ball within the very shadows of the Pitt goal line.

JACOBIE WINS FIVE FIVE MILE RUN AT NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 25—(AP)—Running in a cold wind, J. Jacobie, of Rochester, N. Y., wearing the colors of the Cygnet A. C., won the five mile run here today in 26 minutes, 24 seconds.

In the three mile event E. Brown, of Hillhouse high school of this city, came in first in 16 minutes, 16 seconds, followed within two seconds by five of his team mates.

The Swedish A. C. of Bridgeport won the team trophy in the longer run and Househouse high in the shorter. Following Jacobie in the five mile were George Bachlas, unattached of Southington, N. E. Shay, Seton Hall, New Haven; B. Efren, Cygnet A. C.; J. De Maria, Waterbury Boys' club; N. Lindstrom, Swedish A. A. Southington A. C., was rated second in the team competition.

Yale Wins at Soccer

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 25—(AP)—Yale soccer team defeated Massachusetts Tech here, 3 to 2, in a game which required one overtime period.

BROWN'S AERIAL ATTACK CRUMBLES AND COLGATE HOLDS BEARS TO 10-10 TIE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A rugged Colgate eleven, long a thorn in the side of Brown's championship aspirations in the many years of traditional rivalry, today in a thrilling 10-10 tie again smashed the Bear's hope of an undisputed claim to eastern gridiron supremacy.

The eleven men who had driven Brown to top ranking with nine straight victories this season, fought desperately for victory and an unblemished record. But the fire that carried the team to smashing conquests over Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth, died in the face of Colgate's fierce defense, the Maroon's complete subjection of the vaunted Brown forward passing game, and Mishel's failure to control his usually reliable toe when three field goal chances offered a chance to break the deadlock in the final period.

Not the least of Brown's troubles was the brilliant kicking of Dumont, husky Colgate guard, who—time after time trotted into the backfield to hoist twisting spirals 60 yards down the field. Matching Dumont's accomplishments, Williamson, the center, twice fell back to drop-kick Maroon points, once with a field goal from the 35 yard line.

Just as history of last year repeated itself when the ancient rivals battled to a 14-14 tie, so were memories freshened of a similar Colgate feat of ten years ago, when Brown's march to a national title was halted in the fourth game by an under-dog Colgate eleven. The Maroon team brought to the fray today a record of defeat against Navy and Pittsburgh and a tie with Syracuse.

Two spectacular dashes led directly to the Brown and Colgate touchdowns after Mishel had tied the score at three-all early in the third period with a sharp angled field goal from the 35 yard line. Lawrence, brilliant Brown halfback, broke around the Maroon end for a sparkling 69 yard run. Although he completed his journey to the goal line, the flashy back was called back to the 7 yard line where he had stepped outside in his mad race. Randall smashed over for the score, and Mishel's kick of the point made his 21st consecutive successful try of the season.

The exultant roar of the Brown supporters, massed in the 30,000 spectators, that jammed the new Brown bowl had hardly died with the period when a neat ten yard pass over the center of the line from Mehler to Brewer set the shifty Colgate back loose amid the Brown secondary defense. Cutting to the sidelines, Brewer broke clear of the last man only to be dragged down from behind by Mishel with a sparkling tackle on the 7-yard line. Shaughnessy needed four tries to carry the ball over.

The fury of the thwarted iron men broke loose in the final period as Colgate fought a dogged defense battle to hold the tie. Three times the Brown's forwards drove Colgate back, but each time a steadying defense sent Mishel back for the goal try that always failed. One, from the 30-yard line, bounced back from the Colgate goal posts, a miss by inches alone.

The utter breakdown of Brown's passing attack showed in the completion of but three of 15 attempts for a total gain of 63 yards. Only two of Colgate's ten tries nestled safely in Maroon arms, but the masterly effort of Mehler to Brewer proved ample in thwarting Brown's hope of victory. Colgate's sterling ends, Timm and MacFarlane, smashed in upon Randall, Brown field general, and Mishel, stars of the passing attack with such disastrous effect that few of the tosses could be accurately aimed. Only two substitutions appeared in the game, one on each team in the closing minutes of play.

The line-up:

Colgate		Brown
Macfarlane, le		le, Broad (C.)
Gray, lt		lt, Kevorkian
Dumont, lg		lg, Farber

PENN AND CORNELL BATTLE TO 10 TO 10 TIE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25—(AP)—Pennsylvania and Cornell teams battled to a 10-10 deadlock in their Thanksgiving day football game on Franklin field.

The Pennsylvanians, outplayed until the last period and with the score 10 to 0 against them, suddenly took a tremendous brace and swept Cornell from her feet. The recovery from what seemed a listless game on the part of the Red and Blue was startling to the Pennsylvania and Cornell rooters alike, and with the score a tie the Quakers were battling desperately to break the deadlock when the final whistle blew.

Eighty thousand persons saw the battle, the largest crowd that ever saw a football game in this city. All tickets were five dollars each and it is believed that the "gate," estimated at nearly $400,000, was the largest ever taken in at a football game.

Each team scored a touchdown and a field goal. The spectacular plays of the game were a forward pass, Balderston to Molinet, which gained 30 yards for Cornell and led to her touchdown, and a 65-yard run by Fullback Wascolonis, of Pennsylvania for a touchdown.

Molinet scored Cornell's touchdown and Captain Kerry kicked the point after touchdown and made a placement kick in the third period. Paul Scull kicked Penn's field goal.

Pennsylvania's touchdown was the only one ahs scored in the last four contests and for the third successive game it was Paul Scull's toe that either won or saved Pennsylvania from defeat. The tie score was the second in the long history of Pennsylvania-Cornell Thanksgiving day football games, the only other tie occurring twenty years ago when neither team scored.

ALABAMA WINS SOUTHERN TITLE FOR THIRD TIME

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 25—(AP)—The University of Alabama, in winning its third consecutive southern conference football championship today, uncovered a new gridiron luminary, Archie Taylor, a sub, who played a major part in Alabama's defeat of Georgia, 32 to 6.

Taylor was sent into the game in the third period when Georgia was holding Alabama in check, although the Crimson tide was leading. Before the period closed he had scored two touchdowns, catching a pass for one and swinging out around his left end and zig-zagging 48 yards for the other.

Georgia, in defeat, accomplished what no other University of Georgia had done in four years, scored a touchdown on Alabama in the finals minutes of play when they retrieved a blocked punt behind Alabama's goal line.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

News of interest in 1851, as taken from the Norwich Courier of that year, was as follows:

Tuesday, Nov. 18, 1851—Henry N. Ray of Jewett City has sent to the Courier three large peaches that weigh 26 1-4 ounces, the largest of the three weighing nine ounces and a quarter and having a girth of ten and a half inches.

—Receipts for the Norwich and Worcester road for September show an income for the same month in 1850. Practically all this gain was in the volume of freight handed during the month.

A train made the run from New York to Albany on a recent date in three hours and 40 minutes, thus maintaining an average speed of 46 miles an hour on the run.

The United States received five premiums at the World Fair at Crystal Palace. Great Britain led the list with 79 awards, France coming second with 69 awards.

The Ether manufactory of Floyd C. Smith, Middle Haddam, was blown up on a recent date and was totally demolished. Mr. Smith was so badly burned and suffered from inhaling the fumes of ether gas. Following a long fight for life he succomned to his injuries.

Thursday, Nov. 20, 1851—With the speed between New York and Albany cut down to four hours by train it is interesting to know that in 1807 packets running between these two cities boasted of their record runs in from 36 to 36 hours. The race between the cities in 1807 was 87, he barge from New Yorke to Hudson being 35.

Reports from the Arctic seas contain a lengthy list of ships totally destroyed by ice floes. Among the ships totally destroyed is the Aramatis of New London. The crew of the ship was rescued by another whaling boat and will return home as soon as possible, which, however, will probably not be for many months.

Ten houses were entered one night this week in New London and they were ransacked from cellar to attic. Evendently New Londoners are not flush with money because the thieves failed to secure more than $20 in any one house.

Wall street in New York and not a few people in this section of the country were startled recently to hear of the failure of one of the most powerful and wealthy homes in the city—Jacob Little & company.

Saturday, Nov. 22, 1851—California is now starting a movement to make Daniel Webster the next president of the United States. To feeling is for Clay first and, if he will not run, boost for Webster.

McIntyre's Percussion factory in Hartford blew up a few weeks ago and one of the employes was very badly burned. The roof of the building took fire but this was soon extinguished.

John Gail realized a profit of about $1,350,000 from the World Fair recently held in that country.

At the late Fair Williams & Barnes of New London received a silver medal for the best porcupine cups.

WESTERLY

I. J. JESSIMAN, PROMINENT WESTERLY CARPENTER, DIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 26—The death of James Jessiman, aged 76, for more than thirty years a carpenter in Westerly, occurred Wednesday night at 11.15 o'clock, at his room in the New York hotel on High street in Westerly. Mr. Jessiman was never married. He was born, September 26, 1850, in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and came to America forty-two years ago, making his home in Pennsylvania and in New York state. In 1890 he came to Westerly and has been employed as a carpenter for R. A. Sherman's Sons company, until his retirement sometime ago. Of a number of brothers and sisters but one brother survives him, residing in Aberdeen, Scotland. A nephew, William Jessiman resides at 32 Moes street, Pawcatuck and of two nieces, Mrs. John Thompson lives in Norwalk, Ohio and the other niece in Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Jessiman was a deacon of the Calvary Baptist church in Westerly. Although in failing health his last illness has continued since last Thursday night.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the church of the Immaculate Conception on Thursday morning, when the wedding of Miss Nellie Ella Altimano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Altimano of 16 Cross street, Westerly, and Charles Peter Turano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Turano of Bradford, R. I., took place. Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M., celebrated the nuptial high mass. Joseph Ligiere of Bradfrod was the best man and Miss Mary Meringolo of Westerly was the bridesmaid, the marches being played by the church organist, Mrs. Frank G. Ahearn. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the groom's home in Bradford, R. I., which was attended by a number of relatives and friends. A reception was held by Mr. and Mrs. Turano at Champlin's hall on Main street on Thursday afternoon and evening. The newly married couple left Westerly by automobile on Thursday night for New London to take the boat to New York. On their return from the wedding trip they will make their home at 25 John street.

On Thanksgiving eve at 6 o'clock at the Broad street Christian church, Miss Henrietta Elizabeth Bloeser, daughter of Mrs. Frank Bloeser of 51 Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, became the bride of Royce Carlyle Wolfe, son of Mrs. Louise T. Wolfe of Mystic. The church was decorated with palms and flowers and the bride had as her maid of honor, her sister, Miss Edith N. Bloeser and was attended by two bridesmaids, Rev. Arnt L. Schoning, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony, using the double ring service. Norman C. Wilcox acted as best man and there were four ushers. Mrs. John B. Eaton, church organists, and Miss Amy Eaton, violinist, rendered several selections previous to the ceremony. Boat Magnolia has met with hard luck again, the third time in two weeks. This boat went aground while on its way from Mystic after being repaired, and had started for the north dock. When it got as far as the Sea Sled plant in West Mystic, the Magnolia ran aground again on the mud flats and had to wait until high water before she could be hauled off.

The steamer Portland was placed on the big ways, Wednesday for a general overhauling, recaulking and repainting. A new water line will be drawn by Mike Pasel.

The dock being built at the shipyard is 150 feet long and 4 feet wide. A large number of boats is to be brought here for winter storage. The work is getting along well under the foreman, Capt. Tom Lee.

The pinochle series game was held by the auxiliary and fire company in their rooms Wednesday evening, when five tables were in play. The men's first prize went to Samuel Carson and low score was held by Neil Morrison. First prize was won by Mrs. Bonne Spink and Miss Shara Banks had low score. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the committee. Dancing followed, the piano being played by Miss Elise Porter. Prof. Arthur McDonald called off for the square sets.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN relieved constipation of long standing

Mr. Charles R. Pollard, of Walworth, Wisconsin, will testify that habit-forming pills and drugs were even worse than useless in relieving his constipation.

"I am writing to tell you of the grand results I have received from using your Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Before I commenced using your ALL-BRAN food I was obliged to take a laxative every night, and being a ruptured man aggravated this trouble and made it all worse . . . but since using your ALL-BRAN I have laid all my laxative medicine and pills away and my bowels are as regular as a clock."
CHARLES R. POLLARD,
Walworth, Wisconsin.

Don't let constipation drag you down, and don't become a slave to habit-forming pills and drugs. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, eaten regularly, is guaranteed to relieve constipation or your money is returned, because it is 100% bran. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily — in chronic cases, with every meal. Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Use it in cooking with the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Michigan. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

KILLING GOOSE THAT LAYS GOLDEN EGGS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

The other day a New York city woman, summering in my neighborhood, relieved her mind and gave me some food for thought by an outburst against farmers.

It was evident that resentment had been simmering in her mind a good while, till at last it boiled over. And she didn't seem to care whether I got scalded in the eruption or not.

Her complaint was somewhat rambling and, at times, a bit incoherent. But I had no difficulty in getting her meaning. Summarized and boiled down it ran about like this:

"Here I go in my own car to a farm and buy some eggs or some vegetables or some fruit or some broilers. I not only go after them, I bring them home with me and pay cash down on the spot for them. Yet the farmer asks me the full price the city grocer gets for similar goods, delivered free, and paid for at the end of the month. As a matter of fact, I can buy most country produce in New York cheaper than I can right at the farmer's back door. I don't think this is fair. Seems to me the farmer ought to cut off something from city prices when I do his marketing and delivering for him, saving him trouble and insuring his spot cash in payment. I don't take as much stock as I once did in the 'simple-minded' and 'honest' farmer."

What do you say to the indictment? Guilty or not guilty?

I happen to have in mind two or three instances which seem to me somewhat corroborative of Mrs. City Woman's charges. For example:

I have a neighbor who raises broilers. He carries most of them to the city, ten miles away. It takes him a full half day twice a week to make these deliveries. Yet Mrs. City Woman assures me that he asks her exactly the same for broilers, when she comes to his place for them, as the city butcher charges her for similar broilers, delivered at her kitchen door.

For another example: The other day my housekeeper was calling at a neighbor's house when a car stopped and the lady, from the ten-miles-away city, asked for a couple of dozen eggs. The neighbor took them out to her and put them in her basket, and charged her the full city price.

For still another example: Coming up from Connecticut one day last month, I passed a wayside stand in Glastonbury or East Hartford which displayed some fairly good looking peaches. Stopping I asked the woman in charge if they were home-grown and was told they were. So I bought a basket. Twenty miles farther along my road, passing through Westfield, I saw displayed at a fruit store equally attractive peaches in fuller baskets, marked 25 cents less than I paid at the roadside stand.

For another example: Some two or three years ago a Springfield, Mass., man got possession of an apartment carrying with its rental the right to a section of the cellar. This gave him opportunity to store a winter's supply of potatoes, instead of having to buy them a peck at a time, as in the ordinary cellarless apartment. So he went out in the country, 20 miles or so, to a real back roads farm, and bought 20 bushels of potatoes. He had to help measure and bag them, take them home and bin them, and put in two hours cleaning the grime from the upholstery of his car. Next day he learned that his down-town grocer was selling just as good potatoes, delivered free into his bin, at the identical price he had paid at the remote farm. Whereupon the Springfield man got very mad and swore by all the gods of ancient Rome and modern Agawam that he'd never buy another thing from any farmer, direct, if he had to live on sawdust pudding the rest of his life.

Needless to say, I shall never buy any more peaches from that Glastonbury stand. Once bitten is enough.

Nor have I heard of any city people coming back for more eggs or broilers to the farms where they are charged full city prices for them.

Per contra, two or three years ago, another neighbor had a tremendous apple yield, as well as a fair crop of other farm products. Indeed, he was so busy saving his crops that he hadn't the time to market them. So he inserted a three line advertisement in the city paper, saying, in effect, "Come over to Hillside farms and get your apples at 50 cents a bushel; all standard varieties; save the middleman's profit." Apples, it should be said, were then retailing in the city at about $2.25 a barrel. It happened that the day after this little ad. appeared was both a Saturday and a holiday. This neighbor had barely swallowed his breakfast when the advance guard appeared. From that minute till dark he was kept busy with customers. He not only sold all the apples he had but also potatoes, cabbages, turnips, carrots, beets, even pumpkins. He told me that he took in nearly $500 that day, without leaving his own yard. And scattering buyers, who heard of it from returning Saturday customers, kept drifting in for a week, to see if there wasn't something left they wanted.

We've all heard about the greedy chap whose goose laid him one golden egg a day who wasn't satisfied with that, but killed he goose and opened it in the vain hope of getting a whole clutch of golden eggs at once.

This has passed into history as a typical illustration of bad business.

In these days of almost universal automobiles, the cities are full of people who would think nothing of a 10 or 20 mile drive after domestic supplies; if only they could be sure of getting them fresh, of guaranteed quality, and at a saving in price which should at least represent the cost of gasoline and oil used on the trip.

That last saving is a very real inducement. City people are often just as solicitous for "bargains" as their country cousins, and often have to be quite as careful of the pennies. They are going for occasional drives, anyhow. If they can take a pleasant ride into the country and, at the end of the trip, buy some fresh butter and eggs or vegetables or fruit at enough less than city prices to come near paying the gasoline cost of the trip, many will be tempted.

But, if they are charged exactly as much in Podunk Flats as they would have to pay on Main street, where is the temptation?

It certainly seems to me, if I had 200 or 300 bushels of potatoes or apples to sell, that I could better afford to sell them at, say, wholesale price, on the farm, than deliver them, miles away in the city, either at wholesale or retail prices. If it costs me five or ten cents a bushel in gas and time, and wear-and-tear to deliver them, I can afford to sell them at the farm for that much less. Same with all other farm produce. That goes for any year, considered by itself.

But there are other years to come with other crops to be disposed of. It's worth something to have a reputation among pleased customers. It's worth something to know that there are city people who will come to you, year after year, for their supplies because they have confidence in your stuff and save money on their purchases.

My neighbor who sold the apples, etc., at "cut prices" from his own door-step, tells me it would have taken him three full days trucking to deliver, in town, the same stuff which the town people came and got themselves, even if he had had it all spoken for beforehand. He reckoned that he did less work, went to less expense and actually got more money, net, by selling at the reduced price.

I do not know that this would work in all cases. But it seems fairly clear that the farmers who demand full city prices for their produce of people who come to the farm and take it away with them, are not offering an attractive proposition to their would - be customers. They are, virtually, killing the goose which might keep on indefinitely laying golden eggs.

Said that neighbor of whose egg-selling adventure I have written, when the city customer had gone: "She'd have to pay 65 cents a dozen to her grocer; I don't see why I haven't as good a right to it as he has." Which sounds plausible enough, but won't stand washing. If that neighbor had sold her eggs to the city grocer he wouldn't have given her 65 cents for them, but a lesser price,—enough less to assure him his profit. Moreover, if they turned out bad, the customer could send them back to the grocer and have them replaced, whereas the farm is too far away to make such a return worth the cost and trouble of making it

It is said to be the rule of some railroads to "charge all the traffic will bear." But, even if we farmers adopt that rule, we must not forget the limiting condition in the last five words of that phrase. If we charge more than the traffic will bear, the traffic will decrease or cease. If we don't make it desirable for city people to come to the farms after their supplies, they simply won't come.

Anybody can lead a horse to water, but nobody has yet found a way to make him drink, if he doesn't want to.

There are two sides to every question. Like other folks, we farmers are naturally inclined to see but one side,—our side—of this produce selling. In no case do we get what we regard as adequate prices for our stuff, whether we sell to commission houses, to retailers, to private customers in town, or to callers at the farm. It is perfectly natural that we should be inclined to take all we can get. But our customers see the other side.

It would be a good idea for even farmers once in a while to put themselves in the other fellows' places, and try to see things as the other fellows see them.

It would also be "good business."

THE FARMER.

THE GAME OF LIFE

We are helped by helping others;
If we give, we always get;
Seeing others as our brothers
Is life's safest, surest bet!
If we give what folks are needing,
It will pay us in the end,
And we just can't help succeeding
In the game of life, my friend.

Cheerfulness is always catching—
Certain cure for ev'ry rile;
Happiness is always hatching
In the sunshine of a smile!
Banish gloom, by being cheerful;
Blaze the trail, and set the pace!
And you'll see expressions drearful
Swiftly fade from ev'ry face!

Life gives back just what we give it;
Give it smiles—and smiles we get:
If we learn this rule and LIVE IT
We will never know regret;
Give a cheerful word—we'll reap it;
It will come back multiplied,
And will linger—we can keep it
In our "treasure chest," inside.

NEW LONDON STREET SCRAP RESULTS IN DISCOVERY OF CAN WITH ALCOHOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 25.—Following a street fight about 11 o'clock last night, Mrs. Augusta Visciani, 118 Howard street, was arrested, charged with violation of the liquor law, her husband, John Visciani, is being sought by the police on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon and Enrico Magrini and Adolph Frausini are being held as material witnesses. Mrs. Visciani, Magrini and Frausini were presented in the police court this morning, but disposition of the cases was not made, they being continued to next Tuesday morning. Mrs. Visciani furnished a surety on her bond of $1,000 for her appearance in court next week.

The police received a telephone message that a serious fight was in progress on Howard street, near Hamilton street. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolmen Michael Dorsey, Louis Wheeler and Elwood Bailey were rushed there and found Magrini, Fausini and Albert Iverson and William Lowe, both of 113 1-2 Howard street, Iverson having a knife wound on the chest, which, the police state, was inflicted by Visciani. A search for Visciani was made, but he cound not be found. Iverson was taken to the office of a physician where his wound, which is not serious, was dressed.

Iverson and Lowe stated that they were at their home and shortly before 11 o'clock they decided to go to a Bank street restaurant to obtain lunch. When they had gone but a few steps, they allege, three or four men suddenly attacked them and in order to protect themselves they fought back. It then developed that the Visciani house was reputed to be a place where liquor was sold and the officers entered there in the hope of finding Visciani, but he had made his escape and is now believed to be in hiding at the home of a friend. A five gallon can, partially filled with alcohol, was seized as evidence against Mrs. Visciani.

A Massachusetts sedan had a close call from being wrecked this afternoon and only a series of incidents during the brief flight of the car prevented such a result. The automobile was parked by the owner on Pearl street and on a grade. The owner absented himself a long time and while he was away the brakes became released and the car started to descend the grade. Gaining in speed as it started down the hill, the car barely missed a huge telephone pole at the corner of Green street and then climbed to the southerly sidewalk where it traveled two or three lengths, then went back into the street, going to the opposite side after again missing a fire alarm pole and climbing over the curb. It continued on the sidewalk and came to a stop just before an immense tree was reached. The doors of the auto were locked, which prevented the police from removing it from the sidewalk, but in a short time the owner arrived and getting the engine started, drove away.

In order to relieve congestion on the Connecticut company's trolley car scheduled to leave New London nightly for Norwich at 9:45 o'clock, an extra car is now operated from this city at 9:15 o'clock and goes only as far as Connecticut College for Women. In the past there has been as many as a hundred students to board the regular car, which with the other passengers made it necessary for 50 or 75 men and women to stand in the aisle and on the front and rear platforms until the college was reached and the students alighted when ample seating space was then obtainable.

John Higgins added to his record as a drunk when presented in the police court for intoxication. He was on the Lower Boulevard with an automobile which was parked without lights in such a manner that it overhung the trolley road tracks and the street railway cars could not pass. The car was pushed away from harm two or three times, but it still was there about 11 o'clock. Then Higgins was arrested. He had the usual excuse, that he did not drink much, but that did not make him immune from a fine so he was ordered to pay $10 and the costs of trial. Judge Crandall informed him that when he appears again he will be arraigned as a common drunkard.

Violators of the parking ordinances were arraigned. William Detweiler of Mohegan avenue was fined $5 for parking his car two feet away from the curbing on Main street so that it interfered with the passage of trolley cars. Detweiler's excuse was that he did not realize the offense he was committing. That was not a valid reason for obstructing travel so the fine was imposed.

Reuben Lubchansky, a carpenter, parked his car on Church street and was admonished by Policeman Lenihan. Then he went to Sergeant Hick and complained that he was not treated fairly, so Lenihan then ordered him into court and appeared to show that there was no reasonable excuse for the conduct of Lubchansky. The latter represented that he was delivering goods, but Lenihan showed that he did not have the goods he claimed to be delivering. He was fined $5.

William White, a youth of 18, residing on Ledyard street, was fined $5 for parking away from the curbing on Masonic street, so that his stripped-down Ford interfered with the passage of fire apparatus. He was five feet away from the curbing and near a heap of sand. White represented that he was not to be where he left his car but a few minutes, but the court did not look at that defense as a reasonable one and imposed the fine.

Niagara Engine company held its annual Thanksgiving feast last evening with a large attendance of members and guests. The feast was of turkey, which was pronounced one of the best the company had ever served.

All the members of the police department were granted an hour's luncheon period today that they might partake of their holiday dinner with their families. Ordinarily the officers are allowed but half an hour for their meals.

An automobile that had been parked on Montauk avenue more than 24 hours was removed to a garage by the police this morning. The automobile carries Connecticut registration, N-8927 and is listed in the name of Frederick N. Schmidt, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Additional planking on the municipal pier became loose because of decay, last night and caused a danger spot to exist there. Repairs will be made tomorrow by city employes.

CARETAKERS RETURN JEWELRY BUT MUST APPEAR IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 25—Employed as keepers of a store under attachment, Nathan Santer, of 17 Ocean avenue and Alfred Goss of Archer court, were arrested this afternoon by Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith. They are charged with theft of jewelry from the store when they were employed to look after its contents. They will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

Samuel Litvin, proprietor of a confectionery store, 530 Bank street also proprietor of the Connecticut Fruit and Vegetable store, 524 Bank street, recently sold the former business to Arthur Messer. Included among the stock was a prize board, containing numerous articles including two watches, cigarette case, silver flask, camera, etc. These did not go with the stock and Litvin caused them to be hidden in his fruit and vegetable store. Saturday night the P. Adel company, fruit and produce dealers, had an attachment placed on Litvin's fruit and vegetable store, for Litvin is alleged to have owed the Adel company several hundred dollars. Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tubbs, who made the attachment, secured the services of Santer and Goss as keepers in order that Litvin could continue doing business and Santer was delegated to handle all cash. Just before the store was closed last night, Santer and Goss, the police allege, in making an inspection of the store, came upon the several pieces of jewelry and Santer took possession of them. This morning when Litvin discovered that the jewelry was missing he made a complaint to the police. Sergeants Cavanaugh and Smith investigated and suspicion pointed to Santer and Goss as being the thieves. They were taken to the police station and after several hours of grilling, Santer admitted having taken the the jewelry. When accompanied by the officers to his home and to other places he gradually returned the plunder taken. When Litvin saw the return of the stolen goods, he stated that he did not desire the prosecution of Santer and Goss, especially in view of the fact that he had recovered his property, but his wish was not gratified, for he was ordered to appear as a witness against the two men.

S. C. Herindeen, janiter of the Waller school, corner of Riverview avenue and Alger street, made a complaint to the police this afternoon that boys last night caused damage to the school by malicious acts.

The state police of Groton barracks and the local police are seeking the arrest of Arthur Perry of Broad street extension, charged with assault and breach of the peace. Perry went to the home of his sister, Mrs. Edward Foster at Golden Spur, this afternoon and while there he engaged in a wordy argument with the woman and finally attacked and beat her, she being badly bruised. Complaint was made to the state police and that authority requested the New London police to assist them in apprehending Perry, but he could not be located. Perry, after the attack upon his sister, made his escape in his automobile, which carried Connecticut registration N-2152. Perry was arrested several days and penalized in the police court for driving his automobile equipped with defective brakes and for failing to obey a traffic officer's signal.

Louis Saindon was arrested by state police from Groton barracks this afternoon, charged with driving his automobile while under the influence of liquor. He will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

Others to be presented in court tomorrow include three young men charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. Another, a sailor from the O-3, submarine base went to the home of Isaac Meran, rear 36 Truman street tonight and intoxicated. He entertained the idea that he was at the home of friends and started to take possession of the house until the police were summoned and landed the sailor in a cell at police headquarters. He was turned over to the provost guard for discipline at the base.

WEST KINGSTON

Mr. Wallace of Providence preached at the West Kingston church Sunday evening. Bible school was well attended in the morning. The young people are planning for a Christmas entertainment and tree. Miss Dorothy M. Kenyon entertained her class Saturday afternoon at the church.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

"3 Bad Men," Fox Films latest masterly contribution of an epochal period of American history, which is now playing at the Breed theatre, surpasses even "The Iron Horse" in the stupendous conception and carrying out of many of its scenes. Probably no more gigantic production undertaking has ever before been attempted in the history of the screen. The producers say that as many as 15,000 people were used in some of the scenes including 3,000 Indians, 1,000 cowboys as well as over 2,000 horses and hundreds of vehicles.

A notable cast of screen stars play the feature roles, including George O'Brien the youthful player who leapt to the top of the ladder of fame through his work in "The Iron Horse." O'Brien plays the leading male part and the brightest of the new stars, Olive Borden, plays the role of the lady but daring young heroine. J. Farrel MacDonald, the lovable Irish Cassey of "The Iron Horse" lends his Irish drollery to the comedy side of the entertainment. Lou Tellegen once the peer of all matinee idols but today one of the most suave and convincing villains of the silver sheet, is seen as the heavy.

"3 Bad Men" was directed by John Ford who created a sensation with "The Iron Horse" and who again proves himself a master in the direction of vast masses of people, cattle and vehicles as well as in the finer shades of character presentation. For against the epochal, historical story of "3 Bad Men" is a tale of love and intrigue which grips the imagination from beginning to end.

Broadway Theatre

The great holiday program that played to capacity crowds at all performances at the Broadway theatre will continue to charm local theatregoers for two days more. Once again it must be said and has been proven that there is nothing better than Keith-Albee vaudeville.

Parillo & Betty in "Gimmie Your A" played to success with their various instruments and their timely songs and comedy.

Black, White & Useless and their famous mule were a riot of fun and entertainment of real value.

Palace Theatre

A great vaudeville program of big time acts was presented at the Palace theatre yesterday, and judging by the tumultous applause and ovations each act received, the grand opening of the vaudeville season proved exactly the kind of entertainment the theatregoers of Norwich and suburbs have been looking forward to. Capacity audiences were spontaneous in their acclaim of the clever performances each act offered, and the artists in turn, appreciating their cordial receptions responded with several encores. Opening the program, the Patchinga entertained in a pleasing musical novelty. Princess White Cloud, a fully blooded Indian, but a true daughter of American soil, captivated the audience with several original song numbers. The Sweet Shoppe, a clever song and dance revue revelled with songs, humor and dancing. An offering that kept the crowd continuously in howls, were two breezy lads, Allen and Norman. Here's an act that will rejuvenate you with laughs, and closing this great show was Watkins Comedy Circus, a miniature Barnum and Bailey animal show. If you are fond of animals, this circus will amaze you how animal show. If you are fond of animals, this circus will amaze you how animal show. If you are fond of addition Rod La Rocque in Gigolo, Edna Ferbers popular novel is shown on the screen.

Proving itself delightful in every respect, Rod La Rocque's new star picture, "Gigolo," celebrated a fine impression on its first presentation in this theatre yesterday. This is a screen version of Edna Ferber's story of the French war heroes who are known as "gigolos," or dancing partners of wealthy women who frequent Parisian cafes. Mr La Rocque impersonates a young American aviator whose face is mutilated during the war and subsequently rebuilt by the aid of plastic surgery. He becomes a changed man in appearance thereby, and his friends fail to recognize in the gigolo which he becomes, the sprightly man they once knew.

The story then develops logically along dramatic lines. The gigolo meets his boyhood sweetheart, and though she dances with him, she fails to recognize him until she plumbs the depths of his nature which in the old days she understood. She has never failed to love him, and when she pleads with him to give up his career and returns home to America with her he consents—but it is as a stoker in the steamship on which she travels. The girl is finely portrayed by Johyna Ralston who, with Louise Dresser as the mother, is featured. The supporting cast notably Cyril Chadwick and George Nichols, is excellent.

Bradley Theater, Putnam, Orpheum Danielson

The Bradley theater, Putnam and Orpheum theater, Danielson will have as their attraction for Monday and Tuesday evenings, Nov. 29 and 30 respectively, Anne Nichols' riot of laughter, Abie's Irish Rose, which for 32 weeks tested the capacity of the Castle Square theater in Boston, and which is now in its fifth year of unprecedented success at the Republic in New York city, with no signs of waning as yet.

The company and production to be seen here is one which added new pages to the theatrical history of Montreal, as well as establishing a new record for long runs and financial returns, the celebrated author-producer sending it to Putnam and Danielson intact.

As the demand for seats has been very large, the management request all those wishing to witness the play here to procure their tickets as early as possible, thus avoiding the rush as well as disappointment.

The play deals with the love of a Jewish boy of orthodox parents for an Irish girl of the Catholic faith, who are thrice married, by a Methodist minister, a rabbi and finally a priest, in order to appease the irate fathers of each, but who are disowned. To disclose how the reconciliation is brought about would be to detract from the expectancy of those who intend witnessing the play, but beneath one thousand hearty spontaneous laughs during the unfolding of the beautiful story of love and tolerance, there is a lesson so delightfully told that there is not a dissenting voice to be heard from any patron who leaves the theater and with the feeling that they have seen something worth while.

First Appearance at Pulaski Hall

One of the many attractions of the St. Mary's Memorial church minstrel review is a newly formed quartette, Nicholas Spellman, M. J. Farrell, Francis McHugh and Horace Corning. They will be heard in several selections both classic and popular. And in the near future they will no doubt be one of the leading quartettes of Norwich.

The Misses Mary Galligan and Lucille Grace, pupils of Mr. Malcolm will be seen in a costumed dancing specialty.

The Four Jazz Boys, Joe Portelance, John Keenan, Art Portelance and Bob Enright will be the feature attraction.

The chorus which is composed of the younger folks of the parish have well trained voices and will be heard at their best as a background for the soloists. The following make up the chorus: The Misses Alice Fox, Teresa Portelance, Mary Keenan, Doris White, Teresa Connelly, Monica Shea, Jane Breen, Teresa Bielecki, Messrs James Gay, Francis Monahan, Raymond Portelance, Raymond Higgins.

Well Child Conference

During the holiday season parents need to keep a firm hold on the health plan for their children. The wise parent at this time of the year will look carefully to see what the child eats, using a guiding hand in controlling its instinct to eat amply of all the things that appear. If there were more wise parents in this respect, there would be fewer illnesses among children at this time of the year. These usually take the form of dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, shown by symptoms such as headache, bad temper, coated tongue, listlessness, etc. All such reminders to busy parents are discussed at the Well Child conference. The next conference in South Coventry will be held on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 2, at the public library, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

NIANTIC

The dinner given recently in the vestry of the Methodist Episcopal church under the auspices of the Ladies' Friendly society was quite successful as $15 was realized.

St. Agnes Altar society held the weekly whist this week Tuesday evening at the rectory instead of the regular night Wednesday evening, owing to the fact it was near Thanksgiving day.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman E. Havens will close their residence on Champlin Hill Sunday next and go to Hartford to spend the winter with their son-in-law and daughter, Attorney and Mrs. James Knox. During the winter months, their residence here will be occupied by Mr. Robbins, of Saunders grove.

Lloyd Hobron is with the local freight depot as agent. Mr. Hobron has been employed for some time in Hartford in one of the insurance offices.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Prothero and son William, also Mrs. Prothero's brother Charles Bushnell of Norwich motored to the grove Sunday and spent a short time.

Nehantic chapter, No. 102, Order Eastern Star plans to meet Saturday evening instead of the regular meeting night Thursday evening. The chapter has extended invitations to Montville, Colchester and Lyme chapters to be present. Following the session, supper will be served.

The November meeting of the Niantic Sunshine society was held last week Thursday afternoon at the Morton house. Mrs. Marion R. Davis, presiding. Twenty-five members were present. Reports were given of the rummage sale and an afternoon card party held during October. The Neighborly cheer committee reported sending flowers to five who were ill, and three boxes of candy for birthday gifts. Mrs. Ira D. S. Ehler, the retiring secretary, was presented a dozen glass salad plates in token of appreciation of her efficient service rendered the society for five years. Mrs. Elmer W. Russell was appointed a committee to have charge of needle-work to be collected for the bazaar to be held at the Mohican hotel, New London in connection with the annual state convention next September. The proceeds are to go to the Sunshine Home for the Aged fund. The society voted to send out eight Thanksgiving baskets. Mrs. Elizabeth Proctor, Mrs. Fred Rohrseiling, and Mrs. Robert Lloyd volunteered to take charge of this work. Three new members were welcomed into the society.

A public card party was held at the Morton house last Thursday afternoon. The hostesses were Mrs. Jennie Smith, Mrs. D. L. Hobron, and Miss Vera Smith. Refreshments were served. The next meeting of the local branch will be on the afternoon of Dec. 2nd.

Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Blake of New York recently married, arrived at Pine Grove farm Thanksgiving day to spend a few days. Guests Sunday at the farm with Mr. and Mrs. James Metcalf were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith and daughter Janet of Groton, Mr. and Mrs. Charle Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson of New Haven.

Paul Bogue of the Black Point road, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bogue who underwent an operation recently at a hospital in New London is improving slowly and was able to return to his home.

Herbert Willey of Norwich was in the village Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hunt have returned to Norwich Town after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Aldrich.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Smith and daughter have returned to their home in Eagleville after a week-end visit with Mr. Smith's mother, Mrs. M. L. Smith of Pennsylvania avenue. On the return trip Mrs. Smith accompanied them to spend the holiday.

Travis Morgan will spend the present week-end with Miss Marjorie Day of Hartford, a Pine Grove summer resident.

Towerman Fred Mitchell and family will move into their new home on Washington avenue the first of the coming month. Beckwith Brothers have been erecting a residence for them on land Mr. Mitchell recently purchased.

The residence of Dr. and Mrs. Adam F. Bishop has been wired for electric lights.

RADIO-MOVIE SERMONS POSSIBLE, SAYS DIRECTOR

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Radio sermons illustrated by motion pictures are a possibility, says Fred Niblo, film director.

"Advance prints of proposed sermons, with a choice of selection, could be sent to churches subscribing to the service," he said. "The wave length would be printed on each film and, by tuning in on the specified Sunday, the picture could be projected to the accompaniment of radio subtitles and oratory of nationally-known pulpit figures.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Mr. Grouse Worries

When you're worried, tell a friend
Who will with sympathy attend.
—Mr. Grouse.

It isn't wise to keep one's worries to oneself too much. Sometimes a friend can help a whole lot, and a real friend is always willing and glad to. But there are friends and friends. Be sure to tell your worries to the right friend.

Mr. Grouse had seen from a distance Farmer Brown's Boy carry Mrs. Grouse away. So had Old Man Coyote. So had Reddy Fox. So had Sammy Jay. So had Chatterer the Red Squirrel. So had Blacky the Crow. Old Man Coyote had gritted his teeth and snarled under his breath. He thought that Farmer Brown's Boy had robbed him of a dinner. Reddy Fox was more glad than disappointed. He looked over at Old Man Coyote and grinned. Old Man Coyote had cheated him out of that dinner and now, in turn, he had been cheated out of it. Reddy was glad.

Mr. Grouse had seen from a distance Farmer Brown's Boy carry Mrs. Grouse

Sammy Jay was excited, but he was altogether glad, for he knew Farmer Brown's Boy so well that he was sure that nothing would happen to Mrs. Grouse. Chatterer the Red Squirrel was quite beside himself. It wasn't often that he had so many to scold at one time, and he was enjoying it to the utmost. He scolded Farmer Brown's Boy, he scolded Old Man Coyote, he scolded Reddy Fox, he scolded Sammy Jay and he scolded Blacky the Crow. Blacky the Crow was simply interested. Everything interests Blacky. At the same time he was rather pleased that neither Old Man Coyote nor Reddy Fox would dine on his old neighbor, Mrs. Grouse. But Mr. Grouse cried. Yes, sir, Mr. Grouse worried. You see, he wasn't at all sure that he ever would see Mrs. Grouse again. The appearance of that hunter with that terrible gun had destroyed all his faith in those two-legged creatures called men. So Mr. Grouse looked forlorn and mournful.

"Oh, yes, you will," said Sammy Jay. "You'll probably see her more often than you want to."

"Perhaps," interrupted Chatterer the Red Squirrel, who delights to be unpleasant, "perhaps you'll see her again. But they tell me those two-legged creatures are very fond of grouse."

"I know it," sobbed Mr. Grouse. "No one knows it better than I do. That hunter might just as well have killed her in the first place. Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote might just as well have caught her. I would rather furnish a hungry Fox with a dinner than one of those two-legged creatures, and I know Mrs. Grouse felt the same way."

"Fie, fie!" cried Sammy Jay. "Have you forgotten what happened to Mrs. Grouse when Farmer Brown's Boy found her frozen beneath the crust in the winter? Have you forgotten that?"

Mr. Grouse had to admit that he had. "But that wasn't the same as this," said he. "This is the dreadful hunting season now, and Farmer Brown's Boy may feel differently."

"He may, but I don't believe he will," replied Sammy. "Now stop your worrying and as soon as I can I'll let you know all about Mrs. Grouse."

"How are you going to know about her?" asked Mrs. Grouse.

"I'm going over to Farmer Brown's and find out," replied Sammy promptly.

TWO WOMEN FOUND HELP

By Reading Experiences of Other Women

Mrs. Nina Matteson, Box 206, Oxford, N. Y., writes—"If it had not been for your medicine, I could not have done my work as it should have been done. Mother told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I had read in different papers what it had done for different women. She wanted me to try it, so my husband got me one bottle at first; then I took two others. * * * Now I am feeling quite strong again."

Mrs. Ernest Tanguay of Adams, Mass., says she was ill for four years and could not sleep nights or go out on the street. She read about the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking eight bottles she was able to do all her work and go anywhere and is quite herself again.

This dependable Vegetable Compound is a household word in thousands of homes. The fourth generation is now learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If this medicine has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you? At your druggist's.

NORTH STERLING

George Newcome has gone to Florida for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nicol have entertained friends from Plainville and New Britain.

A number of local people attended the oyster supper and dance at the Grange hall at Ekonk Saturday evening. Over 300 were present, some coming for many miles around.

C. H. Rounds and Mrs. Lucy Hopkins entertained friend from Manchester over the week end.

Mrs. Nellie Davis and Mrs. Handy of East Killingly visited Mrs. George C. Spooner Friday evening.

This being one of the highest points in the state everything movable was missing during the gale of the past week.

The pure white owl mentioned in The Bulletin has been seen twice here the past year. For a long time it seemed to be resting on barns and outbuildings.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Coles of Jewett City and Miss Evelyn Discus of Glen Bussie, Md., visited Mr. and Mrs. George C. Spooner Sunday.

George F. Pierce and family visited relatives in Worcester Sunday.

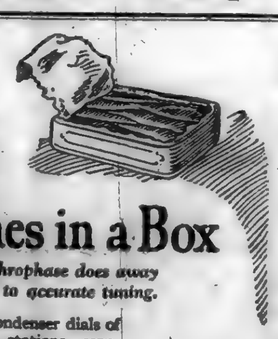
Stations are not crowded
Like Sardines in a Box



—How the Grebe Synchrophase does away with this handicap to accurate tuning.

ON the tuning condenser dials of the average set, stations—especially low-wave ones—are so crowded together that it is difficult to separate them for accurate tuning. On the dials of the S-L-F Condensers all stations are spaced at equal intervals. It is thus very easy to pick any station and tune it accurately without "microscopic" adjustment.

PRESTON

Albert Bennett recently sold his farm to out of town parties.

Rev. Mr. Smith of Bridgeport occupied the Baptist pulpit on Sunday morning. He held the close attention of a good sized audience.

Contributions for the Red Cross are being received by Mrs. G. V. Shedd. It is hoped a large number will avail themselves of seeing Mrs. Shedd and become members for the ensuing year. The usual house to house canvass will not be made in this locality as in former years.

The union C. E. meeting was held in the Congregational church last Sunday evening. Kenneth Zabriskie was the leader.

The maple trees near the store were taken up and removed on Monday to the residence of Clifton Dawley on Preston Plains. It was thought they were too near the state highway.

Extensive improvements are being made to the interior of the old Treat house in the village, recently purchased by Earl Bennett.

Miss Genie Cook received word this week of the death of her brother in Portland, Oregon.

Gustavus Holden is having an artesian well driven on his place.

At the grange meeting held on Tuesday evening the following officers were elected for the coming year: Master, Harold Muttart; overseer, Merle Woodmansee; lecturer, Harriet Crary; steward, Colin Turner; assistant steward, Raymond Muttart; chaplain, Rev. George W. Clark; treasurer, John Hollowell; secretary, Edythe Muttart; gate keeper, Fred Wilcox; Ceres, Rachel Pierce; Pomona, Mildred Slater; Flora, Arlene Bennett; lady assistant steward, Marion Muttart; pianist, Florence Kennedy. Fred Benjamin the retiring master was elected as a member of the executive committee.

The insurance committee is John Hollowell, Sidney Hall and Walter McClimon; home economics, Lydia Foote, Alice Hall and Evelyn Butler. There were 37 present and at the close of the meeting cake and coffee were served.

Of local interest was the marriage on Monday evening at the Congregational parsonage of Mr. Ames of Norwich Town to Miss Alice Ayer of Norwich. Rev. G. W. Clark performed the ceremony. Mrs. Ames is a member of the Congregational church and is highly esteemed.

SOAP AND CASTOR OIL IN USE BEFORE CHRIST

LONDON, Nov. 25. (AP)—Soap, alum liquorice, castor oil and peppermint were only a few of the medicines in use centuries before Christ as they are today, said Dr. Edward G. Gibb-Smith, health officer for Teddington, in a lecture on the Greeks and Romans as specialists.

Ether was discovered in 1540, but the secret was lost and not rediscovered until 200 years later, said the physician. The Greeks and Romans had precisely the same kind of surgical instruments as were in use at the present time.

YES—

The Public Can Be Trusted

The members of the Industrial Lenders Association of Connecticut are called upon to lend money to that substantial citizen, the working-man. Very often his security might be considered insufficient. In many cases the Loan Company must take CHARACTER into consderation, and place implicit TRUST in the borrower.

MOST PEOPLE ARE HONEST

It has been the very pleasant experience of the Loan Companies to find that they are justified in TRUSTING THE PUBLIC, for in very few cases is this trust broken. The members of this Association are lenient in their transactions and have no desire to make collections in any other way than in the most PLEASANT and CONGENIAL manner.

This is Number Four of a Series of messages to explain the present day operations of the Loan Companies.

If I ever fall in love again, said Miss Cayenne, I'll fasten my affections to a movie star.

How extraordinary!

Not at all. It enables you for a small fee to observe the features of the beloved one at your convenience, without being bored by his conversation.—Washington Star.

Mr. Conkerton, who had an irrepressible habit of boasting, was holding forth.

"Yes," he said, "I was hanging on the buffers and the train was going at 70 miles an hour. My arms grew tired, my hands slipped, and I remember saying as my head struck the rails—"

"Hard lines!" remarked a quiet little man.—Tit Bits.

Tomatoes are subject to a "decay disease" which causes the plants to wilt and die.

Any one buying brass hardware can assure himself that he is not getting brass-plated steel or iron by taking along a small horseshoe magnet, for which brass has no attraction.

Auxiliary wings enabling airmen to reach unprecedented heights are said to have been perfected by an inventor in France, who asserts that they will enable a flyer to rise to 50,000 feet.

When the Milk building in New York was torn down a letter was found in the small chute which had been there for 18 years. The letter contained a check for $36.50 to pay for two inner tubes.

A gun has been perfected by Captain C. E. Brown, drillmaster of the fire department in Miami, Fla., capable of hurling a rope for purposes of rescue to the top of the highest building in the city.

Thomas Robinson passed his 101st birthday at Greenwich, Conn., by demonstrating his own brand of golf. He set up his daughter-in-law's clothesline on the lawn and whacked them with his cane. The remainder of the day he devoted to explaining that regular living and abstemiousness brought him through the first 100 years.

How tight should the covering on an aeroplane's wings be? A new instrument that measures the tension of the cloth that holds the helium in a dirigible as well as that used on planes has been perfected in the laboratories of the United States bureau of standards. It is of great importance, say experts, that the tension of the fabrics used in aircraft should be exactly right. If it is not taut enough the operation of the plane is unsatisfactory. If it is drawn too tightly there is likely to be strain on the metal framework. The new instrument was constructed at the bureau of standards for use in the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department. It is simple and easily operated, and will test different parts of the fabric used on a machine without disturbing the covering as a whole.

ROAD SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rhodes Palmer will entertain Mr. and Mrs. Amos Wheeler at dinner on Thanksgiving day.

Mrs. Eugene Palmer is a guest of her sister Miss Grace L. Chesebrough, of Pawcatuck.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mall with entertain over Thanksgiving Henry Langworthy and family of Westerly and Miss Ethel Sheldon of Mansfield Depot.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Wheeler are entertaining over Thanksgiving Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Crouch of Westerly and guests from South Braintree, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ryan and son Alden of Pennsylvania and Mrs. Charles Newbury of Mystic, also Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilcox and children of Oneco are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bryon Billings over Thanksgiving.

The Mayflower club was entertained at Mrs. N. Stanton Gates last Wednesday when members came from neighboring cities as well as from Stonington. A delicious dinner was served at one o'clock and later all were interested in the account given by Mrs. Graves of New London of a trip abroad the past summer.

MODELS OF PREHISTORIC MONSTERS AUTO MASCOTS

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Models of prehistoric monsters have become popular as mascots for automobilists. But there are scores of other mascots, too, in which speed is personified. Animals posing in an "on guard," or "look out" attitude are in demand.

The stork on the wing continues a favorite, but nymphs in flying attitude have been cast into the discard.

Family crests, particularly those with a lion or other animal rampant are used a great deal.

CENTRAL VILLAGE SCHOOLS IN ARITHMETIC CONTEST

Seventeen Connecticut school systems and a total of 3,325 pupils are entered in the New England-wide arithmetic contest to be held on December 8 under the auspices of the Boston University School of Education and the direction of Prof. Guy M. Wilson of the school faculty. Professor Wilson is chairman of the National Education association committee on the arithmetic curriculum.

The Connecticut systems entered are Central Village, Fairfield, Southington, Ellington, Watertown, Rockville, Windsor Locks, Norwalk, Simsbury, Ansonia, Ridgefield, Derby, Bethel and Newtown.

The contest is to test the proficiency of the pupils in the simple "tool" processes of arithmetic, addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, fractions, and, in the higher grades, simple "business situations" tests.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM W. IVES NEARING 55TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Ives of 11 Champlin street, Norwich, had a most enjoyable dinner party Thanksgiving day, their guests being Mr. and Mrs. Abel Reggio, of Bay Shore, L. I., Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Ives and daughter, Shirley, of Middletown and Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Armstrong, also of 11 Champlin street. Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Ives left for New York for a visit of two or three weeks with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Reggio. On Monday next they will reach the fifty-fifth anniversary of their wedding and are to be given a reception by their daughter at her home at Bay Shore.

THREE MOTORCYCLE RIDERS HURT IN TWO CRASHES WITH AUTOMOBILES

Three persons riding on motorcycles received injuries in two collisions with automobiles in the city and town Wednesday night and Thursday afternoon.

Peter Duffile, residing at the corner of Central avenue and Tenth street, who was riding a motorcycle on Norwich avenue in Taftville, early Wednesday evening, with a man named O'Brien on the machine behind him, sustained a broken left kneecap and bruises to his right leg, when the motorcycle struck an automobile driven by Harry Friable of 75 Norwich avenue. The police learned of the accident through a physician's report on Thursday and an officer was sent to Duffile's home where a statement from him was secured. Duffile claimed that he was driving towards the city and the automobile turned into a side street in front of him. Duffile claimed that it was a case of hitting either a pole or the Friable automobile.

Miss Elizabeth Baldwin of Ledyard, who was riding on the motorcycle which William J. Shaffer of R. F. D. No. 4 was driving on Broadway about 1:30 Thursday afternoon, sustained injuries for which she was treated at the Backus hospital when the motorcycle hit a Dodge touring car at the corner of Broadway and Broad steet. Miss Baldwin suffered a broken nose and bruises on the body and right knee, while Shaffer received minor bruises on the body, the motorcycle turning over in the crash.

According to a report made of the accident the touring car, which had registration N-5959, topped suddenly in front of the motorcycle, which could not avoid running into the automobile.

The two people from the motorcycle were taken to the hospital by J. O. LeBlanc of Second street, who happened to be in the vicinity. After treatment at the hospital they left for their homes.

According to the motor vehicle department, the registration of the automobile is that of Harry Schatz of Yantic. The motorcycle had its front wheel knocked out of line, mudguard bent and handlebars twisted, and the automobile was also damaged.

Edward Cooney of 60 Fountain street reported at police headquarters that a wildly driven Cadillac coupe, the registration of which he could not secure, had sideswiped his Maxwell touring car in the left rear wheel and driven him into a fence Thursday afternoon about 2:30 on the Military highway, below the drawbridge. Mr. Cooney had his wife and two year old child with him in the front seat but the only person injured was Mrs. Cooney who had one of her fingers cut.

The coupe kept going after the crash and several other drivers who met it farther south on the road reported that it had nearly collided with their machine.

The Cooney car was coming towards this city when it met the other coming in the opposite direction at about 60 miles an hour and although Mr. Cooney got a far over to the right as he could the other machine hit his and drove him off into the fence on his right. He stopped just short of going over an offset wall. One plank of the fence speared through the right front mudguard of his machine and ripped through the apron above the running board while another passed within a few inches of Mrs. Cooney. The radiator of the machine the running board and two mudguards were torn and twisted.

Report of the accident was made as quickly as possible to the state police barracks at Groton.

FIVE CHURCHES UNITED IN THANKSGIVING SERVICE

On Thanksgiving morning at 10.30 a union service of five churches, Norwich Town Congregational, Bozrah Congregational, Fitchville Baptist, Yantic Episcopal, and Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal, was held at the last-named church with a large congregation attending.

The decorations were chrysanthemums, pine and red alder berries. America, The Beautiful, was sung by several of the young people from the Yantic and Norwich Town M. E. church choirs. A special number, a solo, was very beautifully rendered by Miss Bernice Underwood of the Norwich Town Congregational church and was accompanied by H. L. Yerrington, the organist. A mixed quartet representing three churches was in the choir, and the organ was played by Miss Florence M. Brown, organist of the entertaining church.

It had been previously voted at a recent ministers' meeting to use the morning's collection for the Near East. A generous amount was received.

The address of the day was given by Rev. Robert B. Day, rector of the Yantic church. The text was Eccl. 11:4. He that observeth the wind shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap. The attention of the audience, both old and young, was held by this purposeful, practical, and helpful sermon, which had three main topics; thankful for the past, thankful for the present, and thankful for the faith of the future. One should be thankful for the lives of the great men of the past, like Wycliff, Wesley, Gladstone, Jesuit missionaries, Pilgrims, Washington, Lincoln and others who lived for a purpose, and for our Christ.

America and some of the countries of Europe were contrasted in points of their present prosperity, today. In many countries men, much desiring employment, cannot get it, and others are in dire want; while we, as a nation can earn and save. We are at peace with our neighbors, Canada, on the north, Mexico. Mexico cannot be considered as an adversary, because of her condition, and we are also safe on our eastern and western borders. So we should be thankful because of our physical political situation. One should be thankful for modern inventions of the present. The radio brings a sermon from New York or other places farther afield; this should never be a substitute for church going. No one ought to wish to absorb everything and give nothing. "And I, if I be lifted up, from the earth, will draw all men under me." Christ is a power who can help any one to rid himself of self and his special sin. If he will take a firm hold of self and look to this help. Thanksgiving is not a time for sadness as it is the harvest season and the result of sowing. There is a harvest time for the spiritual life.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church.

ANNUAL THANKSGIVING DANCE BY TRI KAPPAS

Kappa Kappa Kappa fraternity of the Norwich Free Academy held its annual Thanksgiving night dance at the Wauregan hotel ball room Thursday night with an attendance of about 100 couples. The Worthy Hill orchestra of Hartford provided the music for the dancing which was from 9 until 1 o'clock. Moonlight waltzes featured the evening's programme. Halsey Foss was in general charge of the arrangements.

GEORGE GUILE TO STUDY VIOLIN IN NEW YORK

George Guile, of 8 Kinney avenue, known as one of the most talented younger violinists of the city, is to leave for New York today (Friday) for a year of private study under Karl Kraeuter, under whom he studied in Pittsfield, Mass., during the past summer. It is Mr. Guile's expectation to enter the New York Institute of Musical Art in the following year as it is his ambition to perfect himself on the violin and many Norwich people are watching his musical career with interest, predicting that he will go far in the field in which he has already shown so much unusual ability.

MARRIAGES DECREASING IN EVERY NEW ENGLAND STATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The census bureau reports a startling falling off in the number of marriages for 1926 for the New England section and a falling off in the number of divorces, Connecticut showing the only increase of any New England state having an increase of 2.0 divorces, while its marriages declined 4.9 per cent. Every New England state showed a decrease in marriage.

CHRISTIAN FAITH MAKES THANKSGIVING SONGFUL

There is no great music in the far country of sin, but Christian faith and love and hope are songful, and with these the soul of man can break into song said Rev. S. S. Howe in his sermon at the Thanksgiving morning service at Park Congregational church. His sermon was from a text from the 137th Psalm, "How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land?" and he spoke as follows:

On this Thanksgiving day we are expected to be songful. Perhaps we come out of environments unfavorable to gladness. There may have been sorrow in the year, or failure, or disappointment. The Christian man, however, is empowered for triumphing over adversity. He has been known to sing out of his midnights as others sing only out of their middays. The world is always a brimming sea of misery, and many human lives are little seas of misery because they have not found the gates of escape. We have wings for flight but they have been folded by our side. Provision has been made for all but the midnights if we be willing learners in the school of sorrow. But we are living this side of Calvary, and these exiles in Babylon were living on the other side of Calvary, and that finds for us a study of their special experience.

Song then and now must have its special environment, and there are times when our harps must hang on the drooping willows. We cannot sing in all places. We cannot sing another men's raptures or other men's threnodies. Song must after all have its attunements and its environing setting. You would not sing the Marseillaise to the state prisoners, nor the Star Spangled Banner to government exiles, nor the Te Deum to the stock exchange on Good Friday nor your nation's traditions to a mob of anarchists for the Gloria Excelsis to a bevy of skeptics nor the Nunc Dimittis to noisy blasphemers.

And this company of Jewish patriots and captives could not sing their great hymnody to these scoffing idolators. How sing the great hopes of the nation, their providential leading, their hope of redemption on that alien ground? Babylon, that old atheist, would not have comprehended the lofty theism of a nation that had been trained by a thousand years by visioned men who had seen God on the mountains of Israel. Babylon had no linguistic moulds for these sublime verities of faith and hope. The music of heathen lands then and today touches but a few octaves. The great music of Wagner and Bach would be lost on Babylonian ears. Not all heathen minds are trained on great Biblical ideas can their tongues reach the highe notes of great music.

There is no great music in the far country of sin. The prodigal did not sing over his swine pens. The world of the atheist is songless. The atheist has no wing to spread for flight. A company of atheists sent a protest to your president against issuing a Thanksgiving proclamation for the nation—and they were consistent. They cannot sing at the Celestial Gate as we trust we can. No. No. There is no music in evil. The tempters have no great organ note. No song taking the heart of the world captive, comes out of the abyss of human depravity. Milton does not tell us that the rebellious crew lifted their voices in song as they went into battle or when they took their fatal plunge into the bottomless abyss. Dante does not find place for song in any of the fiery circles of the Inferno. Sin has no hymnody. Music, fair daughter of the skies cannot be dragged out of heaven to sing the devil's songs. Some of the fairest plumaged birds cannot sing a note. They only croak and scream—and the exiled soul living in the country away from God amid whatsoever splendor cannot sing. Turn your back to God and the atmosphere He creates, and you will not sing what will rival the songs of Zion which cannot be sung in a strange land.

But Christian faith and love and hope are songful—with these the soul of man can break into song. You will fill the dark midnight with your rapture, as Paul and Silas sang in the Philippian prison, as the martyrs did on their way to the beasts of the Coliseum and the fires of martyrdom. You can pass through the Valley of Weeping and awake the echoes of your joy from the rocky environment. You can turn the Valley of the Shadow of Death into a great sensorium for the response of your joy.

The dark things of Providence can be set to music, and the troubles of life can be wrought up into poems as Goethe was said to have done. The soul that is rightly adjusted to God can lead the music of the world and put heart and hope into the souls of the despondent.

Giving ourselves up to a little analysis, we may press especial emphasis on the element of praise appropriate to this day of celebration. The soul catching sight of a beauty finer than its own, a loveliness nobler than we have known—and you break involuntarily into praise. Praise is the result of a contemplation of God as the author and source of all the gifts which have crowned the year and the life with blessing. The heart is praiseful on Thanksgiving day and on all days. A thankful heart is praiseful, thankful if our celebration is real. We do honor to ourselves if we pause to recognize the source from which all blessings flow. But you say God does not ask our praiseful adulation. Neither does the mountain ask to be praised. But it cares to send into your heart the awe and admiration which is its glory to impart. Mont Blanc takes no delight in throwing us on our knees in the valley of Chamounix. The sea does not invoke your homage when it rolls in upon the shore with reverberating thunder or in plaintive moans or rapturous music. But we break out in exclamatory rapture instinctively and unsolicited. And God's greatness and goodness is equally compelling of our homage as the recalling review of His goodness awakes gratitude.

And reverance is another condition. It is the reverent soul that sings effectively without reverence. The irreverent spirit drives all the angels back into heaven. The irreverent soul is hollow, vacant, and unresponsive to the deep thought that underlies song. If our worship or our daily living is savorless it is because we have not brought a reverent spirit into life and worship. A man who cannot wonder lives in a vacuum; no kind of spiritual ministry can reach him."

Then joy is an important element. The Babylonians knew nothing of this joy. They were themselves grinders in the mills of tyranny. The ancient idolators crowded out all the joys of domesticity and brotherhood. These captives as well as their captors were joyous and could but indifferently awaken through their songs the old racial rapture. They were in no mood for singing even the Lord's songs in that strange land. The fine lark note seemed to have faded from their songs.

But deliverance came and their tongues were unloosed and they caught again the high notes which makes their Psalter the high-water mark of all the world's hymnody. They recovered the lost note of service, that master-key that unlocks the nation's history. They were made conscious of their designation to world service as they introduced the deeper bass note which perfects the great world symphony.

To that thought of service to the whole world, the world owes to religion an unpayable debt. For it brought in a new era and epoch upon the world. And this idea of service runs through their Psalmody. It is the thought of service that will sing the Lord's song in a strange land and in an unfriendly clime.

THREE AUTOMOBILE CASES BEFORE THE CITY COURT

At the Thanksgiving morning session of the city court three automobile cases were the principal business.

Edgar Newton Hoy, a chief petty officer attached to the U. S. S. 12 at the submarine base, was found guilty on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $200 and costs, a total of $210.63 and friends were endeavoring to raise the money during the day but had not succeeded up to a late hour Thursday night and the officer was still held at police headquarters. He was arrested Wednesday night by Sergeant John H. Casey after Hoy's car had been in collision on Franklin street with that of Pierre Theve of Warren street.

Aldo Montali of 230 Shaw street, New London, had his case nolled on payment of $6. He was charged with driving without a license and was arrested Thursday night by Officer Quinn.

Earl Hazier of 120 Mitchell street, Groton, was also before the court for driving without a license and also without lights. He was fined $5 and costs, paying $15.50. He was arrested Wednesday night by Officer Vuono.

A man arrested in Taftville by Constable Paquette was fined $5 and costs, paying $17.41, and another arrested by the constable was given a 10 day jail sentence, suspended, on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace.

Taken Suddenly Ill.

A Deep River correspondent says: Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, pastor of the First Baptist church in Westerly, R. I., was taken suddenly ill a few nights ago immediately following a service in his church. He was stricken in the vestry. He was taken to his home in Mystic. The exact cause of his sudden illness was not stated in the message received here by friends. He was a former pastor of the local Baptist church.

FINED FOR SHOOTING QUAIL IN STONINGTON

Fines totalling $75 were meted out to two men on charges of hunting and killing quail, when they were arraigned before Judge William A. Wilcox in Stonington town court Wednesday morning. Charles Vardilles of Stonington was presented for two offenses. He pleaded not guilty but was found guilty after testimony was given by Deputy Game Warden George Denison. James D. Anaguos of Boston was charged with the same offense on one count. He pleaded guilty. Judge Wilcox imposed a fine of $25 and costs on Vardilles for the first count and $25 fine for the second. Anaguos was fined $25 and costs. Costs in each case were $12.31.

Vardilles and Anaguos were both arrested Tuesday afternoon by Deputy Game Warden Denison near the North Stonington town line. Under existing game laws, quail is protected until 1927.

ALLEGED LIQUOR WAS FOR THANKSGIVING DINNER

A quart bottle of alleged liquor which he claimed was for his Thanksgiving dinner, led to the arrest of John Lopes, Stonington fish peddler, who was presented in Stonington town court Wednesday morning before Judge William A. Wilcox on a charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell. He pleaded not guilty but was found guilty by Judge Wilcox who imposed a fine of $200 with costs amounting to $22.10, and a sentence of 60 days in jail.

Lopes's arrest came as the result of a raid upon his home by Patrolmen William Ostman and Frank Burroughs of Stonington. They found the quart bottle of alleged liquor in the garage. Upon searching Lopes's automobile they found three quart bottles, empty but for a thimbleful of fluid in each, which the officers claimed, was the remainder of drained liquor contents.

NORWICH TOWN

Following is a copy of letters in circulation this week: The First Congregational church of Norwich sends to you through its committee on finance and missions. Greetings: Another year has gone into history and find ourselves close upon the date of our Every Family canvass. The canvass will be made November 28th between the hours of 1.30 and 6 p. m. You will find a pledge card enclosed with opportunity to check the amount you will give per week during 1927. H. T. Frazier is treasurer, Norwich Town. The expenses of the church are met by the income on our invested funds which amounts to nearly a thousand dollars and by your contributions which should aggregate about two thousand dollars more. There is also the larger work in the field of world-wide work and we must not fail our missionaries who are holding the front line in the great conquest of the world for Christ. "As the Lord has prospered us so let us give; not grudgingly or of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver." The new clock has been installed and will be a credit to the church and a convenience to the public. The trustees are much gratified that the contributions come in fully and promptly and in sufficient amount to meet the church's portion of the expense. As a church we shall always realize our indebtedness to the Norwich Rural association for voluntarily assuming more than half the expense of this enterprise. Many people of many faiths have made free will offerings to the new clock which is to be a real public servant. Now in making your pledge for 1927 please consider that the church has lost during the year some faithful contributors to its work.

Fraternally, yours,
G. F. BAILEY,
Chairman for the committee on finance and missions.

As in former years under the efficient matron, Mrs. May Rolling, a fine dinner was prepared for the members of the family at the Johnson home, Thanksgiving day, although the majority were guests of relatives or friends elsewhere. The dinner however was served at noon to the members who remained at home, and consisted of roast turkey, mashed potato, mashed turnips, creamed onions, squash, celery, cranberry sauce, mince pie, pumpkin pie, cheese, nuts and fruits. Members were entertained as follows: Miss Mary Freeman at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, West Town street, Mrs. Olive Randall, with Miss Jennie L. Congdon, Mediterranean Lane; Mrs. Philena H. Noland at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Hough, West Town street; Miss Mina Hunt, with her brother, Charles Eaton of Norwich; Miss Ida Connell, at the home of relatives in East Norwich; Miss Phebe Barber at Mrs. John C. Vaughn's on Bliss Place; Mrs. Agnes Blackburn at Mrs. Charles E. Kepler's, Washington street; Miss Sarah Armstrong had dinner down town.

The nurse at Johnson Home, Miss Mary McNicholl, spent the day as the guest of relatives in Willimantic.

"Christian Endeavor Around the World," is to be the topic Sunday evening at the Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor service.

Miss Gertrude Hyde and a friend, Miss Florence Foss, members of the faculty at Mount Holyoke college, were guests over Thanksgiving at the home of Miss Hyde's sisters, the Misses Hyde and their brother, Geo. F. Hyde of Washington street.

Residents in the locality of West Town street and Pleasant street, are reminded daily of the new Samuel Huntington school to be erected on the Charles F. Geer property, by the sound of the steam shovel at work. A force of men is digging the cellar, for the proposed modern two-story structure, ground having been broken the latter part of last week.

The face of the clock recently set in the tower of the First Congregational church, received a fresh coat of black paint Wednesday morning. The figures on the dial were bronzed, the work being done by men in the employ of Frank Skinner. The hands on the new clock are bright with a covering of gold leaf. It is a real pleasure to the people of this community to again hear the familiar gong strike the hour.

The house facing Huntington lane, which adjoins the residence of Mrs. William H. Fitch in East Town street, has lately been dismantled and all material removed from the grounds, which it is expected will be graded and eventually made into a lawn. For several years this house has been unoccupied.

Norwich Town schools as in past years contributed a large quantity of provisions to the United Workers, to aid in the worthy project of distributing good things among the poor and needy families of Norwich for a Thanksgiving dinner. From West Town street school, Miss Florence M. Bennett, principal donated two huge boxes, filled with potatoes, turnips, squash, pumpkins, carrots, apples, jellies, canned vegetables and fruits, collected Tuesday morning.

The generosity of parents and friends of the children was manifested likewise at Town street school, William G. Tarbox, principal. From this school the collectors carried away very liberal supplys of vegetables, fruit, canned goods, etc, the amount averaging about the same as last year, when eight large cartons were filled.

ORATORY AND LEGAL LORE MARK FALL-DOHENY TRIAL

Contest is Being Waged Over the Admissibility of Evidence Given by Doheny Before the Senate Oil Investigating Committee in 1923-24—Plan of the Prosecution to Place the $100,000 Transaction Before the Jury Through the Reading of the Senate Testimony, Blocked Temporarily Today, Will Be Ruled on Monday by Justice Hoehling.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Heavy-siege oratory in the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial today tied the proceedings into a constitutional knot, the outcome of which still was in doubt when court recessed until Monday.

While witnesses waited, and with jury excluded, the opposing batteries of big calibre legal talent poured an incessant fire of argument upon a constitutional salient regarded as vital by both sides. The focal point of the broadsides was the question of admissibility in evidence of the testimony given before the senate oil investigation committee in 1923-24 by Edward L. Doheny. Included in this testimony is Doheny's own story of how he advanced $100,000 to Albert B. Fall, co-defendant, while the latter was secretary of the interior.

Doheny and Fall are on trial for criminal conspiracy in connection with the leasing of the Elk Hills, California, naval oil reserves to Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company while Fall was secretary of the interior.

Doheny appeared before the senate committee January 24, 1924 and freely told of having arranged to transfer $100,000 to Fall in 1921.

Initial plans of the prosecutors contemplated placing the $100,000 transaction before the jury through a reading of the senate testimony. This has been temporarily blocked.

Owen J. Roberts, arguing for the government today, built his case for the admissibility of the Doheny testimony on these points:

That Doheny appeared before the senate committee a second time voluntarily "to tell the whole world about his transaction with Fall," and that such action could in no sense be construed as testimony adduced by compulsion against the interest of the defendant; that Doheny further waived constitutional exemption from self-damaging testimony attends only to testimony obtained by compulsion; that Doheny's action in requesting the right to appear before the committee the second time after having appeared one in response to a summons, removed all suggestion of compulsion and branded the testimony regarding the $100,000 transaction as wholly voluntary.

The defense arguments, presented by Frank J. Hogan, Wilton J. Lambert and Levi Cook, were:

That the statutes covering testimony before congressional committees specifically interdict the use of such testimony in subsequent criminal proceedings, save in action based on alleged perjury in the testimony itself; that testimony before such a committee is not evidence in the legal sense of the term, in that it is not adduced under the legal rules of evidence as set down for courts of law. To admit Doheny's testimony would be to tie the hands of all future congressional investigating committees, since there then would be no question that constitutional exemption against compulsory testimony involving self interest extended to such congressional proceedings; that the senate record covering Doheny's second appearance begins with the caption "Mr. Doheny's testimony resumed," connecting the second appearance directly with the first, which was under summons, and making the while of his senate story one in the eyes of the law.

In reply to the claim of Mr. Hogan, that the prosecution sought to present circumstantial evidence of conspiracy before conspiracy itself, had been established by testimony to at least one overt act in furtherance thereof, Roberts said government counsel planned so far as possible to present its material in strict chronological sequence, but that the bulk of the testimony and the long record behind the present trial made a simple logical presentation of facts on all points difficult if not at times impossible.

MARGIN OF STATE'S RECEIPTS OVER THE EXPENDITURES

HARTFORD, Nov. 26.—(AP)—"The margin of receipts over expenditures continues to be satisfactory," according to annual report of Comptroller Frederick M. Salmon, for the year ending June 30, 1926, which has been transmitted to the governor. The state had a balance of $1,644,659.06 on hand at the end of the fiscal year, in spite of the increased cost of state operations, "increasing the salaries in order to compete with neighboring states and private employers for the services of efficient employes," the normal increase in state activities, addition of new departments and some new construction.

Expenditures during the year for additions to land, buildings and equipment, and for new roads, after deducting for depreciation, the report points out, exceeds the expenditures of the state 20 years ago for all purposes.

Comptroller Salmon points out that a year before he called attention to the "obviously inconvenient and uneconomical" situation presented by the need for greater office space and recommends that if the general assembly does not see fit to authorize the erection of a "large office building adjacent to the capitol, a smaller building be constructed, suitable for housing the motor vehicle department and located at some point where adequate parking space may be provided."

The inventory of state property shows an increase of $4,229,813.13, from $67,126,596.37 in 1925 to $71,356,409.50. The valuation of highways and bridges increased over $2,000,000 and of state owned land about $350,000. Decreases shown in the inventory included $7,800 for ferries, $2,773.40 for livestock and $55,468.84 for automobiles.

Capital expenditures during the year amounted to $4,900,716.12. The actual receipts for the fiscal period exceeded the estimates by more than $2,000,000. The board of finance estimate of the receipts was $27,281,100 and the actual receipts from all sources were $29,610,677.14.

Expenses of the general assembly for 1925 amounted to $15,939.13, in addition to the $955,196.60 included in the 1925 report.

CONN. RAISED MOST APPLES EATEN THANKSGIVING

HARTFORD, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Connecticut raised most of the apples which were eaten here with Thanksgiving dinners Thursday and those which were crushed to make the cider served with the dinners, but practically all the rest of the $2,000,000 worth of food consumed on the holiday was imported, according to officials of the state department of agriculture. While some of the poultry served Thursday was native grown, Connecticut dealers bought $1,000,000 worth outside the state, according to state agricultural department officials, and also had import larged quantities of vegetables, fruit and nuts to satisfy holiday demands so that practically none of the $3,000,000 spent went to Connecticut producers.

COLD WAVE TO COVER ALL EASTERN STATES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Accompanied by snow and snow flurries in at least five states, a cold wave will envelop the section east of the Mississippi river within the next 36 hours and send temperatures toppling over practically the entire region except the extreme south the weather bureau reported tonight.

Storm warnings ordered displayed earlier in the day were changed tonight to read from Cape Hatteras to Eastport Maine.

NEW BEDFORD LAWYER KILLS WIFE AND SELF

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 26.—(AP)—J. E. Norton Shaw of Mattapoisett, a prominent lawyer of this city, shot his wife dead this afternoon, turned the gun on himself, pulled the trigger and was dead in a few seconds.

According to Mrs. Catherine Sherman, housekeeper at the Shaw home, at about 5 this afternoon Mr. Shaw took a gun he had in the house and remarked that he was going to shoot a rat. Mrs. Sherman saw Mr. Shaw go up into the upper part of his house and in a few minutes she said she heard the explosion of the gun. Mrs. Sherman hurried into the second story of the house and there she saw Mr. Shaw standing the middle of the floor of his wife's bedroom, and Mrs. Shaw was on the floor.

"My God," exclaimed Mr. Shaw, "I've shot my wife. Go get a doctor."

Mrs. Sherman ran downstairs to the telephone and while she was calling up Dr. Tilden, she heard another explosion, and running upstairs again found Shaw on the floor with blood streaming from a self-inflicted wound. He was dead before help could be summoned.

Worry over a probate court matter that was to be tried here next Monday and Tuesday is thought to have been one cause for the deed.

Mr. Shaw was a graduate of Harvard university, class of 1896, and of Harvard law school in 1901. He was prominent as a football guard at Harvard and in 1896 he was chosen on Wharton's all-American eleven.

He played on the freshman team and three years on the varsity during Harvard's most successful seasons.

Mrs. Shaw was Helen Macomber Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bradford Sherman of Providence. They were married at Providence in 1909. They had no children.

NEGOTIATING THE SALE OF WHITE STAR LINE SHIPS

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Negotiations for the sale of the White Star line ships of the international mercantile marine to the Royal Mail Steam Packet company for seven million pounds are nearing completion, Wall street heard late today.

Directors of the I. M. M. met this afternoon and reported only routine business contracted but it was learned that the sale had practically been decided upon, and that official announcement would come from London.

Under the plans tentatively reported having been agreed upon part of the purchase price will be paid in cash and the balance arranged through a deferred payment plan, probably by means of serial notes or debentures of the Royal Mail company.

Negotiations earlier in the year for the sale of the ships to the Furness-Withy interests for 7,500,000 pounds fell through, due to a withdrawal of the offer on account of the British coal strike. J. P. Morgan and Charles Steele of J. P. Morgan & Co., who withdrew from the board when these negotiations were started because of the fact that the London branch of their firm was acting for the proposed purchases, were later relected as directors. Mr. Steele attended today's meeting.

J. M. BROWNING, BELGIAN FIRE ARMS INVENTOR, DEAD

BRUSSELS, Nov. 26.—(AP)—John M. Browning, noted fire arms inventor, is dead at Herstals, near Liege, where he had gone on a mission to Belgium's national armament factory.

The circumstances of Mr. Browning's death were not made public, the managing board of the plant withholding the information tomorrow.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

KUZNETSK, Tomsk, Siberia, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Seven local bank officials convicted of embezzlement, have been condemned to be shot. The sentence is in line with the general soviet campaign to eliminate graft in public institutions.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Rumania seemingly is on the threshold of momentous political events. King Ferdinand is reported to be near death and western Europe is flooded with unverified and unverifiable reports that former Crown Prince Carol may return from Prague to the homeland and by a coup d'etat take possession of the throne, the rights to which he renounced last January.

ANNUAL REPORT OF STATE BANKING COMMISSIONER

HARTFORD, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Assets of Connecticut savings banks, banks and trust companies, building and loan associations and kindred institutions coming under the direction of the state bank commission amounted to $1,041,991,291 as of September 30, according to the annual report of Bank Commissioner John H. Byrne, which was filed with Governor Trumbull today. The assets of savings banks amounting to $598,835,973 increased $34,807,423 over the corresponding date last year and the assets of the state banks and trust companies increased $41,057,588 to $343,774,928.

Deposits in savings banks increased $29,044,279 and on September 30, amounted to $538,201,533. School savings increased $68,769 and amounted to $359,366. Further increase in Christmas savings accounts carried in banks and trust companies is shown. As of September 30, the amount of these deposits was $1,529,204, an increase of $246,457 over the corresponding date a year ago. The surplus of state savings banks increased $4,689,332 and aggregated $24,830,550.

Bank Commissioner Byrne reported the establishment of three new state banks and trust companies with capitalizations amounting to $1,725,000. Eight banks increased capital during the year, the amount being $402,660. Four new industrial banks were established with capital amounting to $300,000.

The surplus of state banks and trust companies amounted to $16,955,675, an increase of $2,582,077. Undivided profits were reported as $9,584,896, which was an increase of $2,051,222. Reserves were reported as $2,173,012, an increase of $314,366 for the year.

EFFORTS BEING MADE TO PROTECT BANKS IN IOWA

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Businessmen and farmers of Palo Alto and Kossuth counties left their own affairs today and joined forces with officers and employes of 19 banks in a canvas of depositors designed to bring forth enough time waivers on deposits to permit the institutions to reorganize and resume business. The banks were closed today by agreement in an effort to halt what was termed unwarranted withdrawal of funds that threatened disaster.

The closed banks include 13 under state charter, six national and one private institution. Their directorates decided upon the simultaneous closing when a general anxiety on the part of depositors develope dover the recent closing of a string of banks in Clay county. By coincidence, the Clay county banks reopened for business today after securing sufficient waivers to permit the reorganization.

The closing of a national bank at Clarinda had no connection with the Palo Alto and Kossuth difficulties.

A meeting of the state banking board is to be held tomorrow. The Iowa Bankers association is ready to aid if necessary, it was stated.

EXPECT TO SETTLE THE DANBURY TROLLEY STRIKE

DANBURY, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Possible early settlement of the strike of operating employes of the Danbury Power and Transportation company, was forecast today by a preliminary conference between A. William Sperry, vice president and executive engineer of the company and three representatives of the strikers.

It is understood that Sperry asked to meet all the employes, but that they decided to appoint a committee for the conference. The men say they are willing to sign an agreement with the company which shall be mutually agreeable, leaving to arbitration the settlement of disputed points, and it is hoped that the preliminary conference will lead to such an outcome. P. J. O'Brien, of Springfield, Mass., vice president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, and John J. Egan, of Bridgeport, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, are both in Danbury, but did not take part in the conference.

Meanwhile no transportation is being furnished by the company, only the busses of a local taxi company helping to care for those who had to travel in the rain today.

MORSE CASE DEFENDANTS DWINDLE FROM 24 TO EIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—(AP)—The roster of defendants in the Morse conspiracy case, which originally contained 24 names headed by that of Charles W. Morse himself, had today, at the end of the trial's seventh week, dwindled to eight, headed by the veteran shipping man's three sons. Two defendants were dropped today.

Although 24 men were originally indicted only 17 actually went on trial in the present action. Charges were dropped against some of those originally indicted and the cases of others were severed from the main trial. Charles W. Morse, who was pardoned from Atlanta penitentiary by President Taft when doctors said further confinement would cause his death, was excused from immediate trial on account of his health.

The remaining defendants are Harry F., Erwin A., and Benjamin W. Morse, George W. Burdett, Rupert M. Much, George E. Wells, Harry E. Boughton and William H. Dennis.

The taking of testimony has ended and it is believed that another week may see the long trial ended.

SCHOOL ENUMERATION OF VARIOUS TOWNS REPORTED

HARTFORD, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Reports received in the past few days on the school enumeration in various towns in the state and announced today by John H. Belden, chief clerk of the comptroller's office, are as follows: Lebanon 859, Washington 407, Killingworth 133, Stonington 2,898, Colebrook 127, Middlebury 256, Seymour 1,056, Thomaston 957, Litchfield 380, Brooklyn 466, Ashford 230, Canton 588, Westbrook 214, Southbury 236, North Branford 381, Thompson 1,324, Cheshire 755, Willington 227, Fairfield 4,969, Salem 134.

Charges Against A.R. Gould Are Dismissed

U. S. Senatorial Nominee of Maine Was Charged With Excessive Campaign Expenses.

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 26.—(AP)—The charges of excessive primary campaign expenditures against Arthur R. Gould, republican nominee for United States senator, were dismissed by Secretary of State Frank W. Hall tonight, after two and a half hours' deliberation on the evidence introduced in the hearing today.

"This is not an investigation and the burden of proof rests on the complainant," said the secretary of state in announcing his findings." The proof introduced has fallen far short of the standards set by authorities in such cases. The fact that the respondent, Mr. Gould, did not appear at the hearing cannot be considered evidence of guilt."

The charge that Mr. Gould exceeded the legal limit of $1,500 in his primary campaign was made last Saturday by the Rev. Arthur F. Leigh, Randolph minister and admitted Ku Klux Klan leader. Thirty-one specifications were filed on Wednesday afternoon to support the complaint. Of these, twenty-one enumerated advertisements placed in many newspapers, it was alleged, by Mr. Gould without his knowledge, and consent, and the remainder dealt with payments to individual workers, car hire and purchase of buttons and other campaign material.

The return filed by Mr. Gould in compliance with the law showed an expenditure of $1,300 as the total of the campaign. The hall of representatives in the capitol was crowded today by citizens. The respondent's attorney pleaded frequently the shortness of time of the special election of Monday.

GOULD LOSES SUPPORT OF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

PORTLAND, Maine, Nov. 26.—(AP)—President Coolidge has withdrawn his moral support of Arthur R. Gould, republican candidate for the United States senate from Maine as shown by the action of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover in cancelling his engagement to speak here, Fulton J. Redman, democratic candidate, declared in a radio address tonight.

MURDER TRIAL IN MAIDSTONE OF ALPHONSE F. A. SMITH

MAIDSTONE, England, Nov. 26—(AP)—Painting of a woman juror and the dramatic denial that he had fired the shot that killed his friend J. T. Derham, were high spots in the trial today of Alphonse F. A. Smith, socially prominent defendant in the "Stella Maris" murder trial.

Smith, who is a grandson of the late Hugh Ryan, Canadian railway builder, was calm and imperturable during a three-hour examination before Judge Sir Horace Avory. Throughout he maintained that he had never threatened to kill Smith, although he admitted that he had learned that Derham and Mrs. Smith were unduly friendly.

Although the defendant was calm throughout the examination, the reading of several poignant protestations of abiding love for his wife, read into the record by his counsel proved too much for one of the two women jurors. As the advocate read one letter in which Smith told his wife that she had given him a glimpse of heaven and then appealed to her not to throw him a life-belt only "to withdraw it at the last gasp," the woman juror gave way to an emotional outburst. She leaned back in her chair and as tears streamed from her eyes moaned agonizingly.

Smith said that he met Derham a year ago and that they became great friends. Later he discovered that Derham had obtained Mrs. Smith's affections. Frantic with jealousy, he bought a revolver with the sole idea of committing suicide. On the promise of his wife to abandon Derham, the Smiths resumed marital relations only to face another crisis when Smith discovered that Derham and his wife were continuing their friendship. Smith swore that he intended to commit suicide, but that Derham was accidentally shot in a struggle for the revolver.

WAGE INCREASES ON WESTERN RAILROADS

CHICAGO, Nov. 26—(AP)—Wage increases estimated at $3,000,000 annually on eleven western railroads operating out of Chicago, affecting about 100,000 shopmen, have been granted by the roads, it was disclosed today. The advance ranges from one to three cents an hour, in most cases, two cents an hour.

The roads involved are the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, Atchison, Topeka and Sante Fe, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, Chicago and Eastern Illinois Central, Great Northern, Missouri Pacific and Chicago and Alton.

Inside the Now

People didn't know about things in the dark ages. They didn't know what was in lightning, mines, trees, air, that with a little ingenuity would make an electric light, a watch, a high-grade soap, a radio. They didn't know how to go about to know things. They didn't have many things worth while to know.

Today you have countless conveniences. You have all the facts you need to get hold of these conveniences. You have advertisements. Advertisements tell you frankly of wonders you can buy, where to buy them, how to recognize them, how to use them, how much to pay. By reading Bulletin advertisements you know what they will do for you before you spend one cent. Advertisements spread things before you so conveniently that almost by reaching out—you have them!

MAY AVERT STRIKE OF CANADIAN RAILWAY MEN

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Further negotiations with Canadian railway officials to avert the threatened strike of 15,000 conductors, trainmen and yardmen for a six per cent wage increase seemed probable tonight.

A managers committee of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways told a general committee, representing the men, today, that they assumed "the employes' representatives would desire to confer further with the executives of the railways before reaching any conclusion." The managers, however, declared they did not see that "any useful purpose would be accomplished by further negotiations between the committees."

The general committee of the men continued its meeting today, armed with strike power given them by a vote of the membership of the two bodies represented, the Order of Railroad Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Of a membership of upward of 15,000, 90-40 per cent of the trainmen and 91 per cent of the conductors voted "for a peaceful walkout from the railroad service, unless satisfactory settlement could otherwise be made."

The men are asking for a wage increase which would bring their salaries to a level with those paid in the United States.

AMERICAN GOT CRITICISED IN THE MEXICAN CHAMBER

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26—(AP)—Rising to their feet and cheering with enthusiasm, the members of the chamber of deputies gave a vote of confidence to the government of President Calles today for its stand with regard to the Mexican land and oil laws. The demonstration of support came after numerous deputies had criticized the policies of the Washington government toward Mexico not only in connection with the land and oil laws, but also Washington's attitude toward the Nicaraguan-Mexican situation and the opposition of the United States to alleged Mexican interference in Nicaraguan politics.

Several of the speakers also rebuked the Knights of Columbus organization of the United States for "efforts to interfere and cause the United States government to interfere in the Mexican religious situation."

Crowds in the galleries and the members shouted their approval as Deputy Alejandro Carisolo declared that some interests in the United States "will never be satisfied until the Stars and Stripes fly over Mexico."

"But," he added, "that can never be accomplished as long as a single Mexican remains alive to resist invasion."

MAYOR NICHOLS, BOSTON, WEDS MISS CARRIE M. WILLIAMS

BOSTON, Nov. 26—(AP)—Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols today married Miss Carrie Marjorie Williams of Jamaica Plain, twin-sister of his first wife.

The three children of the mayor took part in the wedding. His 9-year old son, Clark Galisbury Nichols, was best man; his second son, Dexter, was ring bearer and his daughter, Marjorie, youngest of the family, was flower girl. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Florence Nichols. The mayor's first wife died in May, 1925.

77 KILLED, 200 INJURED BY TORNADOES IN SIX STATES

Storm From the Northwest Swept Through Southern and Southwestern States, Leaving a Tangled Mass of Debris in Its Wake—Oil and Gas Fields Were Hard Hit and Mississippi Plantations Were Damaged.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 26—(AP)—Groping through a tangled mass of debris left in the wake of a wind storm which swept in from the northwest, six southern and southwestern states tonight counted a toll of 77 dead and approximately 200 injured. Property damages was estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

After smoking its way through the Ozark mountains the storm struck with its greatest fury near the Ozark foothills late yesterday and swirled through the town of Heber Springs, Ark. Then it twisted across into Missouri with the proportions and characteristics of a mid-fall tornado, dipped into hak a dozen Arkansas counties and into Louisiana, whence it veered to the east into Mississippi and then into Tennessee and Alabama.

In Texas the disturbance whipped up a sand storm which took one life and caused extensive property damage about Lubbock county.

Heber Springs suffered most. Half of the town was left in ruins, and about the town 21 persons were killed and 50 injured. Quitman, Greenbrier, Guy, Pearson, Wilburn, Enders and Tyler, suburbs of Heber Springs, were among the villages which paid in life and property the storm's price.

Brandsville, Competition and Big Piney bore the brunt of the wind's whirl into Missouri, while in Arkansas, Conway, Grant, Cleburne, Jackson, Jefferson and Yell counties paid a death toll.

The oil and gas fields in Claiborne and Morehouse parishes and farming sections about Mer Rouge and Haines were hardest hit in Louisiana. In Mississippi plantations were damaged near Marks, in Quitman county.

Early today the storm passed into Tennessee and disappeared after causing minor property damage about the town of Smyrna.

The known loss of life in Arkansas tonight was 42, half of these at Heber Springs, and the injured numbered more than 100.

Fifty were injured, some perhaps fatally, at Heber Springs, ten are dead and forty injured at Moscow in Jefferson county. Conway county reported eight dead at Oppelo, Choctaw and Macedonia. Two were killed in the vicinity of Newport and one man was crushed to death at Sheridan. Other counties reported property damage and injuries but not loss of life. The dead and injured at Moscow mostly are Negroes.

Eleven were killed and the same number injured about Mer Rouge and five killed and 16 injured near Hainesville where fifty oil derricks were levelled and the camp of the Roxana Oil company was wrecked.

In Alabama the tornado swept the vicinity of Zion church near Winfield demolishing more than 10 homes.

Three persons were killed and many slightly injured.

All residents turned to relief work. Nine Negro tenant farmers were killed and thirteen injured on plantations near Marks, Miss. Several substantial buildings were destroyed and some damaged.

Relief measures have been undertaken by the American Red Cross and surveys were being made tonight to determine the amount of aid needed from state sources. C. W. Jackson was sent today from the St. Louis headquarters of the Red Cross to establish a relief base at West Plains, Mo., and R. M. Reddy was despatched to Heber Springs.

Governor Tom J. Terral of Arkansas, tonight awaited reports from the national guard officers sent into the storm area, to determine immediately needs in men and money to meet the situation. Newspapers of the state made ready to act on petitions from citizens of Heber Springs to conduct campaigns for relief funds.

461 AUTO ACCIDENTS IN THE STATE LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Nov. 26.—(AP)—A decrease both in the number of automobile accidents in the state and the number of persons killed in such accidents, was noted during the week ending November 20, as compared with the previous week, according to the weekly report made today by the statistical division of the department of motor vehicles. The totals, however, were considerably larger than during the corresponding week in 1925.

Accidents during the week totaled 491 as compared with 441 the previous week and 349 a year ago. 367 were in 14 principal cities where the previous week there were 326 and a year ago 211. Hartford again led the cities of the state with 62. Fatal accidents totaled eight, a decrease of four from the previous week but an increase of two over the corresponding week a years ago.

The totals in the 14 cities were as follows: Hartford 62, Bridgeport 49, New Haven 40, New Britain 29, Waterbury 23, New London 12, Greenwich 11, Stamford 11, Middletown 8, Meriden 5, Danbury 4, Norwalk 4, Norwich 4, Winsted 1.

The places where the fatal accidents occurred and the victims were as follows: Bristol, Charles Konopka; Willimantic, Jennie Jurawsky; Hartford, Herman Meyer; Norwalk, Mrs. Eliza Ebsen; Bridgeport, Loring J. Ambler; New Britain, Sven J. Elander; Greenwich, Adam Debenski; Suffield, Leola Walker.

CONSIDERS CONSTITUTIONAL PROHIBITION A FAILURE

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Constitutional prohibition is a failure and the "wet" days are returning, says Governor Walter M. Pierce, long known as an ardent dry worker, in an interview in the Capital Journal today.

The Oregon executive, who will retire Jan. 9, after serving for four years summed up his opinions of prohibition enforcement and other governmental problems and wound up by asserting that no man who follows the dictates of his conscience and says what he honestly believes regarding te conduct of public office can be re-elected.

Declaring that prohibition by legislation has not accomplished the results expected of it, and that the "wet" days are returning, "if not actually here," Pierce declared that "we must go back and start all over again."

NAVAL SEAPLANE PN-10 No. 2 HAS ARRIVED AT COLON

COLON, Panama, Nov. 26—(AP)—The United States naval plane PN-10 No. 2 arrived at the Coco Solo station here at about 5:30 o'clock this evening from the Isle of Pines. Lieutenant Commander Bartlett, pilot, and the members of the crew were given a great ovation when they landed.

Commander Bartlett announced that the flight proved the feasibility of getting planes from the United States to the Canal zone quickly under all conditions. He said he would have made the destination without difficulty only for a shortage of lubricating oil while over the Isle of Pines, which compelled him to stop there. The plane was attempting a non-stop flight from Norfolk, Virginia, to Colon.

Commander Bartlett's crew was made up of Lieutenants H. C. Rodd and C. H. Schildhauer and Machinist's Mate Charles J. Butler.

KING FERDINAND HAS CANCER OF THE BOWELS

LONDON, Nov. 26—(AP)—The Bucharest correspondent of the "Westminster Gazette" says that King Ferdinand of Rumania "is not expected to live until morning." The despatch, bearing today's (Friday's) date, adds that blood congestion of the large intestine, due to cancer, is causing blood poisoning. Bucharest is described as "awaiting a coup d'etat."

A special correspondent sent by the Daily Mail to Bucharest to investigate the condition of the king, telegraphs from Budapest that Ferdinand "is desperately ill with cancer of the bowels.

PROCEEDINGS OF HALL-MILLS MURDER CASE

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 26.—(AP)—With a procession of witnesses including Feils Di Martini, detective once employed by Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall in an investigation of the death of her husband and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, the defense in the Hall-Mills case today definitely paved the way for Mrs. Hall to testify in her own behalf.

The widow of the slain rector on trial with her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, on a charge of murdering Mrs. Mills, will go to the witness stand tomorrow. The case of the defense will be closed soon after Mrs. Hall adds her denial to that of her brothers of being present or knowing anything of the double killing.

Di Martini created a mild sensation when he entered the courtroom. He was arrested last month in Brooklyn on a New Jersey warrant charging him with being an accessory after the fact of the murder. The New York court of appeals ordered his release.

After testifying this afternoon, in denial of all allegations made against him by the state, the New York detective through his attorney, accepted service of a warrant for his arrest and posted bail for his appearance. His lawyer argued for dismissal of the complaint after the adjournment of court, Judge Francis J. Cleary denying the motion as committing magistrate but promising another hearing tomorrow.

In addition to 12 witnesses used this afternoon to attack Mrs. Gibson's reputation, the defense announced it had two more. These witnesses were asked the stereotyped questions, if they knew Mrs. Gibson and her reputation for "truth and veracity." All said "bad" or "very bad".

BRITISH OIL INTERESTS ACCEPT MEXICAN LAWS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—(AP)—Acceptance by all the British oil interests in Mexico of the provisions of that country's petroleum laws, which have been the subject of extended diplomatic correspondence between the United States and Mexico, was announced in telegrams received and made public today by the Mexican embassy.

The telegrams, from Mexico City, were to the effect that Harry Hadfield Hallat, in behalf of the Compania Mexicana de Petroles, which includes all the English oil interests in Mexico, had filed with the department of industry, commerce and labor a petition "asking the confirmatory confession of his oil rights, in accordance with article 155, of the oil regulations and articles 14 and 15 of the same law."

The number of lots on which confirmation was asked was placed at 401, representing an approximate area of 200,000,000 acres.

The telegrams also said that "La Corona," an important Dutch company, as well as "some American and other corporations," already had complied with the requirements of the oil laws in the same form as the British interests.

MERE PAPER PROFITS DO NOT CONSTITUTE AN INCOME

BOSTON, Nov. 26—(AP)—On the ground that "mere paper profit does not constitute income" the full bench of the state supreme court today ordered the commissioner of corporations to abate an income tax of $106,744 assessed in 1923 on John M. Van Heusen, collar manufacturer.

The tax was assessed on the profits which the state authorities claimed the manufacturer had derived from the transfer in that year to the Van Heusen Products, Inc., of all his patents and patent applications, contracts and certain rights in exchange for all the stock of the corporation which had a book value of $3,800,000. The supreme court had sustained the commissioner. The opinion of the full court, written by Justice Wait, said in part:

"Income as a subject of taxation imports an actual gain. It must mean increase of wealth out of which money may be taken to satisfy the pecuniary imposition laid for the support of the government."

DECISION BY COURT FOR WILLIMANTIC PEOPLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 26—Decisions in three civil suits have been handed down by Judge Alfred C. Baldwin, awarding various amounts to the plaintiffs in claims for damages. The cases were heard in the October term of the Windham county superior court which closed here today.

In the case of Estelle H. Remington of this city vs. the Willimantic and Hartford Jitney association, heard November 2nd, judgment to recover $1,800 was granted the plaintiff. Three hundred dollars damages were allowed in the case of Robert G. Remington against the same defendant association The double action was brought following an accident last winter when a motor coach of the jitney line plowed into a tree after getting into a snowbank. Mrs. Remington was injured in the accident and she sued for injuries while Mr. Remington sued for the loss of his wife's services in performing her household duties. The defendant concern has given notice of appeal from the decision to the supreme court of errors of the first judicial district of Connecticut. The business of the jitney line has been taken over by the New England Transportation company since the time of the accident.

Judgment to recover $2,000 was rendered in the case of Robert Dalomba vs. Albert E. Soult of Hartford. This case was heard November 3rd and has to do with an automobile collision near Wareheuse Point over one year ago. The plaintiff, a minor, resided in this city at the time. He received facial scars which will remain as reminders of the accident for the remainder of his life.

FIND FOR PLAINTIFF IN ROONEY-ROBITAILLE CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 26—The final session of the jevil term was held in this city Friday forenoon. The only business was to listen to arguments by attorneys in the case of Alfred Rooney vs. Charles J. Robitaille, both of Plainfield, in a suit to recover damages of $10,000 as the result of injuries sustained when the plaintiff was struck by an automobile driven by the defendant. The case was heard Tuesday and Wednesday. At the close of the arguments Judge Baldwin delivered his charge to the jury. The jury retired at 1:35 o'clock and returne dshortly before five o'clock with a verdict finding for the plaintiff and awarding damage of $7,000. The amount of damages fixed by the jury was the largest awardment for damages made during the term. The case was the only case of the term to be tried by jury. Judge Baldwin then adjourned court without date.

One woman, Mrs. William E. Geary of 236 Washington street, Providence, R. I., sustained a fractured knee and two cars damaged on the Hartford-Willimantic highway in the town of Columbia shortly after noon Friday as the result of the sudden application of brakes on the wet road. The car in which Mrs. Geary was a passenger was a Ford coach which was driven by her husband and was bound for Providence. Approaching from the opposite direction on a curve was a Buick coupe owned and operated by H. W. Williams of 289 Farmington avenue, Hartford. The Buick skidded and the driver applied the brakes which caused the machine to swing completely around Mr. Geary drove his car off the side of the road and into an embankment to keep the two cars from striking. State Policeman Fred Tayor of the Stafford Springs barracks investigated the accident but preferred no charges as Geary admitted that the mishap was unavoidable due to the slippery condition of the road.

Alphonse Soucy of lower village seems to have developed a new pastime of throwing stones through windows. He was fined $25 and costs for his second offense of this nature in police court Friday morning. A complaint was received from 17 Pine street Thursday night that someone had hurled a rock through the window and that Frank Tiffany who was seated at a table playing cards with others had been struck by the missile. He displayed a cut under his nose in court. Soucy was arrested when burdocks were found on his coat which he admitted he had work Thursday night. He pleaded not guilty and claimed that the tell-tale thistles had gotten onto his coat in the woods where he was employed but Officer Pierre Marrotte who conducted the investigation found burdock bushes in the rear of the house where the store was thrown. Soucy paid an assessment of $23.15.

The funeral of John J. Hickey was held from the late home, 226 Jackson street Friday morning with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Joseph's church at 10 o'clock. Rev. Felix J. O'Neill of Stafford Springs was the celebrant; Rev. Richard Morrissey of Plainfield, deacon, and Rev. Edward A. Mathieu, sub-deacon. Rev. Paul J. Hartigwell was master of ceremonies. Seated within the sanctuary rails were Rev. J. J. Papillon of St. Mary's church this city, Rev. James Broderick of Terryville, Rev. Dennis F. Moran of South Coventry, Rev. Arthur Routhier of Putnam and Rev. Charles M. Kelly of St. Joseph's church. During the processional a quartet comprising Mrs. Henry Mathieu, Miss L. Monton McKeon, Arthur Roy and Walter J. Cosello rendered Jubilate With Me. Mrs. Mathieu sang Pie Jesu at the offertory and Mr. Roy rendered O. Meritum at the elevation and O the Priceless Love of Jesus as a waiting hymn. Mrs. Mathieu was heard in When Evening Comes as a recessional. Mrs. Edmund St. Portelance was at the organ.

Burial was in the Hickey plot in St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Broderick assisted by Rev. Fathers Morrissey, Moran, Mathieu, O'Neill, Kelly and Bartlewski. Delegations from Norwich lodge No. 430 and Willimantic lodge No. 1511 B. P. O. Elks were in attendance. Included in a profusion of floral pieces were large wreaths from the Norwich and Willimantic Elk lodges, San Jose council No. 14, Knights of Columbus and from San Jose assembly No. 14, Knights of Columbus. Another impressive piece was a floral mortar and pestle from the druggists of the city. Out of respect to the memory of the deceased all drug stores in the city were closed during the services The bearers were, T. Frank Cunningham, Harry B. Merrion, Frank Herrin, William L. Flynn, Eugene E. Curran and Harry Grimley. The flower bearers were Joseph C. Paulhus and Luke C. Hevrin. Included in the large attendance were relatives and friends from Hartford, Southbridge, Mass., East Hampton, Terryville, Putnam, Webster, Mass., Middletown, Norwich, Providence, R. I., Mansfield Depot and Worcester, Mass.

Miss Ide Labonte of this city and Lloyd Bentley of Willington were united in marriage in the Congregational church parsonage at South Coventry at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. Rev. Charles G. Johnson, the pastor, officiated. Miss Lydia Bentley, of this city, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and William Miner of Rockville was best man. The bride wore tan georgette with velvet trimmings and a hat to match. Her maid of honor wore old rose satin with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Finley of Rockville also attended. Mr. and Mrs. Bentley left after the ceremony by motor for New York city. Upon their return they will be tendered a reception by Mrs. Christine Bentley of 185 Jackson street, mother of the groom. Miss Lydia Bentley and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Giambotte of this city accompanied the newlyweds to New York.

Dorothy Alice, daughter of Arthur and Lena Allaire Aubin died at the home of her parents, 11 Lewiston avenue, Thursday night of infantile paralysis. Besides her parents she leaves one sister, Theresa. The funeral was held at two o'clock Friday afternoon with burial in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home, 48 Mansfield avenue, Thursday, the affair being in the nature of a family reunion with four generations represented. Among those present were three sons and three daughters, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. A Thanksgiving dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis received many gifts and greeting cards.

Next Tuesday evenings the Hebrews the world over will usher in Chanukah, the feast of dedication, likewise known as the feast of lights. The festival continues for eight days and is one of great joy and gladness. In modern times the festival has assumed the character of a children's celebration. During the festal days services will be held at the local synagogue.

DANIELSON

MONDAY IS KILLINGLY NIGHT AT STATION WKBE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 26—Killingly people will be back "on the air" next Monday night through broadcasting station WKBE of Webster, and they are going to make a night o ft. That is up to a reasonable hour. At 10:05 p. m. Braley's orchestra of Attawaugan will tickle the ether with merry tunes. Then at 10:15 there will be a song perio dwith Warren Braley, orchestra leader and Henry Young, a member of the orchestra, as entertainers.

At 10:30 there will be a No Joking period, with Eli Dagenias of Attawaugan and Warren Braley telling funny things to the listners-in. Edward Aubin of Attawaugan will sing solos at the 10:40 period and at 11 o'clock there will be piano numbers by Ernest Hammond of Attawaugan. At 11:10 more vocal numbers by Mr. Braley, followed at 11:30 by harmonica numbers by Mr. Laporte of Danielson, which figures incidentally in the broadcast. At 11:45, the orchestra will begin a period of dance music broadcasting. For the information of Danielson people who are unfamiliar with the Webster station wave length it may be mentioned that it is 270.8 meters.

A wedding Thanksgiving day at North Scituate, R. I. was that of Miss Evelyn Whipple and Waldo Colvin, both of Danielson. They made no advance announcements of their intention to enter the matrimonial state. After a brief honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Colvin will go to Florida to spend the winter season. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Whipple of Elmville road, the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Colvin of the West Side. Both young people have lived hereabouts for years and all of their friends will congratulate them on their marriage.

Friday night the body of Mrs. Dalima Thibeault, 70, was brought here from Norwich by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Her death occurred during the day. Mrs. Thibeault, 70 years of age, was a resident of Maple street.

Another death Friday was that of Charles Lucier, 76, long a resident of Wauregan. For years Mr. Lucier was employed as an engineer for the Wauregan company at Wauregan. Mr. Lucier was a native of Canada.

In connection with the personal tax obligation, some people claim exemption on the ground that they are not residents of Connecticut or Killingly or an sub-division thereof. Others insist on paying this tax for their relatives or friends who are now residents in distant states or parts of the Dominion of Canada.

There are those who insist they are not liable to pay a persona tx lxin the town of Killingly, though they have lived here for years and go back to what they call their homes only for Christmas or some other holiday. These people enjoy the protection of the local town government, have the benefit of Danielsons police department protection, its various public utilities and all the advantages of the functioning of local government as pointed out by town authorities. They have every governmental protection that a citizen who pays the tax has and who never stops to question the right of the town to collect a personal tax. Some of these, have their children in local schools, at the expense of the town.

The town holds that, having established a technical residence here, as is indicated by the foregoing, the town has a right to collect from these people the two dollars a year that the state says is due for personal tax. The dissension against paying this personal tax is not general, but comes from a comparatively small group out of all the hundreds who are assessed this particular tax.

Aside from this part of the picture is the attitude of some other people who lean backwards in their efforts to pay $3 a head for their relatives or friends who are now residents of distant states or of neighboring foreign territory and who insist on being recorded, technically, as residents of Killingly.

Many a Danielson fan will "see" the Army-Navy football game by radio this afternoon. That's the best that can be done about by most people hereabouts.

Rev. John Roux, M. S. of Bloomfield, a former pastor of St. James parish, was a visitor in Danielson Friday.

Hunters say that quail are abundant this fall, after years of protection and a open season for hunting.

White owls are almost as numerous in eastern Connecticut this fall. It would appear as starlings. Motorists riding along the highway between Brooklyn and Hampton may view a fine specimen of this species of owl, dead and hanging to a tree, evidently for display.

Basketball seems assured of another successful season in Danielson. A satisfactory attendance was out for the opening game of the season here when the Danielson town team defeated the Cheney Silk team of South Manchester, 47 to 27, in the town hall Thanksgiving night.

Outranked only by Wilson of Lafayette, "Pop" Williams, fullback of the Connecticut Aggie team this fall and a former Killingly high school player, ranks second highest scorer, with 90 points, of any player in eastern college football.

Schools of the town of Killingly will resume sessions Monday morning after having been closed since Wednesday afternoon for the Thanksgiving recess.

Gymnasium classes at Killingly high school will be started December 6, the gymnasium apparatus for the new and commodious quarters to be installed during the coming week.

William H. Backus, who died a fortnight ago at his home on North Main street, bequeathed $5,000 to the Westcott and Wilcox Old People's home. The total gifts to the institution during the current year amount to $7,500, there having previously been given two gifts of $1,000 each and one gift of $500.

Members from towns in this corner of the state will be at Hartford next Wednesday and Thursday for the annual meeting of the Connecticut Vegetable Growers' association.

United Cigar store agency opening today at the Washington spa, 115 Main street. Many very special prices, shaving cream and other articles given away as souvenirs.—Adv.

Miss Mildred Tillinghast of Miss Wheelock's school at Beston is spending the holiday recess with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett T. Tillinghast.

Out of the past and as vibrant as ever emerges the slogan "Do Your Christmas Shopping Early!" It may be added "Try and do it here."

A Mssantuck correspondent writes that there is an orange tree at the home of Mrs. Frank Heath over there that has seven oranges upon it, and that some of them are turning yellow.

Dean Charles R. Brown of the Yale Divinity school will preach the sermon next Tuesday, when Rev. Harding W. Gaylord is installed as pastor of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson.

Horace B. Hunter of Madison, this state, has been visiting with his son, William S. Hunter, representative-elect from Killingly, and members of his family at Goodyear.

Mrs. A. E. Darling has closed her home at Dayville and has gone to Plymouth, N. H., to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Leroy Spaulding.

Rev. F. W. Thoien of Stafford is scheduled to preach at a morning service at the Union Baptist church in East Killingly Sunday, this church without a resident pastor at the present time.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert F. Souther and Mrs. Souther's father, Henry M. Danielson, are to spend the winter on the Souther country place in the Allen Hill district of the town of Brooklyn.

A considerable number of the members of Killingly grange will go to Columbia next Wednesday evening to accompany the traveling gavel that was been in Killingly grange for a time on its tour about the homes of the granges of the state.

The new cooking classes at the high school command the full attention of their members and are productive of some very nice things to eat. A home economics department is something new at Killingly high school this fall, one of the benefits of enlarging the plant.

A meeting of the Sewing society of St. Alban's church was held Friday afternoon.

The many Danielson members of Putnam lodge of Elks have been notified that the annual lodge of sorrow will be held this year on Sunday, December 5, at the lodge rooms in Putnam.

UNION

The parish get-together and sing, held at the Parsonage Monday evening, Nov. 22, was enjoyed by those who attended. All enjoyed together the old familiar songs and the social chat given sest to living. Monday evening, Nov. 29th, the meeting is to be at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. George Heck.

Clare Gaudette, now employed on a farm in Ellington, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Gaudette. He was accompanied by a friend, Miss Esther Potter of South Willington.

Mashapaug Lake grange is to meet Monday evening, Dec. 1.

Mrs. E. A. Coolidge, librarian, was in Putnam, attending the meetings of the State Library association.

Mrs. Capitola Walker spent a few days in Boston last week, attending the meetings of the W. R. C.

Joseph Delorie's little son, aged nine months, died Nov. 16. Burial was in Stafford Springs.

Mrs. G. W. Coolidge was the guest of friends in Rockville, last Saturday.

Miss Mary Agard was in Willimantic last Saturday, taking the state teachers' examinations. Her mother and her brother, Lester, accompanied her to Willimantic.

The schools closed Wednesday for the Thanksgiving recess to open Monday, Nov. 29.

LENS, COAL CITY LOST IN WAR, COMING BACK

LENS, France, Nov. 26 (AP)—Lens the big coal town that had for four years the doubtful honor of a front seat in the great war and was flat to the ground when it ended, has "come back."

It still has an old war shed for a railroad station, its hospital occupies a tottering bungalow, its church is only partially built, its cemetery still remains partly upheaved with unexploded shells buried along with the old miners, but it has an impressive savings bank. This building, one of the first that catches the eye, pictures the economic condition of Lens.

ABD-ELKRIM WRITING RIFFS "INSIDE" STORY

ISLAND OF THE REUNION, Indian Ocean, Nov. 26 (AP)—Motion picture shows and the drinking of rum—made in large quantities on these islands—are the two entertainments for the natives of this lonely spot where Ash-el-Krim is to spend the remainder of his life in exile, unless he escapes or the French government relents.

PUTNAM

CIRCUIT LEAGUE WILL ISSUE DIPLOMAS TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 26.—On Saturday evening the Circuit league of the Methodist churches of this district will be held at the church in Danielson. As this meeting will be the last of the series of meetings, diplomas will be awarded to those who have a record of perfect attendance. There are a number of the members of the Methodist church of this city who will receive these diplomas.

Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, pastor of the First Church of Christ of Hartford, will speak on Monday evening to the Men's club of the Second Congregational church of this city on the subject of The Church In Relation to the World's Citizenship. Dr. Potter is a very interesting and forceful speaker and the committee is planning on an attendance of about 100 men at this meeting. The Ladies' Social circle of the church will serve supper for them.

The League of Women Voters held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Albert Williams in South Woodstock. After the business meeting, Mrs. Clinton Taylor gave an interesting account of the state convention.

William Desautels of Putnam has been appointed executor of the estate of Ludger Desautels, late of Putnam by Judge David Flagg.

Emily Bourque of Putnam has been appointed administratrix of the estate of Omer Bourque, late of Putnam by Judge David Flagg.

Through the Cargill Trust company of Putnam, Miss Daga Freudenthal of North Grosvenordale, secretary to John F. Reardon, agent of the Grosvenordale mills, has been notified that she had been awarded one of the prizes offered by the Christmas club, a New York corporation, for the paper submitted by her in the annual competition for the best scenario in the Christmas club contest. Miss Freudenthal received a check for $5 which represented the 68th prize in the Christmas club Scenario contest, made available to members of the 1926 Christmas club.

The marriage of Henry Baker and Miss Violet Benoit at St. Mary's church at 7 o'clock Thursday morning was attended by a large number of their friends from Putnam and surrounding towns. Both are popular and have a wide acquaintanceship. The bride was born here and for the past few years has been bookkeeper at the store of her father, Admehar Benoit, of Barber street. Mr. Baker for several years has been an employe of the Putnam Woolen company, and is also widely known because of his musical ability as the player of the trap drum in the orchestra of the S-A Amusement company.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles H. Bedard, pastor of the church, and as the bride is a member of the society of the Children of Mary, the couple stood inside the altar rail. She was attended by two other members of the society, Miss Esther Auger and Miss Juliet Caisse. Her bridesmaid was Miss Leona Lafortune of Southbridge, a cousin.

The bride wore white crepe-back satin, her veil was caught up with a spray of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of bridal roses and lillies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore a gown of yellow georgette, with a large picture hat and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. The attendants were in white georgette, with the distinctive white veils of the order.

The groom's best man was Lawrence Light. The ushers were Ulric Baker, a brother of the groom, and James J. Charron. The music was played by the S-A Amusement orchestra, of which the groom has been a member for several years.

Dr. Edward H. Gumbart, assistant professor of economics of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs spoke at the high school recently and explained to the students the various courses and advantages of the college.

Complaints are already heard of the illegal cutting of Christmas trees in the woods bordering both the state highways and the back roads in this vicinity. There seems to be evidence that trees are being collected by the truck loads to sell for the holiday time.

The drafting department of the Putnam trade school is working on plans for remodeling a single store into a double one. The store is situated on the north end of Main street and is to have a larger front and to be nearer the street. John Baker is working on the plans. Recently plans and specifications for a store at Webster, Mass., were given to Mr. Lapage of North Grosvenordale by the drafting instructor. The plans were drawn by Chester Starr and the specifications made by Mr. Barr.

Sunday, Dec. 5, is the date of the annual memorial services of the B. P. O. E. Elks and the Putnam lodge will hold their services as usual in their lodge rooms. The committee in charge has secured Rev. Dr. William Beach Olmstead of the Pomfret school as speaker of the day. There will also be a musical program which has not as yet been fully arranged.

Members of the Putnam Masonic club and the Putnam lodge of Elks are showing a great deal of interest in the tournament that the two clubs are arranging for the winter. Bridge whist, bid whist, cribbage, checkers, chess, billard and pool games have already been arranged.

Next Tuesday evening will be the first night's play and after that the plays will be held on Monday nights, the place of playing alternating between the two club rooms.

CRUELTY SOCIETY AFTER BAN ON BULL FIGHTING

BRUSSELS, Nov. 26. (AP)—The total abolition of bull fights, pigeon shooting and fox and stag hunting are among the principal aims to be worked for in the coming year by the Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which have been holding their annual international congress here.

They also will seek in all countries to have legal protection, now confined to certain categories of animals, extended to all domestic and wild, to make the vaccination of dogs against distemper obligatory, and to have films which show animals being tortured rigorously censored.

KING GEORGE PROUD TO WEAR HIS WEDDING RING

LONDON, Nov. 26. (AP)—King George alway wears a wedding ring. He is so much in favor of the custom that he cautioned an artist who is painting his portrait to be sure to get his ring in the picture.

It was while he was posing for Richard Jack, R. O., that his majesty noticed the artist had not yet painted the plain gold band on his finger.

"Now, Mr. Jack," he cautioned, "I want you to notice my wedding ring. Don't you leave that out."

FRENCH READ NEWS IN THREE TYPES OF PAPERS

PARIS, Nov. 26 (AP)—France has newspapers of three distinct types, with as many different classes of readers.

There are the newspapers of "information" with little or no attempt at editorials and the moulding of public opinion; newspapers of "opinion" pages of which are the center of interest, and the printing of news rather a secondary detail, and newspapers trying to combine both features.

The "information" sheets, of which there are five in Paris, all morning papers, are published generally on four or six pages, with an occasional eight page issue.

Subscriptions and sales in stands and on streets are the principal source of revenue, with advertising bringing the least in returns.

Local and domestic news fill four-fifths of the reading matter space in the "information" newspapers. Foreign news and especially American items are given very scant play. The average American newspaper in a good-sized city of the middle west prints more European news in one day than the "big five" publish in a week.

The few occasions when the French press gives a full and circumstantiated report of an American event generally have to do with sports. More cabled matter was filed direct from New York about the Lenglen-Mallory tennis match in 1921, than concerning the Washington naval disarmament conference in the same year.

Among local news politics leads. Seven, eight and nine column reports of proceedings at the French Chamber are rather common occurrences. A cabinet crisis always fills the front page.

Periodically, crop up the "affairs," a political scandal, a sensational murder—crimes resulting from passions, love, hatred, jealousy—especially involving prominent persons, are given tremendous display. Other news items are cut down to bare mention.

Newspapers of "opinion" also known as "combat-battles," where the editorial page is supreme, form the most important category of the French as far as number is concerned. Few of them publish sufficient news to provide their readers with even a superficial idea of what is happening in the world or even in France.

These newspapers are all organs of political parties or groups. They would inevitably have to suspend publication if the subsidies received from politicians ceased.

Joint news and editorial newspapers are all evening or noon papers in contrast to the other two categories published in the morning.

Papers of this class wield a strong political influence. The Temps is a leader in this group and is recognised as reflecting the opinion of the government. It has correspondents in nearly all European capitals and maintains an excellent news service, particularly on political affairs.

Outside of the three great categories, there are many other dailies with large circulations.

"Newspapers de luxe" or society sheets are classified separately. These newspapers pay particular attention to the doings of the "great and the near-great," the aristocracy of lineage and the aristocracy of money. Sports, theaters and horse racing are responsible for the existence of eight papers.

HEART MOVEMENTS FIRST FRENCH "TALKING" FILM

Paris, Nov. 26 (AP)—The first perfected "talking film" to be shown in Paris was presented to a meeting of the French Academy of Sciences. No cowboy scenes or slapstick comedy formed the program, but the film showed the movements of a diseased heart and served to illustrate a clinical demonstration.

The loud speaker, acting in perfect synchronism with the cinema, demonstrated how the beating of the heart sounded and then gave the doctor's explanation.

The "lesson" lasted ten minutes. As an effective method of classroom instruction, the demonstration was said to have proved a successful innovation.

WAVE OF ECONOMY HITS ROYAL JAPANESE HOUSES

TOKYO, Nov. 26. (AP)—The spirit of economy is hitting the imperial princes of Japan. Recently all of the princes of the blood were placed on an allowance budget and now the authorities have decreed that in the future residences of members of the Imperial family shall not occupy more than 30,000 square feet of land.

Year-Old Applause

A sermon preached more than a year ago by Rev. Hugh Thompson Kerr of Pittsburgh was heard at a point 400 miles north of the Arctic circle, in North Baffin bay, almost 2,200 miles from Pittsburgh, but the "applause" card, relayed by telegraph from Montreal, has just been received by him. Owing to infrequent communication the letter was a year in reaching Montreal.

A man pleases himself when he can and a woman when she must.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PROGRAMME

In the adoption of 16 planks and the placing of them in its programme for the year the local chamber of commerce has established something more than a hit or miss goal. It gives recognition to matters which are considered worthy of consideration and support, matters which deserve to be set forth, explained and in many instances obtained for the good of the community. In order to get them, in order to have their good and bad features set forth it is desirable that there should be some leadership and that is what the chamber of commerce plans to do.

The chamber has set forth its planks in alphabetical order, but the importance of the respective numbers will appeal differently to different people. And yet with effort put forth in behalf of the whole programme there is certainty that there will be a busy season and that as the result of the work and the development of interest much good should result.

In the list of planks, including agricultural affairs, aviation field, community chest, building code, community advertising and community spirit, equitable taxation, education affairs, industrial affairs, mercantile affairs, municipal affairs, membership, public recreation, state park, streets and comfort station, solicitations and zoning there is presented a variety of causes, some of which are much more needed than others.

There is excellent reason for the concentration of much thought and the promoting of much education on such matters as equitable taxation, industrial affairs, municipal affairs, streets, zoning and agricultural affairs. There is a crying need for betterment in these directions and special attention needs to be devoted to them. Norwich has for some time needed strengthening industrially. We have good industries, strong industries and a variety of them, but we need more industries for the employment of heads of families.

We need to come to a better understanding of our municipal conditions, our form of government, our antiquated methods and the application of the needed reforms. These are matters which should be taken up and adjusted without prejudice.

We need to remove a lot of handicaps and drawbacks, to awaken the community to its real needs, to look at ourselves as others see us and to snap into the requirements of the situation. It is folly to delude ourselves with old time practices, wastefulness and haphazard methods of doing business when more progressive and better methods are within our reach.

It is fortunate that there is such a civic organization as the chamber of commerce to undertake to promote interest in these directions. The chamber may point the way but it rests with the people to furnish the cooperation that will produce the results. Through such efforts as the chamber may make in supporting its various planks the citizens should be furnished much valuable information on which to base judgment, while in its moves for industrial and other betterment it is entitled to constructive support. With an organization working for the best interests of a community it isn't possible to give it too much help, though there are times when it may fail to get all that to which it is entitled.

With the chamber of commerce working to serve the best interests of the greatest number give it the cooperation that is needed.

SEEKING PAROLE

In every state there are many applications for pardon that are never granted, yet in some states the releasing of criminals of all degrees of undesirability is done by wholesale. pardons running up to thousands in a single year.

The list of those seeking to be pardoned always attracts attention and it is not infrequently the case that those who are entitled to the least sympathy, because of the nature of their crimes, are the first and most persistent in trying to get away from their punishment.

In this connection two cases to come before the state board of prison directors in California command notice.

About ten years ago the husband of Mrs. Chona Andrade held one Jesus Espinosa while she branded his forehead with a red hot stove poker, separated him with coal oil and roasted him alive. She would like to be set free as good behavior.

John Mims became a convict less than ten years ago. He had become jealous of a Glen Jean woman, fired her house and roasted her two little children to death. He petitions to be released to the ordinary social life. Whether their behavior has been good while they have been behind bars they indicate to the board that their acts should be forgotten and they should be given their freedom to go among the law abiding and do about as they please, whether it is to conduct themselves like other people or to resort to a repetition of their past offenses when occasion prompts.

Regardless of the enormity of their acts they consider they have paid a sufficient penalty. What the prison board is going to say there is no attempt to infer. It is to be expected that their petitions will get a hearing, that the facts will be reviewed but it is to be hoped that some soft hearted prosecutor isn't going to urge the granting of the petition before a board where his influence rather than the facts and the character of the crime will govern the decision. One marvels at the fact that they haven't asked for compensation while they have been locked up and a promise that henceforth they will be immune from arrest no matter what they do.

THE PANAMA FLIGHT

There is bound to be regret at the failure of the seaplanes of the navy to accomplish the long distance trip, almost in a direct line south, from Hampton Roads, Va., to Colon, Canal Zone, a distance of 2060 miles. It was a flight that was not attended with the dangers of the flight to Hawaii, although there was a time when one of the planes was flopping about in uncertainty on the bosom of the Caribean unable to proceed.

In the case of the seaplane guided by Commander Bartlett it appears to have been a case of insufficient gasoline. Had the supply been larger there appears to have developed no reason why he should not have reached his destination without stopping. With the other machines lubricating trouble and a broken oil pipe made descent necessary.

In such a flight fuel is an important factor and with a sufficient supply to cover the distance it is quite necessary that there should be proper performance on the part of the engines. Commander Bartlett's machine though loaded with 21,000 pounds was able to fly perfectly and make speed but not enough to cover the distance with the fuel at hand, and yet he reached the Isle of Pines with no other trouble than a shortage of fuel. That doesn't equal the performance of Commander Rodgers when he covered 1341 miles over the Pacific, but 2155 miles without trouble makes it evident that he would probably have reached Colon, though possibly later than expected, could he have drawn upon some invisible supply during his flight. In other words the flight as far as accomplished exhausted a greater amount of gasoline than was expected, and there is nothing to be ashamed of in covering the distance in two hops, but the time is coming and probably not far in the future when that distance will be covered without difficulty. By experiences such as fell to Commander Bartlett and his accompanying plans, and to Commander Rodgers, will the means be eventually obtained for overcoming the handicaps to such long flights.

KRASSIN'S DEATH

By the death of Leonid Krassin the representative of soviet Russia who was endeavoring to straighten out the kinks in its foreign trade relations, that government suffers a distinct loss.

While Krassin represented soviet Russia diplomatically in Paris and later in London he did so as a recognized moderate. He was recognized for his particular ability in presenting Russia's position to others and endeavoring to get recognition where Russia needed more support, and he was particularly successful because of his moderation in comparison with some of the firebrands.

It is therefore a distinct loss that soviet Russia suffers and there will be no easy task in finding someone to take up his duties and discharge them in the same satisfactory and successful manner he has.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Even December's almanac day might have been worse.

If there is to be early Christmas shopping it is time to do some sprinting.

If it wasn't for Thanksgiving there wouldn't be any turkey soup about tomorrow.

The man on the corner says: Did you ever notice that when you are late the other fellow is on time?

The claim is now made that Russia threatens the league of nations. It isn't quite proper for us to say, "We should worry."

Mme. Sorel says "sprinters shouldn't abandon hope until 50". Real spinsters never abandon hope or else they never entertain it.

Snow flurries interest the youngsters but they don't count until they amount to enough to take the rust off the sled runners.

Those who live near a railroad track will be able to appreciate the discovery of smokeless coal after it has been put into use.

When it is declared our soft coal deposits insure a supply of motor fuel for 800 years there need be no more worrying except about the price.

A fleet of 258 vessels waiting at Norfolk to take on coal looks much better than a similar number of merchant marine vessels waiting to be broken up or burned.

When the time comes that "hurry" signs are erected in the highways for the slow drivers then will the speeders have additional excuse for piling up more accidents.

At Long Island grade crossings 18 out of 55 watchmen were found asleep. Probably they knew no attention would be paid to them anyway, whether asleep or awake.

Efforts are to be made to have the Baumes law modified in New York state. Any law that has proved so unpopular with yeggs, gunmen and robbers ought to be immediately changed.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

When Alexander Graham Bell had brought the telephone into practical use, it was remarked everywhere that it was one of the outstanding wonder of the world, just the same language that was used years before when Professor Morse had made the telegraph usable. In both cases the general expression of wonder was entirely justifiable. The world seemed to move into a new scientific era. More recently the radio has come to complete the triumvirate. What next we know not, but need not be surprised if another field of the seemingly impossible is invaded and conquered. There is a sense in which the radio is more astonishing than either of the other two. The first two of these use a wire as a medium of connection, and wire is a good conductor of sound. Not so with radio as there is no visible connection. But how is it that wave lengths can meet at right angles without apparent conflict?

The Thanksgiving season naturally revives some very important historical events or memories. As an exhibition of unswerving faith in God as "the giver of every good and perfect gift" after passing through difficulties seeming insuperable it would be hard to find another parallel to such faith as the Pilgrim fathers displayed during that fateful first year on American soil. The winter of 1620-1 was pitiless—so different from what they had experienced in England and Holland. Death had frightfully ravaged them, and in the spring of 1621 there was hardly a man capable of doing a day's work. The failure of their crops was an added disaster. But somehow misfortune gave tonic to their nerves, and their unalterable faith in God's goodness and love. For any people under such conditions to establish a season of Thanksgiving shows that they were big enough to start a nation.

As a religious journal has recently said in an editorial: "Thanksgiving day is a great deal more than a day of thanksgiving." An added dignity was given to it when it received the official sanction of the federal government. Up to the time that it became a national affair the states, many of them, had observed it from colonial times. But during the Civil war, when the hour was very black, President Lincoln wanted the nation to join with him in making Thanksgiving day a national affair. The reasonableness of the request appealed to religious people irrespective of church affiliations, and from that time till now Thanksgiving day has been recognized as a national affair. All the features of the old colonial spirit in making it a day for recognising the beauty of family unity has been preserved in its enlarged scope. Every living being has reason for thanking God for his mercies.

Weather prophets have recently taken a turn for the worse, and there are some who predict that the relapse will probably be fatal. It is quite improbable that there will be full recovery when they are in such a condition as to see the Arctic circle which has remained so north where it was out millions of years ago breaking away from its ancient mooring and slipping down on this globe taking a free ride on the ice which this winter is going to make until it is halted by the skyscrapers of New York. Here it will remain until a new crop of weather prophets springs up. It will not, however, be so cold in this climate as it now is in the polar regions, because in slipping down south the circle will have to stretch in order to make both ends meet. This stretching will so weaken the circle as to lessen its arctic severity. It will break up the land boom in Florida (whatever remains of it) because northerners to get their warmth and ease must go to Brazil whose equator will be pushed down to Patagonia.

A college graduate picked up a lady's pocket book on the street containing a considerable sum of money. Fortunately for both parties her name and address were inclosed, and most fortunate for her this young collegian was scrupulously honest. When he returned it to the owner, she was not only profuse in her thanks but tried to press upon him a substantial reward. His polite, but positive, refusal somewhat perplexed her. The position he took from the ethical standpoint was conclusive, "I have no right, lady, to be paid for being honest." He evidently was acquainted with the principles of moral philosophy. It ought to be as natural to be honest as it is to breathe pure air, or to read a good book, or speak a kind word. The schools of every grade ought to teach the young to be honest.

As these lines are written we are having a warm spell after several days that reminded us of winter. This spell seems to fulfil that indefinite period called Indian summer. On Armistice day and later we were not reminded of those balmy days which are supposed to sound the death knell of autumn. But again we have something more like the spring. All this raises the question in the popular mind how far this material world is governed by inexorable law, or is it the mere sport of lawless freaks? This cannot be finally settled until we have a greater knowledge of the laws of nature. As I looked from my window one day all the leaves in the neighborhood were blowing in one direction, shortly after they were all blowing back again in the opposite direction. Was this the exercise of law or was it mere caprice?

Make the Most of Books

By James Mosher Penniman, Litt. D.

Great Men Belong to All Ages

"The great man," says Carlyle, "does in good truth belong to his own age—nay, more so than any other man; being properly the synopsis and epitome of such age with its interests and influences; but belongs likewise to all ages, otherwise he is not great. What was transitory in him passes away and an immortal part remains, the significance of which is in strict speech inexhaustible—as that of every real object is. Aloft, conspicuous, on his enduring basis, he stands there, serene, unaltering; silently addresses to every new generation a new lesson and monition. Well is his life worth writing, worth interpreting; and ever, in the new dialect of new times, of rewriting and reinterpreting;" and he adds, "as the highest Gospel was a Biography, so is the life of every good man still an undubitable Gospel."

Russian Investors Few

Only 640 persons of the 139,760,500 in the union of soviet socialist republics live on interest received on invested capital, according to the report of the commissariat of finance. However, 1,962,736 persons pail taxes on revenue, most of them dealers, owners, lessees of property, partners in commercial undertakings, contractors and speculators on the Bourse. Such revenue amounted to $154,000,000 in six months.

RUSSIA'S GOVERNMENT AND SOME OF ITS LEADERS.

Stalin, Trotsky, the Ts. I. K. and Kalinin.

Who, and what, are they?

Names of leaders and certain governmental bodies are familiar in news dispatches from Russia, yet they are confusing because so little is known of the structure of the government or the exact status of its leaders.

The National Geographic society assigned Junius B. Wood to winnow the facts about various phases of present-day conditions in Russia.

Concerning the present governmental organization of Russia, which, incidentally, is officially the union of soviet, socialist republics, Mr. Wood writes:

"A meeting of the Ts I. K. (central executive committee) brings out all those individuals whose statements occupy more space in the newspapers and who are seen less in public than any other officials in the world. Center of interest when he emerges in the corridors is Joseph Djugashvili. Stalin —'stalin,' meaning steel, having been conferred on him by Lenin when they were exiles together. He would be called a director or political boss in any other country.

"Russia's strong man and virtual ruler is a Georgian. Tall, slender with jet-black hair and mustache, stern-faced, sparing of words, but direct and emphatic, Stalin controls the partly organization which he has perfected.

"Kalinin, 'Uncle Mikhail Ivanovitch,' as the peasants call him, son of the field and factory, is a contrast, smiling through his close-cropped beard, eyes twinkling behind his spectacles, shaking hands, greeting friends right and left. Peasants have been known to walk 1,000 miles—an old-time peasant must go afoot on an important mission—to tell their troubles to him. Kalinin is the genial president, Stalin the silent political boss.

"The Ts. I. K. is a tabloid of the political organization of soviet Russia, next to the peak of its pyramidal system of government. The peak itself, elected by the Ts. I. K., is the Presidium of 27 members, which includes the six presidents, and is the legislative, executive, and judicial authority, except during the few days of each year that the Ts. I. K. is in session.

"The Ts. I. K. has 581 members, divided into the upper house, or council of the union, of 450 members chosen according to population, and the lower house, or council of nationalities, of 131 members, five from each of the constituent republics and one from each of the autonomous republics or nationalities.

"Theoretically, the Ts. I. K. should meet three times a year, rotating in the capitals of the Russian, Ukrainian, White Russian, Transcaucasian, Turkoman, and Uzbek republics. The Ts. I. K. also chooses the council of people's commissars, corresponding to a cabinet in other countries. The identical structural organization follows in each of the republics in the union.

"The base of the all-union pyramid, itself resting on other pyramids descending from the higher soviets of the republics to the voters themselves, is the all-union congress of soviets, a cumbersome body of more than 2,000 members, which is supposed to meet annually in Moscow. Its last meeting was in May, 1926.

"It elects the Ts. I. K., which is not so unwieldy. Its members are elected by town, township (volost,) and provincial (gubernia) soviets. The gubernia soviets also are elected by the volost soviets. Members of the latter, in turn, are elected by the village and city soviets, and these by the voters themselves.

"Every person 18 years old, doing brain or manual labor, except proprietors, is qualified to vote. Propaganda to get out the voter, especially the women and younger people, is persistent, but the percentage responding is about the same as in the United States. The voter casts his ballot as a member of some group, either in his union, factory, village, or city district.

"Voting is on the town meeting order. The nominating committee receives the names of the candidates. It prepares a list. The first name is presented to the meeting. Speeches follow. Hands are raised for and against.

"The advantages of heading the list are even greater than on an Australian ballot. Usually all the allotted places are filled before the end of the list is reached.

"The all-union communist party, according to the figures of the January session of its central committee, numbered 648,413, about one out of every 238 persons in a population of 140,000,000. Russians constituted 81 per cent of this total. With candidates the party strength was 1,068,037, about one in 140. Figures on the elections now being held show that though only 10 per cent of the members of the lower soviets are party members, the party strength increases to between 30 and 90 per cent in the higher soviets.

"By organization and methods which are common to most parties in power, especially if they are minorities, the communist party controls the government. Communism has ceased to be an obligatory rule of conduct for the country, but there is no reason to anticipate that it will not be the party in control for a long time to come."

Sunday Morning Talk

HEAVEN NOT A FANCY

Heaven is not a mere fancy or speculation. Christ said: "In my Father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you." He came from the other world. He knew about it and He was truth incarnate. When He came here, He found men and women cherishing a hope of heaven, and he said: "In my father's house are many mansions, heaven is a reality, there is such a place." If it were not so, I would have told you. I would have undeceived you. I would not have permitted you to go on cherishing a hope that never could find fulfilment." We can think of no stronger evidence of the reality of heaven than in those denite words of Christ. He does not describe the place, but He gives some suggestion of the wondrous beauty and desirability of the future home of the saved soul. "Mansions" the very word mansion suggests something beautiful, something to be desired. Then He says, "I go to prepare a place for you." It is a prepared place for a prepared people. That where I am, there ye may be also. It is where He is that is enough. It is where Christ our Saviour is, "That will be heaven for me." We have a full assurance of heaven founded on the words of Christ. "Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man." The things which God hath prepared for them that love Him:" but that we cannot know the fulness of these things does not prevent us from knowing very much in regard to them. The reality is far beyond our comprehension, but we are given suggestions and even foretastes of heaven. Tourists on shipboard have suggestions of the delights of tropical islands before they arrive there by the perfume of sweet spices. So does God give us suggestions and foretastes of heavenly delights.

We have read of a heathen girl who had been taught for sometime in regard to Christian beliefs, she was out at night, and looking up beheld the stars and remarked, "How beautiful heaven must be when we get there, if the outside is so fair." We can be sure that heaven will far exceed our greatest expectation and it will be a haven for the weary and tempest tossed pilgrim.

Stories That Recall Others

No Mean City

A tattering old man approached a high school student on his way to school.

"Bonny," he inquired in feeble accents, "could you give me a dime for a bite to eat?"

The boy hesitated for a fleeting moment. Then he dug down in his pocket and produced the money. The old man thanked him and went on his way.

The generous lad ate no lunch that day.

A Regular Butcher

One day little Betty heard her mother giving a detailed account of a recent tonsil operation to an afternoon caller.

"Yes, I had a perfectly dreadful time. My doctor was a regular butcher," said Mrs. X.

To her surprise a few days later she overheard the following conversation between her small daughter and a little neighbor girl:

"Some day I'm going to have my tonsils taken out."

"Are you going to the hospital like my sister did?"

"No," replied Betty, "I am just going down in the butcher shop where mother had hers cut out."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Need More Respect For Flag

Mr. Editor: At a masquerade dance recently held here in the city, a young woman was there with our American flag draped around her as her costume, which looked to several of us, as if she had very little respect for our flag.

In a little folder I have on "Suggested State Legislation on the Flag" it says, "Based upon the opinion of the supreme court of the United States of America, rendered by Justice John Marshall Harlan, every state should enact adequate laws for the protection of the flag. State flag laws should provide as follows: That fitting penalty (fine and imprisonment) be provided for the public mutilation, abuse or desecration of our flag." Was it not a desecration to our grand old flag to use it for a masquerade costume?

Cautions for proper use of the flag, say: Do not use the flag as a portion of a costume or of an athletic uniform. Do not embroider it upon cushions or handkerchiefs, nor print it on paper napkins or boxes, also, do not display, use or store the flag in such a manner as will permit it to be easily soiled or damaged.

When festoons, rosettes or drapings are desired, bunting of blue, white and red, should be used, but never the flag.

The flag of the United States is a thing that men die for, and it is a sacred thing. Disrespect for the flag symbolizes disrespect of law and indifference and ill will toward our great national establishment of government and country.

There is a lot more I could copy from the flag code, but am afraid to take up so much space. I have written this letter Mr. Editor, hoping that those who read it, will see that more respect is shown in the future to our grand old flag.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, who today observes his fifteenth anniversary in the cardinalate, is the senior of the four American members of the Sacred college in point of service. Cardinal O'Connell is a native of New England and his labors in the church have been confined to that section of the country, with the exception of a period of several years when he was rector of the American College in Rome. Before he received the red hat he was bishop of Portland, Me., for five years and for a similar period had been archbishop of Boston. In 1906, while archbishop of Boston, Cardinal was sent by the Pope on an important diplomatic mission to the Emperor of Japan, where he concluded an important agreement relative to the protection of Catholic interests in that country.

YOUR HEALTH

Education, The Hope of Civilization.

By A. L. Bleck, M. D., Oklahoma City, Okla. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute.

Civilization of mankind has progressed in an almost exact ratio with the acquirement of scientific knowledge.

The Dark Ages of the world have been the ages of superstition. Medical science has not been slower than the other sciences but it has only been within the last 25 years that it has really had anything concrete to offer. Along with the other sciences, medical science has had to contend with the inertia of the masses who will believe in following the paths of their ancestors.

Before scientific medicine came into existence, before the laws of cure were demonstrated, before the cause of devastating and deadly epidemics were understood, so-called schools of medicine had a reason for existing.

But beginning with vaccination for small-pox a new era dawned. Today, one after another in rapid succession, hitherto deadly epidemic diseases are being wiped out by our knowledge of their causes. Blundering as regular medicine may have been at times, it is true that through this channel and this channel only, these discoveries have come to bless mankind.

The greatest benefit mankind is reaping today from the advances in medical knowledge lies in better health, the prolongation of life and the prevention of disease.

To get the greatest good from these advances it is fundamentally necessary that mankind acquire knowledge sufficient to understand the facts and interpret them. All real progress or reform comes through education. It must "begin at home."

The true reformer is the scientist. But what the scientist knows and the people don't know avails nothing. Therefore, the scientist must be a teacher—he must give freely for the reason that mankind never pays anything to those who teach them. It pays well only those who amuse them. Indeed it crucified its greatest teacher.

When science comes into its own, that is, when it is the property of the masses, as even now it is the possession of the few, that universal pest of mankind and enemy of good government, the professional reformer, will die a natural death.

Medical science has made its greatest advance in the prevention of disease. It is just here where the Gorgas Memorial Institute fits in. Its purpose is to disseminate trustworthy knowledge among the millions—to educate them. With the voluntary cooperation of the public, it can make available the great accumulation of useful knowledge for the prevention of disease and the prolongation of life, now in the possession of the scientific medical profession.

CHILD TRAINING

MAKING MANNERS

Theodora Brownfield

"Mary Betty has such nice manners. I wish my children would behave like her when we go out to dine!" How often we hear a mother comment thus on some little girl who is "conspicuous" for her ladylike ways.

Indeed, manners are to be valued as much in children as in grown people. These very little ones are later to be the grown people, and if their manners are to become a part of their everyday life, these graces and little courtesies must be encouraged to grow up with them, so that they will reach perfection in later years.

I have in mind a mother who has made a special point of good manners in bringing up her six-year-old daughter. This does not mean that she wants this little one to have an affected society suavity, but that she wants her to reflect the charm and refinement of the household. The mother demands company manners every day in the week. She serves the dinner each night in the dining-room rather than amid the informality of the breakfast room or kitchen nook, although she does her own work and it means extra household tasks.

This may seem a trivial step in manner-making but children respond more quickly to example and surroundings than they do to preaching and instructions. Dinner in the dining room, in this case, means that extra pains are taken to have the meal pleasant and attractive, and everyone is expected to help maintain this atmosphere. The mother may still wear her house dress but it is sure to be spick and span and the little six-year-old is dressed late in the afternoon after her nap, ready for the evening meal. Her manners are practiced with the rest of the family and she learns that politeness is not to be put on when going out to dine or having company but is to be worn on all occasions.

Children usually do not intend to be rude but the very novelty of a situation sometimes embarrasses and so surprises them that they do not know what to do. Consequently "acting smart" is their refuge, and too often it appears at the table! A little home practice would save all this humiliation for both mother and child.

Eating in the dining-room is just one means of teaching children that certain conventions help to make things go pleasantly and that good breeding makes people welcome. As mothers train their children, so will they reflect that training as they go out into the world and when they meet praise because of their conduct and manners, they will be grateful to her for the trouble she has taken.

Mr. Grouse Is Almost Envious

Envy not; it doesn't
It often spoils the choicest day.
—Sammy Jay.

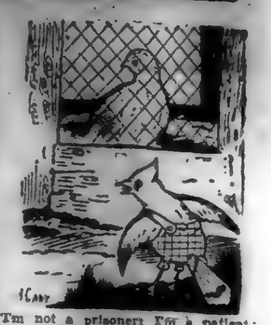
Sammy Jay was as good as his word. He had promised Mr. Grouse that he would go over to Farmer Brown's and find out all he could about Mrs. Grouse. He liked to think he was doing it for Mr. Grouse; but he wasn't. He was doing it for Sammy Jay. You see, Sammy has about as big a bump of curiosity as any one I know. Not even Peter Rabbit is more curious than Sammy Jay. As a matter of fact, nothing could have kept Sammy away from Farmer Brown's.

It didn't take him long to discover that Mr. Grouse was in a pen where she was quite safe; and it didn't take him long to discover that she was almost contented. In the first place, she was being very well fed. She had all the buckwheat she could eat, and she is very fond of buckwheat. When he got the chance, Sammy talked with Mr. Grouse. Right away he told her how sorry he was that Farmer Brown's Boy had found her and shut her up.

"I'm not sorry," snapped Mrs. Grouse. "If he hadn't found me and shut me up, somebody else would have found me and eaten me up; and I would very much rather be shut up than eaten up."

Sammy grinned. "I don't wonder," said he. "I think that shows your good judgment. But I should think you would hate to be a prisoner."

"I'm not a prisoner; I'm a patient," replied Mrs. Grouse. "There is a difference. When people are shut up in prison, they're prisoners. When they are shut up in the hospital, they're patients. In neither case can they get out unless somebody lets them out. But there is a lot, of difference between being a patient and a prisoner. I know well enough that I am shut up to keep me from harm, and, that when my wing is quite strong Farmer Brown's Boy will let me go. Meanwhile I am having buckwheat every day. You tell Mr. Grouse not to worry about me, for I'm having buckwheat every day. And I can sleep all night without keeping one eye open. Nothing can harm me here, so I haven't anything to worry about."



"I'm not a prisoner; I'm a patient," replied Mr. Grouse

Back flew Sammy Jay to the Green Forest. He found Mr. Grouse waiting. "Is she all right?" inquired Mr. Grouse anxiously.

"Not only is she all right, but she seems quite content," replied Sammy. "She said to tell you that she has all the buckwheat she wants every day."

"Buckwheat!" exclaimed Mr. Grouse, beginning to brighten up. "Did you say buckwheat?"

"I said buckwheat," replied Sammy.

Mr. Grouse sighed. He did so, he sighed. "How I should like to taste buckwheat," said he. "I almost wish that it had been my wing that was hit by the hunter. It would be almost worth a broken wing to have all the buckwheat I wanted to eat. Did you say that that pen of hers is covered over?"

"I didn't say anything about it," replied Sammy, "but it is. If you were thinking of going over there to share that buckwheat, you may just as well stay at home."

Mr. Grouse sighed again. "You know," said he, "I am almost envious of Mrs. Grouse. Well, I do hope she will get well and join me soon. I miss her, Sammy Jay."

OBITUARY

Miss Mary E. Stanton

Following a brief illness the death of Miss Mary E. Stanton occurred at 7 o'clock Friday morning at her home at No. 12 Summer street. She was born in Versailles, the daughter of Michael and Ellen Murphy Stanton, and resided in that place for a short time. For many years she was engaged in the dressmaking business, becoming experienced and well known for her work.

Miss Stanton was a staunch Catholic and was a member of St. Patrick's church, taking a keen interest in all church work. She was a member of the Rosary society and the Children of Mary. She leaves many friends who will mourn her loss and the news of her death was received by them with profound sorrow.

Miss Stanton is survived by two sisters, Miss Annie Stanton and Mrs. Frederick LaFontaine, both of Norwich; a niece, Miss Mary M. LaFontaine of Norwich and three nephews, Rev. Raymond J. LaFontaine of St. Thomas seminary, Hartford, Henry LaFontaine and Walter F. LaFontaine of Norwich.

WEDDINGS

Cyr-Coblentz

A pretty wedding took place Thursday morning, Nov. 25, in Sacred Heart church, Taftville, when Fortuna Cyr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Cyr, of Jewett City and Miss Bertha Coblentz, daughter of Archille Coblentz of Lisbon, were united in holy matrimony by Rev. Father Caron of Moosup. The bride was gowned in white satin trimmed with lace and pearls and carried a shower bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Bernadette Coblentz, sister of the bride, wore cerise georgette and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was a white gold purse. The best man was Joseph Cyr, brother of the groom. He received a silver cigarette case from the groom. A wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home and there were relatives and friends from Taftville, Jewett City, Baltic, Norwich and Pawtucket, R. I. The bridal couple left early in the evening. They will spend their honeymoon in Providence and Boston. They received many useful and beautiful gifts and many good wishes for their future happiness.

Colvin-Whipple

Thanksgiving evening, at the home of Rev. G. B Cutler, North Scituate, R. I., Miss Evelyn Pearl Whipple was united in marriage with Waldo Phillips Colvin, both of Danielson, Conn.

They will spend the winter at West Palm Beach.

Orkita-Dicky

Thursday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Andrew's church, Colchester, Miss Theresa Dicky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Propola Dicky of Chestnut Hill and Valentine J. Orkita, son of Mrs. Mary Orkita, of Lebanon avenue were united in marriage by Rev. Philip J. Mooney, pastor of the church.

The maid of honor was Miss Sophie Mychimelicus and the bridesmaids were Miss Caroline Ortika, sister of the groom, and Miss Anna Dicky, sister of the bride. The groom was attended by Arthur Gregory. The ushers were John Dicky and William Feltus.

The bride's gown was of white satin. Her veil was caught with pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a bridal bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The maid of honor wore turquoise georgette. Her bouquet was of pink roses.

A nuptial high mass by the pastor followed the ceremony. In the large gathering were relatives from New York, Hartford, Norwich, New Haven, Fitchville and Willimantic.

Francis Shea was at the organ and at the offertory "Ave Maria" was sung by Mrs. J. Gregory and Mr. Shea. After the ceremony a breakfast was served to over 150 guests at the home of the bride's parents. An orchestra from Willimantic furnished music.

OLD NORWICH IN ENGLAND SENDS GREETING TO DAUGHTER CITY THROUGH NORWICH BULLETIN

Through a recent visit made to Norwich in England by Robert Lewis, a native of this city, The Bulletin is in receipt of two interesting and instructive publicity issues from the historic old English city, whose present day progressiveness is indicated by the existence of an official publicity committee, which has headquarters in the Bridewell museum, a building dating from the 13th century.

Through the assistant secretary of the committee, Isabelle Audigier, a well-arranged booklet, which is the official guide to the city of Norwich, and a pamphlet containing the radio speech delivered in "At Home" week by the lord mayor of Norwich, Rotarian Dr. G. Stevens Pope.

Norwich, England, On The Air.

The radio booklet is reproduced herewith:

The outstanding event of the very successful "At Home" week, which was organised by the Norwich Rotary club, was the admirable speech on Norwich broadcast from 2LO to all stations on Tuesday evening, October 27th, by the lord mayor of Norwich, a highly esteemed Rotarian. He then had the distinction, unprecedented in the experience of his predecessors, of focussing the attention of some six million people on the ancient city of Norwich. In the short time at his disposal the lord mayor discoursed on its history, traditions, and many attractive features; and succeeded in presenting an excellent epitome of the life and activities of the city. His magnificent tribute to Norwich was one of the finest examples of publicity achieved by any city.

The lord mayor, who began to speak soon after 10 o'clock said:

Tonight I want to take you on a visit to Norwich, so that you can see the city for yourselves. The moment is a particularly good one for your visit, for Norwich has been a good deal in the public eye of late. On Saturday last we celebrated the centenary of our museum, now housed in the Norman castle, long a stronghold of defence erected on a mound of Saxon origin. The castle was opened as the final home of the museum in 1894 by the majesties the king and queen, when Duke and Duchess of York, and so it has been a happy event for us that the present Duke of York consented to shed lustre on our centenary celebration by his gracious presence. And in Norwich during this present week we are having an "At Home" week. We call it "Norwich at Home." We are showing off the city—its charms and its talents—to its citizens and to all who will accept our hospitality. We are taking you round our historic buildings and many places of interest, our factories, and our civic and social institutions.

Listen to the classic description of Norwich which George Borrow gives in his Lavengro. I suppose every one knows it: "A fine old city, truly, is that, view it from whatever side you will. . . . Gazing from those heights, the eye beholds a scene which cannot fail to awaken, even in the least sensitive bosom, feelings of pleasure and admiration. At the foot of the heights flows a narrow and deep river, with an antique bridge communicating with a long and narrow suburb, flanked on either side by rich meadows of the brightest green, beyond which spreads the city: the fine old city, perhaps the most curious specimen at present extant of the genuine old English town. Yes, there it spreads from north to south, with its venerable houses, its numerous gardens, its thrice 12 churches, its mighty mound, which, if tradition speaks true, was raised by human hands to serve as the grave heap of an old heathen king, who sits deep within it, with his sword in his hand, and his gold and silver treasures about him. There is a grey old castle upon the top of that mighty mound; and yonder, rising 300 feet above the soil, from among those noble forest trees, behold that old Norman master-work, the cloud - encircled cathedral spire, around which a garrulous army of rocks and choughs continually wheel their flight." Isn't that attractive? As to the old heathen king and his gold and silver treasures, I trust this publicity will not start a syndicate to recover the treasures.

I am aware that I have the privilege of addressing some millions of people in all parts of the British Isles and on the western continent of Europe. Perhaps while you are still taking your first view of the city you would like me to remind you where and what manner of place Norwich is.

Norwich is at the present time a city of over 120,000 inhabitants. It is thus one of the larger cities of England, and within a radius of 100 miles there is no other place approaching it in size. Situated as it is in the purely agricultural county of Norfolk, in that eastern portion of middle England that faces Holland across the North sea, Norwich seems aloof from the rest of the active and storied centres of England. Travellers who reach it for the first time across the Fen country or through the agricultural plains of Suffolk and Norfolk are astonished to find a large and beautiful city, wearing the coveted marks and insignia of a long and honourable history; a glorious cathedral dating from 1096, built by Herbert de Losinga as a penance for an act of simony, a Norman castle dominating the very heart of the city, some 30 ancient churches in the demure dignity of worked-flint (one at least, St. Peter Mancroft, of almost cathedral majesty,) old-time mansions of merchant princes, ancient gateways, picturesque bridges, thatched and timbered houses of Tudor times, Georgian ceilings, panellings and mouldings; at every turn something to delight the antiquary, the architect, or just the saunterer who takes beauty as it comes, the beauty that lingers because it must and was made so. All this on the scene of a bustling industrial town. Twin cities, it is difficult to say where one begins and the other ends. The traveller who comes to Norwich for business, and there is plenty of business there (and we want more,) is astonished at its antiquities. The traveller who visits Norwich for its antiquities, is surprised to find no sleepy hollow, no grass-grown streets, but as keen a business community as is to be found anywhere.

Old Inustrial Town

Thus, isolated geographically from other large towns, Norwich has always shown a marked individuality in her social and industrial life. Her most attractive feature is her long historic continuity. Her career as an industrial town has been practically unbroken from the far-off days when her Angle and Saxon burgesses minted money and caught fish. As the fishing passed, weaving was introduced from overseas, and was the main industry for centuries. When that began to clit north-westward to the coal fields the gap was filled by making boots and shoes, for which Norwich is now famous, while everybody knows that Norwich is renowned for its canaries and its mustard. Other old industries which still flourish today are those of silk fabrics, wrought iron, and organ building. From the very earliest times, too, the city has been an important agricultural and stock market, and a social center of distinction. Since Saxon times Norwich has been the capital of East Anglia—"The heart of East Anglia," it has been called; in fact, the first actual mention of its name occurs on coins minted here in the reign of the Saxon King Aethelstan in the 10th century. The earliest reference in script is in the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, which records that in 1004 Sweyn, the Danish marauder, came with his fleet to Northwic (then on an arm of the sea) and plundered and burnt the burgh. The Danes have left their mark, and a good mark too, on East Anglian blood and in its place names.

But I am not going to weary you with much history; rather let me give you two other classic allusions to Norwich in English literature. One is from Evelyn's Diary, describing his visit during the reign of Charles I. to Sir Thomas Browne, the Norwich doctor and author of Religio Medici, that stately monument of latinised English and philosophic contemplation. Evelyn says: "He (Sir Thomas Browne) led me to see all the remarkable places of this ancient city, being one of the largest and certainly, after London, one of the noblest of England, for its venerable cathedral, number of stately churches, cleanness of the streets, and buildings of flint so exquisitely headed and squared, as I was much astonished at; but he told me they had lost the art of squaring the flints in which they so much excelled and of which the churches, beat houses, and walls, are built. The suburbs are large, the prospects sweet, with other amenities, not omitting the flower gardens in which all the inhabitants excel" Evelyn thus reminds us that Norwich has long been known as "The City of Gardens" as well as "The City of Churches." Of Norwich in 1685, Macaulay in his History of England writes thus in a well-known passage: "Next to the capital, but next at an immense distance, stood Bristol, then the first English seaport, and Norwich, then the first English manufacturing town. Norwich was the capital of a large and fruitful province. It was the residence of a bishop and of a chapter. It was the chief seat of the chief manufacture of the realm. Some men distinguished by learning and science had recently dwelt there; and no place in the kingdom, except the capital and the universities, had more attractions for the curious. The library, the museum, the aviary and the botanical garden of Sir Thomas Browne were thought by Fellows of the Royal Society well worthy of a long pilgrimage. Norwich had also a court in miniature. In the heart of the city stood an old palace of the dukes of Norfolk, said to be the largest town house in the kingdom except that of London. . . . When the duke of Norfolk came to Norwich he was greeted like a king returning to his capital. The bells of the cathedral of Saint Peter Mancroft were rung, the guns of the castle were fired, and the mayor and aldermen waited on their illustrious fellow citizen." The population of Norwich at that time was nearly 30,000. Manchester had a population of less than 10,000, and Leeds less than 7,000. Norwich has sent burgesses to parliament since 1278, in King Edward I's reign. From 1403 it has had mayors and sheriffs. Created lord mayors since 1911. But I must hurry on! Bygone history I must leave. What would interest you if you came to Norwich today? You would find that old Norwich is dovetailed into the modern city. One after another of our most interesting old buildings has been divorced from its original uses and is fulfilling a better purpose than it ever did in the life of the city.

Ancient Buildings

The Bridewell museum, for example, which was opened on Saturday by the duke of York as an industrial museum to illustrate the evolution of the past and present industries of Norwich and Norfolk, is housed in the old city house of correction for rogues and vagabonds. Its exterior is considered to be the most remarkable specimen of squared-flint work in existence, and dates from the end of the 14th century. In 1403 it was the home of the city's first mayor, William Appleyard.

Again, the house of Augustine Steward (one of the city's greatest mayors) built in 1545, and the adjoining house, Samson and Hercules house, built upon the undercroft of the Norwich town house of Sir John Fastaff, of Agincourt fame—these have been bought by the Y. W. C. A. and the Norfolk and Norwich Archaeological Trust, and were opened on Saturday by the duke of York as a Girls' club—a fitting place of happy rest, enlightenment, and sisterhood, for the hundreds of girls who find their work in Norwich. Again, the Strangers' hall, an old city merchant's mansion, and a perfectly delightful specimen of the domestic architecture from Decorated to Jacobean, has been furnished and presented to the city by our well-known citizen, Mr. L. G. Holingbrokee. It is, I believe, the first and only Folk museum of its kind in England.

Suckling house, connected with John Suckling the poet, and Nelson, whose mother was a suckling, is another mansion possessing a Tudor banqueting hall. This has been presented to the city for public use by the Misses Colman, and was opened on Saturday by the duke of York.

St. Andrew's hall, once the nave of the great church of the Dominicans, and rescued from the dissolving maw of Henry VIII. by a far-seeing mayor, for the ransom of 81 pounds, is our city hall. It is hung with magnificent painted portraits of former civic worthies. It is the scene of the Norwich Triennial Musical festivals, whose centenary we celebrated last year by a magnificent series of concerts of the beautiful old hall. Over the south porch of this hall was built a house which was occupied by the sword - bearer of the city. In three rooms of this house was established in 1608 a public library, which is the oldest provincial public library with a continuous history to the present time, the books being now housed at the Central Public library. Norwich also has the distinction of being the first municipality to adopt the first Public Library act, 1850. The Blackfriars' hall adjoining, which was the old Dutch Reformed church, is also used in conjunction with St. Andrew's hall. In these halls is the center of immense musical cul-

The Girls Friendly branch of St. Andrews' church is to entertain on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, the Girls Friendly societies of the New London archdeaconry which includes Seabury Memorial, Groton, St. James, New London, Trinity and Christ church, Danielson, and St. Paul's, Plainfield. There will be reports from the delegates who attended the conference at Manchester, N. H., and Hartford, Miss Eola Clark, returned missionary from Alaska, will be the chief speaker. Supper will be served by St. Andrew's church.

ST. ANDREW'S BAZAAR AT COLCHESTER A SUCCESS

Thursday evening, the successful two-nights bazaar of St. Andrew's church, Colchester, came to a close, a record-breaking crowd filling Grange hall. All the booths were busy until quite sold out. Smith's orchestra, from Norwich furnished music. The lunch shop was a busy place, patronized by the large gathering. Friends of the parish and the pastor came from Hartford, Norwich, New London, Manchester, Fitchville, New Haven, Glastonbury, New Britain, Marlborough, East Hampton, Middletown, Deep River and East Hartford.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION WILL PROBABLY BE ON SUNDAY

It was expected Friday night that blood transfusion for Thomas Bamford of Hanover who is a patient at the Backus hospital would probably be performed on Sunday.

Bamford was reported to have been holding his own for the past few days, but his condition is still critical from the wounds he received when his wife shot him three times about two weeks ago at their home in Hanover.

CHRISTMAS DAY WEDDING REACHES DIVORCE COURT

On the ground of intolerable cruelty since March 15, 1921, Alwilda M. Harrison of Groton has brought suit for divorce from Stephen Harrison of the same town. They were married on Christmas day, 1920. The petitioner asks to have her name changed to Alwilda M. Holly, the suit being returnable to the superior court in December.

City Court Cases

Three out of town men, charged with intoxication, were fined $5 and costs each in the city court Friday morning and a Norwich man who was arrested Thursday night on Franklin square on the same charge had sentence suspended for six months.

Ducca Pacifico of 86 High street, whose landlord, George Romanowski wants him to get out of the house was before the court. It was claimed that Pacifico had threatened to kill the landlord if he had to move.

Judge Libby told Pacifico that he would have to move by Monday and the case was continued to then.

Thanksgiving Dinner Guests

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rush of 352 West Main street entertained a party of 12 at Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday.

Those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. L. Andrew Reinhard and two children, Ruth and Jean of Englewood, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Fairweather of Cambridge, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. William Stetson and Mr. and Mrs. John Rush of this city.

Met With Mrs. Dodge

Harmony circle, connected with the Woman's league of the Central Baptist church, met this week with Mrs. Frank L. Dodge of 4 Garfield avenue. There was an attendance of 18, three new members having been added.

Sewing on white cross work during the evening was followed by music and refreshments.

Two Calls for Fire Department

The fire department was called out at 5.44 o'clock Friday morning for a fire in an automobile at the Commercial garage on Shetucket street. The blaze was extinguished before the firemen arrived and with but a small damage to the automobile. At 1.04 o'clock in the afternoon the firemen were called to 55 Fairmount street, the home of Max Schwartz, where a fire had started in a leaky gas pipe. This fire was extinguished before any damage had been caused.

FUNERALS

John P. Crimmins, Sr.

The funeral of John P. Crimmins, Sr., took place Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock from his home, 28 Mt. Pleasant street, requiem mass being celebrated at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's church by Rev. Myles F. Galvin. Henry LaFontaine presided at the organ during the mass. At the offertory Pie Jesu was sung and as a waiting hymn Roderick F. Sullivan sang Lead Kindly Light.

There was a very large attendance of mourners at the funeral and also at the church, which attested to the respect in which Mr. Crimmins was held by all who knew him. Included in the large attendance were relatives and friends from New York, New London and Hartford.

Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May read the committal service. The following friends acted as bearers: John T. Murphy, John Foley, John Fogarty, Dennis Brennan, Joseph Riley and Michael O'Connell of New London.

The floral forms, which were varied and beautiful, were as follows: Pillow, Mrs. John Crimmins; standing wreath, children; standing wreath, Mr. and Mrs. John Foley; cross, Mrs. Holt of New York city; pillow, Mrs. J. Ringsinger of New York city; wreath, Mrs. Nora Murphy of New York city; wreath, Mr and Mrs. Spicer and H. E. Spicer; wreath, employes of the Central Vermont railroad; wreath, friends at the Plaut-Cadden company; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Connell of New London; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. C Reynolds of New London; casket bouquet, Liggett & Co., employes and Mr. McCauley; spray, Nora Dingivan; spray, Mary Appleby and Nonie Nagle; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Cushman; spray, Mrs. Warren Chapman and the Sullivan girls; spray, Mrs. Edward Harper.

Arrangements for the funeral were in charge of Hourigan Bros.

Charles L. Stark

Funeral services for Charles L. Stark, who for more than half a century was a valuable employe of the Reid & Hughes company, were held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the parlors of Church & Allen. No. 15 Main street. The service was conducted by Rev David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church. The musical part of the service was in charge of Frederick Maples, who rendered the following solos, Rock of Ages, Home of My Soul and Abide With Me.

The many beautiful floral tributes gave evidence of the love and esteem in which Mr. Stark was held by a host of friends. During the hour of the service the Reid & Hughes company store was closed.

Burial was in Maplewood cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Pitt. The bearers were William Cruickshank, Alexander Sharp, Charles I. Smith and James H. Smith, all business associates in the Boston store.

ACADEMY BASKETBALL TEAM OPENS SEASON AGAINST C. F. C. TEAM TONIGHT

Following right on the heels of the closing of the football season, the academy basketball season will open this (Saturday) evening at the Y. M. C. A. court when, for the first time in history, an N. F. A. five will trot onto the court to oppose the C. F. C. team of this city. With the addition of this sport to the curriculum there should be much interest taken in the game and the Red and White courtsters be well supported by local fandom.

Coach McKean of the Academy has been drilling his charges hard in preparation for the opening game and they are reported to be in Al shape for their first start on the court. A large crowd had turned out and in it much promising material was included.

The more promising aspirants for position on the first string five are as follows: Ray Terrington, who was recently elected captain of the first Academy basketball team, Les Pingree, who will without doubt get the tap-off position. Buck LaCroix, who has distinguished himself in amateur circles, Jim Fenton of St. John's Prep fame, "Ducky" Jackson, Cimikoski, of baseball fame, Jim Kelly, who has made a name for himself by his previous performances on the chalked court in this section, Prokop, Stevens, Sheridan, Pepin, Sullivan, Lynch, Brauman, Lloyd Jarvis, Mace Goldblatt and others. The outlook for a fast team in the first year of competition is very bright and the Academy should give a good account of themselves, all things considered.

Tickets for the season's home games have been placed on sale during the week by the management.

The C. F. C. outfit will be the other team on the floor this evening and if past performances are to be counted, they should give the Academyites a nip and tuck battle right from the opening tapoff. Coach Davis has been holding practice for his team for the past month or more and will start his strongest lineup in an attempt to gain the decision. The same five that has played so well together for the past few years will take the floor and will be the following: Ludlow at center, Lambert and Lemingwell at forwards, and Capt. Armstrong and Brown at guards.

Taken all in all, the game this evening should be a hummer from start to finish and one worthy of inaugurating the popular winter sport, basketball, to take its place among the other branches of athletic endeavor carried on by the local school.

The opening whistle is set for 8:00 o'clock sharp.

CONLEY-DAY BOUT WILL PROVE EXCITING ATTRACTION

Fans who prefer a rushing, slashing battle between a pair of hard-hitting mittmen to a contest between two mercury footed, light-tapping boxers have a treat in store for them at the boxing show to be staged at the Lyceum theatre in New London, Tuesday night, Dec. 7, when Georgie Day, the popular Italian from New Haven collides with Sailor Conley of the naval base recently elected lightweight champion of the state.

This match will establish a standard of milling that will equal anything that has ever been staged in the state and bids fair to terminate before the final round.

Day and Conley are now keed rivals and the fans love a fighter who packs a knockout wallop above all other types; this the sailor and New Havener possess. A clever boxing match is entertaining, but it takes the heavy hitters to furnish the sensational and exciting quarrels. The Yale city entry always stirs the enthusiasm of the fans. The bouts in which he engages seldom fail to provide a sensational feature and Conley is a better of the same type.

It is is not only possible but quite probable that a knockout will be registered in this match. Both are capable of delivering a sleep producing wallop and whichever one is fortunate enough to finish a winner will do so after many narrow escapes.

To sum up the principals, they are equal for experience. Day may be a bit faster; Conley the better puncher of the two; Day a bit tougher and has more wind to go the distance. Neither has ever tasted a genuine knockout, and it bids fair to be quite a quarrel.

Both are training very diligently, the job at the base gymnasium and Day in New Haven with Joe Currie, who has already fought Conley a draw.

BROWN AWARDS LETTERS TO 24 FOOTBALL PLAYERS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 26—(AP)—Twenty-four members of the Brown university football squad, in addition to Manager Edward L. Leighton, of Bridgeville, N. J., were awarded letters by the Brown university athletic council today.

The "Iron Men" who were awarded their letters today follow; Captain Hal A. Broda, Canton, Ohio; Orland Smith, Brockton, Mass.; Dave Mishel, Lynn, Mass.; Roy Randall, Brockton, Mass.; Edward J. Lawrence, Fitchburg, Mass.; Charles Consodine, Brewster, Mass.; Paul Hodge, Fitchburg, Mass.; Thurston Towle, Pawtucket, R. I.; Ed Kavorkian, Newton, Mass.; Louis Farber, Pawtucket; Albert Cornsweet, Cleveland, O.

Two of the men have won three varsity letters in football. They are: Captain Broda and Orland Smith, while Mishel, Randall, Lawrence, Hodge, Towle, Provonchee, and Holden are winning their letters for the second time. All of the others are receiving their first varsity award in football.

The election for the captaincy, which is open to all letter men, will probably be held the first of next week.

J. S. RUNNERS TAKE FIVE EVENTS IN INTER-VARSITY MEET

CAMBRIDGE, England, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The United States and Canada were well represented at today's annual inter-varsity relay races, five United States and one Canadian track stars capturing two of the seven events for Oxford. Cambridge took the rest of the program. The 400 yard and the half mile events fell to the overseas runners.

The relay team in the 400-yard event was composed of R. S. Sams Rhodes scholar from Georgia, a former Princeton star; Calbe F. Gates, Rhodes scholar from New Jersey, captain of last year's Yale track team, and Earl R. Thoenen, Rhodes scholar from West Virginia. The team won by three yards in 40 4-5 seconds.

The runners in the half-mile event were gates, Thoenen, Robert L. Hyatt, Rhodes scholar from Arkansas and an old Harvard athlete and H. V. Warren, Canadian track star. The team won by four yards in one minute 30 3-5 seconds.

Jewett City Team Challenges

The Jewett City Wildcats are without a football game for Sunday and would like to play the Jail Hill Trojans or the Greeneville Juniors or Hurricanes. If challenge is accepted the game will be played at Jewett City at 1 o'clock.

FINAL CURTAIN FALLS ON EIGHT TEAMS TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The roll of gridiron musketry will echo from eastern football stadia tomorrow for the last time this season when eight teams call their warriors of the moleskin into the curtain conflicts of the campaign.

Pittsburgh will be the scene of the only struggle which bears upon the fight for titular honors. There the rugged Carnegie Tech eleven, which has been beaten only by Washington and efferson and N. Y. U., will seek to stop the march of Knute Rockne's powerful Notre Dame machine to its ninth straight triumph and a claim on the National championship.

The game ranks second in importance only to the Army-Navy classic at Chicago, where the service teams will strike final blows in a game involving both eastern and national supremacy. Navy players, sharing with Lafayette the distinction of posting an unbeaten and untied record, have before them the possibility of establishing a strong claim on both championships in the estimation of observers here.

While Lafayette's high-powered offensive has rolled up impressive scores, critics point to the fact that the Middies thus far have come through the most severe schedule attempted by any team on the Atlantic seaboard, with victories over Purdue, Drake, Princeton, Colgate, Michigan, West Virginia Wesleyan and Georgetown.

There will be three other eastern battles between traditional foes, pitting Holy Cross against Boston college, Bucknell again Dickinson and West Virginia Wesleyan against Davis Elkins.

The Holy Cross-Boston college Melee brings together two strong elevens which flared early in the campaign with impressive winning streaks. Holy Cross, conqueror of Harvard, came through eight games undefeated until the Boston university tussle, while a tie with the Haskell Indians at 21-21 two weeks ago interrupted the victory string of Boston college.

One other major eastern eleven will ring down the curtain in the middle west, with Georgetown tackling Detroit.

Last year's scores between teams meeting tomorrow were as follows:

Notre Dame at Carnegie Tech, no game.

Georgetown at Detroit 24-0.

West Virginia Wesleyan vs. Davis Elkins at Clarksburg.

SHIFT PLAY PRACTICALLY BARRED IN BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Nov. 26—(AP)—The shift play will be virtually barred in western conference football next year, through a decision of the athletic directors here tonight, to enforce a two-second stop on all shift plays, before the ball is snapped.

Seeking to complete his schedule, Coach Spears of Minnesota, which gave to the gridiron the famous play a score of years ago, offered to abandon the shift if the other coaches desired, and a gentleman's agreement was adopted. Coach Robert Zuppke of Illinois, was one of the sponsors of the proposal to make shifting players halt for two seconds before a play was started.

The meeting next fall between Chicago and, Michigan is one of the outstandin greaults of the season. They have not played for seven years, because of tension between the undergraduates. The reported break of football relations between Chicago and Northwestern, rivals for 25 years, also became an accomplished fact with their failure to sign for next year.

Six big intersectional games are on the middle western list for next fall, three in this section and three in the east.

The rambling Rocke of Notre Dame will bring one of the biggest intersectional games of the year to Chicago on Nov. 26, when they meet the University of Southern California.

The three eastern games will send Ohio to Princeton, and Indiana and Purdue to Harvard. In return, the Navy will come to Michigan and Penn will return the visit of Chicago. From the far west, Utah will come to Northwestern.

All but three of the conference teams still had open dates tonight, when the athletic directors adjourned, and negotiations with other leading teams for intersectional games will be continued. Chicago, Michigan and Northwestern alone announced complete programs.

Notre Dame did not fare as well as usual in Big Ten dates, landing games with Indiana and Minnesota. Except for these two, the Rocke program is nothing else intersectional. They have the Navy, Georgia Tech, Army, Drake and Southern California on the 1927 list, which extends their reputation as "Ramblers."

YALE WEEKLY WOULD ABOLISH SECRET PRACTICE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The best solution of the coaching problem in football is the faculty coach, the Yale Alumni Weekly said today in an editorial.

"We look forward to the day when the university itself takes charge, makes the coaches part of its staff, and accepts responsibility for them and their effect on the student life and morale," said the editorial.

"One more development which we think is foreign to the spirit of the game, and most certainly tends to weaken the undergraduate interest in it and in the team, is secret practice," goes on the article. "A season that sees the gates closed the first week and remain closed till the 'rallies' at its end, is to our minds an unhealthy thing.

"We look on college football in a different light. It should be the undergraduate's privilege to watch the progress of his eleven, know the players, and show them that the campus is with them by attendance at practice. With the gates permanently closed, and opened only to let in the crowds to see the games, something goes out of the situation that belongs in it."

ERNIE NEVERS TEAM TO PLAY AT HARTFORD TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 27.—Ernie Nevers, bounding blonde of the Pacific coast, whose fame traveled hand in hand with that of Red Grange during the 1925 football season, will make his first visit to New England Saturday afternoon.

The light-haired giant will lead his team of Duluth Eskimos against the Hartford Blues of the National Football league at the Velodrome in this city. Connecticut and Massachusetts football lovers have had opportunities of seeing the great Grange and now will flock to the spot where the other master of those college days is performing.

Nevers, called by Pop Warner the greatest of all football players while at Stamford university, weighs 210 pounds and is lightning fast. His crashing body has had thousands in uproar, but in addition to his marvelous ball-carrying ability he is one of the best passers and kickers in the country. In the Eskimos he has capable assistants in all departments.

Chet Gayer, 210-pound tackle from Creighton, and Porky Runquist, 220-pounder from North Dakota, are stars of the Duluth line. Runquist is the center. Another great performer is Bill Stein, formerly of Fordham, who plays a guard. John Blood, triple-threat man from Notre Dame, and Doc Kelly, hard-running halfback from Northwestern, aid Nevers in advancing the ball.

The Blues' first clash with All-New Britain is scheduled for the same field Sunday and should prove as sensational a meeting as those of past years. New Britain has strengthened in many departments for the series.

LETTERS AWARDED TO 26 HARVARD FOOTBALL MEN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Twenty six members of the Harvard football squad were awarded the major "H" by the Harvard Athletic association today. For the first time, the Princeton contest was a letter game, having been so designated by the athletic authorities early this year before the differences which led to the severing of athletic relations between the two universities arose. It happened, however, that all the players who took part in the Princeton game got into action against Yale as well.

The letter-men will each receive the new "H" certificate recently adopted by Harvard, which bears the signature of William J. Bingham, director of athletics.

Previously letter men in varsity sports have been awarded only a sweater with the coveted "H". The 26 students awarded the football "H" this season included Manager J. R. Burke '27 and L. F. Daley, '27. Although an appendicitis attack prevented Daley from fulfilling requirements for a letter for the third season in succession, he was awarded his "H" by special vote of the association on recommendation of Captain Clem Coady and Coach Arnold Horween.

IZZY KAPLAN GETS DECISION OVER PERRY

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 26.—(AP)— Izzy Kaplan, of Meriden, brother of Louis (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion, outpointed Ernie Perry of Bridgeport in the feature eight-round bout here tonight. The Meriden fighter's body punching was too much for Perry who tried vainly to offset Kaplan's rushing tactics with punches to the face. Kaplan weighed 141 pounds and Perry 144.

In the semi-final, Jim Bones of Bridgeport, gained the decision over Scotty Horsburgh of Ansonia. In another eight-round bout, Johnny Mason of Bridgeport was given the decision over Willie Mack of Stamford and Jules Sombathy, of Bridgeport was given the verdict over Nick Bartels of New York. In the opening four-round bout Leo Johnson outpointed Joe King.

RED BURELLE TO PUT FAST BASKETBALL TEAM IN FIELD

Red Burelle has once again entered the basketball field with a five that he claims is second to none in Taftville and issues a challenge to all in the state. Included in his lineup is Jimmie Murphy, Walter Robitaille, Buster Murphy, Roland Harris, Eddie Murphy, George and Tommy Coleman and Jack Murphy. These boys are all well known in basketball circles and should round out into a fast club. Any teams wishing games write to Manager Burelle, Box 12, Taftville, Conn.

HARTFORD EVENING HIGH FIVE WANTS LOCAL GAMES

With 37 candidates reporting to Coach Newell last week, the basketball five of the Hartford evening high school started practice for this season's team. The "Night Hawks" as they have been dubbed have some of the fast basketball men in New England in their lineup, men that have been on various high school teams in the state. This team would like to book games with the leading fives of Taftville, Plainfield, Danielson and New London. The Bears have the honor of being one of the few teams to beat the Passaic high school team. Mgr. J. Frederick Nyquist wishes to hear from any teams interested in booking his cub. His address is 47 E. Fort Lee road, Bogota, N. J.

ARMY-NAVY GAME HOLDS CENTER OF SPORT STAGE THIS AFTERNOON

CHICAGO, Nov. 26—(AP)—Ranked in columns across a snow-swept field, three thousand students of the United States military and naval academies today shared in the dedication of Soldier's field, where tomorrow the twenty-men representing the Army and Navy football teams will hold the eyes of 100,000 spectators in the first service game ever played in the middle-west.

Thousands of spactators assembled to attend the ceremonies dedicating the city's monument to its war dead. Vice President Charles G. Dawes made the principal speech.

The Cadets paraded from their respective hotel quarters to the stadium to find a colorful picture awaiting them, and to take their place in the concrete bowl which they studded with their blue and gray uniforms, while around them thousands of student military corps from high schools dotted the seating sections together with American legion units which preceded the Cadets in a parade down Michigan avenue. The legion section presented a pageant depicting the history of the flag, and behind them were service men of allied nations carrying their national colors. Thousands of persons formed a human gauntlet along Michigan avenue during the parade.

The football game tomorrow which starts at 2 p. m., central time, has for its 22 initial warriors, representatives of sixteen states and the District of Columbia in the lineups.

Rain and fog, in which Cadets and Midshipmen marched from their trains to hotels upon arrival early in the day, turned to snow while the 1,200 men were af luncheon in the block square dining room of Marshall Field and Company.

They got the greatest ovation the city has tendered since the return of its World war troops when they marched from their trains through crowded streets with paper flakes, streamers and ticker tape descending in their path from the windows of skyscrapers along the route.

When the marchers had taken their places by the reviewing stand, the Cadets entered, backs of the Cadets, came the Midshipmen, nineteen hundred strong. As the men of the two schools passed the stands, they stood, company after company, facing the speaker's platform, and there they held their position through half an hour of speaking which formally opened the ten million dollar stadium to the public.

With bowed heads, they listened to a chaplain's prayer, then to Commander Howard P Savage of the American legion, Mayor Dever, Lieut. Governor Sterling, of Illinois and President Edward J. Kelly of the South Park board, which directed the building of the stadium.

Rear Admiral Louis E. Nulton, commander of the Naval academy, accepted the stadium in the name of the navy, and General March B. Stewart, commander of the Military academy for the army, in lieu of General John J. Pershing who could not attend.

Tonight the city outdid itself in social welcome to its guests, with a ball at the Drake hotel. The three thousand Cadets and Midshipmen were provided with as many young women partners.

The event began with a buffet dinner at 7 o'clock and by 9 o'clock everybody was dancing.

But unlike Cinderella, whose height of glory ended with the stroke of twelve, the girl dancers found themselves more favored. Shortly before midnight, the dancing thousands were piled into busses and brought downtown to the Oriental and the Chicago theatres, where they saw a show and continued their merry-making until three hours after midnight.

Tomorrow's program calls for little more than the game. The 100,000 persons, only a fraction of them Chicagoans, who jam into Soldiers' field, will see the service men come from an 11:30 luncheon at Field Museum to the stadium at 1:30 for maneuvers and at 2 o'clock the game begins.

WESTERLY MAJESTICS AND TIGERS CLASH ON SUNDAY

The Greeneville Tigers and the Westerly Majestics will clash in the second encounter between these two elevens on unday afternoon at the J. B. Martin field in Taftville at 2:30 o'clock. The Majestics in the first meeting defeated the Tigers, 7 to 0 and the Tigers are out to even up the count.

Some good football has been played by the Tigers this season and it is expected that the crowd for Sunday will be the largest of the season. Greeneville has a fast traveling eleven that plays hard and to win so that the Majestics will find it no easy task to duplicate thir feat of two weeks ago. Manager Boyd's starting lineup will be: Kelly and Gay, ends; Butts and Langvin, tackles; Christi and Tombari, guards; Sudinsky or Swanton, center; N. Courbois, quarterback; Mileski, fullback; Gorton and Nelson, halfbacks. The reserves will include that versatile athlete, Jimmy Pedace, S. Boyd and Tennant.

ROCKNE DOES NOT KNOW WHY HE WAS SUED

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Knute Rockne, football coach at Notre Dame university, declared today he had never heard of Anna Brennan, named as plaintiff in a suit filed against Rockne here today for $50,000.

"As soon as I heard of the suit," Rockne said. "I went to see the lawyers who field the praecipe. The suit was withdrawn 15 minutes after it was filed. I never heard of the woman and know nothing at all about why she should sue me."

West Basketball Games

The Arcola Bears of Bogota, N. J., a traveling basketball team is planning a trip through Connecticut and other New England states and would like to book games with the leading fives of Taftville, Plainfield, Danielson and New London. The Bears have the honor of being one of the few teams to beat the Passaic high school team. Mgr. J. Frederick Nyquist wishes to hear from any teams interested in booking his cub. His address is 47 E. Fort Lee road, Bogota, N. J.

Probable Lineups

CHICAGO, Nov. 26—(AP)—The prospective lineups for tomorrow's Army-Navy battle, and the home state of the players:

FOOTBALL EXPECTED TO BE SHATTERED TODAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 26—(AP)—The Army and Navy battle for football supremacy tomorrow promises to be as thrilling as its setting will be colorful and spectacular.

Meeting west of the Alleghenies for the first time since they began their football feud in 1890, two of the finest football teams of West Point and Annapolis will meet for their twenty-ninth contest on newly dedicated Soldiers field before probably close to 110,000 spectators, a record for a football game in the United States.

Financial records for football, also will be shattered. At the face value of $10 and $15 the ticket sale has approximated $800,000 while speculators' prices ranging as high as $100 in many cases, will boost the aggregate cost of attendance to at least $1,000,000.

The Army tonight was a 7 to 5 favorite, in spite of the fact that the Cadets have been whipped one by Notre Dame, and that it is the Navy's unbeaten team which has national as well as eastern championship hopes at stake.

West Point however, in the opinion of many critics has an advantage in experience and all-around balance. The Cadets one setback, they point out, was by an eleven that has swept aside all rivals in a sweep toward national title heights, and that defeat was only by the margin of a touchdown that represented the only "break in a closely fought game."

Navy supporters predict that the Cadets cannot stop the advance of the gridiron man o'war that defeated such teams as Colgate, Michigan, Georgetown, Princeton and Purdue.

In both camps there is a feeling of respect for the strength of the rival defense and for the power of the opposing attack. An Army line that boasts such stars as Born, Sprague, Saunders, Schmidt and Daly will have its day's work cut out for it in charging such huskies as Eddy, Wickhorst, Lolyd and Hardwick. And it will take all the experienced ability of such Cadet ball-carriers as Harry Wilson, "Swede" Murrell and Cagle to offset the versatility of a middle attack led by Hoerner, Hennegan, Caldwell and Hamilton.

The weather prospect for tomorrow is "fair and cold." The rival squads put the finishing touches to their practice today with a snowstorm howling through the city. Taking fewer risks, the Army put in a brief signal drill indoors while the Navy engaged in a secret 40 minute workout in the snow at Stagg field, home gridiron of the University of Chicago.

Both coaches announces that their strongest lineups would take the field when Referee Wilmer Crowell blows his whistle tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

"Tiny" Hewitt, Army's captain, again must yield his former regular post at fullback to "Swede" Murrell, the "find" of the Cadet camp this year, but the team leader undoubtedly will figure in at least part of the battle.

In reserve West Point has a plebe ball-carrier, C. A. "Baby" Dahl, who may be a sensation if he performs as he did in the closing moments of the Notre Dame game.

JONES AND INGRAM EXPECT A CLOSE BATTLE

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Rival coaches, Captain Lawrence "Biff" Jones of West Point and William A. (Navy Bill) Ingram of Annapolis, anticipate a spectacular, closely fought struggle for service honors tomorrow.

Neither is willing to concede much, if any, advantage to the other, but each believes the team coached by the other should be rated the favorite in a battle which marks the climax of the first year efforts of both Jones and Ingram in their present posts.

Field Coach Ingram expressed optimism over the chances of the middies, but pointed out that "they're just a lot of boys, most of them without a great deal of football experience going up against a seasoned, veteran army outfit."

"You can't take anything away from the Army, because it lost to Notre Dame nor can you concede us too much because we haven't been beaten."

FACT ABOUT ARMY AND NAVY GAME TODAY

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Hockey has supplanted lacrosse as the national game of Canada.

The basketball season of the Missouri Valley Conference colleges will start on Jan. 7.

The size of the baseball diamond has remained the same since the earliest days of the game.

The golf season at Miami, Fla., will get under way on Jan. 17 with the opening of the annual mid-winter tournament.

The Straits Settlements are not usually associated in the public mind with the game of golf, yet the city of Singapore possesses what experts have declared to be one of the most beautiful golf courses in the world.

They used to go to school to learn the three R's. Now they are taught the three S's. Winter sports, including instruction in skating, skiing and snowshoeing, are a part of the required recreational activities for freshmen at Dartmouth college.

Nearly one hundred cities in the United States now operate municipal golf courses, with fees ranging from 10 to 15 cents a round in some places to as high as a dollar a round in New York, Los Angeles, Detroit, Cincinnati and several other cities.

Horse racing in the east has been laid away on the sporting shelf for another season. With the closing of the fall meeting at the Bowie track on Nov. 27 the curtain was dropped after eight months of continuous sport. From now on the interest of the followers of racing will be cantered on New Orleans, Havana and Tia Juana.

George Wright, who was captain, shortstop and manager of the champion "Providence" baseball team of 50 years ago, on which A. G. Spalding also played, will celebrate his 80th birthday anniversary in January. Mr. Wright, who is the head of a prominent sporting goods house in Boston, attributes his longevity and general good health to his indulgence in the game of golf.

Time was, a decade or two ago, when nearly all the great billiard professionals—the elder Schaefer, Slosson, Sutton and others who might be named—were men well along in years. Now, Willie Hoppe, who is not quite 40, is the lodest of the balkline stars. Edouard Hormans, the Belgian, is 38. Young Jake Schaefer, 31, Roger Conti 35, and Welker Cochran in his middle twenties.

POETRY

Autumn Tempo

Never were an Indian King
Robes as rich as Nature weaves
Ere sweet summer sorrowing leaves,
Round Earth's mellow form to fling.

Never were such magic dyes
Mixed by Tyrian makers old
Persian palaces of gold
To adorn, as meet our eyes.

Maples mantling distant hills
Riot in voluptuous hues,
Modest dells that hold the dews
Wake to passionate color-thrills.

Purple asters deck the plain
Where the plodding laborers go,
Waves of goldenrod o'erflow
Roads where runs the harvest wain.

Salvias set the lawns afire,
Scarlet cannas flame and flash,
Overhead the mountain-ash
In its ripe-red fall attire.

Gaudy sunflowers revel bold
By the gates to farmlands free,
Marigolds in wilful glee
Laugh and love in gardens old.

Great Magician, Nature, weave
Pompe like these to uplift my soul
As I near the sombre goal
Where of earth I take my leave.

Some such warmth of color fling
Round my spirit as I creep
Past the cold gray gates of sleep,
Into God's new golden Spring.

—Arthur Wentworth Hamilton Eaton.

Failures

They bear no laurels on their pensive brows,
Nor aught within their pale hands as they go;
They look as men accustomed to the slow
And level onward course 'neath drooping boughs
Who may these be no trumpet doth arouse,
These of the dark processionals of woe,
Unpraised, unblamed, but whom sad Acheron's flow
Monotonously lulls to leaden drowse?
These are the Failure. Clutched by Circumstance,
They were—may not too weak!—too ready prey
To their own fear whose fixed Gorgon glance
Made them as stone for aught of great essay!—
Or else they nodded when their Master-Chance
Wound his one signal, and went by his way.

—Arthur Upson.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

John—You say Bert doesn't have much of a line?

"Do you really think we should elope, Dora?"

"Certainly. My family's looking forward to it."—Detroit News.

Husband: Have you much shopping to do today?

Accused (just acquitted, to counsel)—Thanks awfully, old man. What on earth should I have done without you?

Counsel—Oh, about five years.—Smith's Weekly.

Caller—Won't you walk with me as far as the trolley, Tommy?

Tommy (aged 7)—I can't.

Caller—Why not?

Tommy—Cos we're going to have dinner as soon as you go.—Pathfinder.

Mistress—What is the baby crying so much for?

Maid—Master's shirt studs, mum.

Mistress—Why don't you let the little darling have them?

Maid—I did. He's swallowed them!—Passing Show.

"Are you still engaged to that homely Smith girl?"

"No, I'm not!"

"Good for you, old man. You had my sympathy when you were. How did you get out of it?"

"Married her."—From the Kansas City Star.

"Irene, did I see that young man kiss you last night?"

"I don't know whether you did or not."

"You are evading my question—did he do it?"

"Well, you don't suppose he came all the way from home and gave up the evening just to see our goldfish, do you?"—Tit-Bits.

It was not until a Birmingham, Eng., druggist began to think over matters in bed that he realized that he had put a lethal dose of strychnine in some pills that he had sold. He had one clue to the purchaser's identity, his name, Penn, on the prescription. The druggist personally visited everybody of that name in Birmingham and surrounding districts, searched hospitals, informed the police and had warnings broadcast by radio and published in the newspapers. The uncertainty ended when the man who had bought the pills telegraphed from London, saying that he had read of the mistake in the London newspapers. He said that none of the pills had been taken and that he was returning the box intact.

An earthern effigy jar in the shape of an animal said by the Hopi Indians to represent an antelope was one of the most curious objects unearthed recently near Flagstaff, Ariz., by Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, ethnologist of the Smithsonian Institution. It was found buried on the abdomen of an Indian priest. The surface of the jar was elaborately decorated and the jar was undoubtedly used for religious purposes, Dr. Fewkes said, and probably as a container for holy water or sacred meal. A collection of pottery, numbering more than 300 unbroken vessels as well as many curious fragments, was obtained from the site of an ancient Indian cemetery near the pueblo. He also gathered rings, bracelets, turquoises, shells and other ornaments. Dr. Fewkes regards his summer's work at Elden Pueblo, six miles from Flagstaff, one of the most successful of his career.

WESTERLY

DIVORCE CASES HEARD IN SUPERIOR COURT FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I. Nov. 26—Following the Thanksgiving recess the November term of Washington county superior court with Associate Justice Arthur P. Sumner of Providence on the bench had the third day of its Westerly sitting on Friday. With no jurymen present, Judge Sumner called the two divorce case matters pending before the court. Following the disposition of these cases, the November term of the Westerly sitting was adjourned to Monday, Dec. 6th, when Judge Sumner will come to Westerly, if cases now pending before the court are not settled before that time.

The divorce case, Caroline L. M. Smith vs. Edwin H. Smith of Wickford, R. I., began at the April session of superior court, again came before the court. At that term a decree was entered giving the plaintiff the custody of three children, the oldest 9 years old, and that the mother be paid $10 weekly for the support of the children. Smith was placed under arrest in Wickford on Thursday night by Deputy Sheriff Thomas W. Pierce on a complaint for neglect to provide in that the provisions of a suspended sentence were not met for 16 weeks' payment at $10 a week were alleged due by Attorney Clarence E. Roche, who appeared in court to represent Peter S. Byrnes, overseer of the poor of the town of North Kingstown. Attorney Edward T. Hogan of Providence for the defendant told the court that due to ill health Smith was unable to pay and that there was no intent to disregard the court decree. He said that the respondent had arranged with the attorney general's department that he would not be taken into custody when he went to the R. I. hospital for observation and read the court's letter from Geraldine L. Didier, social worker for the hospital that the patient was a sufferer from a mental illness and had returned from living in Coventry with his aunt. In reply to non-prosecution from the attorney general's department, Judge Sumner said that "The attorney general's department sometimes neglects its work, and I don't know but what this may be an example." Edward H. Smith, 20, was placed on the witness stand and testified that an auto operated by him was owned by his sister, that he didn't know the age of his youngest child and that all the work he could find to do was digging ditches. Extensive cross examination was made by Attorney Roche. After a conference between the parties to the case an agreement was entered for Smith to pay Mrs. Smith $30 on Dec. 4th next and the case was continued to Dec. 6th to come up at Westerly.

Agnes Bauer vs. Adolph Bauer was a divorce case heard on deposition in which the plaintiff was represented by Attorney Dorney. Mrs. Bauer was married October 9, 1911, in city hall, New York and since June 1924 has made her home in Wood River Junction, R. I., where she resides in the Brown house, opposite the railroad station. She has been separated from her husband for the past ten years, whom she alleged came around for money and the final separation occured, when he forged her name to a check. She has received no support from her husband and had income from her own property. Judge Sumner took the papers and announced that all evidence was in on the hearing and that decree could be given on the receipt of the marriage certificate from New York.

State, Peter S. Byrnes, overseer of the poor of the town of North Kingston, vs. John Gorman was a case which had come up in the February term of court in which the respondent had entered a plea of nolo and was sentenced to pay $6 a week. It was stated that an adjustment was to be arrived at and the case was continued two weeks, to be called on December 6.

In the regular session of Third district court on Friday morning in the district court room, no cases were tried, Judge Oliver H. Williams read the following docket:

New writ entered before the calling of the docket. Mary A. Graf vs. Henry J. Rivard. Trespass and ejectment. Continued one week. Criminal docket, State vs. Samuel A. Main; State, vs. Arline L. McDonald, continued two weeks. Civil docket, Charles Hagert vs. Maria T. TaRey; Edward J. Reguccl vs. Thomas A. Kores; Edward Greenhalgh vs. Eleanor D. Baker, continued two weeks; Tilley Radio Corporation vs. Howell Wilson. This case was marked defaulted and passed for proof of claim; George P. Clark of Shannock vs. Mrs. Bertha Madsen. Continued one week.

On Thanksgiving morning at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Kenyon, 95 Mechanic street, occurred the wedding when their daughter, Miss Mary Louise Kenyon was united in marriage to Alfred T. McCloy, son of Mrs. Leona McCloy. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Marvin E. Stocking, who used the single ring service.

Miss Kenyon's maid of honor was Miss Beatrice Green and Louis Moone was best man. Miss Grace B. Smith played the wedding march.

The bride wore her going-away costume, a becoming dress of light blue silk with a blue picture hat. She carried pink roses. Miss Greene's dress was yellow and she wore a black picture hat. She carried tea roses.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's mother on Prospect street. The couple left on the Colonial express for a wedding trip to Newark and New York. After their return they will be at home to their friends at 27 Prospect street.

Joseph Vincent, a former Jewett City resident, was brought a few weeks ago to the home of his sister, Mrs. Oscar Lamieux on Soule street. He has been confined to his bed for three years with a form of rheumatism, and now is perfectly helpless, being able only to rarely move his head. He is most cheerful under such trying conditions and appreciates the calls of anyone to help while away the long hours. For a long time he has been cared for by his mother, Mrs. Alex Brault, in Marlboro. During his stay there, Miss Mary Hall a prominent summer resident, whose winter home is in Hartford, interested herself in his case and an appeal was made through a Hartford paper for financial assistance to the young man who had spent all his funds in treatment in Chicago. The generous response produced sufficient funds to procure a hospital bed for him an also a radio set. The young man is only 28 years of age. He is given the best of care by his relatives, children in the family doing their part to help care for him and make the long hours less wearisome.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Following the disbanding of the Shetucket Steam Fire Engine company number 7, a new company was formed with Samuel Wilson as foreman and with about 35 members, according to The Norwich Bulletin files of 50 years ago. A half century ago this week the ladies of the city held a centennial exhibition for the benefit of the Provident association. The main feature of the exhibition was the showing of articles of historical interest as well as curiosities of all kinds. Interesting extracts taken from The Bulletin of November, 1876, are as follows:

Monday, Nov. 20, 1876—The Shetucket Steam Fire Engine company number 7, formally disbanded Saturday night and turned the city property in their possession over to Chief Engineer Carrier. The cause of their action was that the engineer desired by the company was not confirmed by the common council. A new company was formed saturday with Samuel Wilson as foreman and about 35 members. The members of the old company gave honorable notice of their intention to disband. Their record has been a good one.

We are happy to say that tthe Rev. Joseph Cook has been induced to give a series of six weekly lectures, beginning December first in the Broadway church. The high culture and scholarship of the lecturer are sufficient guarantee that they will be of great value and Norwich should feel specially favored.

William O. Robson, formerly of this city, was elected secretary of the Boston Press club at their annual dinner Saturday last.

Tuesday, Nov. 21, 1876—The Hayes and Wheeler flag on Main street near Market was carried away by the wind yesterday a very small part of it remaining attached to the halliards. It had served its day and was no longer needed, Hayes' election being assured.

The easterly weather of last week culminated yesterday afternoon and last evening in a violent wind and rain storm. The rain fell in torrents and the wind blew a gale, but by midnight both had nearly ceased.

The ladies of this city are celebrated for their noble labors to aid any benevolent or deserving cause. They have now in hand two enterprises in aid of the Provident association. One is the centennial loan exhibition which begins in Steiner's hall this afternoon. The other entertainment will take place in Breed hall Friday evening, and from the character of the ladies we feel sure it will be an extremely pleasing one.

Wednesday, Nov. 22, 1876—All honor to our ladies! They have given us one of the pleasantest entertainments, both profitable and interesting, we have ever had here. The centennial loan exhibition opened in Steiner's hall yesterday. The main feature was the exhibition of articles of historical interest, as well as curiosities of all kinds. Of the former, few New England cities can make a fuller or more interesting exhibit. The large hall in which they were shown was very handsomely decorated and was filled with the articles contributed.

The Hon. H. Lynde Harrison was in town yesterday. We are glad to know the feeling in favor of making Mr. Harrison the speaker of the next house is everywhere gaining strength and that there is little doubt of his being elected to that office. Mr. Harrison has been a careful and faithful legislator and is qualified for the position.

Officers Burdick, Plunket and Meech, three supernumeraries on duty nights, were discharged yesterday by order of the police commissioners, the department being unable to retain them and not exceed the appropriation. They were all good men and could be poorly spared.

Thursday, Nov. 23, 1726—The attendance at the centennial loan exhibition in Steiner's hall yesterday was larger than on Tuesday and yet was not equal to its deserts. We are glad therefore that it is to be continued through today and this evening and trust that both our city and rural friends will improve the chance for genuine pleasure and edification, to say nothing of the most excellent dinner and supper.

The annual meeting of the New London County Historical society for the election of officers and to transact any other business, will be held in the council chamber, in the town hall at New London, on Monday, the 27th inst. The Rev. T. L. Shipman will deliver the annual address.

Mr. Parker, the cork manufacturer, has moved into the building opposite the court house, for more extended quarters.

Friday, Nov. 24, 1876—At a special meeting of Shetucket Engine company number 7, Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year; Foreman, Samuel D. Wilson; first assistant foreman, Arthur Mathews; second assistant foreman, Patrick Barry; secretary and treasurer, William Walter Armstrong; engineer of steamer, William Beel. Mr. John Reynolds was recommended to the common council to act as fireman.

The house of Wauregan 8, F. S. company was draped in mourning yesterday, in memory of one of its members, Mr. A. H. Sherman, who died Wednesday night after a long illness of consumption. Mr. Sherman was also a member of Morton Commandery, K. T. of New York.

At a regular session of Palmyra Encampment, number 3, I. O. O. F., held last evening, M. W. G. P. Charles Peck of New Haven and M. P. G. H. P. W. N. Andrews of Norwich were present, and exemplified the work of this branch of the order in all degrees.

Saturday, Nov. 25, 1876—Yesterday afternoon a woman named Julia Doule died very suddenly in a basement tenement on Central Wharf, in such a manner as to indicate foul play. She was in the street early in the afternoon in apparent good health. About 4 o'clock a physician was sent for to attend her and when Dr. Cassidy arrived there a little past six, she was lying on the floor dead. The appearance of the face of the deceased was that of a person who died from strangulation. It was reported by some of the denizens of the block that there had been a row going on in the place a short time before the death was announced among the notice that the woman had been outraged and then strangled. The truth of the report will be investigated today by the coroner.

The Rev. E. J. Haynes of Brooklyn, N. Y., and formerly of this city, will deliver his lecture on Philosophy and Fraud in Breed hall on Tuesday evening of next week. Mr. Hayes is well and favorably known in this city and will no doubt attract a large number to the hall to hear him.

The Rev. A. Hilgrove, the general agent of the home and foreign mission board of the New England conference, has been appointed to the pastoral care of the A. M. E. Zion church of this city by order of the bishop, J. J. More, of New Haven.

Since the cool weather began, the tramps are returning to the cities. A good number applied at police headquarters for shelter last night.

It is easier for the average man to draw the line that it is for him not to step over it later.

CANTERBURY GREEN

An interesting C. E. meeting was held last Sunday evening. Members from the society at Central Village were present. Misses Ruth Matherson and Grace Connealy assisted in leading the meeting. Next Sunday evening it is expected that Harold Burgess, of Moosup, will be present. The time of gathering is changed from six o'clock to seven from now on, that time seeming more convenient for many.

Wednesday evening a C. E. social at the parsonage was well attended. A business meeting at which officers were chosen preceded the social hour. Earle Carpenter was elected president, Lewis Safford, secretary and Ruth Davis, treasurer. Various committees were appointed. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Arthur Bennett entertained the W. C. T. U. last Thursday at her home. Many members were present. Mrs. Ida Shorten of North Society will have the next meeting.

Mrs. C. C. Frink is spending several days in Brooklyn at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Addie Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Frink and Mr. and Mrs. Wright were at Mrs. Hyde's for Thanksgiving dinner.

Mrs. Harrison is passing a vacation with relatives in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Graves spent several days recently with their daughter in Springfield.

Guests over the week end at Clinton Frink's were Mr. and Mrs. Lou Weaver of East Hampton, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spaulding and children of Norwich.

Mrs. Lucy Davis and family were Thanksgiving guests of Henry Larkham's.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lathrop and daughter, Lydia, were at Norwich for the holiday, as were also their sons, Parker Lathrop of New Haven and Houston Lathrop of Monument Beach, Mass., with their families.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lowell entertained their son, Ralph Lowell and his family, on Thanksgivink day.

Mrs. Henry Kenyon has moved to Plainfield with her daughter, Mrs. Babcock. Mr. Reid of Providence, who purchased the Kenyon place, has taken possession and now occupies the premises. While moving, a heavy truck-load of goods narrowly escaped breaking through the bridge near James Lathrop's. As it was, the truck got safely over but the bridge was rendered useless for a few days, until the town fathers saw to its repair.

Work is progressing on the stretch of state road from Westminister to Scotland, a fact that seems almost too good to be true. To Canterbury people these few miles of improved road will mean much in facility of travel to all places west of here.

Mrs. R. T. Avery has been appointed to receive subscriptions from any who wish to join the Red Cross.

Rev. C. F. Goodenough and family moved to the parsonage at Jewett City, Tuesday.

Rev. Stephen Wood of Guilford, N. H., who was to preach in the Congregational church, Sunday, Nov. 28, as a candidate will be unable to come on that date, but will occupy the pulpit Sunday, Dec. 5th. It is expected that J. B. Aldrich of Norwich will occupy the pulpit Sunday morning, Nov. 28.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery of Hartford and Mr. and Mrs. Amos Avery of Long Island were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Avery.

Miss Helen Geer who has been the guest of her aunt, Mrs. C. D. Geer, has returned to her home.

George Geer of Yale college, David Geer, of New Haven, Miss Marion Geer of Connecticut college, and Richard Geer, of Suffield school, were at home Thanksgiving day with their mother, Mrs. C. D. Geer.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Clark and family, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weimar and family, Leon Colver and family, and other members of the Lamb family enjoyed their Thanksgiving dinner in Grange hall, Thursday. There were 22 present.

Make More Money

Healthy, vigorous men land life's best prizes. Buoyant step, bright eyes, clear complexion and exuberant vitality denote a system free from impurities. Constipation poisons the whole system, slows the step, saps energy, destroys confidence and cuts down the earning power.

Rid your system of constipation and its poisons. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets remove them gently, tone up the system, clear the eyes and complexion and bring back normal vigor. A compound of vegetable ingredients, prescribed to patients for 30 years in place of calomel. They act easily and quickly on bowels and liver.

Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets and keep fit for the daily grind. Thousands of happy men and women use them regularly as an aid to success in their every day tasks. Know them by their olive color; 15c, 30c, 60c.

Peering Over Your Glasses

Indicates a need of bifocal lenses — perfect far and near vision in the same pair of glasses.

Many bifocal lenses have a division line in the lens which is not only disfiguring and annoying to the wearer but also conveys to most people the idea of advancing age. Our invisible bifocal lenses do not have this division line and to the casual observer are indistinguishable from an ordinary lens, but they enable you to read or see distant objects perfectly.

Come in and let us show you these lenses and explain their advantages.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

Not in Vain

"I have labored in vain," a teacher said,
And her brow was marked with care;
"I have labored in vain," she bowed her head,
And bitter and sad was the tears she shed.
In that moment of dark despair,
"I am weary and worn; my hands are weak,
And my courage will nigh gone:
For never give heed to the words I speak
And in vain for a promise of fruit I seek
Where the seed of the word is sown."
And again with a sorrowful heart she wept,
For her spirit with grief was stirred;
Till the night grew dark; at last she slept,
And a silent calm o'er her spirits crept.
And a whisper of "Peace" was heard.
She thought, in her dreams, that the soul took flight
To a blessed and bright abode;
She saw a throne of dazzling light;
Harps were ringing, and robes were white—
There where the Saviour stood.
And she saw such a countless throng around,
As she never had seen before;
Their brows with jewels of light were crowned
And sorrow and sighing no place had found;
For the troubles of time were o'er.
Then a white robed maiden came forth and said
"Joy! joy! For thy trials are past!
I am one that thy gentle words have led
In the narrow pathway of life to tread
I welcome thee home at last!"
And the teacher gazed on the maiden's face;
She had seen that face on earth,
When with anxious heart, in her wonted place
She had told her charge of a Saviours grace
And their need of a second birth.
Then the teacher smiled; and an angel said;
"Go forth to thy work again;
'It is not in vain that the seed is spread;
If only one soul to the cross is led,
Thy labor is not in vain"
At last she woke, and her knees she bent
In grateful, childlike prayer;
She prayed till an answer of peace was sent,
And Faith and Hope as a rainbow bent
O'er the clouds of her earthly care,
And she rose in joy, and her eyes were bright—
Her sorrow and grief had fled;
Her soul was calm, and her heart light,
For her hands were strong in her Saviours might
And forth to her work she sped.
Then rise, fellow-teacher, to labor go!
Wide scatter the precious grain;
Though the fruit may never be seen below,
Be sure the seed of the word shall grow
Toil on in faith and then shalt know
"Thy labor is not in vain!"

The Land of Long Ago

It was home! that land where our mothers band
Her little one's curls caressed;
There we smiled and wept, and as sweetly slept,
As baby birds in their nest.

Now a sigh ascends for the dear old friends;
We can never hope to know,
Any hearts so kind as those left behind
In that land of Long Ago!

Then what bright romance was that first glad glance
Into loves enchanting look;
And what thrilling bliss when the first fond kiss
From our darling's lips we took.

We may woo and wed, but till life hath fled
We shall yearn and sigh also,
For the angel fair whom we worshiped there,
In the Land of Long Ago.

Though our dreams are gone, yet we still plod on,
Aweary with pilgrim age;
Let us do the right, and with evil fight,
Till we reach life's resting stage.

Then shall friends who weep o'er our dreamless sleep
In the church yard lay us low;
When the night is o'er, we may wake once more
In the Land of Long Ago.

Wake, Nicodemus

Nicodemus the slave, was of African birth,
And was bought for a bagful of gold;
He was reckoned as part of the stuff of the earth,
But he died years ago, very old.
'Twas his last sad request—so we laid him away
In the trunk of an old hollow tree.
"Wake me up!" was his charge, "at the first break of day.
Wake me up for the great Jubilee!"

Chorus.

The "Good Time Coming" is almost here!
It was long, long, long in the way!
Mose run and tell Elijah to hurry up Pomp,
And meet us at the guntree down in the swamp,
To wake Nicodemus today.

He was known as a prophet, at least was as wise,
For he told of the battles to come;
And we trembled with dread when he rolled up his eyes,
And we heeded the shake of his thumb
That he clothed us with fear, ret the garments he wore
Were in patches at elbow and knee;
And he still wears the suit that he used to of yore,
As he sleeps in the old hollow tree.

Nicodemus was never the sport of the law,
For the bullet has oft crossed his path;
There were none of his masters so brave or so rash,
As to face such a man in his wrath,
Yet his great heart with kindness was filled to the brim,
He obeyed, who were born to command:
But he longed for the morning which then was so dim
For the morning which now is at hand.

'Twas a long weary night—we were almost in fear
That the future was more than he knew;
'Twas a long, weary night—but the morning is near,
And the words of our prophet are true.
There are signs in the sky that the darkness is gone,
There are tokens in endless array,
While the storm which had seemingly banished the dawn,
Only hastens the advent of day.

CHATTY LETTER FROM IOLA

Dear Social Corner: I was much pleased to see so many good letters in last week's Corner and especially pleased to see the Hymn of the Mountaineers that I asked for some time ago, and I thank Hopeful very much for sending it in. It recalls many old memories and has found a place in my scrap book.

I couldn't remember what reader it was in but I also remember hearing it rendered with dramatic effect and also The Launching of the Ship, and another called The Brave Man and as Hopeful says they were all read in unison, the members of the class in turn reading the preceding lines and all joining in the last one. In later days our school had the Analytical Fifth Reader and there were some very good poems and selections in that too. I would like to see one of them again.

Cretia: I thank you for the offer to loan me one of your copies of Mrs. Hemans poems and I will try to stop long enough on some trip to Willimantic to look you up. I am always so glad to meet some of the old friends who knew the same places and people that I did and they are growing fewer every year.

E. L. M.: I know only too well about that strip of road you traveled for I have ridden and driven over it many times. It is only about three miles or so but being so bad makes it seem much longer, and I do indeed rejoice that at last there is good prospect of the missing link being filled in. It was bad enough for teams, though for two or three years before I left Westminster I used to drive over it every two or three weeks to get books from Scotland library.

Scotland is a pretty little place and I used to be quite well acquainted there. And the dear old church in Westminster where I went to Sunday school and church for so many years, how well I remember it and all the surroundings.

Samantha: I can sympathize with you about falling down the cellar stairs. I have always meant to be so careful about going downstairs but somehow in the excitement I stepped over a stair and landed on my right shoulder on the cellar bottom. Result—a sprained shoulder which is always be somewhat stiff. I can do ordinary work but cannot reach up or out far. That was four years ago, so if will never be any different now. I thought it was broken at first so it might have been much worse than it was.

Hoping that we all had a pleasant Thanksgiving although to most of us older ones it is full of memories of those who used to be with us and have gone on and so the holidays and anniversaries aren't altogether the happy occasions they once were.

Best wishes.

IOLA.

JOHNNY CAKES, MUFFINS AND CORN BREAD

Dear Social Corner: I am sending some recipes in answer to Nonesopretty's request.

Johnny Cakes (old fashioned): 1 cup corn meal with one cup of absolutely boiling water until not quite thin enough to spread. Add 1 teaspoon of sugar and 1-2 teaspoon salt, about 1-4 cup of milk. Mix together, make in cakes and fry in deep pork fat or bacon fat. These are nice served hot with butter. Sometimes I make a thin white sauce and serve with a little crisp bacon. Accompanied by a simple salad. This furnishes an ideal luncheon or supper dish.

Sometime when you have a hot oven often you get these johnny cakes mixed up, spread with a knife in a well greased dripping pan, mark in squares and brown in your hot oven, then split and eat with butter. Oh boy, some feed.

Here is Mrs. Mellicks' Corn Muffins: 2 1-1 cups of granulated meal, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 cups boiling water, 1-4 cup cold water, 1 1-2 cups bread flour, 4 teaspoon baking powder, 1 egg.

Mix in double boiler, 1 cup corn meal, the sugar, 1 teaspoon salt and the butter. Pour over the boiling water, stirring constantly and cook one hour. Turn into a bowl and pour over the cold water. In the morning, beat until soft and smooth, then add the rest of the corn meal, bread flour, salt and baking powder sifted together add the egg, well beaten; and beat all thoroughly. Drop the mixture into well greased gem pans and bake in a hot oven.

Apple Johnny Cake: Mix together 1-2 cup each of yellow corn meal and white corn meal, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter. Scald with 3-4 cup boiling water, then add 12 tablespoons milk, 1 cup chopped apple. Spread a well greased tin to a thickness of 1-4 inch deep, cut in squares bake in a hot oven.

Apple Corn Bread: 7-8 cup of corn meal, 1-2 cup bread flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon molasses, 3-4 cup butter milk, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 medium sized apples. Mix all dry ingredients together add the butter milk, molasses, butter, mix meal. Pour into a shallow greased pan, and place apples on top, cut in eights. Bake in hot oven 3-4 of an hour. When done dust with powdered sugar.

Spider Corn Bread: Pour boiling water over one cup of finely ground white corn meal until it forms a thick paste. Add one teaspoon fat and one quarter teaspoon salt and sufficient cold milk to make thin enough to spread. Heat an iron griddle, grease well and spread the paste on it about 1-2 inch thick. Dip a knife in cold water and smooth the top. Bake in the oven 30 minutes or on top of the stove cooking slowly. When brown on one side cut in fourths and turn each piece. When brown, serve.

This corn bread can be made of corn meal milled from the whole grain.

PUGET SOUND COUNTRY FILLS THE BILL

Dear Social Corner Folks: My what jolly times the Social Corner clubs have, and such a large crowd at Auntie No. 1's home! I sure wish I could have been one of the number.

I wrote a letter to the Corner some time in August, but found it later, so just thought I would write another in a short time. And here it is only a very few days until Christmas. Seems there are a lot duties for a housewife, and the days go swiftly by.

I always take time to read the Corner letters, unless there is sickness at hand. We had a wonderful summer and a nice fall and have a few flowers blooming in the Social Corner garden. So you see it has not been very cold in Seattle, although there is snow on the mountains and in eastern Washington.

Sister Eclipse wrote some week ago regarding a "Delightful Medium Climate." I believe we have as near a perfect climate in western Washington as can be found. I have lived in Colorado, even in Denver, but can truthfully say the Puget sound country pleases me the best of any place I have even lived in. I have lived here since 1896. Have also lived in several states in New England. The middle western California and Oregon. So if it is climate you are looking for, come to the northwest.

I see many of the sisters took long auto trips the past summer. I took one which I enjoyed so much. We just started out without any plans and before we reached home we had traveled over 600 miles, and enjoyed every minute we were away. Drove over the Columbia highway, past Maryhill where Queen Marie was the guest of Sam Hill. No doubt we were just as happy in our primitive way of camping although just common every day Tillicums.

As to dogs and cats. I like them both. They are a part of God's kingdom, but they should never take the place of children, as many do, especially when so many dear little ones need "mothering." When I saw a mother pick up her pug dog and drag her little girl through the streets, one rainy day, I wondered why she should do so, and was told it was a prize dog and quite valuable.

Well this is just one woman's idea. We all have the right to bestow our care and affection where it seems best to us. It is sure most unkind to leave any animal to suffer from hunger or cold. I often wonder when I see a woman wrapped in furs, if she ever realized how the poor little animals oftimes suffered for hours in the coldest of climates that its fur can be used to keep mankind warm, when wool is cheap and could be used for our comforts. Of course the people living in the arctic country are not able to buy, many things and have to use the fur of the animals. I met a trapper from the far north and he told me he just had to quit the work as he could not endure seeing the little animals suffer as they often had to before they were killed. It seems hard many times to understand just what is right for one to do. The golden rule cannot lead us far astray.

Regarding friends, I wonder if there is anything more beautiful then true friendship.

I may not ring you up again until another year rolls around. So I will ring off, wishing one and all a merry Christmas and happy New Year.

SISTER POTLATCH.

RECIPES FROM MAJESTIC

Dear Corner Sisters: I am sending a few recipes this week for your cook book.

Apricot Whip: Press 1 cup cooked apricots through strainer. Fold in stiffly beaten whites of 2 eggs, pour into a serving dish and chill. Serve with custard made of egg yolks 3-4 cup milk and 1-4 cup of apricot syrup.

Mix the other ingredients with the mashed potatoes and form into cylinders. Dip into beaten egg, then in breadcrumbs. Fry in hot fat at about 360 degrees Fahrenheit.

Nut Tapioca Pudding: One-third cup quick-cooking tapioca, 3 cups hot water, 1 1-2 cups light brown sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup broken nut meats, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Put hot water, salt and sugar in top of double-boiler. Bring to the boiling point and put over hot water. Stir in tapioca and cook until transparent, stirring frequently. It will take about half an hour. Remove from heat and cool. Stir in nuts and vanilla and turn into individual molds. Chill thoroughly and serve with plain cream.

MAJESTIC.

IDALEANE "ON THE WING"

Dear Social Corneites: I enjoyed the meeting of Club No. 6 held in Vets hall, Westerly, Nov. 16th. Little Rhody and helpers did so much to make the meeting pleasant for all. A bountiful dinner was served, and a good program followed. Everyone doing their bit to help.

We missed the members who were not with us.

Skipper: Sorry you could not attend meeting. We missed you. Be sure and go to December meeting.

Necia: I looked for you in Portland. I was with the 9 a. m class for the seventh degree. I saw several friends from Rhode Island and Connecticut and met a Social Corner sister from Jewett City at church Sunday: Dorothy Bradford and myself left for Portland the 9th and as we were there a week we had a chance for night seeing, and we improved every opportunity. I have never met such cordial, friendly people as I did on that trip. As Lucille Drew says, I am on the wing. Today I go to Philadelphia to attend the sesqui and visit friends. There is one more trip I hope to make and then I will settle down for the winter.

Crimson Rambler: I hope you enjoy the southern climate. Best wishes.

IDALEANE.

CORN CAKES AND OTHER RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Nonesopretty wished for a recipe for corn cakes. It seemed queer for you to ask for corn cakes. In these days when we have almost lost the art of plain living, it is hard to believe that anyone ever wrote poetry to a tasty pudding or corn meal mush and yet in 1787 Joel Barlow, in temporary exile from New England wrote a poem of three cantos to his favorite dish.

Parker House Corn Rolls: I received the recipe from West Virginia, and we like them very much. 1 1-4 cups flour, 1-4 cup meal, 2 eggs, milk to mix, 2 tablespoons of melted bacon fat, 4 teaspoons of baking powder. Mix as you would biscuit, cut with biscuit cutter, bread half with bacon fat. Fold over like Parker house roll and bake in quick oven.

Old Fashioned Corn Bread: 1-4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons shortening (I like pork fat) 1 egg, 1-2 cup corn meal, 1 cup milk, 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Cream sugar and shortening together, add yolk of eggs, and the dry ingredients mixed and sifted together alternately with the milk. Then fold in the stiffly beaten egg white. Bake in a shallow, well oiled pan in a moderate oven.

Corn Bread: 1 egg, 2 cups sour milk, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 1-2 cups corn meal, 1 teaspoon of baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon soda, 1 tablespoon vegetable fat or butter, 2 tablespoons of molasses.

Mix all the dry ingredients together and sift 3 times, then add egg, butter and stir up with sour milk.

Bishop Nibs Corn Bread: 1 cup each of corn meal and flour sifted together with 3 tablespoons of sugar and three teaspoons of baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Now add 4 tablespoons melted butter, 2 eggs well beaten. Stir up with about 1 1-2 cups milk.

Corn Meal Oyster Fritters: Mix together thoroughly 1 cup each of corn meal and bread flour, 1 teaspoon salt, and 1 teaspoon baking powder. Add 2 eggs well beaten and the milk, fold in the oysters in this batter. Drop by tablespoons into the hot deep fat. I allow one oyster in each fritter. Cook on both sides until brown. Drain on paper. These are delicious.

Old Fashioned Drop Corn Cakes: 1 cup corn meal, pour over 1 cup of boiling water, when cool add 1-2 cup of milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup bread flour, 2 tablespoons of sugar, 1 teaspoons baking powder. Stir up into cakes, and fry. These I make quite often and are very nice. Sometimes I make them with molasses.

Popcorn Cakes: One quart popcorn, 1 cup sugar, 1 quarter cup of water, 2 tablespoons molasses, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-2 teaspoon salt.

Pick over popped corn and remove all hard kernels and put through the grinder with a coarse knife.

Place sugar, water, salt, on to boil in a sauce pan, stir until it boils, and cook, when tried it will crack in cold water. Add molasses and butter and cook this until very hard when tried in cold water, add corn, stir until thick and well mixed, return to fire a moment to loosen it. Now pour on buttered slab and roll until thickness desired. Cut in cakes.

GUESS WHO.

THE THANKSGIVING SPIRIT

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: It is sometime since I wrote for the Corner. I was poorly the last of summer and all the fall. Have been troubled with neuritis in addition to my other ailments, so I have been good for nothing and letter writing had to take a back seat. I am better of that terrible pain, but still feel the effects of it for am weak and tire easily, but I have enjoyed the Corner page and my letters. Am sorry for those who are sad and have been sick or troubled and worried about the ups and downs of life, and those who have been called to part with loved ones. You have my love and sympathy. I think one of the greatest lessons we have to learn is how to live without our loved ones. Well, our attention has been called to Thanksgiving. We all have much to be thankful for, even if we are worried and sad we can find many things to be thankful for even the things that worry or make us sad and lonely for we should be thankful that these troubles did not befall us before and in numbering our blessings they far outweigh the opposite. Then too, things might be worse and let us think of others in trouble and we can help them by a smile or cheery word and some one once took about and be thankful for things you have not got and surely you will feel that you have indeed a great deal."

We feel that things are hard but we must learn to accept the disappointments and happenings that make life a struggle by striving to arise above the difficulties and knowing that we are doing the best we know how our days and lives are brightened and happier homes to us. It is what we give, what we put into life how we diffuse gladness and brightness to those in the home and about us that brings happiness and a Thanksgiving spirit not only on Thanksgiving day but every day in the year.

We should look back to the first Thanksgiving and compare that time with ours of today. Our forefathers had no convenience or comforts as we have come to consider them, but just realize how thankful they were for simple food, rough shelter and their loved ones about them. Then how very thankful we should be for what we do have. The poorest today has much more than they did those early days.

So let us all join, (the sick, the sad and lonely and those in trouble) in finding and seeing blessings to be thankful for and in making the home for those who are left, bright and cheerful even if some have to contrive and have things simple you can fill the house and home with Thanksgiving cheer. Even the rooms will give out a sweet scent of the good things cooked. Then the welcome given the absent ones and the chatter, bustle, excitement that prevails throughout the day, as also the memories we recall of our dear ones gone before and their doings and sayings on such like occasions, give us truly Thanksgiving spirited happiness.

Much love and the wish for each of you that you had a happy and pleasant Thanksgiving.

I shall be glad to hear from any of you and will not neglect answering letters again but could not help it this fall.

DIANA.

CRIMSON RAMBLER'S VISIT

Dear Cornerites: As I have not written for a number of weeks, and many sisters tell me it will be crossed off the list. I will now get busy for I don't want to lose my seat in the family circle. Have been extremely busy this summer, more so than usual, having entertained callers from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and of course Connecticut. New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Iowa, and Indiana. Now if any of the sisters can go me one better, I hope they will let us hear from them. I was invited to the homes of several of the sisters of Club No. 6 so thought I would accept their kind invitation. I attended their last meeting, on the 16th then E. L. M. carried Interested Reader and myself to Stonington where I spent the night with L. R. While there I visited with Tatting. Next day L. R. and myself spent the day at Ethel Lucas with E. L. M. and oh such a wonderful time as we three had, and so many things of interest to be seen on that place. We sure had a very pleasant visit and if any of the sisters are fortunate enough to have an invitation extended to them to visit there I hope they accept for it is a wonderful place. I enjoyed every moment while there. From there I wandered on to the home of sister T. Y. She met me at the door all smiles and I certainly had a nice visit with her and family, she being a most likable person, one you could feel at home with. In the evening we listened to the radio, which I enjoyed very much and I forgot to say I also heard the radio at Tatting's. Next day I spent with Skipper and we did have a lovely time. After dinner we visited the tower, where Mr. Skipper works and oh, the flight of stairs! I certainly felt up in the world for ages of never again. The interior of the tower was all new to me but at the same time very interesting as I later was in one before. From there we took the trolley to Westerly where I left Skipper as she was to take the train to New London. I finally reached home and am back again in the harness, taking up the work where I left off. That put an end to my lovely visit. I think this trip made me a bit lazy.

Saville: Did I hear you say baked potatoes at 2 o'clock in the morning?

Lorna: Next time you and party come please don't scare me out of a years growth. I surely thought I had a caller to stay all night. Take the same party and come again any time, the latch string is always out at my house for any of the sisters.

Bess: You gave me the surprise of my life. Do so again.

Rural Delivery: Was very glad to know you are still in the land of the living?

Calamity Jane: Glad to know you as I had often heard of you.

Balsam Fir: Think you have started the ball rolling. Never mind, no harm done.

Black Eyed Susie (and others who have written to me asking where I am and why I don't write.): Guess you wont need to ask that any more, if the editor prints all this. One sister said, "Now write a good long letter." I wonder if she will think this long enough?

Black Eyed Susie: If you want to see some pretty quilts take a flying trip down to Stonington and call on E. L. M. and Tatting. They certainly have some beautiful ones and if you want to see some beautiful fancy work call on Interested Reader.

Bebe and Ruthie: You come next along with Melissa.

Best wishes to all and hope all sick ones are better.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

MITTIE'S DATE STICKS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: It is near Thanksgiving so I will send in a recipe for date sticks. They are very nice. I hope I will be able to go to the next meeting as I have missed two but one cannot help it sometimes. Hope the sick ones are better and those in sorrow and trouble must trust in the Lord and keep up their courage, and all will be well.

Date Sticks: Beat three eggs stiff, then add gradually, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1 cup chopped dates and 1 cup chopped nuts. Spread the mixture quite thin in the bottom of tin and bake quite brown in a moderate oven, when baked cut in sticks and cover well in powdered sugar. I hope some one will try them and report.

Hope to see you all at the next meeting.

True Blue: Sorry I forgot to send you a birthday card. Will explain when I see you.

These lines about friends I think very good:

There are near friends and dear friends,
And friends for just a day.
There are new friends and true friends,
And friends across the way.
There are warm friends and cold friends,
And bashful friends and bold friends
But best of all are old friends,
Whose friendship comes to stay.

MITTIE.

EACH MEETING BEATS PREVIOUS ONES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I attended the meeting of Club No. 6 in Pawcatuck last week and I must say each meeting is better than the one before. May be it's because we are getting better acquainted and look forward to meeting the new friends we have made. Certainly Little Rhody and helpers gave us a wonderful time and the entertainment was great. Enjoyed every number on the program and was glad to see so many new faces. Heard several say they were eager to join Club No. 6.

I had the great pleasure of entertaining Crimson Rambler over Wednesday night and had a fine time. My only regret was, she could not stay longer. Some weeks ago a member of the corner wrote about the care of house plants and told of a tablet to enrich the soil. I wonder if she would send in the name of the tablet and where I could buy some. Would be very grateful.

DOESN'T WANT TO BE FORGOTTEN

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: I think it's about time I wrote a letter or everyone will forget all about me. I have thought of you all when you have had your picnics and meetings for I have had to miss them.

Wish I were going to Club 4's meeting in Putnam for I know you will have a good time.

Rural Aunty: Am glad you are going to Florida. Hope you will write and tell us all about it.

Neighbor Eversady: Did not know who you were till after you left. E. K. Little Lilac Lady is in the third grade and has red hair.

Kochie: I hear we are related. Hope we will have a chance to meet sometime.

Nonesopretty: I think we all have your number.

We have a new radio, and we are certainly enjoying it.

I want to thank all those who sent me birthday cards last month. I hope everyone enjoyed Thanksgiving.

Greetings to all the sick and shutins.

As ever,

LILAC LADY.

A FINE LAMB PIE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It is time once more for our gathering. Hope all will come who can to the meeting of Club No. 5 at Buckingham Memorial and be sure and bring something good for our dinner as you always do.

I wonder if any of the sisters ever made a lamb pie? I will tell you how I made one. I bought a forequarters cooked it and boned it, picked up enough for what I wished to make the pie with, put it in a pan and put onion, carrots, potatoes and seasoning as you would for other meat pies and found it very good. I made biscuits for the top. If no one has ever tried it please do for I know all who like lamb will like the pie. Success to the Corner.

CLUB NO. 7'S NOVEMBER MEETING

Dear Corner Members: Three long tables were filled with Social Corner members in the chamber of commerce rooms when Rose Lee had the Club No. 1 meeting in charge, with her able assistants. The tables were gayly decorated with the Corner color, and laden with an abundance of delicious food that was pleasing to the eye and appealing and satisfying to the appetite. Aside from being engaged in social intercourse many were making use of the moments by busily plying the needle or book in some desired useful way. Glad, indeed, we were to welcome the guests from afar. Among them were Comfort, and Pisces was courageous to venture on alone from Club 4. Several from Club 5 we were glad to see—Chauffer, Hoot Owl, Mid Clover and Bay State. Hope your experience was not repeated on your homeward trip, but "all's well that ends well." Those from the longest distance were Whirlwind and Foxglove. Think it was California Girl that answered Rose Lee's query as to what was the longest word in the English language. The answer is "smiles" as there is a mile between the first and last letter of the word. Those taking part in the program were Practical Polly, Neighbor Eveready, Maine Lover, Hope Cobweb, Amy, Peg-a-way, Chocolate, Whirlwind and Foxglove. In memory of Dotty Dimple we had a moment of silence.

Not long ago I had the pleasure of being invited to spend the day with Lucy Acorn. The beautiful flowers that surround her home seemed to nod a welcome which I was assured of when I saw her smiling face at the door and got such a cordial greeting. Her home radiates with good cheer and happiness. The wonderful flowers that grow in such profusion and beauty certainly attest to Mr. Acorn's skill. I came away with an armful that was a source of delight for many days. That pattern proved to be a real treasure as it has been used many times, and it reminds me of you and the good visit we had that day.

Too Late: Was sorry to be away when you had your picnic as we always have such a good time at your house and it seems you couldn't think of enough good things to make for us to eat and do things for our enjoyment. You will miss the trolley won't you? I hope all had a pleasant Thanksgiving and were truly thankful for all the things we have to enjoy every day of our lives and if we think not much to enjoy we can, at least, be thankful it's not so bad but it might be worse.

USEFUL GIFTS FOR 25 CENTS

Dear Sisters: For a pretty little corsage boquet tightly twist satin ribbon about an inch wide in crimson or red, and the flowers are pretty made of a creamy satin or yellow and old rose with pink and pastel blue, also add rich glossy green leaves.

Puff Bag: Take a piece of pasteboard the size of a powder puff. Cover with ribbon on both sides, overhanging neatly at the edge. Sew a length of ribbon two inches and a half wide around the disk. Let the stitches be on the inside so that the seam of the little bag and the disk stitches are out of sight in the finished article. Put a little gathering stitch in the top leaving a ruffle on the top. Put in a small washable wool puff and an initial can be put on the puff bag.

Cheese Cloth Dish Cloths: Cheese cloth dust cloths and dish cloths I make from cheese cloth. I buy ten yards of cheese cloth at the ten cent store. It is five cents a yard. This makes about five dishcloths and five dust cloths. Run them together with fancy silkateen. I put 2-4 yard in my dishcloth and 1 1-4 yards in my dustcloth. Put the two together, they make a very useful gift.

A Pretty Head Band: Take a pretty old rose satin ribbon with tiny pale pink chiffon rose buds and green leaves, or a pretty blue satin ribbon with tiny crimson roses and green leaves. You could make the leaves with green embroidery silk or narrow green satin ribbon. Those snap under the hair in the middle of the back.

A Holder Case: Use a pretty cretonne made nine by ten inches. The top and the sides bind together with a bias binding and outline the word Holder in white with a heavy stranded embroidery cotton. They are pretty made of unbleached muslin. Cut one flowers can be appliqued on. A pretty shade of blue material with the word Holder outlined in white and the edge bound with old rose and the outside edge having a row of yellow French knots and a few forget-me-nots in one corner is pretty and a ring should be attached at the upper corner of the case and at the sides.

Basket Pincushion: Cover pieces of card board with black sateen or black button holing it. Use white rope beside join the pieces bottom sides enamel cloth. Cut them exactly the same size and work around the edges and ends, by overhanding these stitches together with the same thread. The handle can be made with rope paper or enamel cloth. If made of enamel cloth cut a piece about 7 inches long and one and one-half inches wide, double it through the middle lengthwise and button hole the edge. If made of paper rope cut it eight inches long and sew one on each end of the basket. Take small pieces of cloth cut up to put in bottom of basket and for the top use something that you can put the needles in easy. I think coffee grounds are good, made into a cushion put into the top. Then cover this with a piece of pretty silk from your scrap basket, then cover this with lace of some description. Then sew the flowers all around the edge. To make these cut in little circulars about an inch in diameter, canton flannel or white felt (if you have an old hat) and button hole the edges of these with rope floss; yellow, blue, lavender, rose, pink, crimson, make a French knot in center, cut leaves oblong and buttonhole. You can make this pincushion as large or as small as you wish.

For the bottom of a cushion a good size is 3 1-4 by 3 inches. The sides are nearly four inches and the ends three inches at the top.

Christmas Wreaths: Form a wreath circle of wire, then cover with green crepe paper until you make a good foundation. This you can cover with green crepe paper cut to form evergreen. Then out of the printed crepe paper you can cut such pretty holly etc., and paste it on the foundation. Tie with red crepe paper at the top, and at the sides you can make little holly berries by twisting red crepe paper.

Pretty Christmas Tree for Table: Take a box about 12 inches by 14, cover it over on the outside with green paper, then over that place a white paper. Cut a cone shape from heavy wrapping paper, then cover that with green crepe paper. Double a narrow red festoon lengthwise and paste this to cone, beginning at the open end and having each row overlap the previous one. Take jar-top covers and cover with cotton or white crepe paper painted with gold paint, then dip in paraffin and cover with diamond dust. Glue these over the cone at intervals. Now decorate with tinsel. For the trunk of the tree use four pieces of heavy wire wrapped with strips of green crepe paper to make desired thickness, but be sure and have two inches of each end unwrapped. Now separate the four wires and at one end bend at right angles to trunk and fasten to the inside of the bottom of the box with pieces of heavy paper glued.

You may have to crush paper napkins and fit inside of the box. Set the cone on the trunk. Having covered the box on the outside apply paste to the box, and press strips of crepe paper into place gathering slightly with the fingers. Cut strips of paper 2 inches wide slash each side and twist and festoon these around the trunk of tree.

OLD FASHIONED CORN CAKE

Dear Social Corner Friends: By the time this is published the big feast will be over and hope all enjoyed themselves. The sister who asks for old fashioned corn cake, try the following: One cup each of yellow meal and flour, one beaten egg, two tablespoons of sugar, one half teaspoon of salt, one cup sour milk, one level teaspoon of soda, mix thoroughly, then add one tablespoon of melted butter or lard and beat again. Bake in a well greased shallow pan in a hot oven about 20 minutes. This recipe can be used with sweet milk and baking powder. Be sure to have a hot oven, then it will be light and delicious.

CLUB NO. 5 TO HAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY

Dear Social Corner and Friends: I would like to say that the next meeting of Club No. 5 on December first at the Buckingham Memorial will be a Christmas meeting. Anyone who has a piece about Christmas or anything they would like to sing about Christmas is requested to bring them and let's have a real merry time.

Come one, come all to the festival. We shall try to make it a very merry one. Everyone desiring to take part will have a chance. Yours for the Corner.

CALAMITY JANE.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: Attended a meeting of the Shore Line Club No. 6 and enjoyed it very much and would like to become a member of the Social Corner Club No. 6. I'll take for my pen name,

ANNA BRETON.

USING UP CAKE

Dear Social Corner Friends: I made a fruit cake from a recipe which looked good to me, (and of course was new.) After it came out of the oven I found there was too much butter for the flour. Consequently my cake was heavy, all that fruit, butter, eggs, and cake so indigestible no one would eat it.

I broke the cake up in small pieces, then took 3 cups of the cake added 1 cup milk, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 egg, 3 tablespoons butter (melted), 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons of baking powder a few more spices and had a very nice spice cake with fruit in it.

I took 3 cups more and made another loaf and it was just as nice. I then had six cups more left, enough for two more loves. As I have never heard of this method before thought I would pass it on.

CORN BREAD

Dear Editor and Members of Social Corner: Am sending in some poetry also a recipe for Corn Bread: 1 cup flour, 1-3 cup Indian meal, 3 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, little salt, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon molasses, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Wet with sweet milk. Can use sour milk and one teaspoon soda, but not as much shortening as with sweet milk.

TO PORTLAND BY AUTO

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Was interested in Necia's trip to the National grange held in Portland, Me. I planned to write a letter on my trip there last week. As I was invited to go in an automobile my trip was different. I was told to be ready at 6:30 Thursday morning, Nov. 11th and if I couldn't get up in time to be ready to sleep in my clothes. I was up soon after five had breakfast and ready before the time appointed. At 6:45 Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Main and daughter Hazel and myself were on the road from Mystic, called in Stonington for Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Morgan and after a stop of ten minutes we were all comfortably seated in a luxurious automobile and on our way. Mr. Main stopped to see a man on business and one stop for gasoline were the only stops except twice to inquire the way buying forgotten their book of trails. We kept in the suburbs of Providence avoiding the traffic in the business section and saw the mounted cavalry on their way to the Armistice day parade. We reached the Fenway in Boston at 12 o'clock and again avoided the city traffic and went on to Cambridge seeing the outside of Harvard college buildings. We saw two large white duck farms with hundreds of ducks on land and in the water. We passed through Newburyport, Portsmouth and many smaller places reaching State street in Portland at 1:30 here we found the house where we had previously engaged rooms and being the first we had our choice and soon had our few belongings in the house. Then the next thing was something to eat and we certainly ate our money's worth. The ride on such an ideal day and over such fine roads with beautiful scenery to look at had occupied our time and the chief desire was to reach Portland, then eat. The distance was 305 miles and a fraction, having had nothing but state roads all the way. After getting into Maine the auto traffic increased so that it was a continuous line. When we reached Portland and later nearly every street was lined with cars and many were left on the street during the night. Where we roomed was a large brick house near the center and the landlady was very courteous and we were pleased to have such a nice place. She kept all she possibly could over that night and the next. We went to Congress hotel, got our cards for the 7th degree and later took a ride around the city. As it was Armistice day the stores were closed. We were down in front of Strand theater at 8:40 the next morning thinking it plenty of time to be there and such a crowd ahead of us and they continued to come and soon we were being pushed and one man of large physique was back of me and he seemed to have some of Sampson's strength for he tried to push me right through those in front of me so I really was bothered to breathe. When we finally were admitted to the theater it certainly was a relief and we had to take seats near the back but we could see and hear. Every seat, 2500, was filled, many stood up in the rear or sat on the stairs. The first to greet us was High Prier of Deneiet Charles M. Gardner who so many grange know and like to hear. He introduced United States Secretary of Agriculture William M. Jardine who was in the class for the seventh degree. He said a few words of greeting and then the Weber male quartet of Boston all seventh degree members sang two songs. Then after a few words of explanation of the degree by Mr. Gardner the work was begun and surely it cannot be described, even if we had the right to do it. A pleasing feature during the work was the singing by that male quartet. We quickly recognized National Pomona, Mrs. Isabel Chapman of Westerly and Assistant Steward Allyn B. Cook, former

BIG '27 CHRISTMAS CLUB DEPOSITS EXPECTED BY NEW LONDON BANKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 26—Christmas club checks are to go out from the banks of this city at once. They will amount to a large sum and the stores are anticipating getting some of the money which they represent. The savings were started for the Christmas and a great deal of the money that comes to the depositors will be spent during that happy season. The banks, while pleased with the success that has attended the saving during the past twelve months declare that they anticipate a larger membership in the clubs during the coming year. The banks' management say that persons have saved during the past year who never before put anything away in banks.

THE LATE CAPT. NAT KEENEY THE LAST OF 12 CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 26—The funeral of Captain Nathaniel S. Keeney, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at his home, 847 Pequot avenue and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Edward M. Chapman. The bearers were Silas M. Marstera, Daniel Halloran, Charles Ogden and Silas Maxson Jr. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church.

Captain Keeney, 78, retired master of fishing vessels and descendant of one of New London's oldest families, died Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank S. Hubbard, in Meriden, where he had gone a few days before to spend Thanksgiving. Captain Keeney was born May 27, 1848, the son of James and Lucy Whitaker Keeney. He was the last survivor of twelve children. He married fifty-five years ago Abbie W. Lester, whose family was among the city's early settlers. During a severe winter gale in 1886 Captain Keeney and his crew rescued nine men from the wrecked British schooner Hylton Castle, for which act he was rewarded by the British government. Besides his wife and daughter four grandchildren survive him.

Elliott Grover and James E. Maher were booked for appearance in the police court this morning for reckless operation of automobiles. The men would not report there except at great inconvenience to themselves, so the cases went over till tomorrow.

Walter Bushnell failed to appear and answer for violation of the parking ordinance, so a bond of $5 he had deposited was declared to be the property of the city.

Whether it would not be an economical proceeding for the city to place a cement flooring on the public landing wharf is being considered by many teamsters and others who have occasion to use the wharf. At present timbers that are worn or broken have to be replaced and at times before that work can be done protection must be afforded vehicles that use the wharf. Cement would make a superior flooring for the wharf and would be an improvement that would be appreciated and at once make the wharf safer than it has ever been.

There was a tremendous fleet of automobiles along the curbing on the principal streets of the city Thursday evening. Many of the automobiles were from places outside the city limits, they bringing people here to attend the theatres and to seek the amusements this city offered on a holiday. Notwithstanding the large number of machines in use there was no accident of a serious nature.

Rain today put a stop to much outside work. That broke in on a week containing a holiday and created conditions that will not be remedied till Monday next, as Saturday means but a half-day's work for many mechanics. So two full days of time will be lost this week.

Joe Zalesky and Peter Bandroff got drunk in celebration of Thanksgiving day and were arrested. Each created a disturbance at home, a natural thing for them to do in their condition. Zalesky's wife sent for a policeman and Walter O'Neill was sent after Zalesky and took him into custody. This morning, force of circumstances prompted Mrs. Zalesky to ask that her husband should not be prosecuted. She has several children and for them she accepted the abuse heaped upon herself. Bandroff was in much the same predicament for while he was guilty of an offense against the peace of the city, to prosecute him meant hardships for his wife and children. Thus he escaped his deserts. Both men were placed in the custody of Probation Officer Mansfield that he may give them the acid test of behavior during three months. Mr. Mansfield has saved punishment for a lot of offenders by his good offices, and he will continue to serve in that capacity.

Ted Adams, formerly of Hartford, now a restaurant employe, broke a dry time he has had during a year and then he fell into the police net when it swept along and gathered in the drunks. He was on Main street and there was unable to navigate or take care of himself. He has not been arrested in New London before so he was given the leniency he appeared to deserve and judgment was suspended.

The funeral of Louis Sousa, whose death occurred at Uncas-on-Thames Norwich, Tuesday, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. Michael Reagan. The bearers were Manuel Dutris, Lincoln Burgess, Nestor Grace, Wilfred Pelletier, Joseph Dais and Teddy Silva. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Arlene Douglass, wife of Archibald Douglass, conductor in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, died this morning at her home, 21 Garfield avenue, death resulting from an illness of two weeks with heart disease. Besides her husband Mrs. Douglass is survived by several children.

Albert M. Lamb, 72, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 54 Thames street, Groton, after an illness of about a year. He is survived by his wife and a daughter. Mr. Lamb was a carpenter by occupation and was well known in the borough.

Mrs. Emeline L. Bailey, 84, widow of James A. Bailey, died last night at her residence, 61 Latham street, Groton. Mrs. Bailey had been ill three years. She was a native of Ledyard, but had resided in Groton the greater part of her life.

Mrs. Albert Smith and infant son, of Westerly; Mrs. Frederick Littlefield and infant son, 39 Woodridge street; Mrs. Charles Barnes and infant son, 39 Bayonet street; Mrs. Fred Finnegan and infant daughter, 13 Front street; Frederick Archer, Eastern Point road, Groton; Rev. Merton Olson, 128 1-2 Montauk avenue; Miss Elizabeth McDonald, Mystic; Earl Darrow, Waterford and Mrs. Arthur Jackson and infant son, 46 Church street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged yesterday and today.

An automobile driven by Earl A. Seiple, chief petty officer and residing at 540 Bank street, struck an unidentified man on Main street last night, but the latter was not injured beyond sustaining bruises. Seiple reported the accident at the police station this morning.

An automobile driven by Mrs. Sarah Lipton, 385 Huntington street, and the Lawrence-Memorial hospital ambulance collided this morning at the corner of State and North Bank streets. Both the ambulance and automobile were damaged. The ambulance was on its way to the hospital with Rodney Jacques, an employe of the New England Carpet Lining company, whose hand had been crushed by being caught in one of the machines that he had been operating. The accident did not hold up the ambulance, and on its arrival at the hospital with the patient, Jacques' right hand was amputated.

Residents on the west end of Howard street declare that they never heard more piercing yelling than was that at about midnight, Wednesday when a brawl took place in that street. A woman's voice could be heard above all others and that aroused the neighborhood. The brawlers were finally arrested and will have to explain their conduct in court.

MAN AND GIRL OF 17 HELD, ON HINT OF CONDUCTOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 26.—A girl of 17 whose home is in Worcester and an Italian who can speak but little English, were arrested at the union station by Sergeant Edward McGrath, special agent of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, the former being considered in danger of falling into the ways of vice and the latter with enticing a minor female from one state to another. Both are locked up at the police station, but as the enticement was effected in Rhode Island, the authorities of that state will probably take jurisdiction in the case. It developed after the arrest of the man and girl that the girl was en route to visit an aunt at 64 Traction street, Westerly, and before the train reached that place the girl was induced to remain aboard, presumably to accompany the man to Philadelphia. The conductor of the train became aware of the enticement and when the train reached New London he informed Sergeant McGrath of his knowledge, with the result that the man and girl were arrested.

The police have been unable to find any trace of John Viscione, 118 Howard street, wanted for stabbing Albert Iverson, 113 1-2 Howard street last Wednesday night when Visciori evidently believed Iverson had been one of three men who, he claimed, had insulted his wife. This afternoon Iverson, who received a knife wound in the abdomen and another wound on the arm, was discharged at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith went to the Iverson home this afternoon and interrogated the man, also took charge of his clothing, especially the garments that were cut by Visciori's knife.

Arthur Perry, of Broad street extension, Waterford, was arrested last night by state police from Groton barracks, charged with breach of the peace and will be presented before Judge Fred Dimmock in the Waterford town court. Perry went to the home of his sister, Mrs. Theodore Tucker, Golden Spur, yesterday afternoon and engaged in a row, which ended when he attacked both Tucker and his wife.

Attorney Charles A. Gallup, of the law firm of Waller, Waller, Avery & Gallup, is ill with grip at his home in Waterford.

Nathan Santor, of 17 Capen avenue, and Alfred Goss, of Archer court were ordered to appear in the police court this morning following their having been detected with jewelry of the estimated value of $300 in their possession and which they obtained from the store of the Connecticut Fruit and Vegetable company, 516 Bank street, Wednesday, while they were acting as a sheriff's keeper. However, they escaped prosecution today, because Samuel Litvin, proprietor of the store withdrew his complaint against the two men, with the consent of Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky, who approved of the withdrawal of the complaint.

Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney resumed his duties at police headquarters today after having concluded his vacation of two weeks.

Bernard Fabricant, 118 Blydenburg avenue, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy charged with blocking traffic and failing to possess a drivers' license.

James Romano, 21, of 18 Belden court and Miss Mary Miceli, 17, daughter of Joseph Miceli, 28 Jefferson avenue, have thwarted paternal influence and wrath, for the young people were married at Portchester last Saturday. Their marriage was made known today when they returned to New London. Miceli did not desire that his daughter should wed Romano and he attacked the couple several weeks ago when he found them walking on Montauk avenue. Miceli beating Romano into unconsciousness with a club and then beating his daughter. He kept away for two days and when he gave himself up to the police and was presented in the police court he was fined $50. At the time it was stated that the couple would eventually be married.

Additional donations were announced by the community chest today beginning with Henry B. Plant $1,000, William I. Spicer $500, Miss Annie C. Spicer $500, Mrs. William I. Spicer $500, Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Smith $100, Mrs. Winifred B. Shaw $100, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Bailey $50, Conn. Motor Trans. Co. $50, Mrs. S. Hess $50, Mrs. Mary Alice Sackett $50, Connecticut College Faculty $119.

Of the above amount the following were individual contributions of $5 or over: Miss Irene Nye $10, Mrs. Harriett Kempton $5, Mrs. Harriet U. Allyn $1,000, Miss Lucretia L. Allyn $200.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Adolphe Menjou may remain Uncle Sam's suave sophisticate, Harold Lloyd should keep on as America's perennial playboy, Jack Holt can continue upholding the honor of the west, Bebe Daniels may well stay on as Hollywood's joyful tomboy but—as for Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton—let them continue to be the screen's funniest comedy team, in films similar to 1926's fun fest, "Behind the Front."

Paramount officials realized the public demand for a sequel to the first "sunny side of the war" picture and cast about for another good story. Monty Brice, adaptor of the earlier production, handed in an original script, which upon being read caused everyone to fall into convulsions of laughter. Its name? "We're in the Navy Now."

And so—the picture which arrives at the Palace theatre Sunday night traces the lives of a prize fighter and his manager from the day they innocently join the navy till their final return to the ring. If you don't believe it to be chuck full of shrieks, listen to one typical situation.

Palace Theatre.

Today is the last opportunity to see the gala vaudeville programme at the Palace theatre. Again the large audiences yesterday, just as on Thursday, were amused with the variety of antics offered by an assemblage of artists rarely grouped on one bill. These great shows will be presented every Thursday, Friday and Saturday and the management assures the theatregoers of Norwich they will see the same brand of entertainment as on the grand opening. Gigolo, with Rod La Rocque, a screen masterpiece, accompanies this great programme, also a treat for the kiddies in the frolic on the stage for them.

Palace Theatre.

This latest picture starring TBO's great police dog Ranger, is of the kind that pleases all, which will open Sunday night at the Palace theatre and it will be there for the next four days, so no one should miss seeing this canine sensation. "Flaming Fury" is all that a dog picture can be; it has thrills that those who like excitement humor for those that like a laugh, and the love of a man and the faithfulness of a dog for those that like to see romance. Ranger is a remarkably clever actor, and is sure to please with the lack of effort that is apparent in his acting.

James Hogan, who is responsible for many great successes such as "King of the Turf," and "The Isle of Retribution," is the director of this fine little picture, and a fine cast supports the superlative dog-star. Included are Charles Delaney, Betty May, Boris Karloff and Eddy Chandler, Ewart Adamson who has acquired a great reputation for dog stories, wrote both the story and the continuity.

A resident of Mashantucket, Windham county, Mrs Frank Heath has an orange tree with seven large oranges on it, some of them just turning yellow.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Big scenes and plenty of thrills are the features of the latest output of Mr. George Beban, a production called The Greatest Love of All, which comes to the Broadway theater Sunday only as the first feature. The Greatest Love of All is a heart picture and no star knows better than George Beban how to mingle smiles and tears and send his audiences away laughing at his comedy antics in his character delineation. So cleverly has the author-actor dovetailed incident and interest in the blending of his scenes that when he is not in the scenes himself, his presence is felt almost as much as when he is.

And the second feature is as thunderous with speed as the flash of summer lightning; as fresh as the tang of the western uplands themselves, and as funny as a democratic convention. The Two-Gun Man, first of the Stewart Edward White stories in which Fred Thomson will be starred for F. B. O., proves beyond a doubt the value of a vehicle by a top-notch author. Mr. White's name, like that of the star itself, needs no publicising; and the myriad admirers who have known and loved his work both in book form and in the leading magazines of the country will be glad to see it on the screen, interpreted by Mr. Thomson and a strong supporting cast. Silver King is accorded a part as "fat," an old-fashioned brewery horse, and little Billy Butts returns to the cast after a long absence in a fine role.

Strand Theater

The announcement that the popular Strand theater is to reopen Monday with Keith-Albee vaudeville has been met with much enthusiasm with local theatergoers, as the reputation for the past programs at this theater has always remained with the public as the best that has ever been in the city. The management is making every effort to maintain this reputation and the writer feels sure that there will be nothing but the best on both stage and screen.

When Columbia pictures acquired the rights to produce a film based on the song, Sweet Rosie O'Grady, Maude Nugent, who wrote the lyric and the melody, selected Shirley Mason to play the title role.

"I know of no actress who so perfectly fits the character of Rosie O'Grady as Miss Mason," she wrote. "She is the hoyden, wistful yet gay, moody as a day in April. She has that peculiar Irish characteristic of smiling to drive back the tears."

Accordingly, Miss Mason will be seen in the title role when Sweet Rosie O'Grady is the opening picture attraction Monday. Supporting her are E. Allyn Warren, as E. J. Shapiro, the great-hearted old pawnbroker of Second avenue; William Conklin, as Patrolman Jimmy Brady, and Cullen Landis as the aristocratic Victor McQuade. Frank R. Strayer was the director.

Burton Agency Sells Another.

Catherine O'Shea has sold her two apartment house located at No. 10 Page street to Gerald and Catherine E. Ryan of this city, who have purchased the property for an investment. The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Mrs. Rose E. Burton.

There was a meeting of the Central Village Improvement association at the town hall Friday evening.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
New York

Stocks, strong, Baldwin soars 5 points to record high.

Bonds, steady, U. S. treasury issues strong.

Foreign exchanges, firm, French francs rally 10 points.

Cotton, barely steady, southern selling.

Sugar, steady, large spot offerings.

Coffee, lower, disappointing Brazilian reports.

Chicago

Wheat, firm, improved export demand.

Corn, steady, poor husking returns.

Cattle easy.

Hogs firmer.

STOCK PRICES RISE

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—(AP)—Sensational bidding up of a few special stocks in which important developments are believed pending featured the resumption of the upward movement in today's stock market. The rally took place in the face of a marking up of call money rates from 4 1-2 to 5 per cent. coincident with the calling of about $300,000,000 in loans, which reflected the heavy withdrawal of funds in connection with mid-month settlements.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported little change in the general business situation, with wholesale trade rather quiet because of the approach of the inventory season and small trade showing signs of increased activity in anticipation of the holiday season. Bank clearings were again below the corresponding week last year.

In the stock market, the trading appeared to be largely of a professional character, with several powerful "bull" pools again active in a number of specialties. Commission houses reported little public participation although the volume of trading was fairly heavy for a holiday week session.

Baldwin resumed the leadership of the advance in the active industrials by jumping 7 points to 168, the highest price ever recorded, and nearly 8 points above the previous record peak established in 1919. Texas Pacific Land Trust certificates which appear infrequently on the tape, usually in 10 share lots, were marked up 220 points to 1150, a record high price.

On total sales of about 500 shares, U. S. Steel crossed 150 in large volume for a net gain of nearly 3 points on the day, but General Motors improved only fractionally, probably on a renewal of rumors that the Ford interests were planning to bring out six and eight cylinder cars to compete with General Motors units.

Another flock of new 1926 high records was established during the day, the list including such widely diversified issues as American Sugar Refining, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Coca Cola, Eastman Kodak, International Harvester, Philip Morris, Phillips Petroleum and United Fruit.

Fox Film A was run up 3 points in anticipation of an early showing of the new talking film of that company. South Porto Rican Sugar jumped 9 points to a new high at 149 on exception of a special dividend distribution. Worthington Pump preferred A broke 5 points to 144 and was followed into new low ground by Kelsey Wheel, Hayes Wheel, Motor Wheel Peerless Motors, Cuyamel Fruit and Real Silk Hosiery.

Rails were sluggish, the announcement of wage increases by several roads tending to dampen bullish enthusiasm. Heaviness of the Van Sweringen issues was attributed to the delay in announcing the revised "Nickel Plate" merger plan. Rock Island common and Frisco common touched new high prices in expectation of an early declaration of dividends on the former.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

With the exception of raw sugar, which declined 1-8 of 1 cent a pound, most of the commodity markets pointed upward. Active wheat futures rallied over a cent a bushel and cotton closed 34 points higher to 6 points lower. Coffee prices advanced slightly.

Another sharp rally in French francs, which ruled above 3.60 cents, and the weakness of the South American currencies were the contrasting features in the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady around $4.84 1-2.

CLOUDY, COLDER TODAY; FAIR - TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

NORWICH, CONN., SATURDAY, NOV. 27, 1926

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich Saturday, Nov. 27, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The storm that was central over Missouri Thursday night has moved northeastward to the lower lak. region with a further increase in intensity. It has been attended by rains almost generally over the eastern half of the country. There have been strong shifting winds and gales from the lower Missouri valley and New Foundland southwestward to Bermuda. The temperature has risen in the Atlantic states while the weather has become much colder from Hudson bay southward.

The Lake Huron storm will continue to move northeastward and it will be attended by rains in New England Saturday. Otherwise fair weather will prevail almost generally east of the Mississippi river during the next two days. Much colder weather will overspread virtually the entire Washington forecast district within the next 36 hours.

Storm Warnings

Warnings changed to northwest ten p. m. New York to Cape Hatteras. Storm central over north Lake Huron moving rapidly northeastward.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: South, shifting to southwest and west gales and overcast weather with occasional rain Saturday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Southwest shifting to west and northwest gales and partly overcast weather Saturday.

Forecast:

For southern New England: Cloudy and colder Saturday, probably rain Saturday morning; much colder Saturday night; Sunday fair, continued cold.

Observations

7 a. m.	44	30.10
12 m.	58	30.00
6 p. m.	50	29.70.

Highest 58, lowest 44.

Comparisons

Predictions for Friday: Occasional rains.

Friday's weather showery, rain at night, south wind, not much change in temperature.

TAFTVILLE

Under the direction of the teachers in the primary and kindergarten departments of the Taftville Congregational church school Mrs. Harold E. Linderson and Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis assisted by Miss Mildred Yerrington, a party was given to the children of these departments on Friday afternoon. Various games were played and refreshments served.

Miss Lillian Laramee of North E street entertained at cards Friday evening in honor of her guest, Miss Alcina Rocheleau of Oakdale, R. I.

Mrs. James Graham gave a birthday party Friday at her home in Lisbon for her grandson, Frederick Friswell, in honor of his fourth birthday. The guests were Mary, Margaret, Janet and Florence Emerson of Lisbon, Ernest Pollard, Taftville, Raymond Norman, Graham Bode, Shigley Avery and Frederick Friswell. Various games were played and refreshments were served.

Arrangements have been completed by the committee appointed by the members of the Taftville Rod and Gun club for the big game supper which the club has been looking forward to for some time. The members have responded excellently to President Dugas' appeal for game for the supper, and to date 3 coons and 40 rabbits have been brought to be prepared for the feast. The coons were donated by Jack Ely, Babe Poyerd, Zell Dugas and the Wessman boys, and rabbits have been brought in by the following, Grimshaw Herd, George Camire, Ernest LePage, Leo LePage, George Simino, Cy Simino, Alfred Benoit, Chip Dugas, Herman Boenig, Paul Benoit, Oliver Paul, Albert Nolan, Bunny Dupuis, Ralph Lillibridge, Ed Dupuis, Joe Dugas, James White, Ted Kendall and Lawrence Kruus. President Dugas has improved the members appetites a hundred per cent. in announcing that the main course will be rabbit pie, following hot coon stew, and there will be mashed potatoes, turnips, pickles, celery and coffee.

One of the big social events of Thanksgiving week was the turkey supper at the Taftville Maennerchor club. About two hundred members and guests attended the affair which was held on Thanksgiving eve.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Armitage of Pawtucket, R. I., have been holiday guests of Mrs. Armitage's mother, Mrs. Jane E. Rennard and Herbert Rennard of Bushnell Road.

WOMAN CONQUERS FEARS

Husband Delighted and Home Happier

St. Paul, Minn.—"Here is a little advice I would like to have you put in the papers," Mrs. Jack Lorberter of 704 Dellwood Place wrote to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company. "If young women want to keep their health and strength for the next thirty years of their lives, it is best to start in right now and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have tried the Compound myself and received fine results." In describing her condition before taking the Compound, she writes, "I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight, I used to lock the doors and pull down the shades so that nobody could see me." One day a booklet advertising the Vegetable Compound was left on her porch and she read it through. In so doing, she found a letter from a woman whose condition was similar to her own. "I bought the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Lorberter continued, "and have had fine results. The condition I was in made me a burden to my husband. Now I ask 'How is housekeeping?' and he says, 'It is just like being in Heaven!'"

COUNTY EXPENSES WERE $1,041.28 LESS IN 1926 THAN IN PRECEDING YEAR

The ... of New London county, which is conducted by the three county commissioners, George H. Bradford of Montville, Charles H. Smith of Noank and Elisha Waterman of Lebanon, and consists of the care of the court house jail and county home, was done in the year ending Sept. 30 with an expenditure of $1,041.28 less than in the preceding year. At the same time there was a balance of $24,863.97 to carry over to next year, this amount being $41,670.28 more than the balance that was carried over from a year ago. Besides the balance shown in the annual report of the county commissioners, they also state in the report that there is due the county from the state the sum of $2,903 for the county home and $272.50 from the town of North Stonington for the county tax.

In jail receipts there was an increase of $3,234.04, over the figures of a year ago, due largely to the item of $2,427.44 from earnings of prisoners for which there was no credit a year ago, and to the fact that $1,392.12 was received from the United States for board of prisoners. This was only $16.75 a year ago. Receipts from the state for board of prisoners were $9,-716.06 in the past year as compared with $10,283.97 a year ago.

The county received from the state more for the county home this year than it did a year ago, the figures being respectively $11,238.50 and $8,125. The corporation tax received from the state was a new and a large item in the receipts of this year, amounting to $34,538.89 and the amount of receipts by the county, exclusive of the balances carried over from a year ago, was $106,976.74, which was $14,-557.26 more than the receipts in the preceding year.

On the side of expenditures, the jail expenses were $13,110.76 this year and $16,873.86 the year before. Among the larger items showing differences there was more spent for provisions, but less for fuel. The expenditure for provisions this year was $7,743.84 and a year ago $6,458.53. For fuel there was spent $1,662.31 but a year ago $2,-276.39. Salary of assistants at the jail increased from $1,680 to $1,800.

Expenditures at the court house were considerably less than a year ago as the repair item was only $1,-483.39 where it was $3,003.17 in the preceding year, the other items remaining about the same in each year.

At the county home, the running expenses were more this year but not so much was spent on building and repairs. The expense account was $18,-567.13 this year, which was $3,686.89 more than a year ago, but only $436.66 was spent on the building where $3,-066.94 had been spent in the preceding year.

In miscellaneous expenditures, it is shown that forest fires cost the county considrably more this year than a year ago. On account of these destructive forces the county had to pay $1,166.41 this year but only $618.79 the year before. The amount paid for salaries of county commissioners was $5,267.19 this year as compared with $4,752.23 the year before, but there was little variation in the amounts for other miscellaneous expenses.

The total county expenses this year were $67,300.43 as compared with $68,-341.71 a year ago.

"SONG OF THANKSGIVING" SPECIAL CHURCH MUSIC

At the Central Baptist church on Sunday evening the "Song of Thanksgiving" by J. H. Maunder is to be presented by an augmented choir, as follows: Sopranos, Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., Mrs. James A. Chorus (with bass solo) Alla Marcia. Let all the people praise Thee.
Hymn for choir and congregation—All people that on earth do dwell.

RECOVER COLLEGE GIRL'S SUITCASE WITH JEWELS

As a result of an investigation conducted by New Haven police authorities into a number of thefts reported as having been made from automobiles before, during and after the Yale-Harvard football game last Saturday, Frederick Oberman, George H. Peckham and Thomas Lord, all of New Haven, were arrested, and, upon presentation in the police court at New Haven had their cases continued until next Wednesday morning.

One of the most important recoveries in the investigation was made when a suitcase belonging to Miss Sarah Pithaus of Philadelphia, a student at the Connecticut college at New London, was found in rooms occupied by the three men in the Greenview hotel. Miss Pithaus left New London last Friday to attend a pre-game dance at one of the Yale fraternity houses that night, and left her suitcase containing dresses and other apparel valued at $500 as well as a diamond studded brooch, valued at over $1,000 in the automobile of her escort which was parked near the college. While Miss Pithaus and her escort were away from the machine, the suitcase was stolen. About a dozen suitcases, a few identified, and others, as yet unidentified, have also been recovered by the New Haven police.

TOOK SHOT AT NORWICH DRIVER ON POST ROAD

Some one in a fast traveling Marmon touring car on the Boston post road, half way between Bridgeport and New Haven, took a shot at James McGibney of this city Wednesday afternoon as McGibney was passing the other machine in a ten ton truck owned by the Bousa Chevrolet company of this city. McGibney was on his way back from Tarrytown. The bullet shattered the glass in the left hand door of the truck and struck the other side of the cab, narrowly missing the Norwich man, who put on speed and did not stop to investigate. He did not get the number of the touring car which disappeared in the opposite direction to which he was going.

Minor Injuries for Foreman

Hugh McGowan of 458 Laurel Hill avenue, yard foreman at the Tidewater Paperboard company plant in the Thamesville section, was cut about the left eye, and also received a cut on the nose and abrasions to his knee, Thursday, while at work at the plant. He was taken to the Backus hospital and his injuries were treated. He was taken to his home later in the day.

CONNECTICUT CAR OWNERS CARRYING MORE PROTECTION

Probably more than half the motor vehicle owners of Connecticut are prepared to pay for damage that might be done by their cars, according to information which the state motor vehicle department has furnished to the chamber of commerce of Oroville, Cal., and allied communities. The percentage of such financially responsible motor car owners in the country at large is considerably less than the Connecticut percentage.

Before the financial responsibility law was adopted in Connecticut, a check-up in this respect showed that about 45 per cent. of Connecticut registrants were able to meet possible damage judgments within limits. In 1923, only about 18 per cent. of the registrants throughout the United States were thus protected.

The Connecticut percentage has been considerably increased since the financial responsibility law went into effect last January. The moral effect in itself was sufficient to move many previously unprotected registrants to make the necessary arrangements and, by the end of the ninth month of the administration of the law, the half-way point had been left well behind.

Connecticut's law on this subject has been under observation by many other states and John Dillon, manager of the California organization has informed the Connecticut department that there is a plan in that state to use this partial compulsory insurance law as the basis of a similar law in California.

OLD NORWICH SENDS GREETINGS

ture by men devoted to Norwich music—Bates, Williams, and Haydon Hare. Thus is Norwich blessed with public spirited citizens, and with historic monuments they are proud to preserve; any and all of which are alone worth a visit to the city.

Statue of Nelson

I mentioned Nelson just now, a Norfolk man. He went to school at Norwich grammar school in the Cathedral close and a statue of him faces the school.

The council chamber of the early 15th century ginthaced guildhall is a beautiful panelled chamber arranged as a Tudor court of justice. On the walls hangs the handsome sword and sheath of a proud Spanish admiral killed at the battle of Cape St. Vincent. This sword was presented to the city by Lord Nelson, and his autograph letter hangs with it. The guildhall contains the city regalia among which are silver gilt and silver maces, a unique jewelled crystal mace, a cap of maintenance, costly plate, and rose water tazzars and dishes. There are also the Reade Salt (1562,) a beautifully embossed and chased silver gilt work about 11 inches in height, and the Peterson cup (1574), by two Norwich goldsmiths. They are evidence that the work of the Norwich goldsmiths at that time could compete in quality with that of York and Exeter, and even London itself. The Guildhall council chamber is hung with ancient paintings of Norwich worthies, civic dignitaries, recorders and sheriffs.

Norwich is the jumping-off place for the famous waterways, the Norfolk Broads, and is within easy reach of the Norfolk coast, Cromer and Yarmouth, Blickling Hall (one of England's most beautiful Tudor mansions, the home of Ann Boleyn,) the ruined abbeys of Castleacre and Walsingham, and Sandringham, the Norfolk home of His Majesty the King and Queen Alexandra. To many others a pilgrimage to Norwich will be in itself worth while in order to render homage at the quiet little resting-place of Nurse Cavell in Life's Green, at the southeast angle of the cathedral and to see Earlham hall, intimately associated with Elizabeth Fry, one of England's greatest women, the friend of prisoners. Earlham hall and its beautiful grounds have just been acquired by the corporation for the use of the citizens.

Others again would come to see our Maddermarket theater and its Norwich players, for it is the only theater in England with an Elizabethan apron stage, the kind of stage for which Shakespeare's plays were set. The actors maintain strict anonymity.

Lovers of art will come for pictures of the Norwich School of Painters, and foremost those of Crome, John Sell Cotman, and Stark. Each artist, a rich jewel in the city's crown, is well represented in the castle picture gallery, though the many-sided genius of Cotman can only be studied in its full richness in the glorious nest of John Sells at Mr. Russell Colman's treasure house at Crown Point, Norwich.

For immediate visitors a really important loan collection of pictures is open at the castle for next month. It is designed to show the place of the Norwich school in the evolution of painting from the 17th century. Pictures by Rubens, Hobbema, Turner, Cuyp, Gainsborough, Millet, Cezanne, Gauguin, and other giants have been allowed to leave the walls of inaccessible private and some public collections. They are to be seen for one month and no more, and must not be missed.

Interest To Americans

To Americans, Norwich, when they get there (and we earnestly desire to see more of them,) makes a great appeal. Thirty-two of the original Mayflower pilgrims were Norfolk people. A weaver from the neighboring village of Hingham, who sailed for America in 1637, bore the name of Samuel Lincoln. In St. Andrew's church, Norwich, is a tablet to the memory of Abraham Lincoln, of a branch of the president's forbears. I like to tell the negro who was seen to prostrate himself before it as before a holy shrine. Did it not bear the name of his liberator?

The quiet, picturesque old meeting house, built in 1693, commemorates Norwich as the first cradle of Puritanism.

The city "At Home" to which I referred this evening has been promoted by the Rotary club, and is designed to stimulate local patriotism and to help the citizens, especially the rising generation, to realise the greatness of their heritage. We realise that such a city as this is not ours alone: it is the heritage of all of you.

I close with the apostrophe of another adopted son of Norwich, George Borrow: "Who can wonder that the children of that fine old city are proud of her, and offer up prayers for her prosperity? I, myself, who was not born within her walls, offer up prayers for her prosperity."

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. Edward J. Quinn, the new pastor of Sacred Heart church, celebrated a mass of Thanksgiving at 7 o'clock that morning, that was attended by a very large congregation.

From the collection taken at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Thanksgiving morning, when four nearby churches united for the service, the offering for the Near East Relief, amounted to $19.62.

District Agent Frederic H. Wyant of the Connecticut Humane society, spent Wednesday in Hartford, in conference with Manager H. Clay Preston, concerning the society's interests in the Norwich-New London district, the territory under his jurisdiction. District Agent Wyant drove back to Norwich in a 1926 coupe, having left at headquarters in Hartford, the other Humane society car, which had outlived its usefulness, after three years of constant use.

Miss Marion Hope, superintendent of Fall River Industrial Home for Girls, is to give an address at the Norwich Town Methodist church Sunday evening.

Mrs. Mary Gaffney and daughter, Miss Marjory Gaffney of Danielson, were callers Thanksgiving day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbie L. Hale of Lathrop avenue, had as Thanksgiving guests their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Hale and daughter, Miss Dorothy Hale of Ellington, who motored to Norwich Town.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tague (Florence Getchell) with their infant son, George, Jr., of Waterford, spent Thanksgiving at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tague.

Mr. and Mrs. Kasper Hoppman, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Goff of Julian terrace, also their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Hoppman and two daughters, Louise and Rose Marie of Town street, were included in a family dinner party Thanksgiving day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shea (Alice Hoppman) of Washington street.

At a recent business meeting of the Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor society, the following officers and committees were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President, Irving E. Manning; vice president, Reginald D. Avery; recording secretary, Miss Louise M. Avery; corresponding secretary, Miss Jessie E. Hyde; treasurer, Miss Ida Beebe; stewardship superintendent, Ralph H. Marsh; prayer meeting committee, Miss Mabel Corrigeux, chairman, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, Ralph H. Marsh, Miss Jessie E. Hyde; lookout committee, Arthur W. Avery, chairman, Mrs. Burton W. Jopson, Charles E. Marsh, Lyle O. Johnson; missionary committee, Miss Margaret L. Chapin, chairman, Mrs. Elton G. Odgers, Misses Florence Wheeler, Dorothea Buckley, Elton G. Odgers, Nathan W. Wheeler; music committee, Miss Rose Durr, chairman, Misses Ida M. Beebe, Louise P. Bailey, Esther M. Durr, Louise Sterry, Bernice Underwood; flower committee, Miss Dorothy L. Waterman, chairman, Misses Helen Schwenk, Marion Buckley, Lucille M. Browning, Bessie M. Whaley; social committee, Reginald D. Avery, chairman, Robert S. Stott, Misses Grace M. Wheeler, Ruth E. Sterry; good citizenship and information committee, George E. Hyde, chairman, Woodward N. Wheeler, Burton W. Jopson and Luther Whaley. The nominating committee that presented the names comprised Miss Esther Durr, chairman, Misses Ida Beebe, Ruth Sterry and Arthur Avery.

The Balkite Trickle Charger and your "A" battery supply "A" radio current from the light socket

The Balkite Trickle Charger can be left permanently connected to your "A" battery and the light socket. Thus it keeps your battery at full charge always and in effect converts it into a light socket "A" power supply. It is the most popular of all methods of charging "A" batteries. Over 200,000 are now in use.

The Balkite Trickle Charger is permanent. It has no tubes and nothing to wear out or replace. It is noiseless in operation and in most cases can be used during reception. Can be used as a trickle charger with any 6-volt "A" battery. With 4-volt batteries as an intermittent charger, or as a trickle charger if a resistance is added. Ask your dealer. CHINA TRENDING TOWARD RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT

Thirteen Power Commission Gives Hopeful View of China's Struggle, in Spite of Civil Wars and Political Chaos—Commission Recommends a Progressive Surrender of Rights Under Extra-Territorial Treaties as Fast as China is Able to Modernize Her Legislative and Judicial Machinery.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A hopeful view of China's struggle toward modern and responsible government, despite civil wars and present political chaos, was disclosed in the report of the 13-power commission on extra territoriality, made public today by the state department.

The commission recommended, however, only a progressive surrender of rights under extra-territorial treaties with China as fast as she is able to modernize her legislative and judicial machinery to insure adequate protection to foreigners.

Grave abuses of extra-territorial privilliges by foreign nationals in China were admitted.

But the commission held that extra-territorial protection in China for the 254,006 foreign individuals and 6,478 foreign firms, the great majority in both cases being Japanese, cannot be relinquished except as China substitutes suitable laws, judicial procedure and courts to which that protection can be entrusted.

In giving force to this position, the report cited a long list of crimes committed in China while the commission was sitting in Peking this year. In no case, it said, was any action toward punishment of the guilty taken under Chinese law, although numerous instances of assassination of high placed Chinese officials, even of the judiciary, were included. Nor was there any question as to who committed the crime.

The report was signed for the United States by Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, chairman of the commission. The Chinese commissioner, Wang Chung-Hui, signed with the reservation that his approval of the recommendations did not imply approval also of the statements made as to facts found.

The document is now before the governments for study. The commission, created under a resolution of the Washington arms conference of 1921-22, was authorized only to study the subject and advise.

There were four recommendations, some of them sub-divided. If they are "reasonably complied with," the commission stated, surrender of extra territorial rights would be warranted.

The first said that administration of civil justice in China must be protected against "interference by the executive or other branches of the government, whether civil or military."

The second declared that China should adopt a definite programme for improvement of legal, judicial and prison systems; enact through legislative bodies, not be executive decrees, necessary codes for civil, commercial and criminal procedure and laws covering banking, bankruptcy, patents, land expropriations, etc.; and provide also for the adequate financing of the machinery thus set up.

The third suggested that pending fulfillment of this programme the treaty powers "might consider the abolition of extra-territoriality according to such progressive scheme (whether geographical, partial or otherwise) as may be agreed upon."

The final recommendation outlined a plan for immediate modification, in coöperation with the Chinese, of existing extra-territoriality systems.

The suggested modifications included:

(a)—Administration by extra-territorial and consular courts of such Chinese laws and regulations as may be adopted.

(b)—Transfer of "mixed cases" at law between extra-territorial foreigners and Chinese to "the modern Chinese courts," without intervention of foreign intervention of foreign assessors, existing special mixed courts also to be brought into accord with the "modern Chinese judicial system," and lawyers of treaty power nationality to be permitted to practice fully before both court; in mixed cases.

(c)—Extension of protection to Chinese individuals or shipping interests by extra-territoriality protected foreigners to be suppressed by the treaty powers, which also should require compulsory registration of their nationals in China.

(d)—Extension of reciprocal, judicial assistance between Chinese and extra-territorial courts and officers, including enforcement by each of the proper writs and processes of the other, and recognition and enforcement of arbitrational settlement of civil disputes.

(e)—Pending abolition of extra-territorality, nationals of the treaty powers in China to be required to pay all Chinese taxes duly recognized by the powers as applying to such nationals.

The assumption by the military of power tosppoint national and provincial civic officers, including judges, was noted.

A preliminary summary declared that the "growth of nationalistic feeling in China along with the rapid expansion of foreign interests" underlies the demand for abolishment of unequal treaties.

"A survey of the "anomalies" due to employment of many law systems by various foreign courts, lack of legal training of many consular officials who conduct such courts, and the conditions, "obviously unfair to Chinese litigants," which makes appeal from foreign court decisions lie in appellate bodies remote from China, was included.

Attached tables showed that 93 per cent. of all extra territorial foreigners are Japanese, British, American, Portuguese, and French in the order named, Japan leading with 218,251, a majority of whom are in Manchuria. The British total is 16,247, American 9,344.

MRS. HALL WILL CONCLUDE HER TESTIMONY TODAY

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall tomorrow will complete her denial that she had any connection with the killing of her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, bringing the Hall-Mills case to the beginning of its final phase.

For two hours yesterday afternoon, the widow of the slain minister detailed her movements before and after the double slaying and for an hour or more, she will be cross-examined tomorrow. The cross examination was interrupted by adjournment Saturday, when it had proceeded less than 20 minutes.

Mrs. Hall's testimony will practically close the case for the defense, only two or three minor witnesses are to follow her. She is the third defendant to be heard, her brothers, Henry and Willis Stevens, having preceded her to the witness stand to say that they had no part in the slaying and were not near the spot where the bodies of the minister and choir singer were found.

The widow moved through her direct examination and the brief cross-examination of Saturday with strikingly economy of words. Many of her answers to questions were restricted to "yes" and "no".

She sat in almost sober silence through most of her stay on the witness stand. There were a few smiles. She was asked on cross examinations, after she had said that she knew nothing of firearms, if, as a matter of fact, she had not once said that she "could shoot the heads off rattlesnakes." The witness seemed to see amusement in this feat of marksmanship attributed to her by the question from Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, and faintly smiled.

TWO CONCESSIONS GRANTED FOR ANATOLIAN RAILWAYS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 28—(AP)—The Turkish government has granted two concessions for Anatolian railways—one to a Swedish concern amounting to 20,000,000 Turkish pounds, and the other to a Belgian company, 40,000,000 Turkish pounds, for the construction of an aggregate of 930 miles to be completed in five years.

The Swedish contractors will also construct a harbor at Samsoun and the Belgians a harbor at Mersina. The German firm of Krupps is negotiating for a concession for the construction of a railway in the Ergeni district to exploit the copper fields.

SCHOONER AGROUND ON ISLAND OFF MAINE COAST

SWAN'S ISLAND, Me., Nov. 28.—(AP)—The three-masted schooner Emily F. Northam was still fast aground on Saker's Island bar today but the coast guard cutter Mohave was ready to make an effort to pull her afloat at high water tonight.

The vessel, lumber laden and bound from Nova Scotia ports to Gloucester for orders, went on the bar while battling a storm early yesterday. The crew remained aboard.

Y., European radio listeners thus heard speeches by Hiram Percy Maxim and H. M. Warner and, the newspaper says, expressed much satisfaction with the reception.

RAILWAY WAGE DISPUTE STILL ON IN CANADA

MONTREAL, Nov. 28—The wage dispute between the Canadian Railways and the conductors and trainmen of their lines is still in the negotiation stage, according to developments and announcements over the week end.

S. N. Berry, senior vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Conductors, has stated that a strike data has been set in case the negotiations do not result in a settlement, but he did not give the date, saying the opportunity for negotiations still existed.

The union officials continued their conferences over the week end. It is understood here, representatives tomorrow will see S. J. Hungerford, vice president in charge of operations of the Canadian National Railways, and probably a member of the executive board of the Canadian Pacific, Mr. Berry would not confirm this.

SEEK TO ARREST PHYSICIAN FOLLOWING GIRL'S DEATH

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Following the death early this morning in St. Vincent's hospital of Mabel Deary, 20, a warrant was issued by Assistant Prosecutor Clarence O. Lister for the arrest of Dr. Isidor Feoklemann, one of the physicians whose license was revoked as a result of the grand jury investigation of 1924. Dr. Feoklelann could not be found at his hospital, from which place the girl had been removed on Tuesday night, when police, investigating another case, found her there, apparently suffering from the effects of an illegal operation.

Yochelman was summoned to conference by the prosecutor, but his arrest was not sought until today following the girl's death. No effort was made to arrest him previously, it was said, because of insufficient evidence.

CHAIRMAN BUSINESS MEN'S COMMISSION ON AGRICULTURE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—(AP)—Announcement was made tonight of the acceptance by Charles Nagel, of St. Louis, of the chairmanship of the business men's commission on agriculture, being formed by the national industrial conference board and the chamber of commerce of the United States to protect the "permanent national interest in a sound and prosperous agriculture."

Nagel, a former secretary of commerce and labor of the United States, will head the commission in a study of the farm situation with a view to formulating a national program for co-operation of all economic groups in the interest of agriculture. Other members of the commission will be announced soon.

BRITISH FREIGHTER WON RACE TO AVOID SINKING

FALMOUTH, England, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The British freight steamer Regent, from Newport News Nov. 10, reached here safely today after a ten days' race to avoid sinking. The Regent sprang a leakk astern, and there was great danger of flooding the engine room.

The Regent is a sister ship of the Aldworth, which arrived at Falmouth last week after being in distress for several days in an Atlantic gale.

SCIENTISTS SAY MOON HAS NO EFFECT ON PLANT LIFE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—(AP)—The moon may affect lovers and cause the tides, but "moon farming" is pure moonshine, department of agriculture experts declare, thus exploding another tradition.

The supposed effect on certain farm activities done by the "dark" or the "light," or some other phase of the moon, finds no substantiation among the scientists. They say that the moon has no influence on weather or soil, and even the light of the full moon is not nearly intense enough to have any effect on plant growth or disease.

GENERAL GARIBALDI HAS SAILED FOR UNITED STATES

CHERBOURG, France, Nov. 28—(AP)—General Guiseppe (Peppino) Garibaldi embarked for the United States today aboard the steamer Carmania after a fortnight's stay in Paris mainly devoted to aiding his brother Ricciotti.

The latter, involved in an Italo-Spanish conspiracy, carried out in part on French soil, is still in the hands of the Paris police.

"I hope my brother will rejoin me one day in America," Peppino said on departing.

MOVEMENT UNDERWAY FOR "FATHER AND SON" HOLIDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—Plans for a movement looking to the establishment of a national "father and son" holiday, probably on some day during the Easter vacation, were inaugurated today by the national father and son committee.

The Easter period is regarded as the best because college men are home at that time.

ABANDON HOPE FOR KING FERDINAND'S RECOVERY

PARIS, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Advices to the Paris Midi from Berlin by telephone, under today's date, declare that hope has been abandoned for King Ferdinand's recovery, all dispatches received in Berlin throughout the night from Bucharest, Belgrade, Budapest and Vienna, showed agreement in giving this version of the king's condition.

The Berlin reports to the Midi say it was decided to abandon the last minute operation once envisaged, as the king fainted tice Saturday afternoon in less than three hours.

The strictest censorship is reported over the Rumanian press, while the people generally, unaware of the exact nature of the king's ailment, are most uneasy over the political situation and speculating whether Prince Carol will make an attempt to come back.

The regency council, the Berlin advices continue, virtually took up governmental functions Saturday morning and has been sitting almost constantly since. As a precautionary measure the government has already ordered a certain number of generals and other army officers suspected as sympathizers of Carol.

DANBURY TROLLEY STRIKE REMAINS UNCHANGED

DANBURY, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The strike situation here remains unchanged with both the employes and the Danbury Power and Transportation company refusing to compromise on any contested point.

Close on reports of the failure to hold a conference in New Haven Saturday afternoon with E. M. Bradley, banker, understood to be the financial backer of the company, the City Taxi company, which has been maintaining temporary service with three busses between this city and the town of Bethel, put two extra busses in operation in the city limits.

Mr. Bradley refused to meet the strikers' representatives, it is understood, unless A. William Sperry, executive engineer of the company, and the corporation counsel were present.

DROP IN TEMPERATURE OF 40 DEGREES SATURDAY

BOSTON, Nov. 28—(AP)—New England shivered today. A forty degree drop in temperature from the Indian summer mildness of Friday and early Saturday brought the fur coats out from their moth balls. Although the sun was bright all day tonight the air failed to warm up much and the prospects were for another wintry night.

REVOLT IN ALBANIA IS SAID TO BE DYING OUT

BELGRADE, Nov. 28—(AP)—The Albanian insurrection is showing signs of petering out. The rebels are reported to be retiring and many are suffering.

President Ahmed Zogo is constantly receiving offers of help. An Italian naval demonstration in favor of the government is expected.

Unusual Interest in Maine Election Today

Result Will Decide the Party Control of the United States Senate.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 28—(AP)—Maine voters tomorrow will decide the party control of the United States senate.

With the active campaign closed, the candidates, Fulton J. Redman, democrat and Arthur R. Gould, went to their homes tonight preparatory to casting their individual votes, both expressing utmost confidence of the outcome of the special election to name a successor to the late Bert M. Fernald.

Mr. Redman has beside the support of the democratic party that of the Ku Klux Klan, whose leaders preferred charges of excessive primary expenditures against Mr. Gould which Secretary of State Bail found were not substantiated at a hearing in Augusta on Friday. He has counted on additional strength among the republicans also as the result of Governor Ralph O. Brewster's denunciation of Mr. Gould's primary campaign. Although Mr. Redman was expected to draw strength from these sources, he has denied that he had formed an alliance with them or that he owed allegiance to any other than "to the citizens of Maine and to the democratic party."

Although Mr. Gould was assailed by the governor, leader of the republican party in the state by virtue of his office, he has had the endorsement of Senator William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, and Mr. Field has declared that Governor Brewster has read himself out of the party by his pronouncements against Mr. Gould.

PREPARED MANUSCRIPT AND SET TYPE BY HAND

THOMPSONVILLE, Nov. 26—(AP)—A literary and publishing feat believed to be without a parallel in New England history was brought to light today with the announcement by F. J. Sheldon, 90 years old, that his book, "Nonsense, Common Sense," containing a history of the town of Enfield for the last 80 years has been turned over to a book binder. Mr. Sheldon prepared his own manuscript and then set the type by hand in his own small printing plant. He printed the book one page at a time on a small hand press, being forced to dump the type in order to prepare each following page.

He started the task last June, working only in spare time.

TWO DIVORCED WIVES OF VALENTINO DISAGREE

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Two women who fought and lost earthly battles for Rudolph Valentino, today continued the struggle in death.

In New York a few days ago Natacha Rambova, second divorced wife of the film star, gave out spirit messages she said she had received from him.

In Chicago today Jean Acker, first wife of Valentino, said the actor did not believe in spirit messages and expressed the opinion that none had been received.

THREW BABY TO SAFETY FROM BURNING HOME

WATERBURY, Nov. 28—(AP)—Mrs. David Kerees, threw her 18 months old baby into the arms of a spectator, and then jumped from the first floor landing of a fire escape, when flames threatened the Hutchinson block at 195 North Main street here tonight. Fire of unknown origin gutted the tailor shop of A. N. Derderian on the first floor of the building, worked its way to the attic, and shot up to the roof of the fire story building. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

OBITUARY

Charles Edward Graham

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Stricken with a heart attack while at a gathering Saturday night to sign the charter of a new lodge of Elks in West Haven, Charles Edward Graham, 68, of that town, died almost immediately.

Mr. Graham was prominently identified with several business enterprises. He was president of a local brass foundry and of the Wire Novelty company of West Haven, vice president of the Times company, publisher of the New Haven Times-Leader, and owner of much real estate. He had served in both houses of the Connecticut legislature at one time or another.

Dr. Paul Revere Frothingham

BOSTON, Nov. 28—(AP)—The Unitarian church has lost ten of its leaders in the death of Dr. Paul Revere Frothingham, pastor of the Arlington Street church, Boston, who died suddenly Saturday night after being stricken with apoplexy.

A year ago public tribute was laid to Dr. Frothingham for his quarter century of work in Boston. At that time Dr. George A. Gordon, pastor of the Old South (Congregational) church described Dr. Frothingham as "a man with a distinctive and decided view of the Christian religion and of the world's most urgent need." In the same connection, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University praised Dr. Frothingham for the influence which he had brought to bear on college students through his 12 years' service on the Harvard board of overseers and his long-standing membership on the Harvard board of preachers.

George H. Starr

HARTFORD, Nov. 28—(AP)—George H. Starr, 37, deputy warden of the Wethersfield state prison and for nearly twenty years associated with that institution, died at his home this morning after a short illness.

Mr. Starr, who was born in Fair Haven, Vt., came to the Wethersfield prison June 10, 1907 at the age of 18 as assistant clerk, a capacity which he filled until his appointment as deputy warden of the institution August 12, 1924. In 1912, Mr. Starr assumed charge of the protography department of the prison, including the Bertillion system. At the same time, he took over the duties of parole officer at the prison, handling these various offices in addition to his work as assistant clerk.

Mr. Starr was prominently identified with the sensational Chapman trial here last year. He was specially assigned to watch Chapman during his entire confinement in Wethersfield and was at all times personally responsible for the notorious criminal. Whenever Chapman's presence was required in court or at special hearings he was under the vigilance of Mr. Starr.

Weekly Review of Industrial World

Holiday Buying Quickens Retail Trade—Seasonal Let-Down in Industries.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—Quickening of retail trade coincident with the start of holiday buying and slackening of wholesale operations due to the approach of the inventory season were contrasting features of last week's business activities. Few changes of importance were noted in the industrial situation aside from the seasonal let-down in production.

With the end of the year in sight, it has become increasingly apparent that new high records would be established in the sales and earnings of many important companies, with an aggregate industrial output of impressive proportions. In some cases disappointing autumn business was more than offset by an unusually active summer.

The underlying stability of conditions has been emphasized by the smoothness with which year-end readjustments are being made. Another big jump in the government's cotton crop forecast to nearly 18,500,000 bales failed to disturb the market's equilibrium and was even followed by improvement in the price of the staple.

Sales of automobiles recently have shown a tendency to increase despite further curtailment of production. Prospects of more intensive competition next year were brought before the industry by persistent reports that Henry Ford would enter the six and eight cylinder fields.

Railroad earnings for October in some cases have been disappointing, although increases so far have outnumbered declines. Millions of dollars were added to the wage bills of the railroads last week through increases in the pay of shopmen.

Developments affecting the petroleum, sugar and copper markets were mainly favorable. Strenuous efforts are being made to reduce the crude oil output, some cases through prorating agreements. The rejection of the Cuban sugar crop continued to send prices for this commodity up to new high levels for the year. Underlying conditions in the copper trade remain a dsatisfactory although British interests withdrew from the recently formed international export association.

Quiet conditions prevailed in the steel industry, with new buying limited and operations pared down to between 75 and 80 per cent of capacity.

SESQUI-CENTENNIAL FACES DEFICIT OF OVER $5,200,000

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28—(AP)—This was the last Sunday for the sesqui centennial exposition, and while the state supreme court withheld its decision on two appeals, one for and the other against operation of the exposition on the sabbath, the gates of the fair were open as usual.

Some of the largest crowds have visited the fair on Sunday, but today cold weather and a biting northwest wind kept the attendance down. Total paid admission since the sesqui opened on May 31 up to and including last Friday aggregated 4,536,617 and admission of all kinds, including passes totaled more than 6,000,000. Mayor Kendrick said he had figured on at least 16,000,000 paid admissions.

The sesqui, which, with the exception of one or two buildings, closes on Tuesday, faces a deficit of more than $5,200,000. Money for this has been provided by the city council.

TWO COUPLES FLED AFTER AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

PLAINVILLE, Nov. 28—(AP)—Two couples whose automobile went off the highway, through a wire fence, and then turned over and burned up tonight, fled the scene of the accident, but three have been located and the driver of the car, Irving Gordon of Middletown, is under bond of $100 on charges of using improper markers and evading responsibility.

The other man in the car was Joseph McFerron, also of Middletown. Two young women whose names were given as Anna Stewart and Marie Chapco were also in the car. One of the women was slightly injured, and the other has not yet been located.

The accident occurred at Cook's corners, near here. It was found that the markers on the car had been issued for an automobile of another make, understood to belong to either Gordon or his father.

NICARAGUAN TROOPS READY TO ATTACK REBELS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 28—(AP)—Eight hundred government soldiers are ready to assume the offensive should General Moncada, leader of the liberal revolutionists, refuse to accept the peace terms offered by the government. These terms were discussed by General Moncada with Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, U. S. N., several days ago aboard the United States cruiser Rochester, after which it was announced that the revolutionary leader would reconsider the proposals.

Meanwhile there are sporadic attacks by the revolutionaries.

The liberals, according to the government, are imposing a tax on American mahogany companies, and as a consequence Admiral Latimer is reported to have said that unless they stopped this practice, he would order the gunboat Tulsa to protect boats loading mahogany.

TWO WOMEN HIKING FROM PROVIDENCE TO BOSTON

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 28—(AP)—Miss Eleanora Sears, noted Boston sportswoman, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, internationally known woman tennis star, started from the supreme court house in this city at 12.55 o'clock this morning on an unannounced hike to Miss Sears' home at 127 beacon street, Boston. The two women will try to lower Miss Sears' record of 10 hours and 27 minutes actual walking time between Providence and Boston, established December 14 last year. The distance is forty four miles.

CANTON SOUTHERN ARMY CLOSING IN ON FOOCHOW

AMOY, China, Nov. 28—(AP)—The victorious Canton southern Chinese army continued to forge its way north today and was within striking distance of Foochow, an important treaty port of 700,000 population, the capital city of Fukien province.

ELEVEN LIQUOR ARRESTS MADE AT BIDDEFORD, ME.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Nov. 28—(AP)—Eleven men, four of them business men, were arrested Saturday night and today on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition act. Four were taken here and seven at Sanford.

NEW MOVEMENT TO CORRECT EXISTING SOCIAL ORDER

Committee on Evangelism of the Protestant Episcopal Church Recommends a Nation-Wide Crusade, Begining January 6, to Reawaken Members to Their Christian Obligations—Finds That Disciplines of Domestic and Social Life Are Not Only Disregarded, But Defied.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Precipitation of a condition striking at the very fundamentals of the existing social order is threatened by "an age without discipline or self-imposed restraint," in the belief of a committee on evangelism of the Protestant Episcopal church.

"License has come to take the place of liberty and the well ordered disciplines of domestic and social life are not only disregarded but defied," the commission asserted today.

The views of the commission were included in an announcement that all day prayer services in the Episcopal churches throughout the country will be held Tuesday for the success of a nation wide crusade, beginning Jan. 6 "to reawaken the entire membership of the church to their Christian obligations."

The crusade is designed to answer for the Episcopal church at least, "the charge that the Christian church is not meeting the needs of the modern world."

Acceptance of "the harold gospel" rather than a "comfortable gospel" will be stressed, said the commission adding that the situation which confronts the Christian church is a serious one.

"It's authority," the commission continued, "is challenged and the very fundamental things upon which its fabric rests called in question. An age that is filled with speculation and doubt calls for a fresh and persistent affirmation of the great imperatives of our Christian faith."

A GUY WIRE SAVED THE LIVES OF FOUR MOTORISTS

EAST HAMPTON, Conn., Nov. 28—(AP)—A guy wire, catching the rear left wheel of a car owned by Frank O'Brien, of Meriden and driven by Eugene Toisi, of the same place, early today prevented the car and its four occupants dropping sixty feet onto the railroad tracks at what is known as Johnson's bridge near here. Besides O'Brien and Toisi, the car contained Philip Teto and George Wright, both of Meriden.

The car had gone about 35 feet off the course of the road, and plowed up a lawn. According to investigating officers, the wheels dragged for at least 40 feet after the brakes were applied. Toisi was arrested for reckless driving, and released on his own recognizance. He said he was going 30 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

The bridge is considered a dangerous one, with several accidents against it. Last year, at about Christmas time, a fatal accident occurred there. The road has been recently changed so that a straight course at the approach to the bridge leads directly over the embankment.

POLITICAL WARNING FOR FARM RELIEF LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Unveiled warning that failure to enact farm relief legislation might result in a disturbance of the political complexion of the nation was made tonight by Representative Dickinson, republican, Iowa, in protesting against the United States chamber of commerce in forming an agricultural fact finding body.

He was disposed to belief that the joint commission "is not to get more information, but to filibuster against passage of a genuine farm relief bill at the approaching session of congress."

"The farmers are not entirely bereft of power," Mr. Dickinson said.

"They can still vote. They are still an absolute political power in many states and an irresistible balance of power in many others. I pray that they may not be driven to the use of class political power—but there is an extremity of discrimination beyond which they may not be pushed without danger."

FASCISTS SHOT AT LABOR DEMONSTRATORS IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—(AP)—While Herr Paul Loebe, president of the reichstag, was addressing an outdoor socialist labor demonstration today, a shot was fired from a passing street car, the bullet grazing the head of one of the organizers of the meeting. Scores of angry men instantly sprang at the car, pulling from it a dozen uniformed fascists.

The fascists were roughly handled until another party of socialists and laborites, wearing uniforms, rescued them and finally turned them over to the egular police.

Two revolvers, one dagger and several slings for stone throwing, together with a large quantity of ammunition, were found in the possession of the fascists.

PRINCESS CHIVEKIAR HAS MARRIED FOR FOURTH TIME

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Princess Chivekiar, former wife of the king of Egypt, against whom a fine of ten Turkish pounds was recently asked for insulting the American born Princess Saida Chakir, divorced wife of John D. Spreckles, of San Francisco, again has come into the spotlight. She has obtained a divorce against her third husband and has been secretly married to a fourth, Rafet Pasha, former leader of the opposition party in Turkey. Rafet was one of the men arrested for alleged complicity in the plot against Kemal Pasha. He was tried and acquitted, but most of the plotters were hanged. He then resigned his seat in the national assembly, and he is taking his new wife to Egypt.

TWO MEN KILLED WHEN AIRPLANE FELL 1,500 FEET

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Richard Musch, a contractor, and Edward Carlita, pilot, were killed today when their airplane fell 1,500 feet at Ashburn field here. A strut snapped as they were making a sharp bank, causing the right wing t ocollapse.

They took off after having been warned that the plane was regarded as unsafe.

Musch escaped death narrowly last March when a companion, William Kaiser, of Chicago, was killed in a plane fall near Scottsville.

TWO HUNGARIANS WILL FIGHT DUEL TOMORROW

BUDAPEST, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Count Andreas Bethlen, son of the Hungarian premier, and Count Paul Almassy, prominent in social circles, will fight a duel Tuesday. It is hinted that the favor of a certain lady was the cause of the trouble between the men.

The young Count Bethlen recently returned from New York where he spent a year learning the banking business.

WHEELER WOULD REGULATE MEDICINAL WHISKEY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Purchase and distribution of "medicinal" whiskey by a private corporation, as proposed by the treasury department in its last recommendation on the subject, was approved today by Wayne B. Wheeler, of the Anti-Saloon league.

In a statement announcing a meeting of the legislative committee of the league this week to consider such proposals, Wheeler declared he knew of no opposition to the department's proposal, provided the activities of the private corporation were conducted under existing regulations.

"There was opposition to the original plan for government ownership and distribution," he explained. "The secretary of the treasury never endorsed this plan. If the last bill proposed includes the authority needed to limit the distilleries that may open, we will go far to settle the question as to whether it is best to buy liquors abroad of manufacture them in the United States."

Automobile salesmen and manufacturers are unduly disturbed, Wheeler said, over the recent decision of the supreme court authorizing the forfeiture of automobiles under the old internal revenue laws when seized for rum running. Their fear that automobiles innocently sold on the installment plan would be a total loss when so seized were not well founded, he said. They have two remedies, he explained.

By requiring a bond of the purchaser that the automobile will not be used for illegal purposes, or by recourse to the method now provided by law for the innocent owners when the automobiles are seized under section 3450 of the revised statutes.

CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY TO SMUGGLE LIQUOR INTO U. S

BOSTON, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Lewis H. Rothchild, vice president of the Chelsea Exchange bank, New York, and more than 40 other defendants in New York, Philadelphia and Boston, are under indictment charged with conspiracy to smuggle liquor on a vast scale. The indictments, returned in August, were made public today with the arrest of several of the defendants.

The charges are based on the seizure here July 1 last of the coastwise steamer Cretan, with a cargo of from 25,000 to 30,000 gallons of Belgian alcohol in her hold. Assistant U. S. Attorney Hubert C. Thompson, conducting the investigation, said that a syndicate of New York and Philadelphia business men financed the operations of the vessel.

Those indicted in addition to Rothchild were Captain August Afsent of the Cretan and his crew of 32 men; Harold Smythe of New York, secretary to Rotoschild; James V. Bolce, assistant cashier of the Chelsea Exchange Bank; Max Bernstein, Frank Conway Leo Friedman and Joey Knott, all of New York; and Samuel Lasar and Joseph Schwartz, of Philadelphia.

RAKOVSKY EMBARRASSED BY FRENCH COMMUNISTS

PARIS, Nov. 28—(AP)—French communist deputies who persist in attending social functions at the soviet embassy clad in their workaday clothes are proving a bit embarrassing to the "comrade ambassador," Christian Rakovsky. That dignitary is a man of the world, who knows a good table when he sees one, who always dresses for dinner and whose soirees at the stately embassy in the Rue De Grenelle are quite as brilliant as those given by the former ambassadors of the czar.

Consequently when the Comrade Deputy Cachin arrived the other evening in a soft blue shirt and fingernails that needed attention, closely followed by the Comrade Deputy Vaillant Couturier, sporting a four days' beard, there was some little consternation among the brilliant company. The day was saved, however, by Mme. Rakovsky, who turning to the other guests remarked suavely: "Please excuse our friends, ladies and gentlemen; they have just left their work at the chamber of deputies."

WARRANT FOR BROTHER OF THE DUNCAN SISTERS

SAN JOSE, Calif., Nov. 28.—(AP)—A warrant for the arrest of Harry Duncan, said to be a brother of the Duncan sisters, famed as comediennes, is in the hands of Chief of Police John Black.

About two weeks ago, Traffic Officer Russo stopped an automobile which was speeding through San Jose, and arrested the driver, who gave his name as Harry Duncan, Chief Black said.

From somewhere in the car a voice announced: "We're the Duncan sisters, you can't arrest us; we won't answer the summons."

Russo, however, handed the driver a speeding ticket with instructions to report at police court within five days. No answer has been made to the summons.

The last report of an arrest of the Duncan trio for speeding came from Cicero, Ills. where it was charged they were manhandled and one of the dancers badly beaten by police officers.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 28—Michael DeBartelo, 38, a carpenter, and son of Mr. and Mrs. James DeBartelo of 14 Pond street, was instantly killed while hunting deer this morning on the old Nelson Wheeler farm in the northern part of the town of Stonington by the accidental discharge of his own gun. Accompanied by his father, uncle and George Wheeler who resides on the Wheeler farm, the men had scattered when at about 8.30 a. m. Wheeler, who was nearest to DeBartelo, heard the discharge of the hunter's gun. Hastening to the place, he found that the young man had set his gun down over a wall as he was about to get over it. The gun was set down so hard over the wall butt first that the top of the hammer was broken off as it came in contact with a stone and the discharge of the gun followed. The shell load entered the left side of DeBartelo's cheek and lodged in the base of the skull, death being instantaneous. Medical Examiner Dr. William H. Gray of Mystic was notified and arrived at the Wheeler farm about 1.30 o'clock, and making investigation gave permission for the removal of the body to the undertaking rooms of Harry O. Williams on Granite street in Westerly.

The Wheeler farm, on which the fatality occurred is located on the cross road leading from North Stonington to the Providence-New London turnpike, and was the scene of the Cordova tragedy, which occurred there some five or six years ago. At that time Mrs. Cordova, a New York woman, making her summer home at Eastern Point, was accompanied by her chauffeur when some clothes were taken for washing to a Stonington [illegible]. Near the barway on this farm [illegible] found the dead bodies of Mrs. Cordova and her chauffeur in which death resulted from revolver shots and following a champagne drinking party. It was thought that Mrs. Cordove was shot and the chauffeur then killed himself.

KNIGHT MILL ENTERED; SOME PROPERTY STOLEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 28—The office of the B. B. and R. Knight mill at White Rock was entered some time on Saturday night or this morning, when entrance was effected through a cellar window at the rear of the office. After entrance to the building the transom over the locked door between the office and storeroom was pried off with the use of a chisel or screwdriver and the interior of the office was gained. Apparently no effort was made to tamper with the safe, but an Underwood typewriter, a quantity of postage stamps and an Iver-Johnson 32 calibre revolver were among the things taken.

The break was discovered by Superintendent Fred S. Blume when he visited the office soon after 9 o'clock this morning. Charles H. Nichols, a bookkeeper, was notified by Mr. Binns and going to Westerly he returned with Patrolman George H. Champlin for further investigation. Numerous samples of fingerprints were secured and taken to the Westerly police station where Chief Thomas E. Brown will follow up on the evidence secured. The White Rock mill plant, where "Fruit of the Loom" cotton cloth is manufactured, has been closed for the past few weeks.

Raymond Taber, 22 of Wequetequock and William Drinkwater, 20, of Roxbury, Mass., who has been employed at the Stonington shipyard were taken into custody on Sunday morning about 10 o'clock by Patrolman George H. Champlin, on a charge of intoxication and raveling on Pierce street. Complaint came from Perkins avenue that the men who had visited the Pierce street section were drunk and engaged in a fist fight. The cases will probably come before Judge Oliver H. Williams in a special session of Third district court.

Eugene Farnsworth, 38, of 8 Star street, New London, employed by a roofing company of that city, was the victim of an overdose of paralydehyde a hypnotic and sedative which he had apparently taken at the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad on Saturday forenoon. The young [illegible] was found prostrate on the floor of the lavatory by Taxi Driver William Holden about 11.30 o'clock. Medical Examiner Michael H. Scanlon, who acts as railroad surgeon, was called and took the unconscious man to the Westerly hospital for treatment. In Farnsworth's pockets were found a paper with two addresses, "8 Star street," and "16 Spring street, Hartford," also army discharge papers showing him to have taken part in the World war, with the address of his father, A. L. Farnsworth, Isleboro, Me. Station Agent Earl S. Bavior, communicated with railroad officials and sent a telegram to Isleboro, Me., and when it was not known how serious the man's condition was.

When Farnsworth left to the station floor he received a cut on his head which was closed with two stitches at the Westerly hospital. Later the man went from the Westerly hospital to the hospital of Dr. J. Gordon Anderson on Cross street. Farnsworth having been previously treated by Dr. Anderson for alcoholism. Friends came to Westerly from New London and returned there with him on Saturday evening. New Haven Railroad Police Sergeant David Marks of New London arrived in Westerly on a noon express train and made investigation of the reported suicidal attempt.

Westerly people with Boston relatives were given some concern on Friday evening when word was received from New London police that a 15 year old girl, giving the name of Ethel Harris, and residing in Roxbury was detained at the New London police station for investigation. Accompanied by an Italian man who could not speak much English the girl was held on the charge that she might fall into the ways of vice and her companion for enticing. She gave the New London police the name of a Mrs. Atkens, whom she claimed was her grandmother, living in Westerly and whom she was to visit when hooked by the man to continue with him to his home in Philadelphia. The Westerly parties whom the Westerly police reached did happen to have relatives ni Boston and a long distance call [illegible] put through with the reassuring result that the granddaughter in question answered the call herself. Later the girl in New London broke down, changed her story, saying she had escaped from a school to which she will be returned. The young man was permitted to depart when the investigation was [illegible]eted.

WESTERLY HOSPITAL BENEFACTOR DIED SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 28—Charles Avery Morgan, 71, Westerly philanthropist and engaged in the insurance business since 1876 at his office, 16 Broad street, died suddenly Sunday morning at 2.15 o'clock at his home, 12 Elm street, from a shock. On Saturday he visited his office and that afternoon was present at the T. E. club, Westerly's oldest social organization, in which he was the chief moving spirit.

Mr. Morgan was born in Groton, the son of John A. Morgan and Susan A. Pendleton Morgan, on October 22, 1855. He attended public schools in public schools in Pawcatuck and Westerly and entered the insurance business in 1876, a successor to Milan Greene. In his early life he was a devotee of all outdoor sports, hunting, fishing and boating. He was an active member of the Farm Island club, which was located on an island in the waters of Little Narragansett bay. At the time of his death he conducted the most extensive insurance business in Westerly.

At the time of the inauguration of the Westerly hospital he donated $100,000, in securities to the institution, retaining only a life interest in the income from them. He made similar gifts of securities to Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, F. and A. M., of Pawcatuck and to Westerly lodge, No. 878, B. P. O. E.

He was the last representative of the Morgan family in Westerly, two brothers, Dr. J. Howard Morgan and Henry Morgan and also two sisters, Harriet, Mrs. Charles P. Cottrell of Westerly and Phebe, Mrs. John Slater of New York, having preceded him in death. He was twice married and had no children. His first wife was Clara T. Rogers to whom he was married, February 22, 1888, and who died December 25, 1911. His second wife was Mrs. Martha C. Anderson Hall of Chicago, who died in October 1918, and to whom he was married about two years previous in New York city.

Mr. Morgan attended the Calvary Baptist church and he held membership in Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, F. & A. M., of which he was a member of the finance committee for a number of years. He also held membership in Palmer chapter, No. 28, R. A. M., of Pawcatuck; Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly and Palestine Temple A. A. O. N. M. S., of Providence and Westerly lodge, No. 878 B. P. O. E.

Fourteen months ago Mr. Morgan suffered a shock which left him partially paralyzed and about three weeks ago a second slight attack. Arising Sunday morning he sat on the edge of the bed and with an exclamation fell backward dead.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer: Nov. 27, Michele Olbanese to Natale Parrone and wife, Maria, certain tracts of land with buildings thereon standing, Lots Nos. 106 and 107, plan of Central park.

Attorney and Mrs. Louis W. Arnold returned on Sunday to Brooklyn, N. Y., after being the Thanksgiving vacation guests of Mr. Arnold's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Arnold.

L. Ward Alger, wife and daughter Miss Betty B. Alger and guests were visitors Sunday at Beaver river valley, where they visited the family of George E. B. James, at Jamesford.

Miss Dorothy Langworthy of Butler, accompanied by friends, Miss Crofoot and Miss Burdick, were Thanksgiving vacation guests of Miss Langworthy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Le-Verne Langworthy.

Funeral services for James Jessiman, well known Westerly cabinet maker and carpenter, were held at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon from the Charles H. Gavitt home, 46 Granite street. The services were in charge of Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church of which Mr. Jessiman was for many years a deacon. The bearers were Lewis Stanton, William D. Howard, Fred N. Burdick and Everett Barns. Interment being made in River Bend cemetery.

Mrs. Henry Havens was hostess on Friday evening at her home on Jay street to a party in honor of Mrs. William Owens, formerly Miss Martha Babcock of Avondale, R. I.

William T. Ahearn, accompanied by the Misses Mary and Alice McSweeney, motored to New Haven on Sunday afternoon. Miss McSweeney returning to her duties as a nurse in Waterbury.

A reception from 3 to 6 o'clock on Saturday afternoon was held by Mr. and Mrs. Newman F. Tuckerman at their home, 102 High street, in observance of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Miss Marjorie D. Barber returned on Sunday to resume her duties as a teacher in the high school in North Attleboro, Mass., after being the Thanksgiving vacation guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram W. Barber, in Westerly.

Pullman Train Conductor Joseph T. Crowley arrived in Westerly Sunday morning on the New England express from New York to be the guest of relatives and friends in Pawcatuck.

Mrs. W. E. Jordan arrived in Westerly on Saturday night from her home in Providence to be the guest of her aunts, the Misses S. Ida and Clara Crandall in Westerly.

Miss Marion M. Kelsey and friend Miss Madeline Rinker of Cambridge, Mass., returned to Boston Sunday afternoon, after being the week end guests of the family of Isaac G. Smith in Westerly.

Max Novogroski was a Westerly visitor in New London on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Nathan B. Lewis of Kingston, R. I., was the Thanksgiving and week end guest of Mrs. Elizabeth R. Chester in Westerly.

Miss Annie MacDonald after being the guest of relatives in Westerly, returned on Sunday night to her home in Babylon, L. I.

Flavored with brown sugar, molasses and sugar cured prime pork

For the first time . . . .

Beans with that true "woods" flavor -- produced until now only by the "bean hole" method of baking beans in an earthen oven by logging camp cooks in the north woods

Beans in pioneer days were most always baked in outdoor earthen ovens.

But new conditions of living made it either inconvenient or impossible for people to continue preparing them the outdoor way.

Only in Maine has the custom persisted because Maine people, particularly the lumbermen, cling to the tradition of preparing beans by the one method that develops the finest of all baked bean flavors. There beans are still baked in the outdoor oven called the "bean hole."

It may be truly said that genuine "bean hole" flavor has never been equalled until this creation by Van Camp.

Try this wonderful new product that reproduces this baked-in-the-ground, cooked-out-of-doors flavor in baked beans and you will never want any other.

The very shape of this big-bellied iron pot accommodates itself to the pile of hot coals heaped over it and the beans are baked evenly and thoroughly on both sides, top and bottom, baking through and through the last layers of beans and pork on top as thoroughly as the first layers on the bottom.

DANIELSON

MUST APPEAR IN COURT OF RESULT OF AUTO SMASH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 28.—Arthur Turcotte of this place has been ordered to appear in the town court to answer to a charge of violating the motor vehicle laws as the result of an accident in which his car was in collision with one owned and driven by Waldo Wood late Saturday night on the state highway at the bridge over the river in Attawaugan. The Wood car was overturned in the crash and blocked the highway, traffic being held up here for a considerable time. State Officer H. Y. Stresmens checked up the affair. Mr. Wood complained during Sunday of an injury to his hip. Mr. Turcotte was not hurt in the accident.

Mrs. Delia Maynard, 59, wife of Joseph Maynard, died Saturday at their home in Plainfield. Mrs. Maynard was a native of Canada. Besides her husband Mrs. Maynard leaves two daughters, Mrs. James Whittaker and Lucilla, two brothers, Adolph Gauthier of New Bedford and William Gauthier of Central Village and two sisters, Mrs. A. Masse of New Bedford and Mrs. E. LaPage who is in California.

The annual report of the commissioners of Windham county shows a combined deficit in administering the county home for children at Putnam and the county jail in Brooklyin of $14,008.49 this year. This, however, is not unusual, and is due largely to the fact that a large amount of revenue the county once enjoyed from licenses is no longer available. The total of expenditures at the county jail in the year covered by the report were $16,328.47. The revenue at the jail, including $6,150.82 received from the state for the board of prisoners, was $8,134.85. This left a deficit of $8,193.62. The total of expenditures at the county home was $25,750.54, and the revenue $19,935.87, the bulk of these receipts coming from the state for board of the children there.

The report shows that the total assets of the county are $144,181.77, and the liabilities (outstanding orders) $39,800. Included in the assets are the county jail and county home property, valued at $100,000, personal property of a value of $35,535.20, at these institutions, $6,000 county law library and sundry incidental items.

His ingenuity in repairing what would generally be regarded as junk Ford motors is attracting much attention to Willoughby Young of the neighboring town of Foster. Old motors that he has picked up for practically a song have been repaired, rigged to devices needed to serve Mr. Young's ends and are humming merrily away, furnishing power for his sawmill, for shingle and box making machines and for operating an electric lighting system for his home. Mr Young is a genius in tinkering up these old motors so that they will function at a high standard of efficiency, furnishing him dependable power at low cost.

REV. H. W. GAYLORD WILL BE INSTALLED ON TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 28. — Dean Charles R. Brown, of Yale Divinity school, who comes to Danielson Tuesday to preach the installation sermon of Rev. Harding W. Gaylord at the Westfield Congregational church, is one of the foremost preachers and religious leaders in the country. As a writer, a lecturer and notably as a pulpit speaker, he is known and admired by great numbers of people. Those who have come into contact with his personality through his books his sermons and his work at Yale, have learned something of his directness of thought, of his facility and force of expression, and of his earnestness and devotion to things that are nigh. Dean Brown knows how to present his message in a way that is attractive and appealing. His sermons possess humor, vigor, sparkle and always an undercurrent of serious purpose that is never lost upon the hearer. People do not accuse him of being "uninteresting".

The service at which Dean Brown will preach Tuesday will begin at 7:30 o'clock and will be the second session of the ecclesiastical council called for the purpose of installing Mr. Gaylord. The first session, which will convene at 4 o'clock, will review the proceedings of the Westfield church in connection with the call which was extended to him some months ago, will pass upon his credentials, and will listen to statements from him concerning his religious experience and religious belief. Following this, there will be an opportunity to question the candidate for installation, and then the council will take a vote upon the matter of installing him.

After the afternoon session, a recess will be taken for supper, which will be served to members and guests of the council by the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Westfield church at 6:30 o'clock. At the evening session the program will include the following parts, in addition to the sermon by Dean Brown: Invocation, Rev. William C. Prentiss, of Plainfield; scripture lesson, Rev. James G. Graham of Windham, a fellow-student of the Westfield minister at Yale Divinity school; soprano solo, Mrs. Harold S. Atwood, soloist of the Westfield church; prayer of installation, Rev. Sherrod Soule, D. D., of the Connecticut Missionary society; right hand of fellowship, Rev. James A. English of Putnam; charge to the pastor, Rev. J. Howard Gaylord, brother to the Danielson minister of Branford, Connecticut; charge to the people, Rev. William S. Beard of New York; a word on behalf of sister churches, Rev. Roger C. Stimson of the Methodist Episcopal church of Danielson; benediction, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord. A processional and a recessional will be sung by the girls' choir.

Both sessions of the council will be open to all who are interested. It is expected that the 7:30 session especially will attract a large audience. It is the wish of the committee and of the Westfield church to share with the entire community the fine program that has been arranged.

Deputy Game Warden Gurdon E. Withey was in Plainfield Saturday seeing about disposition of the carcass of a deer that was killed by a train.

Miss Madlyn Cronin, student at Mt. St. Vincent's college, New York, has been spending the holiday recess with relatives in Danielson.

Rev. Fr. Garrigan, member of the Oblate order of the Immaculate Conception, opened a mission Sunday evening at St. James' church for the English-speaking members of the congregation. The mission is to continue for one week.

Evening school students will resume sessions this evening, after a brief respite from study over the holiday period. Likewise the schools of the town open again this morning after having been closed since last Wednesday.

With the darkness of night prevailing it was a strange experience for Danielson radio fans to listen to the broadcast of the final period of the Army-Navy game at Chicago Saturday afternoon.

Business men are being subjected this fall to an epidemic of visitations from strange solicitors, begging money for one thing and another, projects mostly entirely unrelated to this community or contributed to through local mediums.

A hunter who took a deer illegally paid a fine in a justice's court in Ashford the past week, the cost to him being about $30. He also lost the good supply of venison that was to be part of his winter rations.

Newly elected officers of Killingly grange are to be installed on the evening of Jan. 17.

Because of the election of officers there is especial lively interest in the meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange to be held with Highland grange of South Killingly next Saturday.

Danielson's drive for Christmas business will get under way this (Monday) morning. Buying will be materially speeded up, it is anticipated, by the release within a few days of scores of thousands of dollars of Christmas club money to hundreds of members of Danielson's three clubs. It is estimated that this money will amount to more than $100,000.

At a session of the town court Saturday morning, Homer Hubert was sent to jail for 60 days for non-support. Hubert exhibited only slight outward interest in the proceedings.

A Boston paper has been featuring and picturing the fact that a certain athlete can pick up a basketball with one hand, all of which brings to mind that Antonio Longo of this town and a member of the Connecticut Aggie football team can do the self same stunt.

The mercury went down to 12 above zero Sunday morning and put a sheathing of ice on the surface of small bodies of water all through this territory, bringing a promise of skating in the near future.

Attorney Warren D. Chase was reported seriously ill at his home in Southington, having suffered a heart attack, which came as a surprise to his relatives and friends. Attorney Chase has been poorly for some time but the new development was entirely unexpected. He is a son of Mrs. Charles Chase of North Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Head and children, after spending several days with Michael Head and family of Academy street, motored to Norwich Sunday for a visit with relatives before returning to their home in Winsted.

Members of Quinebaug lodge of Odd Fellows of Danielson and members of Protection lodge of Central Village are to be guests of the members of Israel Putnam lodge at Putnam Tuesday evening. Each of the visiting lodges will present candidates for the third degree, to be conferred by a team of Protection lodge. A social hour will follow the degree work.

Rev. Harding W. Gaylord preached at a service at the Congregational church in South Killingly Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wellington E. Bitgood returned Sunday evening from their wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Depris and Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Depris were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ducharme.

Miss Ethel Congdon, who has been making her home here for several years, has returned to Ekonk.

An abundance of white owls are reported from various places across the Rhode Island border, and the presence of so many of these owls continues to be a subject of discussion among men interested in the inhabitants of the woods.

TWO RECEIVE BROKEN ARMS PLAYING FOOTBALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 28—As the result of football on Thanksgiving day there are two patients at the Day Kimball hospital, and in both cases fractured arms were received after being tackled. Wade Chubbuck, eleven year old Mechanicsville boy with his brother was playing football and tackling each other when Wade fell and broke his arm near the shoulder. At the hospital it was found that his arm was also severely cut. The other boy was Bailey Hall, fourteen years old, a student at the Rectory school at Pomfret and son of Mrs. F. H. Hall of Stamford. His left elbow was dislocated when he crashed to the ground after being tackled in an impromptu game of football. Both boys are doing well.

Mrs. W. F. Rafferty, Cortland Arnold and Willis Carroll provided turkeys for the Thanksgiving menus at the Day Kimball hospital while Charles Bove provided fruit and nuts for the dinner.

The funeral services for Howard Edward Seder, the 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seder of Putnam and Boston were held in Boston Saturday afternoon. The child has been a sufferer from an incurable disease almost since his babyhood and has been under the direct supervision of many eminent surgeons in Boston and New York for several years. He died in a hospital in New York where he has been for a number of months. He is survived by his parents and one sister, Marion Seder.

Miss Dora Bonin of Putnam, Miss Dorothy Chapman of Pomfret and Miss Mable Farquhar of Pomfret Center, all students at Bay Path institute at Springfield, Mass., are at home with their parents over the holidays. They return on Monday morning to their studies at Bay Path.

Chandler Morse, son of Attorney and Mrs. Ernest C. Morse of this city has received his second "Major A" in football at Amherst college. He has playe dleft end on the Amherst team in every game this season, in the "all little three" teams, as named by the sports editor of a Springfield newspaper, he is placed as left end on the second eleven.

Funeral services for Mrs. Cora Davis, wife of the pastor of the Methodist church at East Thompson, Rev. George E. Davis, were held in East Thompson Friday afternoon and the body taken to Tarrytown, N. Y., on Saturday for burial.

NO PUTNAM LASSIES POSSESSED SMALL FEET

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 28—The dance given by the Headquarters company and billed as a Cinderella dance drew a large crowd. It was announced that the lady with the smallest foot would be given a prize of a pair of shoes. Joseph Rivard was to be the judge. The contest was to be decided at an intermission but when it was announced that the time had arrived for contestants to go to the judge's stand, no one was ready to exhibit their feet. After a wait of 15 minutes the judge decided that good feet predominated rather than small feet and dancing was resumed. The Ideal orchestra of Webster furnished music, and was pronounced excellent.

Deacon Henry Trowbridge of Eastford died at an early hour Friday morning from the infirmities of age. He was 89 years old and practically all of his life had been spent in Eastford. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Walter Lamphear, pastor of the new Community Congregational church.

William Aldrich and Emile Branek, the two Putnam youths who set out on Labor day for the west coast in an automobile have returned to their homes in this city. They went as far as St. Louis, Mo. At Bloomington, Ill., the car in which they were making the trip turned turtle and both boys were seriously injured. Young Aldrich was at first thought to have been fatally injured, but both boys were in the Bloomington hospital for more than a month. After leaving Bloomington they again started west and went as far as St. Louis. They felt that they were in no condition to carry out their plans so sold the car and came home by train.

At a party given at their home on Grand View, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Pratt announced the engagement of their daughter Ruth E. Pratt to Donald F. Gibson of this city. Little Miriam Saretski, dressed in two large card board hearts, passed around little cards announcing the engagement. Both of the young people are well known here, having been employes of the First National bank for several years and of the Citizens National bank since its opening. Mrs. Gibson is

America was discovered by a man who'd try anything once.

We Know that Old Gold is a better cigarette.

We Know that it is the smoothest and most satisfying cigarette ever parked between a pair of lips.

But the proof is in the smoking.

How can we "make good" our claims if you won't test them fairly with your taste! Here's what a fair tryout of Old Gold will prove to you:—That a cigarette can have plenty of punch without any punishment. That it can have all the aroma and fragrance in the world without taxing or tiring your tongue or throat. That you can smoke it morning, noon or night . . . as many as you like . . . with maximum enjoyment and without regret or after-effect. Now we leave it to you, Sir:—Isn't it worth a few cents to make these great discoveries?

LAKES TO THE OCEAN

It probably isn't going to be any easier to get a decision on the waterway to the Atlantic from the lake region than it has been to dispose of Muscle Shoals, but that doesn't prevent study and consideration of the merits of the respective routes.

According to the report of the joint board of engineers there is no complete agreement on a plan, although it is agreed that such development is feasible but the advocacy of the idea of enlarging the canal across New York state and the known opposition in Canada to the St. Lawrence scheme has broadened the field of discussion. It is no longer the St. Lawrence that is getting attention, although there are those in the lake region who will listen to nothing else.

The St. Lawrence plan involves joint development and a sharing of the costs by the two nations. That has its attractions even though such a waterway would be open for only part of the year. But Canada doesn't take kindly to the expense or to the detrimental effect which it is believed will result to the prestige of Montreal as a port. The opposition doesn't see why it should contribute to the relief of the lake region of the United States even though it would increase the importance of the St. Lawrence for shipping purposes.

On the other hand the canal across New York state is being boosted because it will be entirely within the United States, subject to our full control and would deliver the midwest products to an Atlantic port much quicker than in any other way. The season might be a little longer.

Two objections heard are that it will cost much more money, the reason certain engineers have opposed it, and that the expense will all have to be borne by this country. But if it does cost more money and is entirely paid for by this country it would not be dependent upon any sanction by the province of Quebec and there would be no chance of disagreements concerning the policy of operation after it was constructed.

Whatever the decision is, at such a time as a decision is made, it should be reached only after a careful consideration of the respective merits of the two propositions. The costs, handicaps and advantages of each can be arrayed and balanced against the other. It is too big a matter to determine by snap judgment.

NAILING A STORY

There is always a lot of guesswork in regard to administration plans, or what it is likely to do under certain circumstances. Only a short time ago it was heralded about that Senator Fess was going to, or should, succeed Senator Butler as the president's spokesman in congress.

There was nothing to it but talk but it has received such circulation that the president found it necessary to brand it absolutely false out of justice both to himself and Senator Fess. Senator Butler will not sit in the senate but he will remain as the chairman of the republican national committee just as he has been doing. As for getting his views before the senate or the house it is to be realized that the president has been in the habit in the past of conferring with any or all of the senators as situations required, and of doing the same with members of the house.

It is to be realized that the majority party has its leader in each house and it is not to be expected that the president is going to go over the head of the senate or house leaders when there is no need for creating just such friction as that would cause.

As for the national chairmanship there is no reason for any change Senator Butler, relieved of his duties as senator from Massachusetts, will have more time to devote to this work which will become more and more arduous as the time for the next election approaches. The choice of national chairman rests with the president. The election result has developed no cause for a change and the chairman is still as ready to serve as he has been in the past.

It would have been easy to set forth all kinds of inferences as the result of a change in the chairman, if it had been possible, but that has been forestalled by the decision that there'll be no change. The choice of Senator Fess might have made possible certain criticisms and attacks, but he hasn't been chosen, so regardless of whatever the attackers may have had up their sleeve the situation remains just as it was. There's no ghost so there's no cause for a ghost scare.

IN THE COAL FIELDS

According to reports conditions in the anthracite fields "indicate a degree of prosperity in keeping with conditions throughout the nation." That means that the miners and those dependent upon the miners such as families and those in business, are wearing smiles these days as presenting a decided contrast to what they did a year ago when everything was flat there and bills were piling up because of the strike.

The change is due to the fact that the miners are working, producing coal and drawing their weekly pay. They are able to meet current expenses and they are gradually catching up on those that were amassed during the strike. That means much to the business houses that were obliged to carry them during the long idle period. Naturally there is cause for the smiles and the bettered conditions.

But the condition that exists this winter in the anthracite fields might just as well have been experienced last winter. There was no good sound reason for undergoing the hardships and causing other people to do likewise. There was no excuse for the stopping of the mining of coal just because some readjustment of working conditions and wages was sought. Had the discussions relative to the same been carried on, and the dispute submitted to arbitration, while coal was being produced householders would not have suffered, miners would not have been obliged to go hungry or cold and storekeepers would not have been handing out credit until they were swamped.

It is possible now to look back and see the folly of the whole affair. The fact that conditions are looking up doesn't mean that the losses have been overcome for that point will not be reached for a long time if ever, but there's an opportunity for remembering that experience and recalling it on any similar future occasion when demands are being made upon miners to quit work. And yet while the miners and others are again experiencing prosperous conditions the consumer still knows that he is being taxed for the cost of their strike.

TODAY'S CONTEST IN MAINE

Maine is the barometer state every year and just now it is the pivotal state, for upon the result of today's election for United States senator to succeed the late Senator Fernald will depend the nominal republican majority in the upper house of congress.

Under ordinary circumstances there would be no question about the result of such a contest, for Maine is still strongly republican, but in this particular contest there has developed certain animosities among the republicans which have threatened to upset the result.

At the 11th hour charges have been made for the purpose of antagonizing republican voters. Attempts have been made to create the impression that Arthur R. Gould, the republican nominee, has been involved in illegal practices, but they have failed to convince the secretary of state before whom they were presented that there was any basis for removing his name from the ballot. Thus the charges have failed and it is not improbable that such an exoneration will react to the decided advantage of the candidate despite the apparent efforts of the opponents to the contrary.

The complicated situation where some of the republicans are working with the democrats to effect a republican's defeat is what creates the only uncertainty, but the republicans of Maine must be mindful of the duty that rests with them to send a republican to represent that state in the senate. Had the charges against the candidate been sustained the situation would have been radically changed. As the result the election today should bring out a large vote.

FARM LEGISLATION

With Senator McNary of Oregon giving notice that he is going to devote his efforts in the coming session of congress to pushing through a bill for farm relief he is apparently unwilling to accept the disposition of the matter in the last session. He does concede a modification of what he has previously sought. He will ask for no more than $250,000,000 but he wants a board of 12 members created which will entail an annual expenditure for salaries of $120,000.

From all indication the bill will be framed much after the lines of the McNary-Haugen bill and carry some of the objectional features. Instead of relying upon a farm marketing system or getting the farmers to put their crop raising on a business basis there is, or at least has been, an insistence upon giving them a subsidy. There is an uneconomic stand taken and apparently little regard given them a subsidy. There is an uneconomic stand taken and apparently little regard given to the law of supply and demand, while the spirit of sectionalism sticks out all over it.

It is proper that congress should consider any problem that ought to come before it and to make adequate provision for justified relief but all legislation should be on a sound basis and it is only right to expect that farm legislation will be kept within such bounds.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Olive oil and salt will remove white spots from furniture.

All fried foods should be turned only once—thoroughly cooked on one side before they are reversed.

To keep a teething baby's dress dry tack an ordinary dress shield by the corners on the under side of the bib.

An ordinary steel nut-pick is a handy kitchen tool. It can be used to remove the tops from milk bottles and the rubbers from jars.

Canned asparagus, slices of hard boiled eggs, lettuce and tomatoes served with Russian dressing make a most palatable salad.

Clean piano keys with a soft cloth dipped in alcohol and wipe with the grain of the ivory. Dry thoroughly with a clean cloth.

Physicians say that raw vegetables such as celery, lettuce, tomatoes or onions, should appear regularly on the bill of fare.

To keep hooks on shelves or in cases in good condition, sprinkle occasionally with powdered camphor.

It is advisable to purchase your household linens and cottons of standard makes and you will be more assured of their wearing qualities.

Add half a cup of vinegar to half a pint of water, wring a large clean cloth out of this and go over your carpet with wide strokes. You will be greatly pleased with the improvement in the color.

Always remove fish and meat from the paper as soon as they are delivered. Place on earthenware in a cool place.

Chilled tomatoes stuffed with cooked sweet corn and chopped green peppers make a delightful salad, with lettuce or watercress.

If you want candles to last as long again as usual try the following plan: Take each candle by the wick and give it a good coating of white varnish. Then put the candles away for a day or two to harden. The varnish prevents the grease from running down, and so preserves the life of the candle.

WASHING WALLS

Walls and delicate woodwork may be washed with water added to the and a little ammonia added to the water. Be sure to change the water. As soon as it becomes dirty, and wash every inch of the surface.

TAKE CARE OF SINK

Neglect of the sink causes odors and waterbugs. Keep it at all times free from scraps. After pouring dirty water down the waste-pipe, follow with clean, so that the foul water will not remain in the trap.

SALT REMOVES DIRT

Use a cup of salt when you wash spinach, cabbage or lettuce. All dirt will then be found at the bottom of the pan of water. Also the greens will be more crisp.

A SMOKY ROOM

When a room is full of smoke dip a towel in equal parts of hot water and vinegar and fling it around the room briskly. The smoke will clear out quickly.

COOKING HINTS

Tuna fish salad: One can of tuna, celery and a little cucumber. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

For a change, flavor the sponge cake with one-third cup of orange juice and the grated rind of an orange.

After peeling onions cut a carrot with the peeling knife and the knife will be perfectly free from the taste of onion.

A chopping knife is excellent for mixing fat with dry ingredients, for biscuit or pie crust. If after punching the two holes in the can of evaporated milk, you do not use it all, cover the top with a piece of waxed paper and put a rubber band around to hold the paper in place.

To cut creamery butter into individual pieces, try putting the waxed paper that comes around the butter over the blade of the knife and you will find that it makes a clean, smooth cut.

Boiled food that is scorched may often be removed by dropping a piece of charcoal into the kettle and letting it stand a while.

If your popover mixture is lumpy, when you add egg to the flour, continue to beat with egg-beater, then add the milk, a little at a time, continuing to beat until all is thoroughly mixed.

WASHABLE WALL PAPER

Along with waterproof silk and linen, comes waterproof wall paper—a wall paper that may be washed with soap and water as easy as paint. It is possible now to use gay patterns on the walls in breakfast rooms, kitchens, nurseries and bathrooms, and they are not spoiled by spots or fingermarks.

SOFTEN OLD PAINT BRUSHES

Do not throw away a paint brush just because the bristles are stiff with hardened paint. By a simple process you can make the brush as good as new.

Soak your stiff brush in a little can of gasoline. After it has stood for some hours, depending on the hardness of the paint, the bristles will begin to soften. Take a rough board and "paint" it with the brush, the object being to loosen the bristles from each other. If necessary let the brush soak again in gasoline.

To remove the color of the old paint when the gasoline has softened it wash the brush with soap and water. With this simple method almost any paint-stiffened brush can be satisfactorily cleaned.

If the paint has set too long go to your local paint dealer and ask for a paint solvent.

LUMPY SUGAR

Roll out the hard, lumpy confectioners sugar with a rolling pin. This will make it soft and fine again and will make smooth icing, free from lumps.

TARTAR SAUCE

Can be made at home by adding three tablespoons of finely chopped olives and pickles, one tablespoon of chopped parsley to a cup of thick mayonnaise.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The very latest word in chic is the black coat trimmed with black fur.

Many tassels are seen this year, those of bright wool on jersey being particularly popular.

Very decorative shades are made of printed pongee which comes from a famous textile establishment in London.

The latest version of the pearl necklace has a large crystal bead in the center, with pearls of graduated size on each end.

Afternoon pumps are made of black ottoman silk with discreet strappings of silver leather.

Gilt fur and colored feathers are some of the novelties introduced on French evening wraps.

Medium sized bags of heavy gold and silver embroidery are carried with evening frocks.

Swarms of paste jewels and pearl beads trim the new evening gowns, particularly those of colored chiffon.

Colored furs are very smart this season, and one finds pink, white and mauve ermine coats, where once all was snowy white.

The high oxford which laces over the ankle is most often developed in a combination of black suede and patent leather or kid and alligator skin.

Henna has been eclipsed as a color to some extent by the new reds but as the season advances there is a return to the warm brown tones.

Gold and silver braid are woven into lace-like patterns and are used to edge evening and dinner gowns. They give a particularly interesting hem line on velvet.

SMART STYLES IN FOX FURS

Silver fox, crushed to chin, will not arise another season. So to save their silver fox scarfs, some very smart women have originated the style of wearing them like a bandolier over one shoulder, with the head and tail in front. In the middle of the back, where the scarf crossed the shoulder of the wearer, is pinned a large white artificial flower forming a striking contrast against the glossy skin.

DECORATIVE SCREENS

As unusual as it is beautiful is a three fold screen of parchment paper with exquisite Japanese prints set into each fold. Delicate traceries of cherry blossoms in black hold the prints together, giving the effect of a painting.

TO CLEAN TAPESTRIES

Tapestries may be cleaned easily with a soft brush and suds of a mild soap. Shake the dust out first. Use as little water as possible and pat out as much moisture as you can before hanging in open air.

SEWING HINTS

Buy three times the length of that which is to cover, when buying material for box plaiting. Frills take two and a half times as much material.

To fasten off an eyelet so that it will not ravel work the last three stitches slightly loose, then run the needle back through them. With the point of the needle draw them up firmly and then fasten the thread first. Cut off the end closely.

Use a small steel bodkin for joining the seams of a sweater and you will find it makes a neater job than a large-eyed needle.

ONE - HOUR ROMPERS

A one-hour romper! What a boon to the hurried mother to be able to make a romper for her toddler in an hour! "With the aid of a machine binder and the one-piece romper pattern," says Miss Marion L. Tucker, state clothing specialist of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, "a simple romper takes no longer."

Instead of laboriously made placket and buttons, she advises binding the placket edge with the binder. When, binding the neck, extend the binding strips beyond the placket and use them as ties. The sleeves and the lower edges may also be bound. Sew up the two side seams of this one-piece romper, add a belt with two buttonholes or put two buttonholes in the extension flap on the back, and the garment is done. It is easily put on, easily taken off, very simple to wash and iron, and it doesn't take much material. It is attractive when made up in lovely soft, fine chambray or made from one of mother's worn house dresses and bound with a bit of color.

Making buttonholes with a binder attachment requires five steps. Miss Tucker gives them as follows: (1) Take a strip of cloth as wide as the finished buttonholes are to be apart and bind it along both sides. (2) Cut crosswise into strips half an inch wider than the buttons that are to be used. (3) Stitch the strips together. (4) Stitch one side of this strip to the garment and then (5) bind both sides. The strip may be stitched to the garment and bound at the same time.

Buttonholes can be made in no time with the binder and they wear like iron. This type and the snap fastener have almost replaced the old-fashioned worked buttonhole that takes so much tense energy. Such finishes as facings, pipings, pockets for girls and pockets for boys, decorative stitches and applique may decorate these simply made rompers but they will take them out of the "one-hour class."

SURE TEST OF WOOL FABRIC

There are a number of clever methods for disguising the fact that material is not all wool. But, here is a sure test that will reveal the information about all-wool or cotton-and-wool mixtures.

Obtain a sample of the material in question and touch a match to a corner of it. If it is woolen, it will burn slowly, have a decided odor (like feathers burning) and will leave a crisp ash.

The cotton-and-wool mixtures burn quickly, with a flame, leave no ash and have scarcely no odor while burning.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Rosa Steinklauber, of Eggenberg, Austria, is a first-class blacksmith and cartwright and can shoe the most refractory horse.

Mrs. Edward Webster, aged 72 years, of Darlington, Wis., is just cutting her third set of teeth. Already four molars have made their appearance.

Olive Pixley of Los Angeles, Cal., only woman naturalization examiner in the United States, was recently empowered to take depositions.

Victoria Drummond, first woman to be granted a sea-going engineer's license by the British Board of Trade, is a god-daughter of the late Queen Victoria.

In an effort to diminish the number of accidents due to careless driving, Turkey has passed a law forbidding women under age to drive automobiles in Constantinople.

HARMS VARNISH

If alcohol is spilled on varnish, wash immediately with water or pour on oil.

FRESH AIR

The careful housekeeper airs the dining room before and after each meal, and keeps the odor of food banished as completely as possible.

RECIPES

Chocolate Cornstarch Pudding: 1 1-2 squares melted chocolate, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1-4 teaspoon salt, cup milk, teaspoon cornstarch, cup sugar.

Mix dry ingredients, make into thin smooth paste with a little milk. Add to heated milk in top of double boiler. Add melted chocolate. Stir to prevent lumps. Cook twenty minutes. Add vanilla and pour into molds rinsed in cold water. Chill, serve with cream or whipped cream.

Cranberry Roly Poly: Here is a variation of the berry roly poly that is such a favorite dessert in summer and fall:

One pound flour, nearly 1 pint suet chopped fine, pinch of salt.

To one pound of flour allow one pint water. Free the suet from skin and shreds, chop extremely fine, rub well into flour, work the whole to a smooth paste with the water. This crust is usually rich enough, but if a richer one is desired, use one-half to three-quarters pound of suet to each pound of flour. Roll crust to one-half inch thickness, spread with cranberry sauce evenly, leaving small margin of crust without any. Roll it up, fasten the ends securely and tie in a floured cloth, put the pudding into boiling water and boil two hours. Serve with or without a hot or cold sauce.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Desecrating the Flag

Mr. Editor: Thanksgiving eve they had a dance in Odd Fellows' hall, a masquerade. One of the women had a flag draped on her for a dress. If that is not desecrating the flag I should like to know what is.

When any one does such a thing as that they should not let them in the hall if they are patriotic.

A PATRIOTIC WOMAN.

Norwich, Nov. 26, 1926.

Kind Words

Mr. Editor: As we are all giving thanks at this time of year, I wanted to tell you how thankful we are for a good newspaper. We like the condensed items of news on the first page of The Bulletin. For busy people they are just right size to read through quickly and keep abreast of what is going on in the world. We like the poetry, jokes, and useful knowledge. I cut out and save all the poems, jokes and kaleidoscope. I paste them in a blank book. We like the page devoted to kitchen, styles, bed-time stories, letters by readers, etc. We like the wide awake page. And the social corner page is the best of all. I do all the cross-word puzzles, so you see there is nothing wasted and all these blessings for the price of a postage stamp, two cents. Long may The Norwich Bulletin live and continue the features as at present.

Yours sincerely,
A READER.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Biography and Portrait

There is an obvious similarity between the biography of a great man by a great man and the portrait of a great man by a great artist. The National Portrait gallery in London makes real to us the men who have been England's glory in peace and war. No one can leave it after looking on the faces of Gladstone and Tennyson and Sir John Franklin and the hundreds of others who scorned delights and lived laborious days without having a higher estimate of humanity and being nerved to new efforts, and we may obtain the same effect in a more detailed manner by reading the best biographies.

The number of great men who are alive at any one time is small, and they are too much occupied to see any but those who have important business with them, but we may study them at our leisure in their biographies, and go over the events of years in a few hours.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Henry L. Stimson, who is prominently mentioned to suceed Gen. Leonard Wood as governor-general of the Philippines, is a prominent New York city lawyer who was secretary of war in the cabinet of President Taft. Mr. Stimson is of a well-known New York family. His cultural training was received at Yale and Harvard, and his professional training at the Harvard Law school. Settling in New York, he allied himself with strong legal firms, and built up a reputation that led to his selection, in 1906, as a federal district attorney. During the three years he held this office he made a brilliant record as a forceful prosecutor of offenders in high places. Without his having any special care for the honor he was enlisted as the republican candidate for New York governorship in 1910, but was defeated. During the war he was given charge of the intelligence bureau of the war department.

Stories That Recall Others

"You Would"

Joe's sister has been retorting to all the family opinions with "You would, you are just the type."

Joe was playing marbles with his playmate who said: "Joe, I'm going to shoot with your moon agate."

Just Cause For Murder

What's the use? A woman recently made a trip to her former home, where she had not visited for at least 20 years. In preparation for this home going she bought a lot of new clothes, among them an expensive hat, of which she was very proud.

So imagine her surprise when, on the very first day of her visit, she met an old acquaintance, a man, of course, who greeted her with this remark, "I knew right away it was you; I remembered that old hat you used to wear."

YOUR HEALTH

DRESSING THE SMALL CHILD

John Faux Douglas

There is nothing that will do more to make a child self-conscious than to send him among other children in clothes that are obviously unlike theirs. A boy is especially sensitive if he is wearing something extremely different from what the other boys wear.

I remember the first day my younger brother went to school. He was dressed in a little velvet suit he had been wearing for best. Mother, unthinkingly, put it on him so that he might start to school well-dressed. She never had any idea that she was subjecting him to the ridicule of the other small boys who were less elaborately and, probably, more sensibly clothed. That afternoon he came home very much out of sorts because he had been teased so much about his suit. As a result of mother's mistake his whole first week was [illegible] miserable. Although he went the second day dressed like the others, they teased him quite a bit about his first costume.

It is as bad to dress a child too poorly as too extravagantly. Some children do not like to complain about their clothes and as a result wear those that are not quite as good as the others wear even though there is no question at all with regard to the parents' ability to pay for them. I know that I hesitated to complain when I was a small lad for some reason or other.

Little boys dislike to go in corduroys if the others of their age are wearing cloth suits; little girls dislike to go in ginghams if the others are wearing something they think a little better.

I knew one small boy who was distinctly b-o-y. His mother forced him to go to school in curls. Probably much of the time that he spent there he was unhappy, and for no reason at all except that his mother liked curls on little boys of his age. Imagine the amount of ridicule that he went through, and the number of "scrape" that he must have had to defend the curls that he hated.

A mother will do well to watch other little boys the age of her own son to see what they are wearing. When very young it is usually customary for the little fellows to wear hats; when slightly older they wear caps. Generally, they are old enough for a cap when entering kindergarten, but that depends a lot on the community.

Some well-meaning mothers dress their children different from the rest for fear that their children will look commonplace, and be "ordinary" children. There is little danger of a child being an "ordinary" child just because he wears clothes of the standard type. If he is going to be a leader, and not one of the "ordinary" children, he will show it in the usual way, by excelling in some activity such as debating, athletics, or the school chorus.

"Different" clothes will tend to prevent this. On account of them the child will be likely to hesitate to mingle with the others and may become what they will call "queer."

A group of naturalists is urging that birds of prey have good qualities and should not be slaughtered at the present rate.

Addressed Hospital Senior Class.

Attorney Edmund W. Perkins recently talked to the senior class at the W. W. Backus hospital on "Law As It Affects the Average Citizen." Appreciating the interest there should be in the subject, the alumnae were invited to attend, many accepting the invitation. All agreed that Mr. Perkins cleared up many misconceptions of the law, as well as giving much useful, interesting information.

OBITUARY.

Miss Mary St. John Rudd.
(Contributed)

Wednesday morning last Miss Mary St. John Rudd passed from the friends, the life, and the home she had made beautiful here, to the larger fellowship of the friends and home in the life beyond. To the friends who love her she still lives and as long as their life is, will be an abiding influence. Nobleness and purity of character are unseen but not unfelt, an influence in all the life about them, in church, community and town. Through the activities of her life first in the home and then reaching through service, church and community, her life has grown out to all the world, many have been led to Christ and joy brought into lives far away. It has been said of another "this kind of living pays." The destinies of religion and the church are held in such a life as that of Mary St. John Rudd. When with her one felt the nobility of her character, something fine, a courage and power, an influence, a stimulus that came from what she was in herself, and—this was the source of her abundant life and power. Thus what she was added beauty to every deed of service. Her life was the life of a positive Christian, her service along the lines of God's leading instead of her own inclination.

To sisters and friends there need be no sadness of farewell but joy that our Father gave us this friend—to help through the dark places and lighten sorrows that are ever a part of this life.

Teresa Falman.

After an illness of three days the life of Teresa Falman, six year old daughter of Joseph and Anna Falman of 126 Dunham street, came to a close at 5.30 o'clock Friday afternoon. She was taken ill on Tuesday afternoon with appendicitis, failing to rally through the operation.

She attended the Elizabeth street school. Besides her parents she leaves two sisters and two brothers, Elizabeth, Anna, Joseph and William.

Teresa was of a sunny disposition and her family has the sympathy of many friends.

Switchboard At Backus Hospital.

The installation of a new telephone system, with a switchboard, has just been completed at the Backus hospital and different members of the hospital staff are learning to become switchboard operators. It is expected that the change will give both the public and the hospital better service, but the hospital authorities ask the public to be patient for a day or two until those at the switchboard become fully proficient in its use. The new telephone numbers of the hospital are 466 and 467.

THREE INJURED IN SPECTACULAR AUTO COLLISION AT TAFTVILLE

Two cars were reduced to complete wrecks, a woman and child cut and bruised and John Sullivan of Taftville, son of Timothy Sullivan of that village received a broken collar bone and suffered cuts and abrasions, when the big Studebaker touring car driven by Sullivan, who is deaf and dumb, crashed into the Jewett sedan owned and driven by Clifford Norman of Roswell avenue, at a point about 200 feet south of the Jewett City road, above Taftville station at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

In the car with Mr. Norman were his wife and four year old child, both of whom were injured by flying glass, while Mr. Norman escaped without being injured. The injured were taken into a nearby house and were treated. Mrs. Norman having a badly wrenched back. Injuries to the Norman party were caused by flying glass, when the windshield was broken by the motometer of their car being snapped off by the force of the blow and flying back through the windshield.

Sullivan was found lying between the rear wheel of his car and the telegraph pole he had narrowly escaped hitting head on. It was necessary to force up the rear fender of the car to free him. Blood was flowing from several cuts and bruises and Dr. George Thompson was called from Taftville, treating the young man and afterwards sending him to his home in the village. Sullivan was found to be suffering from a broken collar bone and cuts and abrasions about the head and body. It is not believed that his injuries are of a serious nature.

Officer Frederick O. Johnson of the state police was called from the Groton barracks and conducted the investigation. According to Mr. Norman, who was on his way to attend church at Taftville, he was headed northerly on the road and saw the Studebaker approaching some hundreds of feet distant. On reaching the Jewett City turnoff the approaching car was driven far over to its left hand side, to avoid collision with a car which had suddenly turned out from the road side to make a turn into the Jewett City road.

Sensing that an accident was likely Mr. Norman started to turn to the left but another car ahead of the Studebaker made this impossible so he pulled sharply to the right, going far over onto the trolley tracks and off the highway, bringing his car practically to a standstill.

The Sullivan car struck the Norman car on the right hand front spring, ripped off the bumper, smashed the radiator and forced the right front wheel far back, smashing the wheel. The hood of the Norman car was folding back, windshield broken, side glass smashed and the back seat ripped from the body. The force of the blow whirled the Norman machine around, leaving it facing toward the city.

Sullivan's car, after striking the other, veered to the left and went down a bank, sideswiping a freight car on the railroad siding and jammed in between a telegraph pole and the freight car. The Sullivan machine, was wrecked, the fenders and dashboards being ripped off steering wheel snapped, front wheels pushed back about three feet, top smashed in and the axles and base of the motor broken.

Measurements taken by Officer Johnson showed the Sullivan machine had travelled over 200 feet after turning out to avoid the other car and that it had continued for forty feet after hitting the Norman car, no evidence showing that brakes had been applied.

Sullivan's injuries prevented questioning at this time but it is believed that he had become confused after turning out and lost control of his machine. Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Norman are first cousins. Mr. Norman has had the machine only a month and had no insurance on it. Mr. Sullivan's car is covered by insurance.

BACKUS HOSPITAL FINDS RATE CHANGE NECESSARY

A change in rates at the Backus hospital, which is an advance over what has previously been charged, has been decided upon by the hospital trustees and the new rates are to apply from the first of December. These have been adopted, it was declared in a statement issued at the hospital Sunday night, after careful consideration of the financial needs of the hospital and a thorough analysis of the charges made in similar institutions. Few people realize, the statement continued, that under the present rates no patient in the hospital is paying full per capita cost, which is $5.26 per day.

It is the hope of the trustees that the increases made will materially reduce the annual deficit, which last year amounted to $11,000. This deficit has been due to two causes, viz: the increased cost of operating the hospital under the conditions that have existed in recent years and the large amount of charity work performed for patients unable to pay.

The funds so generously contributed by the public in the recent drive provide for the nurses' home, for the remodeling of the old nurses' home, and leave some remainder to be added to the funds of the hospital. Increases of income from other large gifts, the continued support of many friends, and the valuable aid of the Women's auxiliary, will soon enable the hospital to balance its budget, the trustees hope, without impairing the permanent funds so essential to the institution.

The new daily rates adopted are as follows: Public wards, $2.50; semi-private, $3.50; private, $5; private maternity, $5; public maternity, $2.50; baby's board, 30 cents; delivery room, $5; isolation ward, $3; isolation private, $5.50; children's ward, $2. A schedule for operations has also been adopted as follows: Major, private, $10; ward, $5; minor, private, $5; ward, $2.50; tonsils and adenoids, $5; anaesthesia, $5; gas and oxygen, $4; accident room, $3 to $5, according to work.

BRINGS $25,000 SUIT FOR INJURIES BY BUS

Through his father, Marcel Bielecki of Norwich, Charles Bielecki, 14, has started suit against the New England Transportation Co., a subsidiary of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, seeking damages of $25,000. The claimant alleges that on Feb. 5, 1926, while on his way home from school, accompanied by other boys, he was hit by a motorbus owned by the defendant company. The accident happened on Central avenue, near Second street. The complaint alleges that the boy's pelvis was fractured, his right knee badly lacerated and has become stiff, so that he has been unable to use it since the accident. Negligence on the part of the operator of the bus is claimed by the plaintiff.

BAMFORD SHOWS BENEFIT FROM BLOOD TRANSFUSION

Blood transfusion for Thomas Bamford of Hanover was performed at the Backus hospital Sunday morning, and it was reported later in the day that he seemed to have benefitted considerably as a result.

Bamford has three bullets in his body from a pistol fired by his wife at their home three weeks ago, and his condition has been critical since then.

WEDDING

Legros—Thetreault.

An attractive wedding took place Monday morning, Nov. 22, in St. Mary's church, Baltic, when Leo Legros, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Legros, of Baltic, and Miss Maryrose Thetreault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thetreault of Hanover, were united in marriage by Rev. W. T. O'Brien of Baltic. The bride was gowned in rose georgette, trimmed with silver shelled beads and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Ida Thetreault, sister of the bride, wore yellow georgette and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. The bride's gift to the groom was a white gold chain and the groom's to the bride a pearl necklace. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a white gold dinner ring. The best man was Leo Lacroix who received a fountain pen from the groom. The wedding breakfast was served to 60 guests at the home of the bride. The bridal couple left in the afternoon. They will spend their honeymoon in Boston and Fall River. Many useful and beautiful gifts were received such as a bedroom set, checks, gold pieces, silverware, all kinds of cut glass, wool and linenwear and many good wishes for their future happiness.

DAVID LANMAN VAN BUREN, DIVORCED, TO MARRY AGAIN

Of interest to his Lanman relatives and to many in Norwich society is the announcement that Judge and Mrs. W. Fenton Myers of Amsterdam, N. Y., have made known the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Wheaton Myers, to David Trumbull Lanman Van Buren of 145 East Fifty-second street, New York. The wedding will take place late in January.

Miss Myers attended Miss Conklin's school. Later she studied at the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts. Her work in sculpture has received wide attention.

Mr. Van Buren is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brodhead Van Buren of New York and a grandson of General Thomas B. Van Buren, minister to China under President Grant. He is a great-grandson of Joseph Earl Sheffield, founder of Sheffield Scientific school at Yale.

Mr. Van Buren and his first wife, the former Miss Mathilde Saportas, daughter of Mrs. R. Brown Saportas, of New York, were divorced in Paris in January, 1924. She is a granddaughter of the late Martin Brown, one time the city printer of New York. They were married at the Plaza in June, 1920, when the bride was 17 and Van Buren was but 21.

Mr. Van Buren spent most of last winter at Palm Beach. He is a brother of Mrs. Harold C. Richard of 340 Park avenue, New York, whose husband is president of the State bank.

His parents were occasional visitors in Norwich with their cousins, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Camp Lanman whose hospitable home was the present Vignot residence, facing Chelsea Parade.

CRASHED INTO ABUTMENT AT ANDOVER UNDERPASS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 28—One woman believed to be Mrs. Oscar Forand of Norwich was quite badly injured shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday night when the Ford sedan in which she was riding jammed into the stone abutment of the Andover underpass of the New Haven railroad. Considerable difficulty was found in tracing the facts relative to the accident. A call was sent in to St. Joseph's hospital here for an ambulance but when the vehicle arrived there the injured woman, who was said to have been bleeding profusely, had been taken in the direction of Hartford in a private car.

People who gathered at the scene of the accident said that the car had been occupied by a man, the woman and a small child. It was believed that the party had gone to the Manchester hospital but a call there only brought the statement that no injured persons had been admitted there during the night. An apparent attempt at secrecy was made, as the accident was not reported to Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink or the state police authorities having jurisdiction in Andover. The car was hauled away, presumably in the direction of this city, during the night.

Given the registration numbers of the car which were reported as L-2675 Sheriff Frink communicated with the motor vehicle department Sunday and found that the owner was Oscar Forand of Norwich. At this point he turned the investigation over to the state police. The highway was strewn with glass.

GIRLS FRIENDLY BRANCHES HEAR ALASKA SPEAKER

Eighty members of Girls Friendly societies representing Christ church and St. Andrew's church of this city, Groton, Yantic, Plainfield and Danielson, gathered at a New London archdeaconry meeting Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the guild rooms, St. Andrew's church, this city. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Chester Dimock of New London. The principal speaker was Miss Eola Clark of Plymouth, this state, a returned missionary from Alaska. She told of the work of St. Mark's mission, near Fairbanks, Alaska, and asked for continued interest and support by the Girls Friendly societies. Reports were made by delegates to the recent conferences in Manchester, N. H., and Hartford, and Miss Florence Maxson of New London, spoke on self-government in branches and on programmes for the year's work.

The arrangements were made for future archdeaconry meetings of the societies and the next meeting will be held in March at Danielson. At 5 o'clock the society members gathered for even song at the church. Rev. Robert B. Day and Rev. L. R. Richards conducted the service and the address was given by Rev. John Rees Jones, rector of St. Andrew's church. Rev. Mr. Jones spoke on the importance of the Girls Friendly society and its place in the forthcoming bishop's crusade. The offertory taken was for the church and mission work in Alaska. Following the service St. Andrew's Friendly society served refreshments.

CHRISTMAS SEALS TO AID TUBERCULOSIS FUND

The little Christmas seal has again made its appearance and with it the announcement that the war against tuberculosis is still on, says the weekly health bulletin issued by the Connecticut state department of health. The bulletin continues:

For nineteen years this little penny seal has been a power for good. Spread broadcast over the country, from it have sprung some 600 hospitals and sanatoria for the care of tuberculosis patients—preventoria and sanatoria for the care of those exposed to tuberculosis at home, nutrition classes for underweight children whose frail bodies might be a prey to the tuberculosis germ, many of these in connection with open air schools of which there are approximately 1,000, and nearly 13,000 nurses for instruction in personal hygiene so that homes may be kept intact while one member successfully fights tuberculosis and keeps it from spreading to the other members of the family.

Year by year the work of these health agencies has been extended, curative work has been carried on, more and more patients with tuberculosis have been placed under care earlier, and the public has been instructed in those preventive measures which form a protective armor against tuberculosis.

The five tuberculosis sanatoria in Connecticut are under the direction of the tuberculosis commission, these being located at the following places and known as Cedarcrest, Hartford; Undercliff, Meriden; Uncas-on-Thames, Norwich; Laurel Heights, Shelton and Seaside, Niantic.

Connecticut with these, in some 25 towns, are clinics for the examination of suspicious cases which makes possible an earlier diagnosis which may result in complete cure. Local work is carried forward by tuberculosis associations which combine curative and preventive work with increasing emphasis on the latter.

The Christmas seal sale makes a large contribution to this extensive health work, for 85 per cent of the amount collected remains in the local community for this purpose. To show that results are being effected the tuberculosis death rate in the state is decreasing, the low point of 75.5 being reached in 1925 from all forms of tuberculosis. Tuberculosis can be and is preventable. Each community that stands back of the Christmas seal sale stands back of the tuberculosis program in the community and the state.

E. C. POWER CO. EMPLOYES TRANSFERRED TO HARTFORD

Seven employes of the Eastern Connecticut Power company have been transferred to the new office of the company in Hartford and will begin their duties there this (Monday) morning. The new office is located in the United States Security Trust building, corner Main and Pearl streets, Hartford. While the general accounting department will leave the city the remainder of the company's offices and other departments will remain at the Norwich office.

The employes who have been transferred to Hartford are the Misses Ruth Fitzmaurice, Olive McKelvey, Myrtle McCord, Agnes Bresnahan, Eleanor Donovan and Jonathan L. Johnson and Richard L. Peale. Edwin A. Harris, secretary and treasurer of the company, and Robert W. Perkins, president of the company, will have offices both in Norwich and Hartford and will divide their time between the two offices.

The accounting department has been moved to Hartford, together with the same departments of the Connecticut Light and Power company of Waterbury and the Bristol and Plainville Electric company, all three being operating branches of the Connecticut Electric Service company. The reason for the transfer is to obtain greater efficiency in the accounting department which will be made possible by the consolidation of these departments in the branch office in Hartford.

TWO MINOR ACCIDENTS AT WILLIMANTIC LAST NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 28.—In avoiding a collision with a Nash sedan operated by Armand Vailleres of this city, which was making a sharp turn from Jillson Hill to Pleasant street at 9:30 o'clock this evening, Herbert W. Sweet of Lebanon drove his Oldsmobile touring car onto the sidewalk and head-on into a stone wall at the corner of Park and Pleasant streets. The touring car was quite badly damaged. The drivers agreed to a settlement and so notified Traffic Officer Arthur Hurley who investigated.

The second accident occurred when an Essex coach driven by Emil J. Weyer of this city and a Hupmobile sedan used as a public service car, and driven by George H. Morin, Jr., also of Willimantic, collided with some damage at the corner of Bank and Main streets at 10:30 o'clock tonight. Morin, it is claimed, had the right of way and Weyer agreed to settle for the damage.

THANKSGIVING CANTATA WAS FINELY RENDERED

At the Sunday evening service at the Central Baptist church a good sized audience enjoyed the special musical programme when the Thanksgiving cantata, Song of Thanksgiving (Maunder), was given by a chorus of 12 voices.

The solos were given in fine voice and the chorus presented a well balanced ensemble, the whole making a very pleasing presentation of the cantata.

The singers were the following:

Sopranos, Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., Mrs. James A. Bidwell, Miss Amie March; altos, Mrs. Olive A. Potter, Miss Lucille Howard, Mrs. Herbert Richardson; tenors, Frederick J. Maples, George A. Turner, Robert Gray; basses, Frank Steinke, J. Todd Hynd, William A. Lund.

NO. STONINGTON AUTHOR TO WED NEW YORK GIRL

Robert Stapling, a Civil war veteran, who died last week in New London at the age of 91, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Adeline Rounds Stapling; by five children, Mrs. Ebner Abel and Waldo Stapling, New London; Mrs. Ida Durkee, of this city; William Stapling of Bridgeport, and Mrs. Judson Beanson of Waterford, and by 23 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren.

He was born in Salem.

For Leaving Motor Running.

Reuben Weinstein was fined $10 in the city court Saturday morning for violation of the motor vehicle law in leaving his motor running while the car was standing unoccupied. Friday afternoon he went into a store to get some bundles, the brakes loosened and the machine ran, driverless, from near the Modican Co., store on Main street till it brought up against a pole in front of the Theyer building. No damage was done.

Lectured at Connecticut College.

Professor Chauncey B. Tinker of the English department at Yale spoke at Connecticut college, at New London, on Saturday evening. The lecture was held for the benefit of the Sykes' fund. Professor Tinker chose for his subject, "Hopes For Our Literature."

Taken to Waterbury.

Edward O'Connell, 25, who was arrested here Friday on a bench warrant from Waterbury, alleging illegal voting on October 6, 1925, was taken to Waterbury Saturday morning by County Investigator Ayling, who came here from Waterbury after him.

Plea for Alien Wives

Mrs. Betty Kjelsberg, Norway's foremost woman social reformer, is striving to unite Norwegian and Swedish women in a campaign to bring about freer conditions of entry into the United States for the wives of Scandinavian emigrants. Mrs. Kjelsberg urges that the wives of Scandinavian men in the United States be admitted irrespective of the quota. The formalities of the examination of newcomers Mrs. Kjelsberg declares, should be in the country of departure and not at Ellis Island. It is quite common, she says, that a man goes over to America, makes good and wants his wife to follow him. Owing to the strict limits of the quota he sometimes has to wait several years, a delay that often breaks up families.

FOOTBALL SEASON HAS BEEN ONE OF UPSETS AND RECORD ATTENDANCE

(By the A. P.)

The 1925 football season, closed except for a few farewell inter-sectional gestures, has been notably chiefly for an unprecedented "turn over" among sectional champions and the shattering of all previous records for attendance as well as gate receipts.

The gridiron game has become "big business" and, as a result of one of its most stirring campaigns, clinched its place as the most spectacular sport in America, taking its consistently immense drawing power into consideration as well as all its elements of competitive excitement.

Close to 15,000,000 fans, carefully gathered estimates reveal, attended the thousands of contests in all parts of the country while the gate receipts, though more difficult to figure, probably reached the astonishing sum of $30,000,000.

Higher prices for many of the big games, especially in the east, as well as the increased size and number of stadia all over the land contributed to the wave of prosperity which reached its climax with the Army-Navy battle at Chicago, attracting a record-shattering throng of 110,000 and a "gate" of approximately $800,000, both far beyond all previous high marks.

The vastly increasing body of fandom, along with other millions who listened to the games by radio, saw or heard the thrills of a campaign that had many unusual features, even though it did not, perhaps, measure up to 1925 in spectacular feats of individual or team achievement.

It could hardly have had any more sensational climax, however, that the greatest of all Army-Navy classics or, on the same day, the crushing of Notre Dame's national championship hopes by Carnegie Tech in the season's outstanding upset.

In a contest for fifteen sectional championships of varied importance, only four teams were able to defend successfully the laurels they gained in 1925. The most conspicuous of these was the University of Alabama, which lifted the southern conference title for the third straight year, to establish the foremost winning streak now in progress. The others, all in eastern fields were Princeton, triumphant in the last "Big Three" round robin, Amherst, winner of the "Little Three" crown for the second straight time, and "Bo" McMillans Geneva array, champions again in the tri-state conference.

Two more 1925 title holders managed to stay at the top by virtue of ties, these being Michigan, sharing the western conference crown with Northwestern, and the Army, dividing the service spoils with the Navy.

In the crashing downfall of champions, the most conspicuous were Dartmouth in the east, the University of Washington on the Pacific coast, Missouri in the Missouri Valley conference and the Texas Aggies in the Southwestern conference.

Out of the melee, a complicated national championship situation remains, with Alabama, Stanford, new champion of the Pacific coast and Lafayette, the only eastern team unbeaten or untied, apparently holding major claims to honors. These three are the only major elevens with clean slates. The atmosphere for two of them may be cleared, however, if Stanford and Alabama go through with their proposed New Year's day battle at Pasadena, California. Carnegie's elimination of Notre Dame has taken the edge off the intersection clash of the Hoosiers with Southern California next Saturday, a game which previously loomed as an important title test.

It is difficult to leave either of the service elevens out of consideration, observers believe particularly the Navy, which won eight straight games against some of the most formidable opposition in the country before being tied by the Cadets, who previously had lost to Notre Dame.

Taking all elements into consideration, the Navy eleven that crushed Michigan and conquered such powerful teams as Princeton, Georgetown, Purdue, and Colgate seems to many critics to be entitled to as high rank as any other team.

Nowhere did the season produce a strong set of title contenders than in the east, Lafayette stood out, but it did not meet any of the other championship claimants such as the Navy, the Army, or Brown, whose "iron men" swept all opposition aside until tied in their final game by Colgate.

Ties and victories by one point margins featured many of the most exciting and crucial encounters. Stanford clinched the Pacific coast crown with a 13-12 victory over Southern California, the runner up, Michigan kept its western conference slate clean by beating both Ohio State and Minnesota by single point margins. Even Alabama had its close call, beating Sewanee only by 2-0 in the south's biggest form reversal. Such classics as the Army-Navy, Penn-Cornell, Boston College-Holy Cross, Syracuse-Colgate, Washington & Jefferson-Pittsburgh and Colgate-Brown games, all were deadlocks.

Geneva, which conquered Harvard and gave Cornell a scare, shared the "Giant Killer" distinction with Carnegie. Besides whipping Notre Dame, 19 to 0, Carnegie upset Pittsburgh, 14-0, only to suffer defeats at the hands of New York university and Washington & Jefferson.

Disaster stalked in the paths of many elevens usually among the greatest. California's Golden Bears failed to win any one of their five big coast conference games while Chicago lost all five battles with western conference rivals. Dartmouth, from national title heights in 1925, was tumbled to defeats in all four of its big games.

Yale lost four straight before beating Harvard.

The season was marked by the break-up of the east's historic "Big Three." Princeton severing relations with Harvard because of the apparent bitterness of undergraduate feeling. The Army's relations with Syracuse also were ruptured after a game at West Point marked by unusual roughness and an attack on the referee by the Syracuse quarterback.

Field goals came into their own as decisive weapons—putting the foot back in football—as the success of forward passing attacks waned, for the most part.

Navy, Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Cornell scored several of their biggest victories with field goals, Brown and the Navy exhibited the two most conspicuous forward passing games, where such attacks flourished among a dozen major elevens in 1925.

Complicating all American selections, the season produced many new stars but few outstanding enough to pick up the mantles shed by such backfield satellites as Red Grange, Ernie Nevers, George Wilson, Eddie Tryon, "Peggy" Flournoy and others of 1925 fame.

The pendulum of inter-sectional gridiron supremacy, which has swung sharply toward the east since 1924, shows the colleges of the Atlantic seaboard enjoying a decisive margin over all other sectors in this feature of competition.

With Carnegie's defeat of Notre Dame supplying an unexpected climax the east's record for the regular playing season shows 29 victories, 14 defeats and two ties.

Sixty one games, a record inter-sectional total, figure in the following table of results.

East	x	0	15	0	14	29	.674

LAFAYETTE'S RECORD IS MEST WITH BROWN SECOND

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Lafayette alone of all the eastern colleges came through the 1925 football season undefeated and untied. Thursday saw Brown ousted from the head of the parade by a tie with Colgate after sweeping to nine straight victories. The breath-taking deadlock of Army and Navy Saturday in the final play of the year at Chicago, smudged the Middle record after a string of eight wins. Army had been defeated earlier in the season by Notre Dame.

In achieving an unblemished record, Lafayette smashed through nine opponents for the greatest point total in the east, 330, a figure to challenge that of any major eleven in the country. Georgetown, with 308, had the only other offensive to exceed the three century mark.

The table of wins and losses, points scored and opponents' points, in the final standing of the leading eastern elevens, follows:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.	Op.

WILSON ELECTED CAPTAIN OF ARMY FOOTBALL ELEVEN

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 28—(AP)—Harry E. Wilson of Sharpsville, Pa., tonight was elected captain of the Army football team for next year. The election was held aboard the special train carrying the team from Chicago to West Point.

N. J. Delaney of Reading, Pa., was elected manager for next year.

Wilson has three letters, for football, basketball and lacrosse. He is 23 years old and formerly attended Sharon, Pa., high school and Pennsylvania State college.

Before entering West Point, Wilson, known to the Cadets as "Light Horse" Harry because of his sensational gallops through rival lines, was an outstanding star at Penn State, when he was chosen for All-American honors. The season of 1927 will be his last at the academy and his seventh varsity football campaign.

Wilson's sensational work in the Army backfield this season was capped by a remarkable showing against Navy Saturday when he scored nine of the Cadet points with a touchdown and three drop kicks for points after scores. Wilson's showing boosted his individual point score to 95 for the season, giving him second place in the ranking behind Wilson of Lafayette. The battering Cadet gathered 13 touchdowns in the campaign just closed and proved one of the finest drop kickers in the east by adding 23 points after touchdowns.

ROGER'S TEAM WILL PLAY AGAINST GRANGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—Charley Roger's professional football team, gathered for a barnstorming trip after the flashy Pennsylvania back played his final college game against Cornell Thanksgiving day, is scheduled to meet Red Grange's New York Yankees here next Sunday.

In announcing the contest, Charles C. Pyle, sponsor of the Yankee outfit in the American league, declared that the strict rule of the circuit, barring the signing of college stars before the graduation of their class from school, would not prevent the meeting. Pyle pointed out that Rogers had organized his own team and had no connection with the professional league.

MIKE WILSON TAKES HIGH SCORING PLACE IN EAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—"Mike" Wilson, Lafayette's sensational sophomore halfback, today sports the high point scoring crown of the east for the season of 1925.

His total of 120 points, gained by 20 touchdowns, was 25 better than "Light Horse" Harry Wilson of Army could muster and broke the record for regional scorers set at 103 in 1925 by Eddie Tryon, Colgate flash. Mike's total represented more than a third of that gathered by Lafayette in marching through nine opponents to an undefeated season.

Harry Wilson's spurt of nine points against Navy Saturday after Mike's season had closed, carried the Cadet ace to 95 and gave him a leeway of five points over Williams, of Connecticut Aggies. Lane, Dartmouth star, gathered 81. Wilson of Army made only 12 touchdowns but added 23 goals for extra points to boost his tally.

The high point scorers follow:

SIXTEEN GAMES ON YALE HOCKEY SCHEDULE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 28—(AP)—The schedule of Yale's newest major sport was announced today by Manager C. H. Walker, '27 of New London. Fifteen tentatively 16 games, with two dates reserved for possible meeting with Princeton and Harvard of the two game series with either would result in a tie. The schedule follows:

December 30, McGill at New York; January 3, M. I. T. at Springfield; 8, Notre Dame at New York; 15, Princeton at Princeton; 13, St. Nicholas club; 19, Boston university; 22, Dartmouth; 25, Boston A. A. or Brown; February 5, New Haven professionals; 9, Williams; 12, Dartmouth at Hanover; 14, Syracuse; 16, St. Nicholas club; 19, Harvard at Boston; 23, Princeton; 26, Harvard; March 2, play-off in Madison Square Garden with Princeton if tie results with Princeton or Harvard; 5, play-off in New Haven with Harvard in case of tie with both Princeton and Harvard.

"Larry" Noble of Syracuse, N. Y., Yale's only man to win major Y's in three sports, is captain of the team, which will have available from last year's veterans also Frey, Vaughan and Wheelock, besides Lapham and Knight, prominent on the 1928 freshman team but ineligible last year for the varsity.

HANNEGAN PLAYED AGAINST ARMY WITH BROKEN SHOULDER

CHICAGO, Nov. 28—(AP)—E. A. Hannegan, of Washington, D. C., star Navy quarterback, played nearly the whole game against the Army yesterday handicapped by a broken shoulder, it was learned today.

Hannegan, who suffered the injury in the Georgetown contest two weeks ago, played with his shoulder in a brace.

He was unable, as a result, to use his right arm to any extent, this injury in the opinion of the Navy's coach, W. A. Ingram, was chiefly responsible for Hannegan's failure to tackle either Cagle or Wilson on the long runs which these Army backs made for touchdowns.

ACADEMY BASKETBALL TEAM LOSES CLOSE GAME TO C. F. C. FIVE 42 TO 39

The Academy basketball five, first in the history of the school, opened the season Saturday evening at the Y. M. C. A. court and was barely bested out after a hard fought game by the C. F. C. team of the Central Baptist church. The score was 42 to 39.

The Academy courtsters put up a great game, considering it was their first start and therefore were lacking in teamwork and experience, and did well in holding their more experienced rivals to such a close score.

During the first part of the contest indications pointed to a C. F. C. walkaway for they began to roll up points thick and fast in the opening minutes of play. However, toward the last part of the first quarter the Academy bracketed slightly and succeeded in evening up matters to some extent so that the score at the end of the first quarter was C. F. C. 12, N. F. A. 8.

As the second quarter got under way both teams began to score more freely than before and the score mounted quite rapidly, most of the field goals coming on shots right under the net, very few long ones being attempted. Both teams seemed to improve in their passwork in this period. The score at half time was C. F. C. 20, N. F. A. 21.

After the intermission both teams seemed to show renewed spirit and the play waxed fast and furious throughout the last half. Brown, left guard, for the C. F. C., was continually to cage baskets right and left as he had done all during the first half, rolling up most of the points for his team, while both teams continued to improve in their team work and passing. Capt. Terrington and Pingree did all the Academy scoring in this period. The count as the third quarter ended was C. F. C. 33, N. F. A. 30, the scoring being greater in this period than in the previous one.

The Academy went into the last quarter with a win and came mighty close to passing their opponents. They were showing improvement with each quarter. The N. F. A. kept climbing right up and were at their opponents heels before many minutes of this final period had elapsed. But 3 points separated the teams, 40 to 37 and this situation continued until the last few minutes of play when Jackson caged a foul making the count 40-38 but Brown here clinched the game for his team when he caged a goal bringing the score to 42-38. Pingree chalked up a foul right afterwards, but that finished the scoring for the evening and the game ended after about a minute's play.

Brown, without doubt, was the individual star of the evening with his ten goals from the floor and eight fouls for a total of 28 points. He was the mainstay of his team, many times taking the ball the length of the floor, unaided and dropping the ball through the net for the score. Lambert also did good work for the winners.

Practically every member of the Academy gave stellar exhibitions throughout the evening and the only reason for their defeat was the fact that they were pitted against a much more experienced five and not because of their own playing. Their opponents, the C. F. C., have been playing together for many years and great things are to be expected of the Academy courtsters during the season in view of the fat that they have given the C. F. C. such a tight tussle.

Capt. Ray Terrington showed up exceptionally well at forward and he led his team in number of points scored, amassing 3 goals and 2 fouls for a total of 18 points. Les Pingree, at center, was another who distinguished himself during the evening's play. His floor work was very good and he was responsible for 11 points, on 3 goals and 5 fouls. Cimikoski, at guard, while not being credited with many points showed up in A1 shape by his stellar guarding and much will be heard of him in future games. Jim Fenton, at the other guard put up a nice exhibition of the popular winter sport.

He was responsible for 2 points and 2 fouls and he also should be able to worry opponents before the season's end. "Ducky" Jackson who performed at left forward for the majority of the contest showed the fans that he is quite an adept at the game. After he was injected into the game in the second period he immediately began to put on a fine exhibition, notwithstanding the fact that he rather small of stature.

The N. F. A. squad looked quite classy in their new uniforms of red and white and received quite a little support from the majority of the large crowd present. All indications point to a rather successful season in the first year of the sport at the local school for Coach McKean has a capable squad at hand from which to work.

The next game scheduled is with Torrington High, state champions of 1924. This game will be played at Torrington next Saturday evening. The next home contest is with New Britain high the following week.

Stiff drills are expected to be in order this week when the squad reports today, Tuesday and Friday. Artie Armstrong is expected to join the team this week and his presence should materially strengthen the Academy squad.

TIGERS AND MAJESTICS BATTLE TO SCORELESS TIE

The Greeneville Tigers and Westerly Majestics battled to a scoreless tie in a hard fought game at J. B. Martin park gridiron Sunday afternoon. Frequent arguments marred the play.

The play was in mid-field the greater part of the game with neither team threatening to a very dangerous degree. The Tigers' only real scoring threat came in the second period when Courboin intercepted a forward pass and ran back to the visitors 3 yard line but the local outfit could not gain and lost the ball on downs. Westerly came closest to scoring when, after recovering a fumble the advanced the ball to the local's 12 yard stripe, but after two plays at the line, a forward pass was grounded over the goal line and consequently the Tigers received the ball on their own 20 yard line and kicked out of danger.

Senators Take Lead

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 28—(AP)—The Ottawa Senators went into the lead in the National Hockey league when they defeated the Montreal Maroons, 1 to 0, Last night, six minutes of overtime play had elapsed before Adams, the Senators' right wing, sent the puck from a scramble in front of the Maroon goal for the winning count.

ARMY-NAVY TILT SETS ALL-TIME RECORD FOR SENSATIONAL THRILLS

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The football warriors of the Army and Navy left the scene of their first mid-western conflict today with mingled feelings of regret and satisfaction as they assessed the results of their spectacular 21-21 tie on Soldiers field.

There was satisfaction among coaches and officials alike, that the battle had measured up fully in thrills to the brilliant pageantry that accompanied the spectacle and the record breaking throng of 110,000 spectators that were stirred by it.

But at the same time, it was a hard blow to the aspirations of each team, particularly to the title hopes of Navy.

The fumbled punt by Substitute Fullback Ransford that led directly to the Army's second touchdown and tied the score was regarded by "Navy Bill" Ingram, Annapolis coach, as the "break" that cost his team a victory that would have given the middies probably a stronger claim to national title honors than any other outfit.

On the other hand, Head Coach "Biff" Jones of the Army, pointed out that it was only by a foot that the cadets missed triumphing—for it was by that slim margin that Harry Wilson's attempted field goal from the 26-yard line missed the Navy uprights in the closing moments of the game.

"My boys put up a wonderful battle, and deserved to win," declared Ingram. "Of course, I don't want to take any credit away from the Army's smart play, but that fumble cost us the game."

"It was a psychological "break" because it not only enabled the Army to tie the score, but gave them the impetus for a third touchdown. It was a distinct turning point, without it, I think the Navy ould have won the game by at least two touchdowns."

Ingram paid high tribute to Wilson, characterizing the play of the veteran Army star as "the greatest halfback performer" he had ever witnessed.

Hardwick, Hamilton, Caldwell, Eddy Wickhorst and Shapley were singled out particularly by Navy men for praise. They were jubilant, too, over the performance of Arthur Born, a former backfield substitute, playing his first season as a regular guard. It was Born who "took out" his brother, Charley Born, Army end, and made it possible for Shapley to circle end with the Navy's third touchdown.

The Army coach, Captain Jones, defended his strategy in starting the game with an entire second string backfield and several reserves in the line, a combination which was quickly pushed back for the first Navy touchdown.

"We had figured these men on par with the regulars defensively, at least," said Jones. "I am not sure we would have been able to stop the Navy with any others at the start. You know they scored their second touchdown with our regulars back in the lineup. That Navy attack was the best and most deceptive we've seen."

The Navy's team is hardest hit by graduation. Twenty-one of the 46 Middies on the squad will be lost. Ingram pointed out, among them, all the regulars who started yesterday's game, except Lloyd, end; Hannegan, quarterback, and Schuber, half-back, from Panama, who played his first season of football this fall.

The Army loses two star linemen, in Daly, center; and Schmidt, guard, as well as Harding, quarterback, and such other capable men as Captain "Tiny" Hewitt, who was an understudy to Murrell in his last season; Trapnell, star kicker; Gilbreth, halfback, and Davidson, end.

Wilson, whose home is in Sharpsville, Pa., and E. A. Hannegan of Washington, D. C., are slated to captain next year's service elevens, the elections were expected to take place during the return trips. Next season will be Wilson's seventh and last varsity campaign. He starred at Penn State before coming to West Point.

Except for Perry, Army tackle, who suffered an injury to his leg, both squads came out of the game in good condition. The Middies departed over the Pennsylvania railroad from Englewood at 11:45 p. m., the cadet squad left Chicago at 1:40 on the New York Central.

Mr. Grouse Visits Mrs. Grouse

You'll find that this is true and terse: What happens might have happened worse.

—Mrs. Grouse.

Of course Mrs. Grouse didn't enjoy being a prisoner, for that is what she was. No one enjoys being a prisoner. There is something about freedom so precious that nothing can possibly take its place. But Mrs. Grouse didn't worry. She knew there was nothing to worry about so far as she was concerned. Farmer Brown's Boy had cared for her before, and she felt she would be returned in the Green Forest.

But if Mrs. Grouse didn't worry, Mr. Grouse did. He worried for his own safety and he worried about Mrs. Grouse. Sammy Jay had brought him word about Mrs. Grouse and how she was being well cared for and had plenty to eat. Sammy had said so much that he had made Mr. Grouse almost envious. At the same time, he worried. He missed Mrs. Grouse and he really couldn't feel that it was right that she should be imprisoned. He tried to feel that it was all for the best, but somehow he couldn't. So finally he decided that he would go over and visit Mrs. Grouse.

So it was that just at sun-up one morning Mrs. Grouse heard a familiar voice calling her. My, how she hurried over to the wire through wh'ah she could see Mr. Grouse! She was so glad to see him she didn't know what to do, for she was lonesome. No matter how many other friends you may have, you are bound to be lonesome if you never see any of your relatives.

"What are you doing over here, my dear?" inquired Mrs. Grouse in a low voice.

"I've come over to see how you are and when you're coming back to the Green Forest," replied Mr. Grouse, looking about uneasily.

"I'm doing nicely," replied Mrs. Grouse, "but I haven't any idea when I shall go back there. I'd like to go back this very minute, but I can't."

"Why can't you slip out when Farmer Brown's Boy opens the pen to feed you?" inquired Mr. Grouse.

"I don't want to," replied Mrs. Grouse.

"Don't want to," exclaimed Mrs. Grouse. "I thought you just said you did want to."

"No, my dear," replied Mrs. Grouse. "I said I should like to go back to the Green Forest, but I didn't say I should like to slip out. You see, I don't want to get out, although I do want to get back to the Green Forest."

"Talk sense, my dear, do talk sense," retorted Mr. Grouse.

Mrs. Grouse chuckled softly. "I never was more sensible in my life," said she. "You see, my dear, I cannot fly. The shot from that terrible gun cut the feathers of one wing so that I cannot fly. Some day I shall be able to, but I can't yet. It would be silly of me to go back to the Green Forest, much as I want to go. I am afraid I should not live very long. But here no harm can reach me. I am safe from every kind of harm. When my wing is as good as ever it will be time enough to think of going back to the Green Forest. I don't even have to worry about whether I'm going to get enough to eat. I've been having buckwheat, my dear. Just think of that."

Mr. Grouse sighed. "I wish I had some," said he.

Mrs. Grouse remembered something. "Go around to the other side of this pen," she said. "I think Farmer Brown's Boy spilled a little when he came to feed me yesterday."

Mr. Grouse hurried around. Sure enough, there on the ground was a handful of buckwheat.

Straw Shoes

A large overstock of Panama hats gave an eastern dealer the idea for an innovation in footwear—shoes made of straw — says Popular Mechanics. The uppers are practically all straw save narrow trimmings of black leather. Soles and heels are of the usual shoe material. Besides being comfortable and readily adapted to the shape of the foot, the straw shoes afford the contrast desired in some costumes and are easily cleaned.

TWOOMEY BARN, NEW LONDON, BURNED—DEFECTIVE WIRES ON AUTO BLAMED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 24—A two-story wooden barn owned by Jeremiah Twoomey, rear of 34 Golden street, was gutted by fire of unknown cause this morning, its contents on one floor destroyed, together with an automobile. The damage will aggregate several hundred dollars. Twoomey did not carry insurance on the barn, contents or automobile. The barn was used as a storage place for the New London Glass company, of which Twoomey is one of the proprietors and the automobile was used by Henry Jawit. Ira Watson, an employe of the glass company, occupied the upper part of the building for lodgings. A stove furnished heat for the upper part of the barn, but there was no stove on the ground floor. About 11:15 o'clock the lower part of the barn was discovered to be in flames and an alarm was rung in from Box 251, corner of Golden and Bank street. Because of the mechanism of the box being defective, an irregular alarm resulted and caused a delay of the firemen in reaching the burning building. The flames were attacked with two streams of water and were quickly subdued, but not until a large quantity of glass and putty had been destroyed, together with the tuning gear. The upper part of the building was but slightly damaged, principally by smoke and water. During the work of fighting the fire, Acting Chief Thomas Shipman was painfully injured, a piece of timber striking him on the nose, lacerating the flesh and probably causing a fracture of a bone. It is believed that the fire was caused by defective wires on the automobile for the blaze originated where the auto was parked. Gavitt stated that he placed the auto in the garage late Saturday afternoon and about 6 o'clock he drew the water from the radiator because of the absence of heat in the lower part of the building.

MAN LOOKED AT WIFE'S LEG, PUNCHED BY HUSBAND

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 24—James Guardacosta paid $26.40 in the police court Saturday, because he became offended when Louis Ellonsky looked at Mrs. Guardacosta's leg while she was exposing it in an automobile. That is a strange thing for a man to take offense at in these days, when women are not exactly particular who sees their limbs below the knee, and it was the testimony Saturday that Mrs. Guardacosta did not expose herself above the knee—well not more than an inch or so above. But Jimmy also objected to what he termed the "wise" smiles that Louis gave to him and the "dizzy" looks, whatever those are. After Jimmy paid his fine his automobile was attached in a civil suit for damages, so now he is without a car and he must account to Mr. Ellonsky for the damage he inflicted upon him when he knocked him down or against a building with a punch in the face.

The trouble was ridiculous in the extreme, in the opinion of all who heard the testimony. Guardacosta was having trouble with his car, and had stopped to remedy the faults of the machine. He was at work behind it while his wife was in the car to "choke" it as he said. One leg was protruding from the car and her foot was on the running board so that her lower limb was exposed. Louis came along and stopped to look, whether at the leg or at the manoeuvering of the husband and wife in starting the car does not appear. He was said by Guardacosta to have then given the "wise" smiles and the "dizzy" looks that angered the husband. The man who was having the trouble asked Louis what he was looking at and received the information that Louis was a taxpayer in the city and that he claimed the privilege of looking as he passed along the street. That was the end of the incident there. Louis went along and had gone from Shaw street, where the auto had stalled, to Woodbridge street, when the car was put into operation and Jimmy proceeded. He came upon Ellonsky and getting out of the automobile asked him what he meant by looking as he did. Louis was slow in responding to the query, but he finally found speech and replied as he had previously spoken. Guardacosta struck him in the face and knocked him against a building that saved him from going down. Ellonsky did not think that sort of treatment permissible, so he secured the arrest o' Guardacosta. The merits of the case were presented in court with the result that Guardacosta was fined. He was stubborn about the matter then and said he would not pay, but when told that his course was immaterial to the court and that he would pay or go to jail, he produced the necessary funds to satisfy the law. Then followed the attachment of the Guardacosta car, and the beginning of proceedings that will be still more expensive to a man who did not control his temper and who needlessly became offended. Attorney Lubchansky defended Ellonsky. "Dizzy" looks were that the court might and invited Mr. Guardacosta to demonstrate what "wise" smiles and be informed but Guardacosta declined to demonstrate.

TAFTVILLE MAN FREED OF RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 24—Lieut. Commander James Maher and Elliott B. Grover, of Taftville, each with a party of friends in automobiles were bound from a road house in Waterford, a few evenings ago. When the autos rounded into Bank street from Jefferson avenue they encountered Sergeant Hick and Policeman Clarence Martin. The officers observed that the cars went far over on the left side of Bank street. The officials regarded the speed of the autos as excessive and put after the machines in the Ford which they occupied. An auto was found to be stalled part way up the hill and Sergeant Hick declared that the naval men went to the left of the stalled machine and stepped on the gas so that they hit a pace of 45 to 48 miles an hour. The naval men were followed to the Rotisserie in Waterford where they halted and then were ordered to appear in court for reckless operation of machines. The case came to trial Saturday. The naval men contradicted both Sergeant Hick and Policeman Martin, denying that they were reckless in the operation of the autos. They said the car met on the hill on Bank street was out of control and was backing down the hill. This was not denied. Commander Maher said he went to the right of the machine instead of to the left, as Sergeant Hick had testified. He said he had to increase the speed of his car to get up the steep hill. Both officers denied that they were speeding and said they did not hear the whistle of the policemen sounded. Lieut. Commander Maher called to testify others who were in the cars. Lieut. Reilly, U. S. N. declared that he was in the car and that he was one of the most nervous of men. He said that the car did not "list" nor did anyone in the car feel at all nervous because of the speed. He estimated the pace the car was going in knots and said she was moving at not more than 20 or 25 knots an hour. There was no zigzagging nor was there any manoeuvring for a position at the inn. He and Grover and Lieut. Blake maintained what Maher had said as to the trip from the Maher home on Vauxhall street to the inn. Lieut. Maher acted as his own attorney, questioned the police officers and engaged in disputes with the prosecutor. The court found that the navy men were not reckless and acquitted them.

The police court had an unusual case to pass upon Saturday. It came there from officers of the New Haven railroad and they received the tip from the conductor of a train from Boston that received the night before. The girl is Ethel Harris and she had been an inmate of the Massachusetts state home in Boston. On the train Gaspero Contonguila got into the seat with her and engaged her in conversation with the result that he made known to her that he was going to Philadelphia. He asked her to go along and she accepted the invitation to go as far as New York, she admitted. The train conductor, however, was suspicious and when the train left the girl was left on the platform in New London. Gaspero and the girl were held for the arrival of another train and then were taken to the police station here. The girl's home is in Roxbury, Mass.

Bernard Fabricant was fined $3 for violation of the traffic ordinance. He left his auto in the street so that it obstructed traffic.

The funeral of Robert Staplins, war veteran, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 43 Shapley street and was attended by a large gathering of mourners including a representation of members of W. W. Perkins post, G. A. R. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Comstock cemetery, Montville.

The funeral of Emeline L., widow of James A. Bailey, was held Saturday afternoon at 2:40 o'clock at her residence, 61 Latham street, Groton, and attended by many mourners, among them a delegation of members of Order of Eastern Star. The services were conducted by Rev. Frederick W. Hale. The committal was in Groton cemetery and services according to the Eastern Star ritual.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has ordered that the driver's license of Joseph Poretta, 47 Summer street, be returned to the owner. Poretta formerly operated a public service automobile and in a series of raids conducted by the state and local police, Poretta was convicted of selling liquor. Commissioner Stoeckel suspended Poretta's license, but the order of the commissioner now permits Poretta, to drive privately, but not to drive a public service automobile. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the drivers' licenses of John H. Grant, submarine base, and John D. Anderson, 395 Pequot avenue, suspended.

This afternoon there were but three men awaiting presentation in the police court Monday morning. One of them is Stanislaw Yonkowsky, arrested on complaint of Joseph Sofolowski, 9 Hill street, charged with breach of the peace. Yonkowski is alleged to have attacked Sofolowski and the latter made complaint to the police. Patrolman Frank Philopena arresting Yonkowski.

An automobile bearing New York registration, attracted much attention here for a short time today through the fact that three deer were carried on the running boards. The animals were a part of the capture of the hunsmen and are being carried to New York, where they will be prepared for some feast.

Anthony Picarro, 98 Willetta avenue, was admitted to Lawrence-Memorial hospital early this morning, suffering from injuries which he says he received by being struck by an automobile. Picarro's injuries comprised a laceration of the lower inside left jaw, chin and face. After his wounds were dressed, Picarro went to his home.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters at 1:35 o'clock this afternoon for a fire at the residence of W. D. Higgatt, 244 Broad street. Sparks from a chimney had fallen on the roof and ignited the shingles, causing a threatening blaze. Northwest Hose company and Allen Hook and Ladder company responded and extinguished the fire with chemicals and without serious damage resulting.

The New London police have been requested by the police of Newport, R. I., to be on the lookout for Ida Simmons, a Newport girl, who ran away from her home several days ago and who, it is believed, has come to this city. The girl is described as being 17, about five feet four inches in height, weighs about 110 pounds and when she went away she wore a dark red coat, fur-trimmed and carried a hat, box with the initials, "I. K. S." on one side.

When George Ross, a colored man whose calling is whitewashing, was charged with keeping a disorderly house on Douglass street last week, he declared that he bought booze from O'Brien Roberts, also colored, and that the liquor was the cause of the disorderly occurrences complained of. George was sent to jail where he can use his talents in whitening the cells and Roberts was charged with violation of the Volstead law Saturday the case came into the police court, but there was no evidence except what Ross said of the sale of liquor, and the court decided that it was the word of a man convicted against a man with a clean record so nolled the case against Roberts.

Robert St. Clair, 14, of New Haven, ran away from home, this afternoon and, it is believed, that he will endeavor to enlist in the United States coast guard service. The New Haven police requested the New London police to intercept the boy if he came to this city. In order to prevent the enlistment of the boy in New London the coast guard academy and the coast guard section base, state pier, have been instructed to refuse to accept the runaway. He is described as being about five feet eight inches in height and wore a brown lumberjack and light knickers, but no hat.

Several were added to the list of inebriates who will be presented in the police court tomorrow, the unfortunates being found roaming about the streets this evening. Two of them, John Rooney and Patrick Quigley, besides being intoxicated, were soliciting alms from pedestrians.

A Hudson sedan, in traveling over the Thames river highway bridge between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning, got beyond the control of the driver, a sailor located at the submarine base, plunged through the fence at the Groton approach and down the steep embankment, but did not go into the river. The auto was badly damaged, but the driver escaped injury, other than lacerations and bruises. The auto was pulled back to the bridge approach this morning by a wrecking gang and is now at a Groton garage where an attempt will be made to repair it.

Bradley, Putnam, Orpheum, Danielson

Judging from the line at the box office at the Bradley theater, Putnam, and Orpheum theater, Danielson, Anne Nichols' famous appealing comedy Abie's Irish Rose, which is playing Putnam tonight and Danielson on Tuesday evening, will undoubtedly prove one of the record-breaking attractions of the season, and unless all signs fail, one night's stay would hardly be enough to give all local theatergoers who wish to attend, an opportunity to witness this dispeller of gloom and blues, for it is said that in unfolding the trials and tribulations of Abie and Rosemary, his Irish bride, there are so many hearty, spontaneous laughs that many persons have said "you laugh until it hurts."

The hearty response accorded this wonderfully clean and humorous play is due to its human appeal and its bright and witty lines and natural situations which can be seen and heard by even the unsophisticated without fear of a blush.

The excellent company which Miss Nichols offers in presenting Abie's Irish Rose in this city is that which recently played 11 weeks at the Majestic theater in Buffalo, and six weeks at the Wieting Opera house, Syracuse, besides four weeks in Utica, and comes direct from a return engagement at the Princess theater in Montreal.

Palace Theatre

If the laughter that rocked the capacity audiences at the Palace theatre last night may be taken as evidence, the knockout landed during the opening sequence of "We're in the Navy Now" spells the audiences, final verdict. The whole gamut of the United States navy's comical side is traversed in this superb rollicking photoplay "We're in the Navy Now". As a pair of goofy gobs, the two stars, Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, zig-zag through the navy's intimate life in a riotously funny fashion. "We're in the Navy Now" hasn't missed a single laugh situation. It lands with a punch that will delight every movie fan. Nary a naval comedy situation has been left out of this cyclonic comedy, big battleships showing all manner of ships, hydroplanes and submarines lend a spectacular force. If you remember this funny pair of comedians, in the splendid work they portrayed in "Behind the Front" you will enjoy them much better in "We're in the Navy Now". Owing to the tremendous demand to see this funny comedy, continuous performances will prevail Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The Palace latest topical events and a novelty reel will conclude this great show, that will linger in your memory for a long, long time.

This show will be played at the same popular prices and there will positively be no advances in admission.

Breed Theater

Topping her other splendid performances in a story full of amusing surprises and human touches, Colleen Moore scored again at the Breed theater in her latest First National production, It Must Be Love, which opened to a crowded house yesterday.

There is a pert, yet wistful, air about this star which fits admirably into such a story as It Must Be Love. As the misunderstood daughter of a delicatessen merchant Colleen carried every member of the audience with her in many moods. A droop of the mouth, and many mouths drooped in the audience. A twirl on the toe and a birdlike gesture with the pantomimic hands, and the audience howled with delight.

The John McCormick production, directed by Alfred E. Green, gave Miss Moore every opportunity to display her versatile talent, ranging from deep sobriety to a state of intoxicating hilarity.

Besides Miss Moore's superb performance, special mention goes to Jean Hersholt as the blurf father and Rodil Rosing as the sympathetic mother. Other interesting characterizations were played by Arthur Stone, Dorothy Seastrom, Cleve Moore, Mary O'Brien and Ray Hallor.

PUTNAM

a well known electrician and is now working at Harrisville, R. I. The date of the marriage has not yet been announced.

Wesley Howard, brother of Byron Howard of this city, and a graduate of the Putnam high school was the tenor soloist with the Mendelssohn choir of Pittsburgh when they sang Mendelssohn's Hyme of Praise. The choir was assisted by a large orchestra. Mr. Howard is now a teacher of the voice in New York and at one time had a studio in Hartford.

Miss Ruth Stevens of East Thompson has gone to Poughkeepsie, N. Y. to spend the winter with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Roberts of Providence are the guests of Mr. Roberts' father and sister on School street. Mrs. Roberts was formerly Miss Margaret Smith and was one of the nursing staff at the Day Kimball hospital for several years.

Donald C. Johnson, who is teaching at Providence, is spending the Thanksgiving holidays with his parents, Attorney and Mrs. Eric H. Johnson on South Main street.

Reingford Sherman of Harrisville, R. I. and Roy Sherman of Bridgeport have been spending several days with their mother, Mrs. Walter J. Sherman of Grove street.

Mrs. George W. Gilpatric and her sister, Miss Etta Hodges of Fremont street, have returned from a visit with Raymond Gilpatric and family at New Britain.

Herbert G. Clark and his fiancee, Miss Lee of Middletown, spent the week end with Mr. Clark's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Clark of Walnut street.

Miss Celeste Reeves, commercial teacher in the Essex high school, is spending the holiday vacation with her mother, Mrs. A. R. Saunders of School street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Alden Morse are visiting Mr. Morse's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Byron Morse, Woodstock avenue.

Miss Marion Wilcox of Brown university has been spending the holidays at her home on Farrow street.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Two automobile accidents in Stafford Friday evening were caused by slippery pavements, according to an investigation made by officers from the local state police barracks. A car operated by Frank Grumbeck, of Rockville, skidded on the Monson road and overturned. The occupants of the car besides the driver were Stanley Beckwith, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Yost and Frank Grumbeck, Jr. Mrs. Yost had her left arm sprained and her back was strained, she also received a number of minor cuts and bruises. The other occupants of the car were only slightly injured.

Miss Tillie Carey, local district nurse was called to Staffordville on a case, Friday evening. When she was near the residence of George J. Gary on the Hallow road her car skidded and overturned. She was thrown out and it was at first thought that she was seriously injured. She was taken to Johnson hospital by Eugene Maloney of Springfield, who came along in a truck just after the accident. An examination of her injuries at the hospital showed that they were of a minor nature and she went home Friday night. The car which she was driving was badly damaged.

"It Doesn't Sound a Bit Like Radio"

How often men and women have made this remark while listening to the Grebe Synchrophase! "Not a bit like radio" because it is free from the harsh sounds of reproduction—from the lisping, adenoidal loud speaker utterances.

Grebe tone is clear, true, natural, whether it be voice or orchestra, because the Colortone enables you to vary the pitch of every sound, independent of the loud speaker's peculiarities.

Colortone

All Grebe apparatus is covered by patents granted and pending.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—An irregularly higher movement of stock prices, a firm bond market, lower time money rates, steadiness of cotton futures in the face of another sharp upward revision of the government crop estimate, and a brisk rally in French francs were the high lights of Thanksgiving week in the financial and commodity markets.

While the buying of stocks was of a selective character, it appeared to be largely for the account of pools, who were pleasingly supplied with funds, and had advance knowledge of special developments to come. The public continued to take little part in the week's proceedings. Although irregularities continue in the general business situation, there is a growing belief that retail holiday trade is likely to break all records.

The marking up of the call money rate to five per cent was generally regarded as temporary, and due largely to the heavy withdrawal of funds in preparation for month-end settlements. The relative ease of time money led to hopes in some banking quarters that the New York federal reserve rediscount rate would be cut before the end of the year.

TAFTVILLE

The anthem after the offertory at the Sunday morning service at the Taftville Congregational church was "O Lord, We Beseech Thee" (J. Christopher Marks). In the evening there was the regular meeting of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor in the church vestry. The leader was Miss Dorothy Hunt and the topic discussed was "Christian Endeavor Round the World."

Hundreds of youngsters of the village lined North and South Second avenues and Norwich avenue Saturday afternoon, when Santa Claus made his annual passage through the town on a special trolley. Whenever the car slowed down or came to a stop, swarms of children milled about the old saint in an attempt to tell him their wants or give him notes.

Axel L. Aberg and Miss Helen Aberg of North Third avenue have returned from Taylorville, R. I., where they spent the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Pingree and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hinde and son, Edmund of North Third avenue have returned from a few days stay with friends in Providence, R. I.

Hormidas Gladue and family of South A street are to move to the house on North Third avenue recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Faucher and family, who have moved to Providence street.

Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Blanchette have taken a house on North A street.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Pollard of Block Island, have been guests this past week of Mr. Pollard's father, William Pollard and family, and Mrs. Pollard's father, Thomas Greenwood and family of South Second avenue.

PROVIDENCE SPEAKER HEARD AT THE SPIRITUAL ACADEMY

Two very interesting lectures were given at the Spiritual Academy, Park street, Sunday by Rev. Lucy B. Moran of Providence, and the unusually large congregations listened to the speakers stirring remarks with rapt attention. The evening lecture, "The Power of Spiritual observations," was quite an ingovation in the line of spiritual discourses, and proved of great value to Spiritualists, as well as to investigators along this line. President Chas. A. Dowsett announced the appearance next Sunday of Harriet C. Noyes, and the return engagement of Rev Lucy B. Moran, in two weeks.

WHICH WOULD YOU CHOOSE?

If some good fairy should appear, as they did in the old fairy tales and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose?

Wealth? It's a transient thing that brings its own cares.

Happiness? It's an elusive thing which we keep by giving away.

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy, and surely health is cause enough for happiness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you this priceless gift of better health.

WHEN YOU WANT to put your business before the public, there is no medium better than through the advertising columns of The Bulletin.

PROBE OF GILPATRIC'S ACCOUNTS AS TREASURER COST STATE $6,801

Under extraordinary expenses of the executive department of the state in the year ending June 30, 1926, as shown in the annual report of Comptroller Frederick M. Salmon, are two items amounting to $6,801.74 for investigation and examination of the state treasurer's accounts as the result of the Gilpatric case. The state, under the same account, paid $10,000 to the Connecticut council of the New England conference and $100 as dues for the governor's conference.

Investigation of the Soldiers' home at Noroton cost $747.45 and the coal shortage cost the state $3,137.55.

Expenses for the capitol and grounds amounted to $33,907.71, including $5,836.66 for the towel supply, $2,038.88 for cleaning the windows and $1,484.21 for planting flowers.

Reward For Chapman Capture

Rewards paid during the year, listed under court expenses, included $190 for apprehension of poultry thieves in Bristol; $50 for the same work in East Granby, $6,000 to Fred W. Puckett of Muncie, Ind., for the arrest of Gerald Chapman, $600 which was paid to the New Britain pension fund; $400 to Herbert Flinto and $2,000 to Rocco Strange for the arrest of Joseph D'Angelo, wanted for murder.

$15,182 in Pensions

The state paid $15,182.77 during the year in pensions, $52,410.90 in retirement salaries, $19,429.71 to the Connecticut State Firemen's association, $3,668.20 in aid to discharged soldiers and $14,407.38 as compensation to its employes for injuries, or to others for expenses in connection with injuries to employes.

Taxes and payments refunded, more than twice as large as for 1925, totalled $156,691.63, but included $41,396.15 in refunds to holders of liquor licenses in Fairfield county and $18,582.50 to holders of motor vehicle licenses, both of which were authorized by the 1925 legislature. Other large refunds were: Miscellaneous corporations tax, Acolian Co., $1,489.31; Burr Printing Co., $1,004.66; Collins Co., $1,267.49; Connecticut Sumatra Tobacco Co., $1,964.27; Electric Cable Co., $3,766.85; Peter A. Frasse & Co., $1,462.13; William J. Gilbert Clock Co., $1,065.15; New Britain Machine Co., $5,790.55; New England Engineering Co., $1,035.76; Sperry & Barnes Co., $1,447.68; refund tax on investments, Miller Co., $1,232; New York Trust Co., for Ruth Mills McClave, $3,264.21; succession tax, Robert Franklin Adams estate, $1,128; John B. Cobb estate, $1,528.30; Margaret Discher, $2,288.11; Morton F. Plant estate, $83,382.13; hospital bills for ex-service men, treasurer of the United States, $1,254; patients' board bill, paid by mistake, department of public welfare, city of Bridgeport, $1,795.50.

Moths Cost $50,186.17

The mosquito cost the state $8,992.43 during the fiscal year covered in the report, while diseases of trees were responsible for an expense of $1,919.70, suppression of gypsy and brown tail moths, $50,186.17, while other expenses of the agricultural experiment station, including $676.64 for the celebration of the 15th anniversary of the station, brought its total cost up to $244,073.47. The town of Guilford was most favored in the anti-mosquito work; $183.56 being expended for labor there, while of the ten towns visited in the eradication campaign, Clinton cost the least, only 60 cents.

Regulation of milk and ice cream made up more than half of the expenses of the dairy and food commission, $28,049.84 for milk and $3,647.59 for ice cream.

Motor vehicle markers cost the state $56,688.08 in the period covered by the report. During the same period $1,150 was paid for dog tages.

$31,851.85 Feeding State Police

The 1925 law directing the state to provide a mess for state policemen at each of the barracks resulted in an expense of $31,851.85. Another 1925 law that imposing a tax on motion pictures, resulted in an expense of $2,218.47 for travel and office expenses for the tax commissioner.

Other unusual expenses listed included: Replacement of burned building at the Middletown State hospital, $1,3838.56; chicken farm, Norwich State hospital, $35.46; religious services, Soldiers' hospital board, $407; addition to pigpen, tuberculosis commission, $1,000; pay for convicts, state prison, $21,907.54; Schagticoke Indians, $232.05.

SCHOOL HEALTH SERVICE CUP TO CONNECTICUT

The new school health service cup offered by the National Tuberculosis association to the state submitting the best program of school health examinations, and follow-up work on physical defects carried out during the past school year, has just been awarded to the state tuberculosis commission because it presented the best report of a study of the health service in the schools of the state. This survey, made in co-operation with the state department of education and the local school authorities, pointed out that more than 40 per cent. of the school children in Connecticut received at least one physical examination by a physician during the last school year and that 25 per cent. additional were inspected by school nurses. Other interesting facts revealed by the Connecticut survey were that a large percentage of the towns of the state, employ school nurses who follow-up the physically deficient children, and that as a result, most of such defects are corrected. The dental services in the schools of Connecticut were also of note in the study.

The school health service cup was the gift of Mr. Emile Berliner of Washington, D. C., and it is to be awarded each year by the National Tuberculosis association to that state which provides health service to the greatest proportion of its enrollment of school children. Connecticut is the first state to which the cup has been awarded.

NORWICH BOY ALTERNATE TO ANNAPOLIS ACADEMY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—Senator George P. McLean of Connecticut has forwarded to the war and navy departments for appointment to the United States military and naval academies the following nominations as the result of the competitive examinations held by the United States civil service commission for his candidates on October 23rd. These appointments are subject to the entrance examinations which are to be held in February and April of next year:

For military academy—Principal Carl Fillmore Damberg of Brandford. His alternates are Charles M. Haynor of 20 Foxcroft Road, West Hartford, first alternate and Francis H. Connors of 128 Benham street, Bridgeport, second alternate.

Principal Richard V. Chappell of 51 North street, Milford. His alternates are Leroy W. Keeley of 9 Daly street, Stamford, first alternate and Arthur H. Hogan of 49 Osborne avenue, New Haven, second alternate.

Day of Prayer at Christ Church

St. Andrew's day, which is Tuesday, Nov. 30, will be observed at Christ Episcopal church as a day of prayer and hours of devotion, with eucharist at 10.30 a. m., intercessions at 12 noon, penitential office at 2 p. m., litany at 5 o'clock, special service of devotion for all at 7.30 p. m. The church will be open all day and some one before the altar praying. It is a day of penitence for all churchmen.

Minor Damages in Collision

Automobiles driven by Charles E. White of Broad street, Groton and Frederick P. Backus of this city were in collision near the intersection of the Center Groton highway and the Military highway Friday night about 5:30 o'clock. But slight damage was done to the Backus machine and the car driven by Mr. White was unharmed. The parties involved in the accident agreed to settle the damages among themselves.

SOCIAL SERVICE WORK FOR CATHOLIC PARISH HELP

So many men of St. Patrick's parish headed by the Holy Name society, Patrick M. F. Coleman president, received their Christmas communion Sunday at the 7:30 mass from the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May and Rev. Myles P. Galvin, after confession the previous day, that the rector commended them from the pulpit, before his brief sermon. He suggested that all unmarried young women of the parish join with the Children of Mary society next Sunday at 7:30 in receiving communion.

There was the same large number of communicants at the 9 o'clock mass, which was read by Rev. John J. Reilly, who had the assistance of Father Galvin in administering the eucharist. At each of the four masses of the day a circular letter from Rt. Rev. Bishop Nilan explained the project to aid in the Catholic social service work of the country. This has now grown to be of such magnitude that there is a constant and urgent call for trained workers. The National Woman's Social Welfare bureau has established in Washington a special training center for such workers and every Catholic diocese throughout the United States is being asked to aid in paying off the $300,000 mortgage on its buildings. The project is to make up $600,000 to cover this and to provide a substantial endowment fund. Bishop Nilan estimates that the quota for the diocese of Hartford will reach about $40,000.

There is to be no house-to-house canvass; but special women designated in each parish will call on well-to-do women of the various places, to secure their contributions toward this amount. In announcing the plan at the 9 o'clock mass, Rev. Father Galvin expressed the conviction that the Norwich parish always noted for its generosity, would more than do its share in this matter. The amount required—$40,000 in Connecticut with its 500,000 Catholics—seemed but a trifle. The national welfare body, which has its local branches in the eight counties of this state, looks after charity work for individuals and families, sees to it that dependent children are cared for among people or in institutions of their own faith, provides comforts for the sick and unfortunate and friendless of all creeds, poor and colds in hospitals and homes and refugees and this not spasmodically, but with regular oversight. The Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, Norwich branch, is the local organization of the national bureau.

Father Galvin, after reading the day's gospel, Luke 21, 25-28, referred to the beautiful custom of observing a national Thanksgiving day, to prove it this from country, often absorbed in being devoted wholly to the art of making money, but in reality a more serious intent—setting aside at least one day in the year to public expression of gratitude to Almighty God for His abundant favors. With Catholics all days should be thanksgiving due to that God who has given them above all the supreme gift of faith. When their Father has given them His own Christ's Mother and their mother, He shows upon them His grace to sustain and encourage them here to labor for an eternity with Him hereafter. The only coin in which all these favors can be paid for is gratitude; yet there are self-sufficient Catholics who never give God this homage of thanks, who are really bad debtors, as much to be condemned as are those who incur debts which they never mean to or never can pay, and whom the preacher characterized as little better than thieves. In life, the ungrateful man is despised; the Catholic is no better who receives God's bounty, yet who continues on the "black list," failing to pay his debt of appreciation in humble and continuous thanksgiving.

NOW, TIME TO REPLENISH SANATORIUM HOLIDAY FUND

As soon as the Thanksgiving turkey is well digested, one's thoughts turn toward Christmas, and that means that the sanatorium holiday fund committee begins to get busy on its annual campaign for Uncas-on-Thames.

This fund is one to which invites all to lend a hand; the sky is the limit so far as donations are concerned, but the modest dimes and quarters are also heartily welcomed; for the big sums grow out of the little ones. Uncas-on-Thames is the local sanatorium, and every cent of the holiday fund is spent on the welfare and happiness of those patients within its shacks and four walls. (This money should not be confused with the fund raised from the sale of Red Cross stamps, which supplies necessities for the clinic patients and undernourished children, etc., throughout the city. The holiday fund is used only for the local sanatorium, and the shut-ins there.)

Every holiday from New Years to Christmas, is appropriately observed, with a general happy time for all. Each patient's birthday is remembered, and on every possible occasion there is some good time planned, money for which is always drawn out of this magic fund, which is replenished each year by the generous interest of all Norwich.

The committee bespeaks the sympathy and assistance of all the townspeople, and asks each one to dig down into his or her pocket and bring up something to help the good cause along. These shut-ins are putting up such a brave fight for health, and the holiday fund with its many gay times, helps stiffen their morale. There is nothing like a little helpful sympathy to keep one going, and carrying on, when the path is a tough one to travel.

Miss Mary E. Richards, who, since the death of Mrs. F. A. Byrnes, has carried on the work, has chosen a brave committee to help in collecting. If one prefers, checks or contributions may be sent directly to Miss Richards, at 93 Sachem street. Special solicitors have been appointed to collect in Jewett City, Taftville and Gales Ferry, and attractively decorated red boxes will soon be in evidence in the local stores, with their mute appeal for the fund.

Several contributions have already been received, and as usual, the first out of town check has been sent by Charles F. Noyes of New York, who never forgets this local charity, and for this year doubled his usual generous gift, which seems to the committee a happy augury with which to commence their soliciting.

TO APPEAL ON REDUCTION OF SEWER ASSESSMENTS

Director of Law Thomas E. Troland, of New London filed on Saturday notice of appeals to the supreme court of errors from the recent decision of Judge Allyn L. Brown in superior court reducing the amount of assessments against the Jacobson, Belcher, Griswold, Meadnis and LaPointe properties levied by the board of compensation in connection with the proposed installation of a public sewer in Pequot avenue from School street to the outfall. The director of law's action was a result of his conference with the city council in executive session Friday night in the council chamber. The director of law addressed the council at length, discussing the various phases of the situation and the council committee later voted unanimously to recommend an appeal to the state's highest tribunal.

ROAD CONTRACTS FOR $8,694,339 UNDER WAY

Contracts for road construction and new bridges in Connecticut having a value of $8,694,339 were in various stages of completion on November 15, a financial statement issued Friday by the state highway department shows. This is exclusive of the routine maintenance work of the department. Total payments made on the work to contractors amount to $3,614,190, leaving a balance of $5,070,349 due to contractors which is paid on account as the work progresses.

About one hundred separate construction jobs are involved in the work under construction.

Some of the largest contracts now under way are on various sections of the Boston post road. On the Orange-West Haven section, to cost $422,500; $207,718 has been paid. In Greenwich the post road contract involving an expenditure of $181,815 is fast nearing completion, $106,646 having been paid on the account. Other important contracts are:

Chaplin-Windham, costing $168,100, on which $126,102 has been paid; Canaan, federal air project, cost $179,000, amount paid $104,976; Middletown-Durham, cost $495,000, amount paid $361,371; Danbury, Redding and Ridgefield reconstruction, cost $928,000; amount paid $5,169; Windsor Locks, work in connection with grade crossing elimination, cost $350,000, paid $79,480; Meriden-Middletown, cost $266,500, amount paid $188.00; Norwalk-Wilton, cost, $366,200, paid, $269,510; Waterbury-Cheshire, cost, $281,100, paid $222,903.

Central Village residents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cutler have returned after two months' stay in Oklahoma and other western states.

MILKMAN'S ADMINISTRATOR PRESSES $1,000 SUIT

Judge C. B. Waller in the common pleas court here Saturday reserved decision after hearing trial of the $1,000 damage suit of Richard J. Dudkowski, administrator of the estate of Raymond Cusker, late of Griswold, against Dmytro Feduk of Preston. Attorney John T. Barry represented the plaintiff's side and Attorney Andrew B. Davies the defendant. The plaintiff, Feduk, died Dec. 11, 1925.

Suit was brought on the ground that on Aug. 27 Cusker was driving a horse and wagon from Pachaug to Jewett City when it was hit by an automobile driven by the defendant, demolishing the wagon, injuring the horse and spilling the milk from the wagon.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by the Connecticut commissioner of agriculture.

Market conditions are moderately active after the holiday. Apples move slowly with liberal offerings of windfalls and poorer grades and only moderate demand for the better grades. Oranges are offered more freely and in greater variety but still hold firm in price and cranberries remain steady. Most vegetables continue steady with potatoes a little firmer than early in the week.

Poultry continues steady with the Thanksgiving stocks well cleaned up. Eggs of all grades are easier with a tendency toward lower prices. Butter remains steady and lard is firm.

GAS STATIONS IN STATE SOLD 180,299,653 GALLONS

An automobilist stranded without gasoline on any road in Connecticut would have to walk not more than one and three-quarters miles in either direction to get the all-important fuel if the licensed filling stations in the state were evenly distributed throughout the entire highway system.

There are, according to state motor vehicle department records, approximately 4,000 places in Connecticut where one may buy gasoline. The number at the close of the fiscal year ended June 30 1926 was 3,921. There are 13,524 miles of highways in Connecticut, 1922 improved and 11,602 unimproved, or about 3 1-3 miles of highway for every gasoline filling station licensed.

In the past seven years, the number of gasoline filling stations in the state has doubled. During the same interval, the number of motor vehicles in the state has doubled, with 24,000 to spare. There is, therefore, one filling station for approximately every seventy-one cars.

The quantity of taxable gasoline sold at these stations in the past fiscal year amounted to 180,299,653 1-3 gallons, making the aggregate sales of the average station about 38,000 gallons a year. August was their busiest month, during which 18,443,319 gallons were sold; May came next with sales of 18,-113,478 gallons, and June, with a record of 13,923,266 gallons sold, took third place.

The state collected $2,526,016.03, in taxes, from the sale of this gasoline, being at the rate of two cents a gallon. The money is, according to law, turned over to the state highway department for road improvements and repairs.

Ask Mother or Dad to bring you to his work shop in our large window. Morning hours: 10:30 to 11:30 — Afternoon hours, 3 to 5 o'clock.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN SHEA REACH GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John Shea of White Plains, New York, formerly of Norwich, celebrated their golden wedding at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William McCrory of 45 West 33rd street, New York city on Thanksgiving day. They had a turkey dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shea and family of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shea and family of Beverley, Mass., John Shea of Washington, D. C., Misses Louise and Madeline McCrory, Mr. and Mrs. Cortland Corning of Norwich and Miss Annie Twomey of Mt. Kisco, were present. Many other friends and relatives called later.

Mr. and Mrs. Shea are married in Norwich and resided here until several years ago when they went to live in New York. A large number of gifts was received by them and a purse of $200 in gold was given by the relatives.

Mrs. Shea was Miss Louise Twomy, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew Twomy of the East Side. Mr. Shea was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Shea of Dunham street, Thamesville.

Remembering The Dead

Concluding November, the month especially devoted to prayers and good works in behalf of the dead, there is to be a memorial mass in St. Patrick's church this (Monday) morning for all the deceased priests, pastors and curates, who have ever labored in the parish; also for the repose of the souls of all the departed nuns who have spent so many years of their lives in teaching in St. Patrick's school.

Tuesday, the last of the month, the Holy Name society has requested a memorial mass for all departed members of that organization.

POETRY

Life's Mysteries

From first to last is mystery!
The What? and When? and Where? and Why?
Are question marks that hedge us round
From infancy until we die.
The Nothings of our infant lips
Were questions serious, profound,
As Why is this? and Why is that?
This life? this pain? that light? that sound?

The answers did not satisfy.
These question points surround us still;
They will not down in youth or age.
Death strikes, but these he cannot kill!
He nips the flowers and smites the trees,
All salmation feels the sway;
He robs our cradles, hearts and homes
By stealing those we love away!

Why should decrepit ones survive;
Or young, fair, robust pass away?
Oft smitten like the stalwart oak
By lightning on a cloudless day!
You ask me Why? I do not know!
Nor can the wisest understand;
But this we know, No harm befalls
The life o'ershadowed by God's hand.

We may not know life's mysteries,
Why these things grow, and those decay;
We question "Why" does evil last
And good things sometimes pass away?
Doubt staggers and is sore confused,
Faith finds support, a staff, a rod!
To all her questionings there comes
This answer, "Fear not! I am God!"

"I take thy earth props all away,
Look up, sad heart, and trust in Me!
Thy earthly sky is overcast,
But thou shalt all my glory see!"
What is to doubt a mystery.
To faith is clear, and by and by
Thy chastened soul shall break its bonds
And pass in triumph to the sky!

We see by faith the white-robed throng,
The mysteries of life made clear;
Our mortal vision sometimes dimmed,
Gives way to perfect vision there.
Then let a tide of sorrows come.
It God but holds me in His hands;
Life's mysteries no more perplex.
Enough for me, HE UNDERSTANDS!

—Rev. William Wood.

Leaves

Some winter days I walk among the trees
And trample through the leaves that are called dead.
I love the crispy rustle as I plow
And think of lovely snowtalls just ahead.

To me the fallen leaves are not inert.
They've merely changed their forms to live anew—
A nursing prophecy of Springs to come
With lighted, sparkling buds 'neath early dew,

So, walking on through life 'midst fallen dreams
I shall not feel a loss though forms have changed.
But, in a farther vision I shall see
The perfect plan that Nature has arranged.

SENATE RECORD ADMITTED IN THE FALL-DOHENY TRIAL

Prosecution Regards Admission of Evidence of the $100,000 Transaction as the Foundation of Its Charge of Conspiracy—Will Now Endeavor to Prove That Doheny's Loan to Fall Was a Factor in the Award of the Elk Hills Lease.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Raising over the white bones of the senate investigation into the leasing of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills oil reserve for four and a half hours today, the government presented to the jury in the Fall-Doheny criminal conspiracy trial the main structure of its case against the former secretary of interior and the California oil magnate.

Following a ruling by Justice Hoiling of the District of Columbia supreme court that the senate record was admissable as evidence in the present trial, Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, counsel for the government, read to the jury virtually a complete transcript of Doheny's testimony before the committee. They also read portions of Fall's statement to the committee regarding extension of his New Mexico ranch holdings, while the Elk Hills lease was under negotiation between representatives of Doheny's company and interior department officials.

The reading brought before the jurors evidence bearing upon the celebrated little black satchel in which $100,000 in cash was carried by Edward L. Doheny, Jr. the defendant's son, from New York to Washington in November, 1921. The day also brought before the jury the $100,000 note of November 30, 1921, which Fall gave to Doheny to cover a loan, which Doheny, in his senate testimony, described as an act "befriending a friend in need."

From the senate record also came Fall's letter to the committee in which he said that the $100,000 which enabled him to finance extension of his land holdings had been loaned to him by Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post.

The prosecution regards the $100,000 transaction as the foundation of its case and is ready now to proceed with testimony through which it hopes to show that Doheny's loan to the cabinet officer charged with administration of the oil reserves was a factor in the award of the Elk Hills lease to Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum company of California. Doheny testified before the senate committee he hoped to realize a profit of at least $100,000,000.

E. L. Mahoney, an audit clerk in the comptroller general's office, whose testimony was interrupted by the recess tonight, identified a prosecution exhibit as an expense voucher covering a trip by Fall from Washington to El Paso, Texas, Calexico, Calif., and Three Rivers, New Mexico, between December 1, 1921, and January 25, 1922. Previous testimony, from the senate record, has established the $100,000 cash transaction as having occurred in the Wardman Park hotel here on November 30, 1921, and had identified Three Rivers as the post office address of Fall's New Mexico ranch.

The Fall note went before the jury without the signature, which Doheny had several times informed the senate committee had been torn off and given to his wife so as to avoid embarrassment to Fall in the event of his own death.

After reading Doheny's senate testimony, the government called three witnesses to buttress its case.

Graham Youngs, treasurer of Blair and company, New York bankers, told of the withdrawal of the $100,000 by Edward L. Doheny, Jr., on November 29, 1921, and of the placing of the money in the satchel in which it journeyed to Washington.

Mahoney will resume his testimony tomorrow, after which Assistant Secretary Finney of the interior department, will be called for questioning as to the negotiations which culminated in the Elk Hills lease and the correlated Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, naval base storage facilities contract with the Pan-American Petroleum company.

FORMER EDITOR OF WORCESTER TELEGRAM ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Austin P. Christy, founder and for many years editor and publisher of the Worcester Telegram, was dying tonight at the City hospital of a self-inflicted wound. Late today in his private room in the brokerage offices of J. S. Bache and company here, Mr. Christy fired a bullet into his own body near the heart. Friends said he had suffered reverses recently in the stock market.

Since he sold his newspaper interests in 1919 to Theodore T. Ellis, a former employe of the Telegram, Mr. Christy had devoted much attention to stock market operations, his friends said. Shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon he entered the offices where for some time he had maintained a private room with a ticker. He spoke to E. B. Newton, an employe of the firm, and stepped into his own office. A few minutes later Newton heard a shot.

Christy was found slumped in a chair. In the pocket of his greatcoat, which he was still wearing, was a new revolver from which one shot had been fired. The bullet had passed through the body, crashed through a thick plate glass window behind and fallen in a corridor. At the City hospital, to which he was taken in a police ambulance, it was said that the wound would be fatal.

Mr. Christy, who was 76 years old, founded the Sunday Telegram here in 1884 and the Daily Telegram two years later. Both enterprises were successful from the start. He retired from active business affairs on the sale of the newspaper properties eight years ago.

Born in Morristown, Vt., in 1850, he was a descendant of the fifth generation of Captain John Christy, a pioneer settler of Windham, N. H. He was educated in the public schools of Reading, at Munson academy and Dartmouth college, and read law in Springfield, and after practiced in Marblehead and Worcester.

LUX FAMILY AGAIN WINS CORN GROWING HONORS

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—(AP)—For the fifth time national corn growing honors have been awarded a member of the Lux family of Shelbyville, Indiana. Twelve year old Thomas J. Lux was crowned junior corn king of America at the international livestock exposition today, a title won previously by his two brothers, Frank and Maurice, and a cousin, Victor M. Lux. Thomas' father, Peter J. Lux, twice held the title of "corn king."

Canada regained its laurels when Herman Trelle Wembley, East River, Alberta, won the wheat sweepstakes and title of "Wheat King of North America." Only twice in 18 years has Canada failed to capture the title. L. P. Yates, Fishtail, Montana, won last year.

BECAME TIRED OF BEING A FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Tired of being a fugitive from justice, Thomas Datillo, 27, who has been missing since October 20 when he is alleged to have shot twice at Joseph Cleto after a brief quarrel, tonight returned and gave himself up to an officer.

He is said to have admitted that he was "out gunning" for Cleto.

TO DISCUSS THREATENED RAILWAY STRIKE IN CANADA

OTTAWA, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The threatened strike on Canadian railways will probably be discussed in cabinet council tomorrow afternoon.

In official circles belief is expressed tonight that negotiations will be reopened between executive of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways with officials of the railroad brotherhoods, who, on behalf of 15,000 conductors and trainmen, are seeking a six per cent increase in wages.

DEFENSE RESTS IN THE HALL-MILLS MURDER CASE

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 29.—(AP)—At the end of a day in which the defense rested its case and the state opened rebuttal testimony, Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills case, announced that he is assembling material on which to base a motion for a mistrial.

The prosecutor said that the motion will not be made until the evidence in the trial has been submitted. A mysterious letter brought the announcement of the prospective effort to have a mistrial declared. It was reported that the letter did not contain allegations involving the defendants or their representatives.

The letter was delivered by Simpson to Justice Charles W. Parker and Judge Frank L. Cleary. The prosecutor got it from John J. Underwood, inspector of the Jersey City police department, who in turn received it from Harry Walsh, one of his captains. Judge Cleary, on adjournment of court although he refused to discuss the contents of the letter, said that it had been returned to the special prosecutor.

Mrs. Hall resuming the stand today, proceeded calmly to the end of her cross examination and brief redirect examination over a period of a few minutes more than two hours. She said today that she is convinced of her husband's regard for her at the time of his death.

HOLD-UP MEN SLASHED VICTIM WITH A RAZOR

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Angered because their hold-up of Dwight W. Chapman and Irvin Marvin, both of this city, had yielded them little, two unidentified bandits took revenge tonight on Marvin by inflicting a deep, three inch long slash in his face with a razor.

According to Chapman's story to the police, he was driving along a lonely road in Woodbridge when the motor of his truck stalled. Unable to start it, he telephoned for help and Marvin was sent. While the two were working on the motor, a car with two men drove up.

Leaping from their car, the new comers held up Chapman and Marvin at the points of guns, while one blinded them with a flashlight. The search was unprofitable, and the man with the flashlight took his revenge before they took to their car again and drove off. Because of the blinding light, Chapman said, they could not see enough of their assailants to describe them, nor did they see any markers on their car. The men went toward Waterbury after the hold-up, he said.

JAIL BREAKER CAPTURED BY POLICE IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A police volley stopped William Devens of North Attleboro, wanted as a jail-breaker, when he attempted to run away today after he had been discovered by a searching party in the north end district. Devens was wounded in three places and Morris Green, of Boston, an innocent bystander, also was hurt. None of the wounds was serious.

Devens, arrested as an automobile thief, escaped from the North Attleboro jail in June. Later he was arrested in Providence, and succeeded in another attempt to escape. North Attleboro police officers came here today on a report that the man was in Boston, and Devens was found working on an automobile in a north end garage. The battle followed.

WRANGLE AT COURT-MARTIAL IN COAST GUARD RUM CASE

BOSTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The court martial trying Chief Boatswain's Mate John H. McEnroe, of the coast guard service, charged with trafficking with rum runners, heard no direct evidence this afternoon. Counsel wrangled long over the admissibility of evidence and recalled two witnesses who contradicted each other flatly.

About Mexico's Land and Petroleum Laws

Statement Issued by Foreign Minister Saenz Merely Befogs Already Complicated the Situation.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Saenz today issued a statement in which he declared that Mexico's land and petroleum laws, which have met with protest from the United States, are being enforced without difficulty and that only a few of the big oil companies have not yet announced their intention to comply with them.

This statement has only served to mystify observers here, because none of the oil companies has publicly admitted acceptance of the laws.

Apparently, influences are being exerted so that by Jan. 1, when the time limit for acceptance of the law expires, enough oil companies will have accepted the law to embarrass the American department of state by leaving it in the position of having little left to protest about.

However, this theory seems far from realization. The best available information in the befogged situation, where the principal interests involved—the oil owners themselves—have refused or avoided public declarations, is that the important American oil companies have not yet accepted the law. Some of the foremost British and Dutch companies have, according to apparently reliable information, but this they have refused to discuss.

El Universal editorially calls attention to the significance of "the acceptance" of the new petroleum and alien land law by the foremost British companies," and declares that this points out a path which leads to a solution of the entire oil problem.

The newspaper says that this "acceptance" disproves prolonged foreign arguments (by inference from the department of state at Washington) that the laws are retroactive and confiscatory, because such great British business interests would not accept anything prejudicial to their rights. "All the present difficulty would be removed if the oil companies of other countries would follow the British example, El Universal says.

The Mexican embassy in Washington stated last Friday that it had been advised that all the British oil interests in Mexico, together with an important Dutch company, La Corona, and "some American and other corporations," had accepted the conditions of the Mexican oil and land law.

Officials of the foreign office in London today said that they were unable to confirm this report as far as it concerned British companies, but that they would be greatly surprised if it were true.

SUPREME COURT DECISION ON THE PROHIBITION LAW

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The supreme court added another important opinion today to its long list of decisions which have interpreted what may or may not be done by individuals and others under the prohibition and Volstead acts.

By a bare majority of one and with four justices dissenting, the court held that physicians could lawfully be restricted under the enforcement law to prescriptions of not more than one pint of spirituous liquor to a patient each ten days. Justices Sutherland, McReynolds, Butler and Stone disagreed with the majority.

Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, of New York in behalf of himself and other physicians, had claimed a constitutional right, in the practice of medicine, to prescribe, without limit, spirituous liquors which he insisted were in some cases an essential part of the effective treatment of disease.

The court, in an opinion by Justice Brandeis, declared the 18th amendment had conferred upon congress power to limit the amount of liquor which may be prescribed for medicinal purposes.

Declaring the evidence in the case had disclosed a difference of opinion among practicing physicians as to the value of malt, vinous and spirituous liquors for medicinal purposes, the court said that preponderance of opinion was against their use for such purposes and that among doctors who prescribe liquor there are some who are disposed to give prescriptions where the real purpose is to divert the liquor to beverage uses."

The court further held that "where the means adopted by congress in exerting an express power are calculated to effect its purposes, it is not admissible for the judiciary to inquire into the degree of their necessity.

The minority, in an opinion by Justice Sutherland, held while the value of spirituous liquor for such use was controversial, congress, in permitting their use, should be accepted by the court as conclusive evidence on the point of value.

The court must assume therefore, it was held, that vinous and spirituous liquors have value as medicine. The minority added that the prescription of such liquors in good faith for medicinal use could not be prohibited by congress. It described the majority decision as an invasion of the power of states to control the practice of medicine and as "fraud" upon the constitution.

JURY OUT IN THE MASON CASE AT BURLINGTON, VT.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The jury which today was given the case of Walter G. Mason, Fort Ann, N. Y., hotel proprietor, charged with murder, will not come into court until tomorrow. It was Mason's second trial in connection with the shooting of E. B. Webb, customs agent, who was fatally wounded when he halted Mason's car in search of contraband. The first trial ended in disagreement.

After receiving the case today the jury twice returned, once to request the re-reading of a part of the judge's charge bearing on the question of remeditation and later to ask the court what bearing it would have if it were found that the officers used undue force.

Developments Soon in Rumanian Crisis

Meeting of Queen Marie and Prince Carol in Paris May Shape Future History of the Country.

PARIS, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Queen Marie at sea and former Crown Prince Carol at Neuilly are the chief figures in the Rumanian situation; their expected meeting in Paris may shape the future history of the country.

King Ferdinand at Bucharest has, latest reports say, continued to improve. His serious condition is admitted; yet Rumanian government officials declare he is not yet in imminent danger of death.

Carol, it is true, renounced the rights to the throne, but his supporters believe that that is a minor aspect that can be changed legally or illegally, by peaceful persuasion or revolutionary forced.

The politicians naturally are worried by the possibility of having to govern an uneasy country amid traditionally turbulent states, but there are many who are of the opinion that the king's illness is being used as an excuse for the present clamor; they think that Carol finally declares himself, a way will be found to settle matters amicably.

The most effective worker in the Rumanian crisis has probably been the censor. Bucharest's contribution to political history has been very thin of late, but what has been permitted to be telegraphed out regarding the king's grave malady is probably reasonably accurate. So far as is known from Bucharest Ferdinand is making a good fight for his life. Queen Marie's decision to spend a day or two in Paris is generally accepted as proving that the king's condition is not so grave as many reports have indicated.

King Ferdinand Improving

S. S. BERENGARIA, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Queen Marie, now only a short distance from France, received a radiogram from King Ferdinand this afternoon reading: "Condition improving". The Berengaria is due to Cherbourg at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The latter part of the voyage has been rough. A big sea today struck the Berengaria on the port quarter, rolling the great ship over and spinning the baggage in the staterooms.

CONNECTICUT MEN TO BE AT CLOSING OF THE SESQUI

HARTFORD, Nov. 29—(AP)—Connecticut will have a prominent part tomorrow in the exercises at Philadelphia marking the formal closing of the sesqui centennial exposition. The state has been accorded the privilege of presenting its state flag to the state commission at the same time that the similar presentation of the United States flag is made by Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick of Philadelphia, marking the official close of the activities of the exposition.

Governor Trumbull and his official party, which includes most of the elective officials of the state, are due to arrive in Philadelphia tomorrow morning at 7:50 o'clock for the day's activities. They left Hartford tonight at 9:20 o'clock aboard "the New England," the special car of the president of the "New Haven" road.

The first event on the day's program will be a special reception given for Connecticut representatives at the office of Mayor Kendrick in the city hall at 9:40 a. m.

The principal event of the day's program will occur at 2:30 p. m., at the State roof house when the presentation of the Connecticut and the United States flags will be made to the state's committee. Governor Trumbull will make the presentation of the state flag through Miss Miss Mary Katharine Godard, daughter of George S. Godard, state librarian and chairman of the governor's sesqui centennial committee.

DOCTORS AND DRUGGISTS IN LIQUOR INDICTMENTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Charged with operating a "physicians' and druggists' service bureau" for negotiating the sale of improperly executed liquor prescriptions, 10 doctors and 11 individual druggists and a drug store corporation were indicted for conspiracy by the federal grand jury today.

Among the list of doctors indicted was the name of one woman.

A number of physicians, it was said, in the United States attorney's office, escaped indictment because they took advantage of the immunity section of the prohibition act. This guarantees freedom from prosecution to any one who "comes clean" as a witness before the grand jury.

SIX MEN KILLED IN FIGHT ON A RANCH IN MEXICO

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Twenty-five Mexican soldiers tonight guarded the Las Rucias ranch, four miles north of Matamoros, Mexico, where six men were killed in a fight between Agrarians and ranch employes. The ranch is owned by Americans. The shooting occurred when the foreman of the ranch arrived from Matamoros with several ranch employes. As he approached a body of 30 or 40 men who were moving houses onto the property, he was fired upon, his men returning the fire. Three Agrarians and three ranchmen were killed.

MOVEMENT FOR USE OF BUSSES IN DANBURY

DANBURY, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Simultaneously with the notice a public hearing would be held here Friday morning on request by the Danbury Power and Transportation company, to operate bus lines over the routes of the street cars which it purchased from the Danbury and Bethel Street Railway company, the concern began test operations here today with eight new busses, which it is expected will be used to supersede street cars.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—(AP)—Returning on the Leviathan today was W. P. G. Harding governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Boston, who has been in Poland, France and England for his first vacation in two years. He compared Poland to mid-west America and said the country is enjoying a singular prosperity.

MAINE ELECTS GOULD, REP. AS UNITED STATES SENATOR

Arthur R. Gould Defeated Fulton J. Redman, Democratic Nominee, by Nearly 50,000 Votes—Election of Mr. Gould Assures Retention of Republican Control of the United States Senate—Total Vote Cast Was Only a Little More Than Half That Cast in the State Election in September.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Retention of republican control of the U. S. senate was assured by the election today of Arthur R. Gould, republican, by a majority of approximately 50,000 over Fulton J. Redman, democrat, as senator from Maine. He will complete the term of the late Senator Bert M. Fernald, expiring in 1931.

Gould (r) 79,430.

Redman (d) 31,449.

Gould's home county of Aroostook with one precinct missing, gave Gould 8,947, Redman 950.

The total vote was only a little more than half that cast in the state election in September. Chairman Cony of the democratic state committee conceded Gould's election early in the evening.

Gould carried every city. In 1924, running against Senator Fernald, Redman carried the cities of Biddeford, Lewiston, Old Town, Waterville and Westbrook. Fernald's majority in that election was 57,855.

The Ku Klux Klan figured in the campaign when one of its leading members filed charges that Gould had exceeded the legal limit in his primary campaign expenditures. Governor Ralph O. Brewster, republican, backed these charges. After a hearing the secretary of state threw them out on the ground of insufficient evidence.

Gould supporters accused the governor of seeking Klan support for his rumored candidacy for the senate two years hence. The governor took occasion to deny that he was a member of the klan.

Mr. Gould, born in East Corinth, Me., about 70 years ago, worked in the west for a time as a youth but returned to Maine in 1876 and with his brother built up a successful candy factory in Bangor. Next he traveled as a tobacco salesman for his brother and in 1887 he established a wholesale tobacco house in Presque Isle, Aroostook county, where he has since made his home.

He built up a large lumber business, organized the Maine and New Brunswick Power company and built an electric railway in Aroostook county. He is president of the Aroostook Valley Railroad company. In 1921-23 he served in the state senate, his only previous public offices.

Mr. Gould's wife was Miss Mary Donovan of Bangor. They have three children.

Mr. Redman is a lawyer, with offices in Ellsworth and New York. He has served one term in the state house of representatives.

DEFEATED CANDIDATE DETERMINED TO FIGHT

ELLSWORTH, Me., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Fulton J. Redman, defeated democratic candidate for United States senator, declared tonight the he had just begun to fight and would take the contest over the election of Arthur R. Gould of Presque Isle, his republican opponent, to Washington.

"The late election," said Mr. Redman, "shows the futility of waging a campaign against a solid phalanx of newspapers, few of which have presented anything but one side of the case, and some indulging in the most flagrant misrepresentation.

"Senator Butler's telegram expressing hope for a Maine republican victory published in the Sunday newspapers after Secretary Hoover had cancelled his engagement to speak was looked upon as a warrant from President Coolidge.

"My every utterance in this campaign has been based on the premises of truth and that by uncontroverted evidence. Right is on my side and I intend to carry the fight to Washington.

"I am not deterred by the whitewash of a hostile press, by attorneys who adroitly keep out evidence on the ground that it will incriminate and degrade the primary campaign managers of my opponent, or even by the cloak of Senator Butler.

A. R. GOULD WAS HIGHLY GRATIFIED WITH PLURALITY

PRESQUE ISLE, Me., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Arthur R. Gould, who received in the great potato raising county of Aroostook 5,000 of his approximately 50,000 plurality for United States senator today, stated tonight that he was proud of having received so great a majority in the section where he has lived for 40 years.

"I am highly gratified," he said, "at the result of the contest, not only as carrying with it so flattering an endorsement of my claims and qualifications for the high office to which I have been chosen by my fellow citizens, but also as carrying with it so ample a vindication of my character as a man and my integrity in my business career.

"Naturally I am justly proud of having received so great a majority in my home town and county, where I have lived for 40 years and where my business dealings and various enterprises have been open to the inspection of those nearest to them in their interests and welfare.

"I would also add that I cannot too strongly express my appreciation to my loyal friends and supporters for the earnest efforts they have made in my behalf to bring about so successful a termination of this strenuous campaign."

SCHWAB TESTIFIES IN MORSE CONSPIRACY CASE

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Groton Iron Works and Virginia Shipbuilding company, Morse subsidiaries, became "fairly efficient shipyards" by following out recommendations he made during a tour of inspection, Charles M. Schwab testified in the Morse conspiracy trial today.

The chairman of the Bethlehem Steel corporation was called as a defense witness. He told of visiting the yards shortly after his appointment as director general of the emergency fleet corporation in 1917.

Under cross-examination he acknowledged, however, that in 1918 he was still receiving many complaints as to the management of the yards.

"They were not all that was to be decided from a managerial standpoint" he said.

He identified a letter he had written in August, 1918, to C. W. Morse, in which he complained of the manner in which the yards were being conducted.

"There is a very prevalent feeling among members of the emergency fleet corporation that both your yards are not making good progress," the letter read. "I hear complaints on all sides. The Virginia yard is the very last of all steel shipyards and the Groton yard is very low."

The letter concluded with an invitation to all the Morses to call on him and, "talk over the situation." A similar invitation was again sent the next month. In this letter it was stated that "things are not moving along at your ship yards."

MRS. JANE A. KNAPP LIVED IN FEAR OF HER HUSBAND

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 29.—(AP)—For a period of seven years, Mrs. Jane A. Knapp, 2414 North avenue lived in fear of her husband George S. Knapp, 66 year old manufacturer, she stated to Judge Bacon Waldeman, hearing testimony upon Knapp's plea for return of his rights. After being put through a weary cross examination by counsel for Knapp, Mrs. Knapp, who is 78 years old, in a tired voice reiterated some of her previous testimony.

She stated that at one time her husband "saw horsemen and soldiers in his home."

JESSE H. POMEROY HAS SPENT 51 YEARS IN PRISON

BOSTON, Nov. 29—(AP)—Jesse H. Pomeroy, most widely known of all the state's charges, today observed his 51st birthday in prison and the 67th of his life. He was admitted to the prison on September 7, 1876, when he was not quite seventeen years of age. He had been sentenced to solitary imprisonment for life for the murder of a child.

Of late years, however, he has had the freedom of the yard and was given light duties out of doors which kept him in good health. Today he performed these duties as usual.

BRING UP QUESTION OF MASS. CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

BOSTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Stenographers and clerks today pushed forward a compilation of the expenditures of the republican state committee in the recent election, in which Senator William M. Butler, was defeated by David I. Walsh, to enable general counsel for the Liberal Civic league, to lay the facts before the United States senate campaign investigation committee in about ten days.

Chairman James A. Reed today telegraphed Mr. Crooked that he would lay the matter before the full committee on his return to Washington about December 8. Mr. Crooker had informed Senator Reed that the expenditures appeared "staggering" and that the committee apparently incurred liabilities of $236,789.

Senator William M. Butler's personal return showed that he was well within the $10,000 allowed by law in his unsuccessful fight against David I. Walsh.

SAYS WOMEN OUGHT NOT BE ALLOWED DRIVE AUTOS

AIX LA CHAPPELLE, Germany, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Testifying as an expert witness in criminal court, Dr. Alexander Crappell, prominent psychiatrist, said Frau Elfrieda Roehn, 33, a successful business woman, could not be held responsible for running down and killing two persons with her automobile, "because she was a woman."

"Women ought not be allowed to drive an automobile," Dr. Crappell said. "Their nervous systems are so keyed that they cannot react quickly and rationally in times of danger. Frau Boehn is normal mentally and physically, but in this case any woman would be irresponsible."

Frau Boehn was convicted, however, and sentenced to one year in jail for manslaughter. She had lost control of her car and driven into a group of celebrants returning from a festival.

RABBI WISE DEFENDS JEWISH COLONIZATION OF PALESTINE

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Agreeing that Jewish colonization of Palestine is "visionary"—but in the same way that the "purpose of the Pilgrim Fathers were visionary"—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, leader of the Zionist movement in America, today assacked as "loose generalizations" a report made public by Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, trustee of the Carnegie endowment international peace.

NORWICH MAN ARRESTED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 30—Oscar Forand of Norwich, driver of the Ford sedan which crashed into the stone abutment of the Andover railroad underpass in Andover shortly after eleven o'clock Saturday night was placed under arrest this afternoon and notified to appear in the Andover town court on a charge of reckless driving at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening. Justice of the Peace Charles E. Faulkner will hear the case. The investigation into the accident which was at first surrounded by mysterious circumstances was conducted by Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink and members of the Hartford state police barracks. It was learned during the day that the woman injured in the accident was Mrs. William Zoet of 229 Palmer street, Norwich. Her two year old daughter Stephanie also sustained minor injuries and both were taken to the Rockville City hospital for treatment. Although painfully hurt Mrs. Zoet was taken to her home in Norwich Monday afternoon. The removing of Mrs. Zoet to Rockville rather than to the nearer hospitals in this city or in Manchester is regarded as one of the steps taken by Forand to evade publicity and possible prosecution for the accident. The wrecked sedan was towed away in the direction of this city during the night, following the accident

SUSPENDED SENTENCE ON CHARGE OF CRUELTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 30—Laurens Holbrook of the Pine street district in Columbia was arraigned in the Columbia town court before Justice A. M. Gilman of south Coventry Monday evening charged with cruelty to his children. His plea of nolo contendre was overruled by Justice Gilman who imposed a fine of $5 and costs and a suspended 30-day jail sentence. It being the accused's first appearance the fine was remitted and Holbrook was placed on probation for six months with orders to report bi-monthly to Judge D. A. Lyman. Judge Lyman prosecuted the case. The complaint of cruelty was made by the Connecticut Humane society which was represented by special agent, E. M. Tofeldt. Holbrook is 48 years of age and has ten children, some of whom are not grown up. The charges specified cruelty against a 15-year old boy, another 10 years of age and two other minor children.

Exposure will bring on stiffness

BACK AND LEGS WERE STIFF AND SORE

Policeman has learned how to get rid of muscle-lameness

A policeman, who has been a member of the Philadelphia Police Department for twenty-six years, has found a way to get rid quickly of the ache and stiffness caused by over-exercise and exposure.

"I do a lot of walking and am exposed to all kinds of weather," he says. "When all other remedies fail, Sloan's Liniment gives me relief for pains in the back and legs."

Sloan's gives quick and genuine relief to all kinds of muscular aches because it doesn't just deaden the nerves—it gets at the cause.

Just pat it on lightly, without rubbing. Right to the place that hurts, it sends a healing tide of fresh, new blood. Stiff muscles limber up, the aching stops, and you are as fit as ever in no time. Get a bottle today and have it on hand for the first emergency. All druggists—35 cents.

WESTERLY

COMMERCIAL TRAVELER MAKES WESTERLY LANDING

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 30—The first regular commercial traveler to arrive in Westerly by aeroplane came to town about noon today, the "pioneer" being George F. May, eastern representative of a film company, who left Mineola field, New York at 11.30 a. m. and was circling the town shortly before 12.30 o'clock looking for a suitable landing field. Westerly, as yet, has no municipal landing field, but in 1919, Col. Lyon, the commanding officer of the aero forces of the First Corps area, arrived in Westerly under the auspices of the Westerly board of trade and visited about town to examine closely the advantages of available sites around Westerly. The most desirable picked by the army officer was that near Pleasant View beach owned by Capt. W. F. Saunders. It was near this lot on the back of the Chapman farm, that Pilot W. E. Kayser landed his plane. The plane had not been on the ground long before Capt. C. Raymond Blake, Westerly's leading aviator and known as an army ace, from his participation in World war flying was on the field to greet the visitors from the air. He directed the voyagers to the Capt. Saunders field and all three men were soon in the air. The plane operated by Capt. Blake was soon flying over Westerly again, this being the first time that Capt. Blake, who has had many flying miles to his credit both in this country and in France, even with the Lafayette Esquadrill, ever had the opportunity to fly over his native town. On last Armistice day Capt. Blake looked forward to flying over Westerly for the first time having had a telegram from a plane owner in Bristol, R. I., who was learning to fly to come to the Narragansett bay town and fly to Westerly. Capt. Blake went to Bristol, but a broken rudder and exceptionally high wind prevented the flight at that time.

The "Eagle Rock" plane is similar to the No. 5 machine which several months ago came in 9th in the Ford reliability air race conducted from Detroit, Mich., in which the participants traveled 2600 miles, flying over 14 cities of the United States. Pilot Kayser has an air record of 18 hours from Denver, Col., to New York, which he travelled in a plane similar to the one he is now visiting in Westerly for a day or two before going to Bostop.

Nov. 29. Kenyon Ricci to Harry Stewart a certain tract or parcel of land with buildings and other improvements, with land approximately 40 acres, bounded southerly and westerly by lands now or formerly of C. H. Chapman.

Arthur N. Nash, grand master of Masons in Connecticut, was a Westerly attendant on Monday of the fortieth anniversary and autumnal ceremonia lof Palestine temple, A. A. O. Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Providence, of which he is a director.

The ceremonial began with a business session at 5 o'clock followed by the serving of a New England harvest supper, the "eats" being:

Rolls Brown Bread Butter
Pickles Cold Slaw
Baked Beans
Cold Ham Corned Beef Roast Pork
Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips
Squash
Pumpkin Pie Cheese Apples
Sweet Cider Coffee

The scene of the festivities was at Rhodes on the Pawtuxet and supper was followed by a competitive band concert and the usual ceremonial.

Miss Elizabeth Spicer of Boston is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William L Spicer.

West View All-Stars football team and the Crushers played the final game of the season at William field Sunday afternoon, to determine the best team in the village. Each has won a game. A large crowd came out to see the teams in action. Speed Langworthy kicked off to the West View boys and the battle was on. Lefty Bogue ran the ball for a 25-yard run before being downed by two tackles of the Crushers and the teams played even. Neither team scored. But in the second quarter forward passes and nice runs were pulled off. Flash McDonald of the Crushers caught a forward pass out of the air, raced 70 yards for a touchdown and kicked the extra point himself; and by making end runs, Bull Pray carried the ball over the line from the 40-yard line and tied the score by kicking the extra point. Not until the last quarter with both teams fighting hard to win the championship of Noank and with only two minutes to play, West View with the ball could not gain through the line. Bull Pray standing on the Crushers 45-yard line, with darkness coming fast made it hard to see the ball; but Pray kicked a pretty field goal and gave the All-Stars the game. The cheering section carried him around the field and a snake dance followed, for they received a large loving cup. The stars for West View were Bull Pray and Lefty Bogue and for the Crushers Speed Langworthy and Flash McDonald. Referee A. McDonald; scorer, O. Smith. Final score, West View 10, Crushers 7.

Edward Morgan and Neil Morrison went to Hartford Sunday afternoon and attended a party in honor of Mac Cunnane who came from Ireland this summer and spent his vacation at Groton Long Point. FACTS

Note how the overlapping front of the Frigidaire tray completely covers the opening in the freezing compartment, providing a seal which assures lower inside temperatures and quicker freezing.

ONE reason for Frigidaire's overwhelming popularity is the fact that it freezes more ice, by actual weight, than other electric refrigerators of the same size.

The Frigidaire freezing trays are self-sealing. The white enameled fronts of the ice trays completely overlap the tray openings, thus sealing the intense cold of the frost coil within the freezing compartment. Frigidaire freezes ice quickly and solidly, regardless of room temperatures.

Long ago, Frigidaire discarded the brine tank in favor of the more efficient frost coil. The frost coil assures simpler, quicker temperature control, which is so accurate and stable that it never has to be adjusted once it has been properly set.

Frigidaire is superior in ice-freezing capacity, food storage space, low operating cost and quiet operation. Frigidaire offers unequaled sturdiness of construction and beauty of design. Frigidaire offers a permanent and thoroughly trained and established service organization. It is the only electric refrigerator guaranteed by General Motors.

DANIELSON

E. H. JACOBS COMPANY TO OPEN SOUTHERN PLANT

DANIELSON, Nov. 29—The E. H. Jacobs Manufacturing company, established here for more than a generation, is to open a branch manufacturing paint at Charlotte, N. C., about January 1, establishing a small but complete unit there. This concern manufactures textile supplies for looms and has an international reputation, various of its products being patented and sold under the title of Veribest. For years the company has had a distributing center in the south to care for the textile concerns in that part of the country, but previously has done all of its manufacturing here. The Danielson plant will continue in operation.

Large items of expense entering into the operation and maintenance of the Windham county jail at Brooklyn during the past year, as shown by the annual reports of the county commissioners include: Clothing $523.57; electric lights, $341.11; fertilizers $206.-05; fuel $984.50; furnishings $366.69; grain and hay $2,055.10; hardware, $496.38; housework $574; medicine and attendance, $229.90; outside labor $2,-489.50; provisions $5,191.61; salary of assistant jailor $1200. Much of this expense for provisions, clothing, etc., is offset by the state's allowance to the institution of $6,150.83 for the board of prisoners.

A 4 1-2 per cent. dividend on savings deposits in the Windham County National bank has been declared and is payable December 1st. Are you one of the fortunate ones in having a savings deposit in this bank?—adv.

Charged with reckless operation of an automobile, Arthur Turcotte of this town was before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court Monday morning and was found guilty, a fine of $25 and costs being imposed. Of the fine, $15 was remitted, Turcotte paying, including costs $21.89. The accused was represented by Attorney L. A. Wolsard. Turcotte's court appearance followed an accident in which his car collided Saturday night at Attawaugan with one operated by Waldo Wood of East Franklin street. Wood's car being overturned in the affair.

Ernie Nevers, the great western star, and his team of Duluth Eskimos of the National Professional Football league were in Danielson for a time at the week end, stopping here for coffee and sandwiches while en route from Hartford to Providence, where they were scheduled to meet the Steam Rollers. The Eskimos were a towering group of men and deep was the impression their physical makeup had upon the local football fans who had a chance to look them over for a few minutes.

A brochure dealing with the borough of Danielson and considerable of its early history has been compelled by H. V. Arnold, now a resident of North Dakota, who lived here in the decade prior to the Civil war and during the progress of that great conflict. The new publication will be of special interest to older residents of Danielson and particularly valuable to those having any historical interest in Danielson and its development.

In Danielson during the coming holiday season an extra effort will be made by those having charge of the sale of Christmas seals to impress upon the public mind the desirability of stopping the confusion that has existed here the past two or three years over distinguishing between the real Christmas seal and the Christmas stickers sold merely for adornment. The Christmas seal sale is conducted with a humanitarian object—to help those afflicted with tuberculosis. In the past many who thought they were purchasing these seals found themselves in possession of other varieties, sold for the sake of profit only. A little observation this year will protect any purchaser.

At St. James' church the mission for the English-speaking people has an auspicious start. A large number attended the opening service Sunday evening and the attendance at the masses Monday morning at 5.30 and at 8 o'clock and at the service Monday evening assured the success of this special period of grace. Father Carrigan of the Oblate order conducting the mission has made a splendid impression upon his congregations.

As to raids on forest lands for Christmas trees, Killingly property owners are again experiencing losses, but steps have been taken by the selectmen to stop this practice through the arrest and prosecution of the offenders. A report is at hand relative to a man who a few days since was taking little pine trees wholesale from one section of the town. The number of his automobile was observed and has been given to the state police for such action as it may be necessary to take.

There has been little change the past few days in the condition of H. C. Young, who remains critically ill at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

The Moosup Trust company, opened the past week in Moosup, has had a satisfactory start, one very satisfactory to those who established the institution.

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio. —"After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I got worse, was always sickly and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."—Mrs. M. RIESSINGER, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear, and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose?

Wealth? It's a transient thing that brings its own cares.

Happiness? It's an elusive thing which we keep by giving away.

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

PUTNAM'S RED CROSS MEMBERSHIP FIVE PER CENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 29.—The Red Cross drive for membership in Putnam has not as yet been completed. The amount collected by the canvassers so far is well over $400, but all of them have not as yet reported. While the work has been done in a thorough and systematic manner there are the possibilities of persons being out of the city, away from home or out of their place of business when the canvasser has called. If such is the case there is nothing to prevent any such voluntarily sending in their membership fees.

While the amount collected may be considered a good showing, it would seem that Putnam should produce better than a five per cent membership.

It is expected that the net profits of the Christmas bazaar and entertainment given by the women of the Second Congregational church last week will approximate $250. All of the reports are not as yet completed but it will reach the above amount and very possibly exceed that amount.

The inn at Pomfret was filled to capacity for Thanksgiving and the week end with parents and friends of Pomfret school students to attend the Thanksgiving festivities. The following were registered from New York city: Mrs. Henry Leverich, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Herrick, Mrs. E. D. Pearce, Mrs. Langdon K. Thorne. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence B. Elliman, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard S. Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Morton Wing and guests, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Drummond, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. I. K. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. James Dearing, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Burnham and guests, Mr. and Mrs. Emlen S. Hare, Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Carr and guests, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Day and guests, Mrs. Charles Whitman and Miss Janet Whitman.

Others are: Mr. and Mrs. James T. Soutter and children and guests from Greenwich, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. John Chapman of Greenwich, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Maddden of Greenwich, Mr. and Mrs. John Ormsbee of Utica, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. John B. There were violin solos and mandolin and piano music. The wedding cake was made by Mrs. Cusson, Mrs. Willis Poirier and Miss Violet Dion was decorated with roses and leaves. It weighed twenty pounds.

LEFFINGWELL

Sunday evening a Thanksgiving concert was given at the church before an audience of about sixty-five. A hymn by the congregation was followed by Psalm 95, by the children. The pastor, Rev. George W. Borden, offered prayer. A recitation "A Prayer of Thanks" was by Dorothy Bottomley; Louise Behat gave "Acknowledgment," followed by a recitation by Lucile Spicer; "Father We Thank Thee" was sung by Herbert, Helen and Lucille Spicer, accompanied by Miss Mildred F. Leffingwell at the organ; there were recitations, "We Thank Thee," by Miriam Wenzel; "The Chickadee's Prayer," by Merton Clifford; "Thursday" by Helen Spicer and "The Pumpkin's Complaint", by Herbert Spicer. A song "Gather From Out the Harvest Field" was given by the junior choir and recitations, "The Pilgrim Boy" by Raymond Murray, "Why We Keep the Day," by Margaret Behat, "An Appetite" Saul Caroline and "How to Show Our Thanks," by Gilbert Caroline. The junior choir gave "The Corn Song." A Thanksgiving pageant was given by the children of the Sunday school and the junior choir. Rev. Mr. Borden gave a talk, which was followed by a recitation, "Farewell" by Olive Wenzel. The singing of America was followed by the benediction.

Friday afternoon, a debate by the school children was given before the pupils and visitors. The question was: "Resolved, That Corn is More Important Than Wheat." The affirmative side was upheld by Mildred F. Leffingwell, Michael Hranyk, Helen Clifford and Raymond Murray. The negative side was supported by William Bottomley, Gilbert Caroline, Russell Murray and Harry Wenzel. The judges, Mrs. Stanley Spicer, Mrs. Roy L. Beard and Mrs. Trafford Mowrey, decided in favor of the negative side.

JEWETT CITY

BYRON SHELDON ASKED TO TELL OF EXPERIENCES

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 29. — Byron Sheldon, an old time bird hunter of Griswold, with a record of over 40 years with the rod and gun, received today an invitation to appear in Hartford, Dec. 10, before the state fish and game commission. Mr. Sheldon will be asked to give the commission the benefit of his experience as a woodsman and hunter. He will tell his opinion relative to the scarcity of ruffed grouse in this part of the county, also his belief as to the effect of an open season on deer, and also to tell what he thanks of the changes in the state fish and game laws, which are at present in force.

One of the grocery stores in town has for several years of late, in the early fall, "put in" a stock of a locally familiar article packed in glass jars and sold under the name of "Nancy Hanks". One day last week a small boy, whose mother knew it was about time for the groceryman to be selling the articles of which her family were so fond, went to the store and told the clerk that his mother wanted a jar of "Abraham Lincoln". The clerk without a word wrapped up a package of the Nancy Hanks' brand. A two-fold demonstration that education is not neglected in these parts, when both the boy and clerk discovered the lineal analogy right off the reel.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist (adv.)

WEEK ENDING NOV. 27, 1926:

THE COMING SESSION

Within another week the concluding session of the 69th congress will be underway. For the most part it will be made up of the same members who adjourned earlier in the year when much legislation was deferred for action at this time, much was pigeonholed and much went over for lack of time.

Inasmuch as the life of this congress will expire with the fourth of March whatever it does must be done before that time, all of which is fully understood by those who are relied upon to do whatever is done. There's a chance to do much or there's the possibility of doing little or nothing. It makes a difference what the spirit is with which the work is tackled. If politics and jockeying are going to remain uppermost there's no telling what will happen. If there's a desire to get down to business and do the duty that is expected of congressmen much may be expected.

While the republicans have control of both houses much havoc can be wrought by filibustering tactics, so that what is going to be done at this session can best be told after the session has progressed a bit into the new year.

There will be measures dealing with tax rebate or tax reductions, bills in behalf of farm relief and in view of election results it can be anticipated that prohibition will come in for much attention. There's a clamor for some sort of regulation for radio, there will be a report from the shipping board with suggestions and waterways can be expected to get increased consideration.

For those who are desirous of having an extra session of the 70th congress called soon after the conclusion of the 69th congress the aim will be to block all action that they possibly can, especially the appropriation bills, for if no provision is made for the government departments the new congress must be called together to do the work much in advance of the regular meeting time.

It is possible for the 69th congress to spend its last days in bickerings and talk, or it can do itself credit by its close application to business. What ought to be done and what may be done are as far apart as black and white.

CHILDREN AND FIREARMS

It is a distressing story which comes from Baker, Oregon, telling of the accidental shooting of a younger brother by an older one followed by the the one who did the shooting turning the gun upon himself and ending his own life, while a four year old witnessed the tragedy.

Here was a household of children where an automatic revolver was kept in a sewing machine drawer. Possibly conditions at Baker are such that it is necessary to keep loaded firearms where they can be quickly gotten, and within the reach of children but, whether that is so or not, it is evident that the two children would be alive today but for the fact that they could get the deadly weapon to play with.

What happened in that household has happened in many others. Guns have been kept where they could be gotten by children, but what is worse the guns have been loaded and even though it has been thought that they were not they have been the means of many an untimely death. And yet despite the frequency of such cases and a general recognition of the danger to children of having loaded firearms about, there continues to be repetition after repetition and many a home is today menaced by having weapons about where children can get them.

Experience has shown that children will be children. It is all well enough to think that children have been taught to let firearms alone and that these boys or girls would not think of touching the shotgun or the revolver, but that was probably the confident mood in which the mother in that Oregon home left her children for a few minutes only to find two of the three dead when she returned. They got the automatic and started in target shooting believing the gun was not loaded, but in all probability they knew nothing whatever as to whether it was loaded or not and made no effort to find out.

The fact is that firearms of all kinds should be kept out of the reach of children. This should be done whether they are loaded or not, for if they play with no gun at all there'll be no chance of getting one when it is loaded. The head of the household should take the big step to safeguard against just such cases as that in the Oregon city.

HANDING OUT PARDONS

When the governor of Texas offered to resign if she was beaten for the renomination it was expected that she meant it. Without a doubt she made the promise under the belief that she would not be called upon to keep it, for notwithstanding the results she was confident of winning.

By the time the votes were counted it was apparent that she had been badly beaten, so badly as to indicate that the sentiment of the people was not only for a change but that they desired her to keep her promise. Whatever might be thought of the result or the promise it has since become evident that Mrs. Ferguson has no intention of resigning. It means but a short time before her time will expire but she intends to complete her term, and in the meanwhile she is handing out pardons, full and conditional, almost for the asking. Apparently she doesn't think her failure to get a renomination was a sufficiently severe criticism of her methods to undertake to reform them.

Just prior to Thanksgiving Mrs. Ferguson handed out pardons to 24 convicts and paroles to eight more. Within a week previous thereto 51 other pardons were granted making a total of 590 full pardons since she had been in office and more than 3700 clemency cases. The record is one which must have made the Texas voters stop and look and demand a change.

Decidedly in contrast to the action of the woman governor of Texas has been the course of the woman governor of Wyoming. Her record for nearly two years is nine convicts pardoned, sentences reduced for 23 and paroles given to 30. The states are not comparable as to size or population, but it would appear that the Wyoming governor was less given to leniency than the governor of Texas. But in neither instance can it be said that the course taken was responsible for retention in office, for by the vote of the people of those states others will succeed them when their terms expire in the near future.

THE RESULT IN MAINE

Maine has spoken and quite as emphatically as it has done on other occasions. The new senator from that state is Arthur R. Gould, who in spite of political efforts to injure his candidacy promises to receive almost as large a vote as did his predecessor under normal conditions but with only about half of the vote cast.

Maine has reacted to the attack upon Gould in the manner that was anticipated. Failure on the part of the secretary of the state to find that the evidence furnished supported the charges made completely undermined the opposition, and how the voters of Maine felt about it is indicated by the majority which has been given Gould. Because of the attack and the dissemination of damaging charges it was estimated that he would win, but that his majority would be between 5,000 and 15,000. Maine voters, however, were conscious of their responsibility to their state and to the federal government and ran the majority far beyond expectations at this time.

The whole contest has been submitted to the people of Maine. They have expressed themselves and vindicated Gould. They declare that they take no stock in the charges and the position in which they leave the governor of the state is most uncomfortable, considering his support of the charges and his desire for further political honors.

By the action of Maine the republicans in the senate will have a majority in the 70th congress. It will be a narrow margin but it will nevertheless be a republican majority provided the factions of the party can be brought and held together. Aside from the character of the campaign this was the important factor in the Maine contest. Maine has done as it was expected that it would. It has broken no precedents.

CONNECTICUT'S GAS TAX

The collection during the past fiscal year of $2,526,016.03 by the state through the tax on gasoline sold in Connecticut has imposed no burden upon anyone. Such taxes have been raised and have been used for the improvement and repairs of the highways, so that those who have bought gasoline have simply been contributing to that which most concerns them, a better system of highways.

Such taxes have of course been collected in the exact proportion to the use made of the highways. The auto owner who has bought but five gallons a week has made no great contribution during the year. The fellow who buys five gallons a day has contributed no huge sum, and yet each one has paid in accordance with the use which he has made of the highways, while those who do not use the highways have not been obliged to soulder the cost of improvement and repair.

Connecticut is doing only what almost all states in the country are doing. In a number of instances a much higher tax is levied, some states are charging more than twice as much as Connecticut. But whatever the tax may be there can be little complaint so long as the proceeds are applied for roadbuilding purposes. The injustice of gasoline taxation comes when the auto owners are by that means taxed for general state expenditures in which all, rather than a single class, should participate.

Connecticut auto owners can appreciate the decided advantage of paying-as-you-go in meeting the highway improvement and repair bills through such a tax over trying to meet the situation by a bond issue and eventually paying about twice as much.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 29. — With congress to convene in one week, the capitol is now astir with life, even though the high lights of that congressional body are not yet on the scene. Secretaries and clerks are keeping up routine work but the average senator and member of the house is as eager to eat his Thanksgiving dinner at home with his family, as the average school-boy is to make the most of the last days of vacation. Except men who are on committees sitting for special hearings, like the ways and means, scarcely a New England senator or member of the house spent Thanksgiving here. But they are all booked to come early this week.

Congressman Tilson will be the first to arrive, his duties as floor leader make it imperative he be on hand before the program of the winter session can be outlined. Col. Tilson has made good as a party leader, and it is expected he will smooth out many pending troubles that are imminent among republican factions, as to what is what in the short legislative session, which automatically ends at noon, March 4.

Everyone is anxious his or, as there are now three women members of congress, her pet legislation shall be among the preferred bills to be put before congress. But it is expected appropriation bills and matters of great national interest will fill most of the time and it may be hard sledding for state and local matters, with a session of not more than 13 weeks all told.

Fortunately for Connecticut its senators and members of the house are all men of experience and hold high position on major committees. That will be a strong aid in getting Connecticut matters to the attention of congress.

Speaking of Thanksgiving turkeys, Washington still preserves the old time custom of personal marketing, and even though 14 years of press gallery work at the capitol ought to make a New England Yankee hard-boiled and accustomed to queer southern customs, yet, this writer is still "shocked and surprised" every time, when riding on a street car just before Thanksgiving or Christmas, a big live turkey gobbler is brought in, to become his seat-mate. Yet that happens daily in cars that run past the great center market, which is one of the show places of Washington.

Coming up from the white house to the capitol yesterday, after a press conference with the president, our car stopped at the market, and in got two husky Negroes, one with a flapping turkey tucked under his arm, and the other bearing a pair of live chickens, whose heads hung despondently down. Both turkey and chickens protested vigorously and with loud squarks.

The roof of the white house has weathered the storms of more than a century without marked changes or improvements. But when congress adjourns the 4th of March, the old unsafe rafters will come down, the entire third story be made over and a new and safe roof built. This is according to an act of congress passed last year, with the necessary appropriation bill attached.

And now the President and Mrs. Coolidge are house-hunting just as ordinary plain citizens must do, when needs be. To be sure, they have out runners doing the first scouting, but when the time for a decision comes, they, like the rest of us, must suffer inconvenience and "move".

President Coolidge expressed himself very plainly the other day to a group of newspaper correspondents, who asked about his plans. He made it clear that it was not only convenience of Mrs. Coolidge and himself that must be consulted but the comfort and convenience of others must be regarded in making the choice of temporary homes. The president used the term "my household" as if he were speaking of his immediate family, when referring to the needs and comfort of those who look after the needs and comfort of Mrs. Coolidge and himself. He did not refer to secretaries and clerks, or to servants—he summed up his official and domestic family in one homely and homelike word, my "household", and somehow it struck a friendly and responsive chord in the listening group of news writers. The president added that the convenience of the public must also be considered; that a house near the white house offices, large enough to hold the required social affairs was also essential, that the routine of the government business and official social life should be disturbed as little as possible.

Real estate men are on tip-toe to find the right place; it has been suggested by some that a hotel will be selected, taking over one whole floor for governmental purposes. The fact is, there are but few houses of sufficient size to meet the requirements, in the down town section of Washington, where the white house stands, in the midst of its spacious park. Residential sections are now in the great fashionable northwest, and as the business offices of the white house are separate one story wings to the great white structure, built under the Roosevelt administration, placing the "household" far away would be a serious inconvenience.

The Coolidges had a quiet Thanksgiving, with their warm friends, the Frank Stearns, their only dinner guests, And speaking of the Frank Stearns, a luncheon given by Mrs. Swanson, wife of the senior senator from Virginia a few days ago, shows how tactfully Mrs. Coolidge avoids all political friction with women of the opposite party.

Mrs. Coolidge is barred by custom from accepting such luncheon invitations, but her house guest, Mrs. Stearns, was the guest of honor at Mrs. Swanson's luncheon. And yet Mrs Swanson is the wife of one of the staunchest democrats, strict partisan, and "opposition" leader to the Coolidge policies and party. But to Mrs. Coolidge, with her wealth of tact, cordial dignity and great personal charm, there is no north and south—there is no political gulf between Virginia and New England. Political discriminations never mar the social life of the white house. The pace set by both President and Mrs. Coolidge is one the whole social world might well follow.

Maryland farmers, just across the line from Washington, are emptying their water cisterns of water, and filling them with cider, the apple crop being so heavy this year, that it cannot be sold. While much of the cider is treated in a way to keep it sweet, a still greater quantity will be "hard" in a short time and have enough kick to turn the tanks turtle, as the story runs here.

New England may turn to the cultivation of crabs and lobsters for other purposes than eating, if the stories that come by cable from Germany are true.

Dispatches say that an excellent quality of "silk" is being made in Berlin from the shells of lobsters and crabs. The same authorities state that the crab-lobster-silk industry is thriving and it is not impossible it will rival the export of German canaries for the American trade.

The war department announces that during the past summer 307,826 persons entered into military training in the summer camps and elsewhere. This number includes the national guard, 150,380; organized reserves, 17,000; officers' training camps, 6,346; young men attending citizens' military training camps, 84,194.

QUEEN'S HANDS

"Tell your fortune, missy? See into the future, mimsy? No secrets hid from ol' gypsy woman."

The crooning voice caught Jane's ear above the clamor of Milwaukee avenue and her quick eye glimpsed a flash of red and yellow petticoats against the black square of the doorway. She hesitated. A gnarled brown finger crooked slowly and, magnetized, Jane stepped across the sagging threshold into the murky half light of the tiny room.

"Ah, dese be han's of queen. So long, so white, so tiny. Dese be han's to comman'. Nevair to work. Han's for jewels."

With a quick, birdlike gesture she delved deep into her gay-hued petticoat and brought forth a dingy, tarnished bracelet, bangled and heavy with colored stones. Deftly she slipped it over Jane's fingers.

"Dese bracelit made long, long time ago for beautiful queen. For queen's han's like dis, lady, it bring many, many riches."

"You mean it would bring me good luck?"

"Bring you ever'ting in de worl'. Many, many riches, crowds come stan' before you an' admire, an' "—she leaned forward, sinking her voice to a hoarse whisper—"it bring you wonderful lover. He fin' you by dis bracelit. He know you for queen. I sell it for $' doKara."

Outside in the sunshine and reality of Milwaukee avenue she shook her head sadly. "Five precious dollars for a cheap brass bracelet—and flattery. Jane, Jane, you will never be rich—or even sensible."

Dreamily Jane listened to the throb of the home-going "L" train. "Queen's hands." She looked at them critically as they lay, white and slender, ungloved, in her lap. They were pretty, weren't they?

As she stepped out upon the platform a pleasant voice spoke something far above her ear.

"I must beg your pardon. This is rude, I know. My card." The name, John Penn Grayling, 32 Studio row, flashed across her vision. She looked up into friendly, candid eyes.

"I am an artist. I have been watching you across the car. You have the most beautiful hands I have ever seen. Would you—could you permit me to paint them?"

There it was, John Grayling's picture. Jane wove through the hushed Sunday afternoon crowd, sifting through the exhibition rooms and stood with the others before the picture. How strange to see it here, away from the quiet studio. How lovely it was, and how unbelievable that a picture of her, plain little Jane Allison, should be considered the most noteworthy work in the exhibit of an L train window, a girl in a rumpled dress such as thousands of girls wore. And lying, slim and serene in her lap, two still hands, with a bangled bracelet resting abelnet the slender arch of the wrist.

"Jane I thogh I would find you here." She turned at the familiar voice and John Grayling drew her gently away from the crowd. "You ran away after that last sitting, Jane."

"I thought you were through with the picture."

"I was through—with the picture. But you should see the waiting line I have been stalling off for you."

"Waiting line? For me? Who?, Where?"

"Oh, they are all out here. I thought I might find you here today so I brought them along. This is Ralph Rambough. He wants your picture."

"My picture?" Jane stared in wide-eyed bewilderment.

"Miss Allison," hastened Rambough, "my magazine has asked for a reproduction of Mr. Grayling's beautiful painting and a photograph of the—er—subject. May I make an appointment for you tomorrow at 11?"

"But I work," protested Jane feebly.

"Not tomorrow, Jane," said Grayling, quietly. "Miss Allison will be there, Rambough. Thank you."

"May I present Sig. Andrini, Miss Allison?" she heard Grayling saying.

"Andrini is a sculptor; he made those little figurines you admired so much in my studio—do you remember?"

Andrini gathered Jane's two hands fervently in his own. "Permit me, madam, to improison those so beautiful hands in marble."

"Madam, I represent Biffany, New York. Your bracelet is indeed valuable. If you will permit me to make an offer my firm will pay $5,000 for it."

"For my little bhacelet? John, are they joking?"

"No, Jane. Your little bracelet is one of a pair, made many many centuries ago for a Spanish princess. It has been lost for generations and collectors all over the world have been looking for it. The little glass beads you have laughed about are precious gems. But you don't have to sell right now, Jane. We will talk it over later." And the gentleman from New York faded out of Jane's bewitched vision.

Jane watched the gray wraith of cigarette smoke swirling above Grayling's head. Somewhere was music, the tinkle of tea things, the far-off purr of motors on the boulevard. She drew a long, happy sigh.

Grayling leaned forward. "Jane, will you tell me what you were thinking?"

"I was remembering what an old gypsy told me once about this bracelet. She said it would bring me riches and fame and—love." Their eyes met across the table; they smiled together and Jane knew that the three-fold prophecy of the old gypsy was fulfilled.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

James Thom, a young Scotsman, who left his home in Aberdeen seven years ago to take up a post with the Hudson Bay company in the frozen wastes of northern Canada beyond the arctic circle, has just returned to civilization. He has been alone practically during the whole seven years, earning for himself the name of the World's Loneliest Man. He received news of the outside world and letters from home only once a year, and to meet the boat containing his annual batch of newspapers and letters he had to travel over 400 miles with his dog team. He thinks the nearest post, 700 miles away, with its four buildings and seven inhabitants, is much too crowded, while life in a city would be simply unbearable in the mind of the Loneliest Man.

YOUR HEALTH

HUMAN ECONOMIC DISCOUNTS

By J. Ross Reed, M.D., Pasadena, Cal. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

About 45 years ago there lived in our neighborhood a boy who was considered by his father and the other members of the family, as being particularly dull and stupid. He moped about the house, not caring for the usual out of door exercises of other boys, and interested only in pictures or things that he could take in his hands.

When he was sent to bring the cows from the pasture he took so long in getting them that the father would beat him for his slowness. His manner became listless and dispirited, and life seemed to hold little future for him.

About this time the teacher in the school to which he was sent persuaded the father that the boy was not deficient mentally, but that his eyes were bad, and finally got the old fellow to take his son to an oculist.

Here it was discovered that the child was suffering from a high degree of nearsightedness and could not see clearly but a few feet from him. Proper glasses opened to him a wealth of beauty and form he had never suspected and enabled him to occupy his legitimate place in society.

This incident illustrates a condition that is well recognized at the present time, and our periodic visual tests in schools today would make such an experience well nigh impossible. But in less glaring examples men, women, and children of today are economic discounts because of unrecognized, but easily remedied physical defects.

If periodic tests in the schools are valuable in conserving health, and remedying incipient disorders, why do we not recognize their value more in our adult lives?

The Gorgas Memorial Institute was founded to urge this very type of conservation of health upon the laymen of all walks of life. No greater monument to the memory of a great man could be built, than that, which it is the endeavor of this institute to build, of health and happiness in the lives of the fellow countrymen of General Gorgas. This is certain of fulfilment if each individual will treat his body as he would his automobile or his business, and by a check up of his physical assets once a year avoid the dangers of carelessness or ignorance.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Know the Life of An Author

A knowledge of the life of an author always adds interest to the perusal of his books and is frequently of value in explaining them. The study of the noble life in connection with the works of the noble mind is one of the best foundations for liberal culture. Consider the influence of an acquaintance with the entire works of Longfellow or Lowell, read in connection with the life of the former by his brother, or with the biography of the latter by Scudder. To know the atmosphere which surrounded such men, the things towards which they drew their inspiration, the way in which the common experiences of life, so familiar to us all grew beautiful under their poetic imagination; a familiarity with all these things will elevate a man's whole life.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Mr. Grouse Tells the News

No matter how old the facts may be, it still unknown they're news, you see. —Mother West Wind.

Mr. Grouse was very nervous. He was having a wonderful breakfast of a handful of buckwheat that Farmer Brown's Boy had dropped just outside the pen where Mrs. Grouse was living, but he wasn't enjoying that breakfast as he would have enjoyed a good breakfast in the Green Forest. Each time he picked up a grain of buckwheat he looked all about him anxiously. He was so nervous that he made Mrs. Grouse nervous.

"What's the matter with you?" she demanded.

"Nothing," replied Mr. Grouse, stretching up as high as he could and looking all about.

"You act to me as if you were afraid," said Mrs. Grouse tartly. "You needn't be. Nothing is going to hurt you over here. Now tell me the news of the Green Forest."

"There isn't any news," replied Mr. Grouse, picking up a grain of buckwheat.

"Anything I don't know is news," retorted Mrs. Grouse. "And I don't know a thing about what is going on over in the Green Forest since I left. Has that hunter with the terrible gun been back?"

Mr. Grouse nodded. "Once," said he. "He came back the day after you were shot, but Farmer Brown's Boy chased him away and he hasn't been back since. But one never knows when a hunter may appear. There are some dreadful things happening."

"Tell me about them," commanded Mrs. Grouse.

"Well," said Mr. Grouse, "I suppose you know that Mr. and Mrs. Longbill the Woodcock have lost three of their children."

"What!" cried Mrs. Grouse. "What happened to them?"

"Hunters," replied Mr. Grouse. "Do you need to ask? Then I ran across one of Bob White's children hiding in the edge of the Green Forest. He had only one leg, and you know that is pretty tough on a bird that lives on the ground as much as the Bob Whites do."

Mrs. Grouse sighed. "I suppose that was due to the hunters, too," said she.

"Of course," replied Mr. Grouse. "That leg was shot off. He gets along after a fashion, but it's pretty hard work. That is the worst of these terrible guns. If they always killed it wouldn't be so bad; but this hunting folks and leaving them to suffer is what makes it so terrible."

"Have—have you heard from any of our children?" inquired Mrs. Grouse anxiously.

Mr. Grouse nodded. "Most of them have kept to the Green Forest," said he, "and of course they are safer there than they would be outside, where the hunters are. Two or three who have foolishly failed to heed my advice and have gone off Farmer Brown's land have had terrible frights, and one of them was pretty sick for two or three days with a shot from a terrible gun. However, so far, none has been killed."

Mrs. Grouse sighed. "I'm thankful for that," said she. "I do hope they'll have sense enough to stay where the hunters cannot find them until after this terrible hunting season. Now you see why I am not so badly off. I have no hunters to fear. Hello, here comes Farmer Brown's Boy. He must be bringing my breakfast."

Mr. Grouse turned and looked hastily, and with a rush of his stout wings he whirred away through the Old Orchard to the Green Forest.

Stories That Recall Others

Before He Fell Asleep

With much gesticulations, rapid fire sentences and frequent stamping of his feet, the young orator brought his speech on prohibition to a close.

Among those who came to congratulate the speaker was a greyhaired old man who was unusual because of his half awake appearance.

"I certainly enjoyed your talk," said the old man as he started to walk on, but was halted by a question asked by the speaker, "What part did you enjoy most?"

"Oh," replied the old gentleman as he yawned, "the part you gave before I fell asleep."

As Others See Us

An aspiring democrat, with a keen sense of humor, relates an unique slant he got on his own rather dubious position before the recent election. Several weeks before election he approached a man to see what his chances might be with one who was known to vote a split ticket.

"Did you know I was running for office, Sam?" the politician asked optimistically.

"Yes, I knew you were running," reluctantly replied the non partisan voter.

"How did you know that I was running?"

"Well, George told me."

"What did he say about my running when he told you?" the candidate hopefully questioned.

"Well," more reluctantly, replied the voter, "he didn't say anything—he just laughed."

The prosperity of a fool may be either a reward or a penalty.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation. If you write to me, Eugene M. Pulles, Carpenter, 181 N Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured —you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

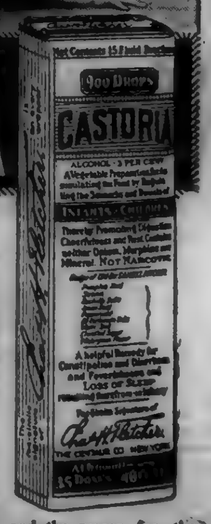
Fletcher's CASTORIA



Why Castoria?

Years ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupefy the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

To avoid imitations always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

E. HART GEER DIES AT HADLYME HOME

E. Hart Geer, secretary of the Hartford Printing Company, a former member of the state fish and game commission, died of heart disease at his home in Hadlyme at 7 o'clock Sunday evening.

Mr. Geer was born in Hadlyme, Aug. 12, 1863, a son of General Elihu Geer and Eliza (Selden) Geer. He had always engaged in farming at the family homestead and had been very active in town affairs. He was a former selectman and a representative from Lyme in the general assembly of 1897, and was a member of the fish and game commission, 1900 to 1912, serving as secretary for part of that time. He was also active in the work of the Hadlyme Congregational church. He was a past master of Pythagoras lodge, No. 45, F. & A. M., of Old Lyme, and a member of Burning Bush chapter, No. 39, R. A. M., of Essex, and Palestine commandery, K. T. of New London.

Mr. Geer is survived by his wife, Minnie (Burrows) Geer; three sons, Lester Geer and Elihu Geer of Springfield and Hollis Geer of Hartford; a daughter, Miss Frances Geer, a teacher in Springfield; a brother, Erastus C. Geer of Hartford, and four sisters, Mrs. Editha L. Burr, Miss Eliza S. Geer and Miss Ethel E. Geer of Windsor, and Mrs. Elene E. Orrok of New York city.

Caught Fugitive Cow

The Ayrshire cow owned by John Garvey of Breakwater, which has been running wild since last boat race day, was captured Sunday near the submarine base by Mr. Garvey and a group of men. She was led to the Garvey home and put into the barn. The cow was wild as a deer but, upon being taken, she calmed down. She manifested a distinct fear of automobiles, while being led along the highway, but otherwise did not seem to mind her capture. The chase occupied about two hours, during which time the cow and her calf dashed wildly through the woods and fields, east of the submarine base. The calf escaped and a thorough search will be conducted for it.

Miss Riordan was a graduate of St. Frances' hospital training school for nurses, Hartford. She was well known to a number of Norwich people. Surviving are one brother, James Riordan of Waterbury, and one sister, Mrs. James Shields, of Waterbury. A Waterbury undertaker conveyed the body to Waterbury and burial will take place in that city.

Mrs. Jacob Betts

Word was received Sunday morning of the death of Margaret, widow of Rev. Jacob Betts, which occurred Friday at the home of her sister in Boston. She had been ill about four weeks at her cottage on Willimantic camp ground, and was taken to Boston Nov. 16. Burial took place in Attleboro, Mass., Monday. Mrs. Betts has been a prominent figure on the camp ground in past years.

She was known to many in eastern Connecticut, her husband having been at one time pastor of the Methodist church at Putnam.

Asa B. Fish

Asa B. Fish, 86, and a veteran of the Civil war, died Sunday at the home of Mrs. Charles Daboll of Ledyard, by whom he had been employed for several years. Death followed a lingering illness brought on by infirmities attending advanced years.

As a young man Mr. Fish was employed on a fishing vessel sailing out of Noank. He was not quite 21 years of age when the Civil war began but he enlisted and was mustered in with Co. G, Fifth Connecticut infantry, in spite of the fact that he was not qualified under the age requirements. He enlisted in the town of Groton July 18, 1861, and was mustered in nine days later.

After serving nearly two years, participating in several engagements, he was taken ill, and this, together with the fact that he enlisted under age, effected his release through formal discharge on Jan. 6, 1863.

Returning to Connecticut, Mr. Fish regained his health and re-enlisted. He was mustered in with Co. H, First regiment, Connecticut Volunteer Cavalry. He was discharged from the cavalry on Aug. 2, 1865.

After the war, Mr. Fish returned to Noank where he resumed his occupation as a fisherman and continued that work for a number of years. Later he was employed as a farmer in Mystic and finally went to work on a farm in Ledyard. He had been unable to do work of a strenuous nature for the past several years, owing to poor health.

Mr. Fish was married three times. His third wife, Mrs. Minnie Thompson Fish, to whom he was married July 16, 1915, survives him. He is also survived by a daughter, who was formerly Miss Mary Fish.

ST. MARY'S MINSTREL REVUE IS GIVEN BY WELL TRAINED CAST

A thousand people crowded Pulaski hall, North Main street, Monday evening, when the annual fall social of St. Mary's parish was held. A minstrel show and dancing featured the evening's programme. His honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, with Mrs. Waters, was present and visiting clergymen included Rev. John J. Reilly of this city and Rev. John Maller, Taftville.

The programme opened at 8:15 o'clock when the St. Mary's minstrel revue was staged under the direction of Mr and Mrs. Michael J. Farrell. The minstrel cast included Joe Portelance, John Keenan, Arthur Portelance and Robert Enright, end men; Misses Alice Fox, Teresa Portelance, Mary Keenan, Doris White, Teresa Connelly, Monica Shea, Jane Breen, Teresa Bielecki, and James Gay, Francis Monahan, Raymond Portelance and Raymond Higgins comprised the chorus.

The programme was as follows:

Opening chorus, Hello ,Hello, written especially for the minstrel show by Michael J .Farrell; Hi Ho and the Merrio, by John Keenan, end man, with dance by end men; waltz clog and eccentric dance, by Misses Mary Gallagher and Lucille Gross; Waltz of the Bells, Miss Catherine Brennan; song, Mary Lou, Nicholas J. Spellman; banjo singing monologue, Mimic of Birds of the Forest, M. J. Farrell; song, Mike, Miss Catherine Bergin; song, Just a Cottage Small by a Waterfall, Edward T. Connolly; quartette, recently organized, first appearance, in old Scotch song, Mary of Argoyle, Pumpkin Sue, and Hoecakes; song, Breezin' Along With the Breeze, Arthur Portelance; Hi Diddle Diddle, Joe Portelance. The costumes were attractive and appropriate.

Mrs. M. J. Farrell, organist at the church, was the musical director for the show and the music was furnished by Swahns orchestra.

After the minstrel show dancing was enjoyed until 11 o'clock, the orchestra furnishing the music. The committee assisting in the arrangements for the evening comprised John T. Sullivan, Patrick J. Sullivan, Napoleon Kerouack, James Leonard, John Barry, Armand Demars, Raymond Leonard, Cornelius Leary and Joseph A. Donnelly. The proceeds of the affair will go towards the parish memorial church.

SLAP IN THE FACE BRINGS COURT CHARGE

Because he objected to a local colored youth talking to a couple of white girls who reside on the east side section of the city, a local white man will be in court this (Tuesday) morning to answer to a charge of breach of the peace. The trouble started in the vicinity of the Breed theatre about 6 o'clock Monday evening when the white man in question noticed the colored youth talking to the girls. At the end of the conversation the girls started away but had not got far when the colored youth thought of something else he wanted to say and whistled to the girls as a signal that he had something more to say to them.

At this point the self appointed "protector" of the girls had some words with the colored youth, who accused him at police headquarters, later, of calling him some very uncomplimentary names. As the colored youth had no particular desire to cause any trouble at that moment, he let the matter drop temporarily.

About 9 o'clock the colored youth and his older brother met the girls' self appointed "protector" in the neighborhood of Franklin square and the youth's brother tried to reason with the white man but with little success. A second white man who evidently sided in with the colored youths, received a slap in the face from the "protector" for his interference in the matter. As far as could be learned that was the only blow struck although the complainant told the police that the white man threatened him with severe punishment.

A complaint was made to Officer Hugh McAvoy at Franklin square and the white man was gathered in and after being questioned at police headquarters was booked on a charge of breach of the peace and shortly afterwards released on bonds of $25, furnished by one of his friends. Accused claimed he is not acquainted with the girls he was protecting from the colored youth who he said was bothering them.

TWO PERUVIAN SUBMARINES HAVE REACHED CANAL ZONE

Completing a 3,050-mile run in eight days without a stop, the Peruvian submarines R-1 and R-2, built by the Electric Boat Co., at the plant of the New London Ship & Engine Co., at Groton, arrived at Colon, Panama Canal Zone Sunday, according to word received by officials of the former concern Monday morning. The two submersibles, which made the trip unaccompanied, left Groton on Saturday, Nov. 20, and averaged about 300 miles per day. Although they are capable of a surface speed of 15 knots per hour, the submarines were not pushed on the trip down the coast, and maintained an average of about 10 knots. Their stop at Colon will be a brief one and the only one that they will make. After clearing Colon they will proceed directly to their recently constructed base at San Lorenzo Island in the harbor of Callao Peru, a distance of about 1,500 miles from Colon.

The two vessels, displacing 600 tons each, were designed by the Electric Boat Co., and are equipped with Nelseo Diesel engines built at the Ship & Engine Co. shops at Groton. The vessels were handled exclusively by Peruvian crews on their trip to Colon, although Civilian experts of the Electric Boat Co., were along in advisory capacities Charles Newell, expert electrician, was aboard the R-1, and James Forrest, expert engineman, sailed on the R-2. Commander Monge was aboard the latter ship, which is the flagship.

The base at San Lorenzo Island, where the R-1 and R-2 will be stationed, was also built by the Electric Boat Co., under the same contract that called for the construction of the submarines.

COLCHESTER IS HAVING WHOOPING COUGH EPIDEMIC

HARTFORD, Nov. 29.—(AP)— While new cases of diphtheria and scarlet fever have decreased during the past week there has been a marked increase in the number of new cases of measles and whooping cough, according to the weekly morbidity report issued today by the state department of health.

There were twenty five new cases of diphtheria as compared with thirty four during the preceding week. Scarlet fever decreased from fifty four to forty four, with sixteen of the new cases being reported in Bridgeport. New cases of whooping cough increased from thirty-five to fifty-two with twenty-one cases being reported in Colchester, where there has been an epidemic of the disease for several weeks. Measles cases jumped from ten to thirty two during the week, the town of Killingly reporting nineteen cases.

Only one case of typhoid was reported during the week, that being in Norwich. The previous week there were only two cases in the state.

Diphtheria bacilli carriers were reported as follows: Branford, 6; New Haven, 2; Manchester, 1; Putnam, 1. Other communicable diseases reported during the week were as follows: Pneumonia 46, chickenpox 111; German measles 1; influenza 8; mumps 4; septic sore throat 1; tuberculosis 21.

An evening of whist and pinochle was announced for this week and the evening closed with a social hour with refreshments.

LUDLOW FARM COTTAGE AND BARN ARE BURNED

Early Sunday evening fire leveled to the ground the farm cottage, barn and some sheds at "Ludlow" in the town of North Stonington, the summer place of William H. Oat, general manager of The Bulletin Co.

The animals in the barn, a horse and four cows, were saved, and the fire did not reach the main residence or the garage which stood about 300 feet from the barn. The cause of the fire is not known.

The fire started on the upper floor of the two story cottage in the absence of the caretakers, Mr. and Mrs. Lovett, who occupy the house, and spread so fast that practically nothing was saved from the building. James E. Franklin was reading in the sitting room when his attention was attracted by the dog barking, he said, and upon going upstairs into a bedroom and opening a clothes press he found it all on fire. Shouting for help, he rushed downstairs and outside to the well for water, dashing pails of it on the fire and he was shortly joined by Mr. Oat and C. A. Gager who, with their wives, were spending the evening at the farmhouse.

The well was quickly drained of water and neighbors came from miles around to give all the help they could, but little could be done to check the fire in the cottage, although a chicken coop at one end and all the chickens in it were saved. So quickly did the flames spread that the Lovett family and Mr. Franklin lost all their personal effects.

From the cottage the flames leaped across a 30-foot roadway to the roof of the barn which suddenly burst into flames and this building was soon consumed. An ice house near the barn, however, was not reached by the flames.

The loss is partially covered by insurance.

RULES FOR PRACTICE OF JUDGES AND PROSECUTORS

Superior Court Clerk George E. Parsons has received copies of the amendment to the Connecticut practice book applying to the practice of judges, prosecuting attorneys and public defenders.

These rules, which were adopted Oct. 4, 1926, are as follows:

A lawyer who is a judge of the supreme or superior courts may not practice law in any state or federal court.

A lawyer who is state's attorney, or assistant state's attorney, or a judge or prosecutor of the district court of Waterbury or of any criminal court of common pleas or of any town, borough or city court having criminal jurisdiction may not appear, during the period of his incumbency of such office, in any criminal case in behalf of any accused in the court of which he is an officer, or in such case upon appeal or binding over from such court.

No public defender, during the incumbency of such office, may appear in behalf of the state in any criminal case in the court of which he is such officer, or in such case upon appeal or binding over from such court.

FIREARMS CASE NOLLED ON PAYMENT OF $28.09

The criminal court of common pleas which convened in New London two weeks ago and recessed until Monday in this city had little business Monday morning.

Judge Charles B. Waller, upon the recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey, nolled the case of Steve Scovitch, charged with having firearms in his possession upon the payment of $28.09.

The case of William Flemming of Norwich, charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was continued until the next term of the court.

CHRISTMAS SEALS FOR DECEMBER FIRST MAIL

Charles Colt of 185 Broadway, who is in charge of the distribution of the Christmas seals for the benefit of the tuberculosis fund, received inquiry Monday from two business houses for a supply of seals which they could use in sending out their mail on the first of the month.

Mr. Colt at once made arrangements to receive an adequate supply of the seals from Hartford (today) Tuesday and will be glad to provide any business houses with seals that want to use them on their mail, as has been the custom with many business concerns in years past, when they found this a ready way in which to use the Christmas seals.

CRASH AT SALEM CORNERS BRINGS COURT SUMMONS

Anthony Ficarra, 23, of New London, sustained severe injuries to his back Sunday, shortly after noon, in an automobile accident near the Salem four corners, Hartford turnpike. Ficarra was riding in an automobile driven by Norman A. King, also of New London, which collided with a machine driven by Edward R. Crane of Essex. Ficarra was taken to the hospital for emergency treatment and was later removed to his home.

Salvatore Ficarra, brother of Anthony, suffered a contused rib, and King sustained a scalp wound requiring surgical treatment. Anthony Ficarra's condition was reported critical Monday, but showed a slight improvement overnight. He is not yet considered quite out of danger.

King and three other young men, including Ficarro, were riding to South Manchester. They were traveling along a stretch of concrete highway when the automobile driven by Crane moved onto the highway from a side road. The Crane automobile, a heavy touring car, struck King's machine, a light sedan, sharply against the right rear wheel. The sedan was swung completely around and overturned. Witnesses say that the machine overturned four times. The fourth occupant of the car escaped without injury.

Ficarra was rendered unconscious as he was thrown out of the machine and it was with great difficulty that he was revived. Crane and a woman passenger in the other machine were not injured. The Crane machine was only slightly damaged about the forward end, but the sedan was almost totally wrecked.

The accident was investigated by state police from the Groton barracks and both drivers were ordered to appear in Salem court Wednesday to answer charges of violating rules of the road.

CAPT. MARK GILBERT WAS ONCE MYSTIC RESIDENT

Captain Mark L. Gilbert, one of the defendants in the trial of the three sons of Charles W. Morse and seven others for alleged conspiracy to use the mails to defraud in the sale of the stock of the United States Ship corporation, was discharged by Judge Thatcher in federal court at New York, Friday, when Gilbert's counsel, Harold Harper, showed that his client had severed all connections with the Morse enterprises in 1917.

Captain Gilbert is widely known in Connecticut. He founded the Gilbert Transportation company more than 20 years ago, when he was a resident of Mystic, and investors lost a great deal of money in the enterprise, which operated schooners on the route around Cape Cod. Many of them went to the bottom with cargo and crew. Frank S. Butterworth of New Haven was eventually appointed receiver for the company and wound up its affairs.

Later on Gilbert was sought as witness in a case brought by a Philadelphia woman against Charles W. Morse, Gilbert and others for the loss of her son at sea. In February, 1926, Captain Gilbert was commander of the rum-runner, Homestead, which was caught off Montauk point after a 36-hours running battle with the coast guard patrol.

INGROWN NAIL
Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

SUSIE SEEMS SOMEWHAT PEEVED ABOUT LETTER FROM H. H. HALL

In her letter for this week Susie seems to be rather skeptical about the qualities of Hepsitab Hooper Hall and her reply follows:

Dear Sports Ed: Say Ed., is that person what is named Hepsitab Hooper Hall a he or a she? I ain't quite sure but I think it's a he 'though that first name is kind of deceiving. Well anyway I'm going to say its a he and he sure took a dirty slap at me in the public press. He sure slings a mean pen and ink, don't he. Oh my, but ain't he the modest little highbrow, but what can you expect of a guy with a moniker like that, Hepsitab Hooper Hall. Just the name is enough to give you the creeps. Say, it's guys like him what give me a pain where I never had an ache. If he don't like what I write there ain't nobody making him read it, is there? If them letters of mine leave such a bad taste in his mouth why don't he pass them up and read only the Bedtime stories, the Social Corner page and Uncle Jed's page.

I guess that bird must have wrote a chapter in the dictionary, but if he did it ain't in my book. Say if that guy writes any more of them letters I got to get a new dictionary 'cause the book what I got ain't got half them words in it. I suppose he think's he's made a great hit with the highbrows. He tin't so much 'cause I know a lotta regular guys what could make him look like he was in the first grade.

These would-be highbrows (mushroom aristocrats, Ma calls 'em) give me a awful pain in the neck. You know Ed, there's highbrows and highbrows. The real died in the wool highbrow ain't so worse but there's that kind what only arches their eyebrows to make you think they is high, but if they let 'em down and set natural they wouldn't be no different from you and me. Them guys ain't fooling nobody only themselves. It don't make no difference if your grandfolks come over first class on the Mayflower or steerage on a cattle boat, it's what you are yourself that counts. You know Ed., there's many a gem what has come out of a dirty old swamp and then there's a lotta paste diamonds what get mixed up with some of the real jewels.

Well if that old shell-back H. H. H. wants to live way back in them dark ages when knights were full of chivalry and prunes, he can. But not for yours truly. I bet that old fossil wouldn't get up and give his seat to no woman in a trolley car. No, them birds is the kind what never do. Gosh, how I'd hate to have to sit and look at him across a breakfast table 365 days a year.

Remember what he said about dress being a cymbol of virtue and how girls in his day never used make-up. That's a lotta blarney. He's all wet, yes, soaking wet. I wonder if he remembers the bustle what looked like a trunk on the back of a hack; and the pads what made full-bosomed maids outa flat-chested anemics; and the wire and horse-hair rats that the dames used to comb their hair over; and the switches and a lotta steel and whalebone structures what was laced about the dames to make 'em look like they had a 20 inch waist when they was a perfect 44. And then he says them janes didn't use no make-up. Blah. If them things ain't artificial I don't know what is. Them things has passed out like the horse-cars. I suppose that old bozo would like them days back when the dames wore seven petticoats, one of red flannel, one of white flannel, and five what was all starched stiff so that when they walked they sounded like a bunch of sand-paper going some place. Then the dresses with the leg of mutton sleeves and the high button shoes. And the lace pancake hat what set up on top of the pompadores and was anchored with them spikes called hat pins. I suppose that's what he calls modest dressing. That's overstuffed upholstery, I claim. He'd like that he would, yes he would, like fun. Say I bet every time fashion says skirts are going to be shorter he goes and gets a new pair of glasses. I bet the dames what lived when he was a boy was just as devilish as the girls of 1926. The world and women ain't much different now than when Nero fiddled at the Roman bonfire. They have improved, there ain't so much left to the imagination and imagination is a awful tricky thing sometimes.

He says I'm a creature of the street. Well I ain't, I got a home and I stay in it. He says I'm operating under a none-de-plume. Well I ain't, 'cause I ain't had no hats with feathers on them in years. Yes, he says it is painful for him to write for publication, well I hope he writes again so the pain becomes acute and they have to operates on him and remove that stuck-up air he's got. Well Ed. I ain't said half what I think about him but I guess you got a idea what I think.

Well Ed. how'd the old turkey taste this year? Pretty good, Eh? Well I see where them Academy boys is going to play basketball this year and if they do as well as they did in football and baseball they'll get on the map all right. Well Ed. I don't think of nothing more to write about so I stop. Give my best regards to Hepsy, the old dear, if you know who he or she is.

So long,

As Ever,
SUSIE.

GIANTS RELEASE FIVE OLD TIME PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Five men were given unconditional release today by the New York Giants and there by bangs a tale.

One of them was "Tilly" Shafer, star third baseman of years ago. Another was "Big Jeff" Tesreau, a hurler of more recent fame. Both have been carried on the "voluntary retired" list of the Giants from year to year.

"Tilly," also known as the "millionaire third baseman," came east from the Pacific coast many years ago to work for John McGraw, the Giant pilot. His success was immediate, his fame spread through organized baseball, and "Tilly" became one of the main cogs in the Giant machine. Then at the height of his career, the wealthy westerner peeled off his uniform and retired from the horsehide pastime leaving John McGraw a saddened figure. Shafer went back home to the coast and his business affairs.

Tesreau is a physical director at Dartmouth college and coach of the big Green baseball team. During the summer the big southpaw [redacted] and twirls for a nine in New England. The remaining three "released" today were Fred Anderson, a Federal league pitcher, Tom Workman, and L. I. Lilly, college hurlers who never even reported to the Giant fold.

ARMY ELEVEN RECEIVED WITH HONOR ON RETURN

WEST POINT, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Army football squad, heroes of the thrilling 21-21 tie with Navy at Chicago, came home to the waiting corps today.

An ancient stage coach with its decrepit trappings, for many years the vehicle used to haul returning gridiron warriors from the station up the long hill to the "plains", was decked in its finest trimmings.

"Tiny" Hewitt, out-going captain, Harry Wilson, captain-elect, and Coach "Biff" Jones made speeches and the massed cadets roared their appreciation.

NETTLETON RE-APPOINTED CHAIRMAN OF YALE A. A.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Prof. George H. Nettleton has been re-appointed chairman of the Yale University Athletic association board of control for the present academic year, it was announced today.

Other appointments to the board included George Parmly Day, treasurer of the university, as treasurer of the board; President James Rowland Angell; Dean of Freshmen Percy T. Walden, '92; George T. Adee, '95 of New York, representing the minor A. A.; Mortimer N. Buckner, '95, of New York, chairman of the alumni football ticket committee; Malcolm F. Aldrich, '22, of New York; Philip W. Bunnell, '27, of Scranton, Pa., captain of the 1926 football team; William E. Minor, Jr., '27 S. of Cincinnati, Ohio, manager of football; Stuart N. Scott, '27, of Madison, Wis., manager of the Yale track team.

The following appointments to the board, recommended by the association, were approved by the corporation: Dr. James C. Greenway, '00, secretary of the board; Dean Clarence W. Mendell, '04, of the college; Dean Charles M. Warren, '06 S, of the Sheffield Scientific school; Prof. R. Shelton Rose, '09, representing the faculty of the college; Prof. Charles J. Tilden, representing the scientific school faculty, and the following chairmen of the graduate committees in major sports.

Louis E. Stoddard, '99, of New York, football; Burnside Winslow, '04, of New Haven, baseball; Alfred C. Gilbert, '09, of New Haven, track; Frederick Sheffield, '24, of New Haven, crew; Ezekiel S. Bronson, '00, of New Haven, hockey. Approval of the appointment of Chairman Bronson gives official recognition of hockey as a major sport, for the first time.

TUNNEY ARRESTED FOR VIOLATING BOXING LAW

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—(AP)—Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, was arrested late today charged with violating the boxing law by appearing in an unlicensed exhibition. Earlier in the day Tunney received a summons to appear in magistrate's court tomorrow to answer a complaint of "boxing at an unlicensed club" during a vaudeville performance. The arrest followed Tunney's second appearance with sparring partners on the stage of a Broadway theatre. All four were released on $2,000 bail.

Tunney, with his boxing mates, Harry Howard and Frank Muskie, were booked at the West 47th street station where the champion gave his age as 28 and his residence the Hotel Breslin. The manager of the theatre, Joseph Emmett, also was taken into custody, charged with permitting the boxing exhibition without first having obtained a permit from the state boxing commission.

The arrests followed the complaint of Edward Curry, an inspector of the state boxing commission, which previously had refused to sanction the sparring exhibition. The commission had insisted the champion confine his act to bag-punching, shadow-boxing and calisthenics. A similar ruling had been made in the case of Tiger Flowers, shortly after the southern Negro won the middleweight title.

WEISMAN ELECTED HEAD OF EASTERN LEAGUE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 29—(AP)—Herman Weisman, an attorney of Waterbury, Conn., was today elected president and secretary of the Eastern league at its annual meeting here. Carroll Mayon, of Springfield was re-elected treasurer, the terms of each being one year. It was said that no change in the circuit is contemplated, plans being in the making to refinance the Waterbury and Pittsfield clubs.

It was stated that Troy, Schenectady and Stamford, Conn., would take franchises in the league if available. President Weisman stated after the meeting that he would proceed on a building-up policy. A schedule committee consisting of the Providence, Bridgeport and Springfield representatives was appointed.

The season of 1927 will begin April 20 and end September 11 with 154 games on the schedule. The Eastern league baseball writer's association held its annual meeting during the afternoon, the election resulting in the choice of Clarence J. Cassin of Waterbury, president; William D. Perrin, of Providence, vice president; Victor M. Wall of Springfield, secretary and treasurer; A. B. McGinley of Hartford, M. O. Welch of Bridgeport and J. M. Flynn of Pittsfield, directors. The annual field day of the association will be held in Bridgeport some time in August.

FAST BOUTS AT WESTERLY THIS EVENING

The boxing committee at the Lorraine club can promise some lively bouts tonight judging from the past record of the boys Phil Fortin has lined up.

In the main bout of six rounds, Bill Collins of North Stonington will meet Jim Ross of Westerly. This particular match has been thought about and talked about for a long time, but for some reason could not be clinched until now. Both men are equally matched in the middleweight class and it remains to be seen which will come out on top.

A boy from Danielson by the name of Al Merrialo will make his debut at the club in the semi-final when he meets Mickey Ross. This act is scheduled for six rounds but some are in doubt about the limit as both boys carry the short route wallops.

Nothing can be said about the top preliminaries that the fans do not already know, for the mere mention of Hookie Jackson and Young Bruno has always given the fight world a thrill. Four rounds is their journey with no idle moments.

Three other preliminaries are booked up that will show the wares of Kid Williams and Sammy Fairbanks, Nel Monte and Kid Lewis.

The four round curtain raiser will bring on Babe McGuiness and Mickey Flynn.

AMERICAN LEAGUE DIRECTORS CALLED TO MEET DEC. 14-15

CHICAGO, Nov. 29—(AP)—Directors of the American league tonight were called to meet in Chicago, December 14 and 15, by President Ban Johnson. The National league sessions have been called for the same dates in New York and the joint session of the major baseball magnates will follow, in Chicago, December 16.

SWARTHMORE HAS CLEAN SOCCER SLATE FOR SEASON

STATE COL. Pa., Nov. 29—(AP)—Winning from Swarthmore today 4 to 0, the Pennsylvania state college soccer team closed its season with a clean slate in inter-collegiate matches and with a clear title to the inter-collegiate league championship. Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Navy were defeated in previous league contests.

MISS SEARS BETTERS HER RECORD FOR WALKING

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Miss Eleanora Sears, society woman who is also a tennis player and horsewoman, again has demonstrated her athletic prowes clipping forty-three minutes from her previous time in walking from Providence to Boston. Tonight she was giving a celebration and dance at her home after a few hours rest. Last December she held her honors against male pacemakers who hiked the distance with her. Today she shared them with Miss Elizabeth Ryan, internationally known tennis player, who finished abreast of Miss Sears.

The start was made from Providence at 13:55 this morning. Five men who rode in the accompanying automobiles served alternately as pacemakers. Miss Sears and Miss Ryan wore walking shoes and heavy stockings appropriate to their endeavor. They halted for a moment in Wrentham for a cup of cocoa, 20 minutes in Dedham for breakfast, and a little later paused for a drink of coffee. They reached Miss Sears' home here at 10:50, an elapsed time of nine hours and 53 minutes.

Although the distance is generally reckoned at 44 miles, Miss Sears declared that it is actually 47.

Although Clifton Church, 73-year-old veteran, gallantly handed to Miss Sears the crown he had worn since 1875 when he said he completed the distance in ten hours flat, another claimant for the record on the now popular course has appeared. Friends of Jan Bassis, employed in an Attleboro factory, asserted that on September 11 she covered the distance in nine hours, 36 minutes.

BALL PLAYER WILL BECOME A PUGILIST

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Reuben (Slug) Macklin, regular catcher for the Bridgeport baseball club, will make his debut as a professional boxer in Bridgeport on December 10. Macklin's opponent has not as yet been selected.

The hard hitting catcher started training for the ring immediately after the close of the Eastern league season in September and his manager, Andy Parker, former well known boxer, announced today that Macklin was ready for his first bout.

TAFTVILLE CELTICS CLASH TONIGHT WITH FAST HARTFORD RUBBER TEAM

This evening at Parish hall, Taftville the Hartford Rubber works basketball team will be the attraction against the Taftville team which is in form after the victory over the fast South Manchester team on Thanksgiving and is going into tonight's game determined to make it two straight. Hartford comes to Taftville with the best in the Capitol city, last year winning 19 out of 24 starts, and comes here with a determination to win this game.

Manager Raymond of the Taftville team has gone out and secured Jack Murphy and George Coleman to play for the local team. Murphy has just returned to town and should be a great help to the team, having much experience, having played with the Emeralds and the Old Crescents. Coleman was the star of the Army-Navy team. These boys with the rest of the team should make the Taftville club one of the strongest to ever represent the Celtics. Hartford will be represented by such men as Waterman of the Hartford K. of C., with Reenke also of the K. of C., Urban of Cornell, Madden and Martell of Dean Prep school and also have appeared with the Plainfield team. This team should furnish the Taftville boys with plenty of action as every player has seen service with the best teams in the state.

The Taftville team will be picked from the following: Mondi Normandin, the Emerald flash, Rabbit Gauthier, Les Pingree, Jack Murphy, Walt Coady, George Colman and Capt. Eccleston. The management has also secured for the dance lovers Pepe Melody Boys who will render the music for dancing which follows the basketball game. There will also be a fast preliminary between the Nordics and the Norwich Stars at 7:30.

Taftville Nordics vs. All Collegiates

The Taftville Nordics will attempt to break into the winning column this evening when they clash with the fast All Collegiates of Norwich as a preliminary to the Taftville-Hartford rubber game. The Nordics under new management and with a much shifted lineup should give a better account of themselves than Thanksgiving day when they were defeated by the Baltic Independents. The probable Nordic lineup will be: Fred Smith, former Nordic star at left forward, with Ducky Jackson, Academy flash as his running mate. Ludlow, a C. F. C. player or Pingree, will be at the top-off position. The guarding will be done by Jack Houston at left guard, and at right guard, one of the following will play James Heap, Irvine Archibald, Lefty Dugas or Earl Mathewson. The All Collegiates will line up as follows: Duville from Baltic at right forward and Capt. Williams at left forward, Provencher will jump center. Buck La Croix and Jimmy Fenton, two fast Academy men will take care of the guarding positions. The Nordics would like to arrange games with other teams in this section of the state especially from Norwich, Jewett City and Plainfield. Write Mgr. L. Pingree or Phone 115-13.

SPEEDBOYS CHALLENGE TIGERS FOR E. C. TITLE GAME

The Jewett City Speedboys, present eastern Conn. champions, will give the Greeneville Tigers, last year's champs one more chance for title honors this Sunday, if the Tigers care for one. As the J. B. Martin field is never in playing condition, in regards to markings, goal posts etc., the game must be played at Ashland park, where the crowd will be kept from the playing field.

As Sunday's engagement will be the only game played between these two rivals this year all the officials excepting the head linesman will be from C. A. C. The linesman will be Shea of N. F. A. As in last years game the proceeds will be divided evenly between both clubs.

If the Tigers do not accept this challenge the Speedboys will clash with the only eleven that has offered strong opposition this year, Westerly. The Speedboys impressive record for the sason follows:

Speedboys 6, Westerly	0
Speedboys 13, Nutmegs	6
Speedboys 25, Nutmegs	0
Speedboys 46, Noank	0
Total 90	6

If the Tigers accept this challenge, please make it known in Wednesday's Bulletin otherwise Westerly will be secured for the final 1926 clash.

STEFFEN RETURNS TO BENCH AFTER COACHING CARNEGIE

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Walter M. Steffen, coach of the Carnegie Tech football eleven that surprised the gridiron world by walloping the previously undefeated Notre Dame team, returned to his role as judge of the superior court here, today.

The happiness of Steffen's victory was tinged with regret because he indicated that the Notre Dame prize might be the end of his football career. The pressure of judicial duties may force him to give up coaching, Judge Steffen indicated.

"I have been coaching Carnegie Tech for ten years and know that I must eventually give it up," the captain of the 1908 University of Chicago team said. "I have not decided whether I shall return as coach next year."

Steffen worked with the team for three weeks in September, and afterwards journeyed to Pittsburgh for week ends.

IRELAND BEST PLACE FOR BASEBALL SAYS HARRIS

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The only chance that baseball has "to get a toe-hold on the eastern world" is through Ireland, acording to Stanley (Bucky) Harris, manager of the Washington baseball team.

Harris returned today with his wife from a honeymoon abroad. Mrs. Harris was Miss Elizabeth Sutherland, daughter of former Senator Sutherland of West Virginia.

"I think Ireland may in time turn to baseball," Harris told ship reporters as the Leviathan docked.

"She is seeking games that will divorce her from English sports and baseball is a game in which the Irish Americans excel. I see no reason why it should not take a strong hold there."

GEORGETOWN PLAYERS NOT TO JOIN PRO TEAM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Three Georgetown football stars—Connaughton, tackle, and McGrath and Waite, ends—gave their word today to athletic officials at the university that they would not play in professional games, at least not until after their graduation.

Acting on reports that the three, who are seniors, would play with a professional team Charley Rogers, University of Pennsylvania halfback, is organizing, the trio was called before the university athletic board.

Later Lou Little, athletic director, announced that all three denied any intention of turning professional, which, he said, would be in violation of Georgetown traditions.

BUTLER WILL NOT TAKE UP PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Denial that he would play professional football this season was made tonight by John Butler, star center of the University of Pennsylvania eleven. It had been intimated by Charley Rogers, university halfback, that Butler would be among those turning professional and playing on his team against the New York Yankees next Saturday.

Butler said that while he favored going into the professional ranks, his father was opposed to it.

Y. Juniors Challege

The Y Juniors challenge any team under 15 years of age to a basketball game on the Y floor Saturday at 2:30 p. m. We would like to play the Broadway school team if possible, the Central Baptist or Congregational Pioneers. Please answer through this paper by Thursday if challenge is accepted.

TRIS SPEAKER STEPS DOWN AS MANAGER OF CLEVELAND INDIANS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Post-season events which have brought about the passing of six big league baseball managers, today erased another illustrious name from the active list when Tris Speaker, 38, manager of the Cleveland Indians, resigned the post he has held since mid-season, 1919.

The venerable Speaker announced that his long term of service in the major leagues was at an end and that he is joining Ty Cobb and other managers in the inactive list.

Speaker's resignation has been rumored for several months.

"I considered quitting last year," the gray-haired manager said, "but the Indians were in sixth place and I didn't want it said that I quit a rudderless ship. So I stuck it out another season.

"The Indians finished in second place in the American league last season, and I can step out now without any question of my action."

Friends of "Spoke" added another reason for him to step into his own. Tris said he is going into business, but the manager's hitting and fielding record was cited as a further reason for his retirement.

Tris dreaded the bench.

After making up a career in baseball second only to that of Ty Cobb, Tris knew that his days of active service were almost numbered. Only last season he benched himself when he saw his fielding was poor.

He was acknowledged the "world's greatest outfielder."

His "Peg" was unerring and he covered a wide territory.

Therefore the veteran decided to step out while he was the Tris Speaker of old, his friends believe.

Tris began his baseball career in Hubbard city, Texas where he was studying to be a bookkeeper. He was playing with the Cleburne team, of the north Texas league when the Boston Americans tried him out in 1908 and again in 1909. Thereafter he remained in the American league.

He was purchased by Cleveland in 1916 for $55,000. In mid-season in 1919 he was made manager and in 1920 won the world's pennant for the Indians.

Club officials said today that Speaker's successor will not be chosen for a month, possibly six weeks.

Jack McAllister, who has been with the Cleveland club twelve years as scout, coach and assistant manager, has been mentioned as a likely successor to Speaker. Eddie Collins, recently released as pilot of the White Sox, also has been mentioned for the post.

I've got a half-nelson on jimmy-pipe joy

I TOOK P. A. for better or worse . . . and found it better! Better than anything I had ever smoked. That's my story and I'm going to stick to it. When siren-brands try to flirt, I just give them the icy stare. I know what I like in a pipe, and what I like is Prince Albert!

The instant you break the seal on the tidy red tin and get that wonderful fragrance of real tobacco, you know you are in for a pipe-treat. Your mouth fairly waters for a taste of tobacco that smells as good as that. Then you load up and light up—ah! . . .

Cool. Sweet. Fragrant. Old words, I'll admit, but you get a brand-new idea of how much they can mean in a pipe-bowl packed with P. A. Maybe you've always thought such pipe-pleasure was "just around the corner." Try a load of Prince Albert and turn that corner!

Get a half-nelson on the pipe-joy that's due you. Before you do another thing, buy a tin of Prince Albert and tuck a neat wad into your pipe. Notice how mild it is, yet how delightfully full-bodied. Here's a smoke that you can pal around with, morning to midnight.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

FARM HAND'S HARD EARNED CHECK SHOT TO PIECES IN N. LONDON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 29. — John Rillins made his birth appearance in as many months in the city court today charged with intoxication. That is a record that cannot be allowed to pass as something insignificant, so a fine of $10 was imposed. John offered a $20 check in payment and received 40 cents in change. He earned the money at farm work so he may learn the lesson his experience should teach.

Stanislaw Yomkowski will walk into the police court tomorrow and there tell why he was so indiscreet as to say disparaging things about Mrs. Joe Sobolewski. The parties attended a Thanksgiving day dance and there the accusations were made. They got to the ears of Joseph and he, naturally, went into a rage. He called for the police and accused his countryman of saying things that were unwarranted and which were not true. They cast reflection upon the character of Mrs. Sobolewski. But after the first heat of offense had left Joseph, he decided that he would not follow up the charges he made, so neither he nor his wife was in court today when the case against Stanislaw was called. The court had convened, witnesses were subpoenaed and an interpreter was secured to translate what the witnesses were to tell the court. There was no other course open for the court to pursue except to postpone the trial till tomorrow and that action was taken, that Joseph may realize that he cannot trifle with the law and the court.

John Rooney, an unfortunate in that he is old and has no employment, was arraigned for vagrancy and was convicted. He was on Meridian street stopping people so frequently that complaint was made to Police Officer Clyde Murphy. Rooney denied that he was without visible means of support and the next minute admitted that he had no where to lay his head when night should come on. For his own good he was committed to the workhouse.

Patrick Quigley was with Rooney and while he was penniless he has been at work recently though he appears to be on a protracted spree, and has secured lodgings at the police station frequently of late. The prosecutor said Quigley used the tramp room in the police station to sleep off the effects of liquor. Quigley was fined, but he pleaded so earnestly to be allowed to leave the city that his request was granted.

A couple of boozy individuals who hired a taxicab Sunday when they somehow possessed the idea that they were rich, refused to pay for the vehicle. One of them was arrested and today gladly paid a bill of $3.25 to escape incarceration in the Franklin street jail.

FAMILY DRIVEN OUT BY EARLY MORNING BLAZE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 29.—Just as the firemen of this city were congratulating themselves that they had few calls for their services conditions changed and there were three fires between 3 o'clock Saturday night and 2 o'clock Sunday morning. The tenement house in East New London on Winthrop street, where Steve Pokus and his family reside, was filled with smoke. The children of the Pokus family detected it and aroused their parents so that the entire family fled to the street. Several fire companies responded to an alarm and drenched the building and its contents with water. The loss is not great, but it is much more than the Pokus family can sustain and look pleasant over.

It was ascertained today that the driver of the automobile that crashed through the fence at the Groton approach to the Thames river highway bridge and then plunged down a steep embankment, Sunday morning, is owned by C. L. Tyler, chief petty officer at the submarine base. Tyler suffered a fractured collar-bone. He is now under treatment at the base hospital. The state police, Groton barracks and the Groton police are investigating.

Mrs. Elisha Gardner of Waterford; Mrs. William Simmons, 519 Williams street; Mrs. Joseph Perrone, 30 Montauk avenue; Master Henry Doughton, Waterford; Master Norman Hopkins, 21 Boardwalk, Ocean Beach, and Mrs. James Armstrong, 104 Howard street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

Charles A. Nett, two, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Nott, 670 Bank street, died this morning at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial hospital. The child was admitted to the hospital Sunday afternoon.

The funeral of Ariene, wife of Archibald Douglass, conductor in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was held at her residence, 21 Garfield avenue this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

An automobile driven by Norman King, 35 Denison avenue, this city, and an automobile driven by Edward Crane of Essex, were wrecked yesterday afternoon when the automobiles crashed together on the Hartford turnpike. Although both autos were damaged, particularly the King car, none of the occupants sustained injury beyond minor bruises. The King auto, a Chevrolet sedan, was traveling in a westerly direction and when at a point where the Haddam road intersects the turnpike, the auto driven by Crane, a Buick sedan, emerged from the side road and crashed against the lighter auto. King's car was struck between the front and rear wheels and was forced off the highway.

Mrs. Maude Conway, colored, wife of Eugene Conway, 52 Howard street, and proprietor of a tobacco store and club room, 109 Main street, made complaint to the police Sunday night that a watch belonging to her had been stolen from the store. She stated that she suspected two sailors of having committed the theft. The watch, which was gold and of Waltham make, was in a pocketbook and had been placed behind the counter. Sometime after the sailors had left the store Mrs. Conway discovered her loss.

City Manager William A. Holt today reappointed four special constables for another year. They are Daniel Callahan, Nelson Bailey, Charles Davidson and John Connors, all janitors at public schools.

Robert Sinclair, 14, who ran away from New Haven Sunday and who, it was believed, would come to New London and endeavor to enlist in the United States coast guard service, did not arrive in this city. The New Haven police today notified the New London police that the boy had returned to his home.

William Coleman, colored, employed by the Hotel Mohican and residing at 38 Hill street, was painfully injured Sunday when he fell on a picket fence, corner of Main and Shapley street, sustaining an abdominal injury. Although extremely painful it is not serious. The young man was taken to Lawrence hospital where 18 stitches were required to close the wound.

The National Economy store, corner of Main and Shapley street, was burglarized Saturday night or Sunday. Last night David Lubow, one of the proprietors of the store, discovered the break and reported it to the police. The plunder obtained by the thieves, who presumably were boys, was but little. Entrance to the store was gained by forcing a cellar door.

A white owl, one of those handsome birds that have recently appeared from northern regions, is on exhibition in a Bank street market. It is snow white with large wings that are mottled with clusters of black feathers. The specimen shown is one of those that have been shot in the Salem section. The state fish and game commission has authorized the shooting of the white owls that their ravages upon grouse may be stopped.

Congressman Freeman will leave here Saturday to be in Washington for the opening of congress next Monday. He is in Hartford today.

Miss Lena Galvin and her niece, Miss Ethel Fahey of 49 Cole street, spent the holiday with friends on Fishers Island.

Helen Borkman, 16, daughter of Mrs. Ann Borkman, of Front street, who has been missing from home about a week, continues to keep her whereabouts a mystery, at least as regards her mother and relatives. Mrs. Borkman tonight made another appeal to the police to assist her in locating the girl. It has been ascertained that she has not gone to the residence of her sister in Rochester and absolutely no tidings of the girl has been found.

Howard Santos, of 656 Main street; Miss Ida Traphagen, 45 Fremont street; Mrs. Paul Wunch, 96 Green street and Miss Lois Crouch, of Groton, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Brennan, of 38 Dell avenue, in walking along Main street near the corner of John street, Sunday evening, stumble dover a piece of iron that was in front of a garage. Today when she experienced ill effects from the injury she reported the fact at the police station.

William T. Counihan, of Perry street, and Miss Anite Rowe Frake, New York, were married Saturday night by Justice of the Peace Perry J. Holianderaky. They were attended by the groom's brother, James Counihan and Mrs. Counihan.

The police have been unable to locate John Visconi, of 118 Howard street, who is being sought on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon last Wednesday night when he slashed Albert Iverson, 113 1-2 Howard street.

The funeral of Albert M. Lamb, held at his home, 54 Thames street, Groton, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including a delegation of members of Fairview lodge, 101, I. O. O. F. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. The bearers were David W. Bosworth, C. Tyler Landphere, Ivah B. Cone, William O. Perkins, Washington S. Morgan and Sherwood M. Hill. Burial was in Starr cemetery, where the committal ritual was by the members of Fairview lodge.

The case of Joseph Turo, 33 Granite street, Westerly, charged with reckless driving, was continued a week, in the Groton town court today. Turo was arrested last Tuesday afternoon when his automobile collided with a Groton & Stonington Traction company trolley car on Thames street.

Edward Hickey, of Pequenoe Bridge, was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $13.70 on a charge of intoxication. He could not pay and was remanded to the county jail to work out the fine and costs. Hickey was arrested Saturday by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh.

C. G. SAILORS ORDERED TO DON WINTER UNIFORM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 29—The United States Coast Guard officers tonight had six officers and men patrol the streets and enforce the service regulations that all sailors wear pea coats and flat hats. Many of the coast guarders continue to wear white hats and some wear coats, while others use the blouse. All the sailors found wearing the white hats and no pea coats were warned that after tonight any failure to comply with the regulations relative to this form of attire would result in the offenders being arrested and taken to the local section base, state pier, for discipline.

TO RENEW FERRY CONTRACT BUT ON PRESENT TERMS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 29—The city council this evening decided to authorize the city manager to make an extension of the contract between the city of New London and the lessees of the New London-Groton ferry till the 31st of December next, on the same terms as the lease now carries.

There has been a controversy between the city and the lessees, Messrs Crandall and Sheehan, about the price that shall be made for the operation of the ferry another year. Messrs Crandall and Sheehan exacting a price of $1,000 more as an allowance than was paid during the lease now expiring. At this the council has balked and has refused to make a lease at the new figures, offering to pay the lessees the difference between the cost of coal the past year and the cost during the year to come. This is unsatisfactory to the lessees and they refuse to sign up under the conditions named by the city. So the fate of the ferry after the first of January next is in doubt.

The matter of the earlier collection of garbage on the business streets of the city came to the council on a report from the city manager this evening. The substance of the report was that an earlier collection could not be made as the stores were late in opening for business and the garbage receptacles were not on the walks. The city manager said that two trucks were now used to accommodate the merchants and that the best that could be done in the matter was being done. The mayor suggested that the garbage men in the stores should get to business a quarter hour earlier on the days when garbage was collected so that the receptacles could be placed on the sidewalks that much earlier than at present.

Complaint having been made of automobiles using a section of the sidewalk on Main street near Richard street, the city manager reported that he had given the police instructions to stop the practice and that he had been informed that the autoists had abandoned the use of the side walks as stated.

Attorney for Arthur Messer gave notice of the making of the city of New London a party defendant in a suit against Mrs. D'Elia, a claim for debt. The director of law is to be notified of the action by attorney for Mr. Messer.

Ten permits for building authority were presented to the council and all were granted.

A bill of R. A. Brubeck for typewriter supplies and labor to the graded schools amounting to $282, was ordered paid.

VOTE FOR ZONING EXPERT AT $11,000 COMPENSATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 29—The city council this evening voted 6 to 1 to employ Herbert Swan and his organization to make maps of the city and to prepare zoning ordinances that will put New London in the list of cities that will adopt that form of establishing sections within which certain building and only certain structures may be erected. The city will be laid out with a view to extending streets, to widening them and to establishing avenues, etc. The price Mr. Swan is to receive is $11,000. That sum may be paid in two amounts of $5,500 each within two years, if the city so elects. The committee on administration, through Councilor Streeter made the report of a meeting of the committee of the whole of the council during the past week and recommended the employment of the Swan organization. Councilor Whiton explained the matter, referring to the experience of Hartford, Bridgeport, Stamford, etc., and said that after having considered the proposals of other groups of experts these cities all engaged the Swan agency to act for them. He went into detail, reviewed the legislative action and explained the course of procedure, declaring that the Swan group was the ablest the city could obtain and favored the plan without any reservation whatever.

Councilor May opposed the plan and asked that the matter be referred to the citizens before any contract was signed. He declared that no one could tell whether or give any assurance that the $11,000 paid to the Swan group would be all that the zoning would cost the city. He pointed to the fact that when the city had experts come here to assess property the expense was much more than was "guaranteed" to the city when the contract was in process of making. He read a prepared statement and argued for the referendum to the people before anything definite was done. He said the matter could come up at the next election and a great deal of expense could be avoided.

Councilor Whiton explained in detail that the council must take definite action in favor of or adverse to any matter before any referendum could be proposed. He told Councilor May that the latter might go forward with a petition favoring a referendum as soon as the council voted on the recommendation of the committee on administration, but that until such action was taken the referendum was not to be considered. He even said that the referendum might be started before the city manager made the contract with the Swan agency.

Councilor May made his address as an amendment to the report of the majority of the committee, but the vote on it was adverse to the amendment, the ballot being 6 to 1.

Councilor May and Mayor Fox had their usual tiff and each replied hotly to the other. The mayor said he had received anonymous communications from "taxpayers" who were opposed to the zoning scheme but they were ashamed to sign their names to the epistle of objection they forwarded to him and he supposed to other members of the council. He declared that he believed the employment of the Swan group would be to the advantage of the city and that the cost would amount to an increase in taxation of an eighth of a mill a year for two years. He represented that Swan would bring every material needed to complete the work including labor, etc., and declared that the city of Hartford had experience with the Swan group and that every ordinance prepared by them had stood the test of law.

Councilor Whiton pointed out that in Euclid, Ill., adjacent to Cleveland, the latest test case had been decided by the supreme court in favor of zoning and that there was not the least doubt now as to the rights of the citizens under the zoning act. The planning board of this city had proceeded slowly because of conflicting opinions that had been rendered, but that now the supreme court of the United States had given its opinion and that such was in favor of the zoning plan. There was no longer any doubt whatever of the constitutionality of the zoning law and he advised the council to proceed and authorize the city manager to make the contract with Herbert Swan, the most competent and ablest service of the sort of which he had any knowledge. The council accepted the report of the committee and authorized the city manager to make the contract.

Mayor Fox expressed the opinion that after Councilor May had read the contract he would be in favor of it. Mr. May disclaimed opposition to the zoning scheme, but he said he was not in favor of employing Swan at the price named unless there was assurance that there would be no other charge.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into 'Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe, or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster; does the work without blister.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

Revolving Gas Tank

Composed of two cylinders, one revolving inside of the other, a special gasoline tank for airplanes, tested at McCook field, did not leak after being struck by machine-gun bullets. It is said to be 40 per cent lighter than other protected tanks of its kind, and is designed to be equipped with an automatic release so that it may be dropped from the plane in case of a crash, thus eliminating the danger of [illegible] fires and explosions.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Exhibition of Woodbury Paintings

The eighth annual exhibition of paintings at Connecticut college will open with a private view on Thursday for guests. This year it is of work by Charles H. Woodbury, N. A., one of the foremost living marine artists. The exhibit consists of paintings in oil and water colors and etchings and is a comprehensive showing of this distinguished painter's work. The exhibition will be open to the public after the private view.

Strand Theater

A wealth of entertainment awaits everyone who goes to the Strand theater this week. The re-opening yesterday of this popular playhouse proved a huge success; with the same entertainment on screen and stage is an criterion of the future programs success will be doubly assured, for it truly is great.

Marcheta, the girl with the violin offered a musical surprise as the opening Keith-Albee stage attraction.

Hall and Rogers was second in a comedy skit entitled Ahead of the times. They not only are funsters but singers and dancers as well.

Hill and Quinnell offered a clever routine of comedy and various other worth while entertainment.

Reed and Ray in fourth spot were a riot with their comedy patter and song.

The closing act features the Shanghai Four. This Chinese male quartette sing as well as any four ever heard here, most of the numbers being of the popular kind but one or two native songs by way of oddity. They also prove that they have a trend for comedy.

Sweet Rosie O'Grady, a Columbia production now showing at the Strand theater, has the combined pulling power of Mickey, Abie's Irish Rose, Potash and Perlmutter, and The Cohens and the Kellys. It is romantic, funny, and has the human interest of all the others of its type rolled into one.

Shirley Mason, the star of the picture, is one of the most popular of screen women. She is winsome and beautiful, and satisfies one's idea of Sweet Rosie O'Grady, the subject of Maude Nugent's song of years ago as no one else could. Playing opposite her is Cullan Landis, sustaining the romance of an Avenue A and Fifth Avenue courtship. Surrounding her are a bevy of cute and capable children.

Palace Theater

Theater goers attending the Palace theater today and tomorrow are assured the time of their lives as they follow the hilarity created by the screens funniest pair of comedians — Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in their latest picture sensation. We're in the Navy Now. What behind the front was to the doughboy. We're in the Navy Now will be to the sailor. This picture is a wow, is what Rear Admiral Ashly H. Robertson, commandant of the 11th Naval district, commented on viewing this comedy, and the way it has been received by the crowds Sunday and Monday, the admiral wasn't wrong in his opinion. The first audience to attend this laughing picture were so impressed with its riotous jesters, that the rush at the Palace has been so tremendous, the management was compelled to run continuous performances, to accomodate the large crowds. The Palace up to date short subjects complete a program that is worth miles going to see.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth — a lazy, no-good feeling — you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 30 years of study. Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.

GIRL GAINED 7 POUNDS NINE YEARS AN INVALID

That's just what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets did for the Babcock Girl—and is doing as much for tens of thousands of thin, underweight, weak and discouraged people all over America.

These sugar coated, pleasant tasting tablets should be given to children instead of the vile stomach upsetting oil itself—they surely do help the frail, delicate little ones and 60 tablets cost but 60 cents at Lee & Osgood Co. or any druggists.

Read this letter if you have a child that needs to gain health and strength.

"My little girl was stricken with infantile paralysis when she was 8 months old and was an invalid for 9 years—when I saw an ad in the paper that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets would build up wasted tissues. I bought a box and she gained very slowly at first and after taking eight boxes, she gained seven pounds. Thanks to McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, after trying almost everything else on the market. She is on the road to recovery and goes to school every day." Mrs. L. Babcock, Appleton, Wis.

Insist on McCoy's, the original and genuine, and if after thirty days' treatment you are not delighted with results—why get your money back.

BREAK IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—(AP)—Stock prices broke sharply just before the close of today's market after having moved irregularly higher during the greater part of the session. Baldwin broke more than 5 points from its early high, scores of early gains of 1 to 3 points were materially reduced or wiped out, and closing quotations disclosed a large number of net declines of 1 to 4 points.

The reaction was attributed in many quarters to the marking up of the call money rate to 5 1-2 per cent, although this was generally regarded as temporary. The weekly federal reserve bank statement of brokers' loans, issued after the market closed, showed a reduction of $741,000 in the week ended last Wednesday. Banks reported a heavy withdrawal of funds by interior institutions in apparent anticipation of huge month-end demands.

Consolidated Gas was up 3 points on the announcement of the United States supreme court decision upholding the company's main contentions in the so-called "Dollar gas case," but it lost all but a fraction of its gain. From a stock market standpoint, the other news developments of the day were rather colorless in character. Reports of a further reduction in steel mill operations in the Youngstown district were offset by rumors of an early dividend on Bethlehem Steel common, which closed fractionally higher at 47 after having touched 48 3-8.

Transactions in U. S. Steel common comprised nearly one-tenth of the day's entire volume of business, the stock dropping from 150 3-4 to 148 1-8 and then rallying to 148 3-4, off 1 1-2 net. General Motors reacted from 142 7-8 to 138 1-4, Hudson from 47 3-8 to 45. Mack Trucks from 100 3-4 to 97 1-8, Dupont from 169 1-4 to 166, Savage Arms from 76 1-2 to 68, a new low, and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe from 22½ to 21¼.

More than a score issues had established new peak prices for the year early in the session, the list including American Railway Express, Congress Cigar, Columbia Gas (new), Eureka Vacuum Cleaner, Phillips Petroleum, Texas Gulf Sulphur and Orpheum Circuit. Renewed activity and strength in Fox Film A was based on expectations of an increase in dividend at the December meeting.

Rails yielded with the industrials despite the publication of a series of favorable October earnings statements. Most of the losses were fractional, although declines of a point or more were recorded by a few issues such as Atchison, New York Central, Rock Island and Frsico common.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

In the commodity markets, wheat, cotton and sugar prices showed little change. Coffee prices reacted 20 to 30 points.

A brisk demand for French francs, which carried them up 8-100 point to around 3.70 cents, again featured the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly easier at $4.84 7-16 and Norwegian krone broke 18 points to 26.22 cents.

CLOUDY, WARMER TODAY; WITH RAIN AT NIGHT

Norwich Bulletin

NORWICH, CONN., TUESDAY, NOV. 30, 1926

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Tuesday, Nov. 30, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

A trough of relatively low pressure extending southwestward to the eastern Gulf of Mexico, has been attended by rains almost generally east of the Mississippi river except in portions of the Atlantic states. High pressure prevails over virtually all other sections of the east centering between Bermuda and Newfoundland. The temperature has risen in the Atlantic states.

There will be much cloudiness in the Atlantic states Tuesday and rain will likely continue over part of this area Tuesday morning. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Tuesday and Wednesday in the Washington forecast district. The temperature will be lower in the Atlantic states Tuesday and it will rise Wednesday over most sections east of the Mississippi river.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook and Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate southwest shifting to northwest and north partly overcast weather probably occasional rains Tuesday.

Forecast

For southern New England: Mostly cloudy and colder Tuesday. Possibly rain Tuesday morning; fair Tuesday night; Wednesday increasing cloudiness and slightly warmer.

Observations

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1874.

ILL HEALTH DESPONDENCY DRIVES CHAS. E. CHAPMAN TO SUICIDE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 29.—In a period of despondency, while not in the best of health, Charles Eugene Chapman, 73, with country-wide reputation as a strawberry grower and shipper of strawberry plants, took his own life by hanging at his home in North Stonington this afternoon. His body was found resting on his knees in a corn-crib on the farm. Monday morning he took his daughter, Miss Anna L. Chapman, to North Stonington village where she taught school and failed to call for her at 5 o'clock in the afternoon as was his custom.

Mr. Chapman was born in the town of Griswold, Oct. 17, 1853, the son of Henry T. and Cynthia E. Smith Chapman. At various times he resided in Mystic, Stonington, Ledyard, Griswold and North Stonington. On March 28, 1877 he married Jennie I. West. They had but one daughter, Miss Anna L. Chapman who resided with her father. Mrs. Chapman died Sept. 21, 1921. He is also survived by two brothers, Elias H. of Providence, R. I., and Reuben T. of Mason's Island, another brother and sister having died.

For about 30 years previous to engaging in agricultural and specialising in the raising of fruit, Mr. Chapman taught school. Besides being principal of schools at Jewett City he taught school in Glasgo, Poquonnoc Bridge and North Stonington and was a school visitor in the towns of Griswold and North Stonington. In North Stonington he was a trial justice for a period of 16 years. While not a member Mr. Chapman attended the Baptist church in North Stonington. He was a member of North Stonington grange, Patrons of Husbandry and Reliance lodge, No. 29, I. O. O. F. of Jewett City. In his intensive following of agricultural pursuits in the raising of fruit and berries Mr. Chapman became well known as a strawberry specialist, shipping strawberry plants in large numbers to all parts of the United States and Canada.

FINED IN WATERFORD FOR OPERATING UNDER INFLUENCE

Louis Saindon of Waterford was fined $100 and costs of $11.46 in the Waterford town court, when he waived reading of a complaint of driving under the influence of liquor, and pleading guilty. Judge Dimmock remitted $50 of the fine on recommendation of Prosecutor Floyd and the accused paid a total of $61.46.

Saindon was arrested by State Policeman Henry Albright early Thanksgiving night, following a collision with an automobile driven by Dr. Clarence G. Brooks of New London. The Brooks' car was damaged but none of the occupants were injured.

In court, Saindon settled for the damages done to the Brooks' car.

PROBATE APPEAL IN MYSTIC MAN'S ESTATE

Appeal from probate of the administration account of Nettie B. Godfrey of Mystic, administratrix of the estate of John S. Rathbone of Mystic, has been brought to the superior court by Eliza Sinclair Blunt of the town of New Russia, Essex county, New York state, claiming to be an heir-at-law.

The administration account was admitted by Judge Arthur P. Anderson in the Groton probate court on July 3, 1926. The suit is returnable in December.

BEQUEST OF $2,000 TO CANTERBURY PASTOR

A bequest of $10,000 to Rev. Clarence A. Barbour, president of Rochester Theological seminary, is made in the will of Mrs. Ludlow Barker, late of Hartford, Conn. A gift of $2,000 was made to Rev. Rockwell H. Potter, pastor of the Canter church, Hartford, and a similar one to Rev. T. E. Davies, of Canterbury, Conn.

WANT OTHERS TO BENEFIT ALSO

"Please publish this statement as I want people everywhere to know of the wonderful benefit I have derived from the use of Foley Pills, a diuretic stimulant to the kidneys." Mrs. A. G. Wells, Rocky Mount, N. Car., long suffered physical distress and that "always tired" feeling which, results when kidneys and bladder are not working properly. Remember that the "always tired" feeling shows something physically wrong, and when Foley Pills have done for others, they can do for you. Ask your druggist for Foley Pills.

SEEK CIVIL SERVICE FOR 3RD CLASS P. M.S

Dexter S. Case of Sound View, president of the Connecticut Branch, National League of District Postmasters, was in Norwich Monday in the interests of a movement to place third class postmasters under the civil service rules. Mr. Case is visiting towns throughout Connecticut in furtherance of the movement. With regard to the present system governing the appointment of third class postmasters, Mr. Case said Monday:

Everybody knows the postmaster and everybody expects efficient and courteous service from him. There are four classes of postmasters. The third class are those whose salaries range from $1,100 to $2,500 per annum, depending upon the receipts of the office. The National League of District Postmasters (third and fourth classes) is urging congress to place third class under civil service. Fourth class are those whose salaries range are appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate for a four-year term only. No matter how efficient they may be, nor how much their patrons desire their retention, they are not retained unless the congressmen belonging to the party in power endorses them.

This practice, their organization claims, is not conductive to the best interest of the postal service in the communities served by the third class.

There are more than 11,000 third class in the United States. More than 9,000 of them own the equipment used —post office boxes, etc. The rent of the boxes goes to the government, and when the postmaster is succeeded by another he has no market to for his equipment, for which he has paid.

There is also a bill before congress that provides for the payment yearly of an amount equal to 20 per cent. of their compensation as allowance for rent, fuel, light and equipment. This bill is favored by the National League of District Postmasters. With reference to this bill Mr. Case said:

The fourth class postmasters claim that it is an injustice to require them to donate, out of their very meager salaries, the things necessary to conduct the government's business. The people living in small communities are entitled to good postal service. Few, if any, know the conditions under which this service is rendered. The salaries of these fourth class postmasters range from a few dollars up to $1,100 a year. When 21.8 per cent. is deducted from this for the upkeep of the offices, it appears that the government is not dealing justly with the rural communities.

JUDGE RULES STATE CAN DESTROY LIQUOR

Judgment for the state of Connecticut in its suit against John Stankiewicz, of Voluntown, in which the state sought to destroy 15 barrels of wine and alleged hard cider, following conviction of the defendant, was entered by Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas in this city Monday, when the defendant failed to oppose the case.

Stankiewicz's place was raided by police some time ago and he was convicted on a liquor law violation charge in a justice court. He appealed to the court of common pleas. When the state attempted to confiscate the "evidence" he objected and fought against it. The state therefore brought a civil suit which the defendant did not oppose Monday.

SUES CRESCENT BEACH GARAGE MAN FOR $ILL

On the common counts for a claim of $1,375.05, alleged to be due on Oct. 22, 1926, the Standard Oil Co., of New York has brought suit against P. A. Wheeler of East Lyme, doing business as Wheeler's garage. Real estate at Crescent beach has been attached, the suit being returnable before the superior court in December.

SEEKS DIVORCE FROM HIS WIFE IN BOZRAH

Suit for divorce from Marcella Elwood Hall of Bozrah has been brought in the superior court by William J. Hall of this city, who alleges unfaithfulness on the part of his wife with unknown persons in Norwich and Bozrah. The couple was married May 2, 1894.

The suit is returnable before the superior court in December.

In the City Court

John J. O'Malley, a frequent visitor at the local city court, was in court again Monday morning, this time on charges of intoxication and resisting an officer. He pleaded guilty to the intoxication charge but denied resisting arrest by Officer Gwizdowski. On the intoxication charge he was fined $5 and costs. The resistance charge was continued until Tuesday so that witnesses of the arrest may be summoned to testify.

Loyal Circle Programme at Hospital

A very pleasing musical program was given at Backus hospital Sunday afternoon, when Frank Stiehnke was heard in several bass solos, with Miss Mildred Cass at the piano. Violin selections were also given by Miss Dorothy Packer and her brother Master Nelson Packer. Their mother Mrs. Luther D. Packer accompanied them on the piano. The programme was arranged for by Loyal circle, King's Daughters.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—Congressman and Mrs. Tilson will reach Washington this afternoon and will be white house guests of President and Mrs. Coolidge over night before taking possession of their apartment at the Mayflower for the winter.

FEDERATED CHURCHES FOR DECLINING FARM COMMUNITIES

HARTFORD, Nov. 29—(AP)—A statewide conference on inter-denominational comity will probably be held some time this winter, at a place to be designated later, to act on the results of a survey on "population trends and church organization in Connecticut" presented at the annual meeting of the Connecticut Federation of Churches at the Hotel Garde today.

The report, which was given by Prof. William North Rice, chairman of the committee on inter-denominational comity, and Rev. Morris E. Alling, secretary of the federation, disclosed that Protestantism is declining in sections where agriculture and industry are declining and that it is growing in suburban areas while holding its own in the cities.

The federation's plan of church conservation was reported to have made much progress in many places where church organizations had been in decline. It was reported that there are at the present time eighteen federated and "yoked" churches, four undenominational community churches and twenty denominational community churches.

NORWICH TOWN

SHELTERING ARMS BUILDING BOUGHT BY JOHN C. TRACY

John C. Tracy of 33 Town street has purchased the Sheltering Arms building and grounds on Harland road.

H. D. Larrabee and family have moved from 55 East Town street to the Rockwell house, on Rockwell terrace. The house owned and recently occupied by Mr. Larrabee was for years the home of Rev. H. P. Arms, pastor of the First Congregational church.

Miss Adelle Goodyear who teaches art in the schools in Plymouth, Vt., was at her home on Washington street for the Thanksgiving recess.

The every member canvass of the First Congregational church took place Sunday afternoon, when twenty-three members of the parish visited the various localities about Norwich Town, also several other sections. In making this annual trip the company in nearly every direction solicited went in pairs, there being however a few exceptions where only one canvasser was needed. A few forwarded their pledge cards in advance, to the church treasurer, H. T. Frazier, though every home was visited Sunday afternoon. The canvassers and the several localities visited were Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, Deacon William R. Lathrop Canterbury turnpike; Miss Susan C. Hyde, Washington street near Bliss Place and belo; Ralph H. Marsh, Miss Louise M. Avery, visited scattered districts, such as Laurel Hill, Norwich and other sections; Charles P. Learned, Harland road; Frank E. Sterry, Miss Dorothy L. Waterman, Tanner avenue and West Town street; Mrs. H. S. Young canvassed among the members at the Johnson home; Miss Mabel Corrigeux, Robert Stott, Scotland road; Deacon Clyde M. Beebe, Miss Bessie M. Whaley, East Town street and at Peck's corner; Frederick M. Ross, upper Otrobando avenue; Herbert L. Yerrington and Charles Barber, Plain hill; Senior Deacon Dwight W. Avery, Miss Dorothea E. Buckley, upper West Town street; Arthur Avery and Mrs. Michael Buckley, Town street; Deacon Henry T. Frazier and Mrs. Frazier, New London turnpike and lower Otrobando avenue; Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin, covered the territory around Norwich Town green. The canvass took the entire afternoon.

At the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, spoke from the text, Thou Art Peter, and on this Rock I Will Build My Church, and the Gates of Hades Shall Not Prevail Against It.

George F. Hyde, chairman of the good citizenship and information committee of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, was in charge of that service Sunday evening, when the topic was Christian Endeavor Around the World. Phil. 3:1-13.

The Congregational mid-week prayer service Thursday evening, will have for its topic, Spiritual Aspects of Finances. II Corinthians 9:7, with special reference to 1-15.

Ever Ready circle of the King's Daughters, is to hold a meeting this (Tuesday) evening at the home of Mrs. Philip B. Whaley, Mediterranean lane.

Mrs. William Weaver, president of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the First Methodist church is to be hostess Thursday afternoon, when the society meets at her home on Huntington Green. The date of the monthly meeting of this society, for several years scheduled for the second Thursday, has been changed to the first Thursday of each month.

In his sermon at the Methodist church Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. Albert E. Whitten preached from Philippians—3, using only a part of the 10th verse—"That I May Know Him."

Following the morning worship, Rev. Mr. Whitten gave a short address on Temperance, before the church school.

At this church Sunday evening, in place of the regular Young People's Christian Endeavor service, Miss Marion Hope, superintendent of Fall River Industrial Home for Girls, gave a most inspiring address in connection with her work. An offering was taken and several pledges were made, to help this worthy project. Miss Hope who made a favorable impression on the congregation, has visited this church before for the same object.

The meeting of the Modern Priscillas, Mrs. John Rogers president, appointed for Monday evening, was postponed indefinitely. This company of young women of the Methodist church was organized recently to pass two evenings each month in doing sewing, fancy work, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ames (Gladys Williams) who were married the early part of November, are passing their honeymoon on an automobile trip. At the home of Mr. Ames' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Ames of Norwich Town, prior to their marriage, a company of twenty-five tendered them a miscellaneous shower, when beautiful gifts were received. Mr. Ames for a number of years has been the efficient foreman at the plant of Julia L. Williams, 25 Town street, and his guests comprised nearly the entire force of workmen, salesmen, and others who were accompanied by their wives, those present including also Manager and Mrs. Williams and a few relatives of Mr. Ames and his fiancee. Ice cream, cake and chocolate were served during the evening. Before her marriage Mrs. Ames was a student nurse at a Willimantic hospital. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Ames are to occupy a newly furnished apartment at 93 West Town street.

Because of illness among some of the expected guests, a family dinner party in observance of Thanksgiving, which was to have been held Thursday giving day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver, of Huntington green, took place Sunday. Those present comprising chiefly Mrs. Weaver's relatives, were her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nyd and daughter, Miss Ruth Nye, also their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Perkins and son Francis Jr., also Mr. Perkins' brother, Theodore Perkins, all of Willimantic. Mrs. Weaver served a delicious roast chicken dinner to her guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Robbins and son Master Burton Jr., of Providence, were week end visitors at the home of Mr. Robbins' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. David M. Dean of Town street.

Mrs. Alvin Stimpson of Norwich Town, is confined to her home by illness, having been stricken suddenly Saturday.

Miss Cora Hilliard, of Norwalk, who for several years made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Stimpson, has come to Norwich Town to care for Mrs. Stimpson.

DEMOCRATS IN CONGRESS TO FIGHT FOR TAX REDUCTION

Democratic Leaders Plan to Introduce Tax Reduction Bill in the House Soon After the Opening Session—Announcement Made After Representative Tilson, Republican House Leader, Had Declared No New Reduction Proposal Should Be Considered at the Coming Session.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—A democratic proposal for tax reduction was announced today a few hours after house republican leaders had mapped out a legislative program for the coming session that left no place on the immediate calendar for President Coolidge's tax credit plan.

The plan, with its scope and details still held secret, will be presented to the house soon after the opening session. It is being drawn by Representative Garner of Texas, under the direction and approval of virtually the entire democratic representation in congress.

The announcement of Mr. Garner, who is looked upon as the democratic spokesman in taxation matters, came soon after Representative Tilson, the republican leader, had declared that no new reduction proposal should be considered at the coming session and that the Coolidge tax credit plan should be approached cautiously.

An opinion that the credit plan had not the "slightest chance" of enactment came from Mr. Garrett, who added that any revenue bill springing from the republican side of the house expect "sympathetic cooperation" from the minority.

Mr. Garner agreed with Mr. Tilson and Mr. Garrett that the tax credit plan would find little support in the house. He argued that not 100 republicans would vote for the proposal.

Pre-session conferences today listed these subjects as likely to occupy congress during the short term:

The annual appropriation bills, the McFadden branch banking bill, alien property disposition, radio legislation and possibly farm relief.

The process of whipping the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill into shape for presentation at the opening of congress was begun today at a conference of the congressional farm bloc and leaders of agricultural organizations.

After the conference, the salient features of the measure remained intact with provision for an appropriation of $250,000,000 to be used to set up a federal organization to export surplus wheat, corn, swine, cotton and rice with the cost charged back to the producers in the form of equalisation fees.

BOATSWAIN'S MATE STRIKES BACK AT HIS ACCUSERS

BOTON, Mass., Nov. 30—(AP)—Chief Boatswain's Mate John H. McEnroe of the coastguard service, on trial before a court martial board charged with trafficking with rum runners, today struck back at his accusers. Taking the stand in his own defense McEnroe said seamen who had testified against him were men he had disciplined previously. McEnroe was in command of C. G. 151, engaged in the rum patrol.

One witness named Ould, McEnroe said, had caused much trouble on the patrol boat. One night the commander went on deck and found Ould steering with his feet, he testified. As for Roulet, who also made charges against the commander, he was an incompetent cook, could not get meals ready on time, and was always seasick.

The defendant also paid his respects to a mysterious "Wilson," said to be a department of justice agent who joined the coastguard to obtain evidence of irregularities. Wilson, McEnroe said, had been on his boat for a time and at first did good work. Later, however, it was impossible to "get any work out of him," and the climax came when McEnroe returned to the boat one day to find Wilson and others shooting craps instead of working.

The defendant made a general denial of all charges against him.

A. R. GOULD CARRIED EVERY COUNTY AND CITY IN MAINE

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 30—(AP)—An unusual record in any state is believed to have been established by Arthur R. Gould of Presque Isle at yesterday's special election in which he was chosen to fill the unexpired term of the late United States Senator Bert M. Fernald by more than 48,000 over Fulton J. Redman of Ellsworth and the republicans were given control of the senate.

He not only carried every county and every city in the state, said to be unprecedented in Maine, but he had a margin in all but two score of the 519 municipalities.

With 17 isolated places, mostly plantations, unreported tonight, the tabulation of unofficial returns gave Gould 48,145 more votes than Redman received. The totals were 79,720 to 31,575. The missing places two ears ago gave Senator Fernald 262 and Mr. Redman 171 votes.

S. O. S. FROM STEAMER AFIRE OFF COAST OF PORTUGAL

LONDON, Nov. 30—(AP)—A Lloyds dispatch from Gibraltar says that the Holland-American freight and passenger liner Maasdam, from New Orleans to Rotterdam, has sent out an S. O. S. call stating that she was afire, off the coast of Portugal.

The Maasdam sailed from New Orleans November 3, bound for Vigo, Spain and Rotterdam, Holland and was due to arrive at Vigo today. En route the Maasdam touched at Havana, November 12 and at Vera Cruz November 17. She is a vessel of 8,812 gross tons, is 560 feet in length and was built in 1929.

Further messages to Lloyds from Land's End report that the American steamer West Ivis is proceeding to the assistance of the Maasdam.

The British steamer Delegarth reports having heard the signal from the Maasdam: "Thanks, have enough assistance."

HUSBAND PRESENTS CASE OF FAMOUS BOSTON MEDIUM

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 30—(AP)—The case of "Margery," famous Boston medium, was presented to the Clark university symposium of psychical research tonight by her husband, Dr. L. R. G. Crandon "solely to make the plea that it be considered earnestly; that it is apparently one of the best examples of this new psychic science."

Dr. Crandon, who holds three degrees from Harvard, is a surgeon and author of medical subjects as well as metaphysical.

Dr. Crandon gave the history of the mediumship from its accidental discovery in 1924, through its investigation by the committee of the Scientific American in 1924 and the Harvard sittings of 1925. He described in detail the manifestations and showed picture slides to illustrate them.

DR. HUME'S VIEW ON THE RECONSTRUCTION OF CHINA

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 30.—(AP)—China's reconstruction will come when increasing numbers know what self-government means for the larger political units, Dr. Edward H. Hume, president of Yale-in-China, said here tonight. A decentralizing of government with large powers assumed by the provinces, was foreseen by Dr. Hume who said that the federation of provinces, which will make the new republic of China may be even a looser one than that of the United States.

QUEEN MARIE ARRIVED AT CHERBOURG YESTERDAY

CHERBOURG, France, Nov. 30—(AP)—Queen Marie of Rumania arrived at Cherbourg on a stormy sea, anxious over the king and doubtless concerned over the dynastic problem, but happy in the results of her American trip.

The Berengeria was delayed several hours by rough weather. The first lighter that went out with a welcoming committee to take the queen and her party ashore was unable to approach the liner.

Both the queen and her entourage feel that her visit has really put Rumania on the map and had afforded an opportunity to make known the country's rich resources, thereby preparing for the flotation of a loan in America.

King Ferdinand is believed to be in a serious condition, but not in immediate danger of death, for Queen Marie plans to remain in Paris until Friday. In the meantime she will see her son, former Crown Prince Carol, and it is authoritatively stated that there is no thought of encouraging him in his reported aspirations to withdraw his renunciation of his right to the throne.

FERDINAND OBJECTS TO RETURN OF PRINCE CAROL

BUCHAREST, Nov. 30—(AP)—King Ferdinand has publicly expressed opposition to the return of former Crown Prince Carol, or a change in the suggestion to the throne as established by law. The king makes this declaration in a letter addressed to Premier Averescu and published in the official gazette.

WARTIME PROHIBITION ISSUE IN ONTARIO ELECTION

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 30—(AP)—Ontario will go to the polls tomorrow, nominally to elect the seventeenth provincial legislature, but particularly to decide whether wartime prohibition shall remain on the statute books or be superseded by a measure providing for sale of liquor under government control.

The government control proposal is the main plank in the platform of G. Howard Ferguson, prime minister of the province since 1923. Mr. Ferguson has declared that the record of the Ontario temperance act, after fair trial under three governments, indicates that it is not enforceable.

The Ferguson conservative government stakes its continuance in office on the appeal to the people on this question, submitting the government control policy as an alternative to the present law.

LONELY PAROLED CONVICT HAS RETURNED TO PRISON

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Overwhelmed by loneliness, Michael J. Harris, 70, paroled ten years ago from Waupun, where he was serving a life sentence for murder, voluntarily returned to the prison today. He asked that he be confined there for the rest of his life.

He was admitted by Warden Oscar Lee after an ineffectual attempt had been made by the prison authorities to dissuade the old man from relinquishing the place in society he has held since his parole in 1916.

ZAIMIS AGAIN HEADS GOVERNMENT OF GREECE

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 30—(AP)—Alexander Zaimis, who has held the premiership many times since 1902, again heads the government of Greece. He has formed a coalition cabinet, embracing all five political parties. This new ministry will replace that headed by General George Kondylis, who announced several weeks ago, before the general elections were held, that he would resign.

OBITUARY

William W. Porter

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP)—William W. Porter, partner in the J. P. Morgan company, whose counsel was sought by leading bankers in times of financial stress and on matters of financial importance, dropped dead in Brooklyn today while walking with his wife.

Mr. Porter who had just returned from an automobile drive with Mrs. Porter, was stricken with a heart attack. He had been in failing health for several years but recently had shown improvement.

Recognized as one of the country's ablest bankers, Mr. Porter had been a partner in the Morgan firm since 1911, when he relinquished the presidency of the Chemical National bank.

He was born Jan. 3, 1861, at Middlebury, Vt. He came to New York in 1876 and was engaged continuously in banking since that time.

Meritorious Work of A Conn. Boy Farmer

John Visny of Bethel Won Second Place in Contest With 600,000 Farm Boys and Girls.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Twenty year old Kenneth Hinshaw, of Goldendale, Washington, has been designated the most outstanding leader of the country's 600,000 Farm Boys' and Girls' club members and warded the Moses leadership trophy for this year. John Visny, Bethel, Connecticut, won second place and Arlington Eddy, Wessington Springs, South Dakota, third.

The trophy, given by Horace A. Moses of Springfield, Mass., is awarded to the boy or girl, belonging to the clubs conducted co-operatively by the department of agriculture and state agricultural colleges, who has given evidence of greatest leadership.

Young Hinshaw has led his local of over 40 members for two years and has been responsible for improved livestock practices in his country and organization of a junior livestock breeders' association. He has superintended the livestock department of the county fair for four years and is recreation director of the state club camps and vice president of the State 4-H Club association.

This was the third award, the two previous years having been won by Oklahoma boys.

VISNY IS FRESHMAN AT THE CONNECTICUT A. C.

BETHEL, Nov. 30.—(AP)—John Visny, 20-year-old Bethel boy who is in the freshman class at the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, Conn., is the winner of second place in the nation wide contest for the most outstanding leader of the country's 600,000 farm boys' and girls' club members.

Visny has been a member of the 4-H club for four years and has done several commendable bits of work. Last year he was made local leader of the Dairy clubs in Dodgintown, where he is a native. Three years ago he won the national junior dairy judging championship at the national dairy show in Syracuse, N. Y. Visny is very active in dairy work and for several years had been active under the direction of the Fairfield county farm bureau.

KENTUCKY HAS NATION'S HEALTHIEST FARMER BOY

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Kentucky, famed for its fine horses and beautiful girls, added to its repute today by giving to the boys' and girls' clubs here for the International live stock exhibition the nation's healthiest farmer boy. Iowa and Mississippi had to share honors for healthy girlhood.

LETTER WAS WRITTEN TO WORRY RELATIVES OF CREW

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 30.—(AP)—A fictitious letter, possibly sent to worry the relatives of the half dozen Nova Scotians comprising the crew of the three masted schooner Frederick J. Lovatt of Machiasport, Me., is the explanation for the report from Halifax today that the Lovatt had been sighted bottom-up off the Maine coast and all hands were lost.

The schooner was anchored in the lower harbor today. Captain John Latty of Mount Desert, Me., said the only water that had touched the schooner's decks since she left Salmon River, N. S., for New York with laths was that deposited by today's rainstorm.

CONDENSED REPORT OF HALL-MILLS MURDER CASE

COURTHOUSE, Somerville, N. J., Nov. 30—(AP)—Half a dozen witnesses testified that the reputation of Mrs. Jane Gibson for truth and veracity is good after a witness in the forenoon session had said it is "not so good."

Thomas J. Riley, Newark detective, said he drove an automobile from Lavallette, N. J., to New Brunswick in one hour and 35 minutes.

Mrs. Mary Demarest and Sergeant Burke of the Jersey City police said Felix Di Martini said "Hello Mrs. Demarest" in a Brooklyn elevator.

John G. Harring, a handwriting expert, said in his opinion three pencils were used in a four line entry in Henry Stevens' 1922 diary.

THREE MASTED SCHOONER ABANDONED BY HER CREW

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Abandoned by her crew, the three masted schooner Emily F. Northam tonight was reported to be breaking up on a ledge between Cranberry and Bakers Islands, near Bar Harbor, Me., where she struck last Saturday during a rain squall.

EXPLORER CARL AKELEY DIED IN BELGIAN CONGO

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 30.—(AP)—News of the death November 17 in the Belgian Congo of Carl Akeley, explorer, came across the world today to the little town of Claredon, near Holley, Orleans county, where he was born, and to former companions in this city.

Claudel to [illegible] Envoy at Washington

Semi-Official Announcement Made That He Will Succeed Ambassador Berenger.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Paul Claudel, most literary of French diplomats, will succeed Henry Berenger as ambassador at Washington if the United States agrees and the chosen candidate is willing.

Semi-official announcement was made today that M. Claudel, now holding the post of ambassador at Tokyo, was the government's choice. His nomination awaits the approval of the state department and the acceptance of M. Claudel, having been ratified by the cabinet.

The successful candidate for the Washington post was preferred to Count Charles De Chambrun, the minister to Greece, because of his seniority in rank and service and for the further reason that he has had enough of the far east.

M. Claudel, who has been in the diplomatic service for 36 years, is said to be one of the best masters of English among the foreign diplomats. He is 58 years of age. His wife was the daughter of a prominent French architect and the couple have five children.

The new ambassador has served as minister to China, minister to Denmark and ambassador to Japan. In the consular service he held posts in many of the principal cities of Germany. His long desire was to return from the Orient. He might have received the ambassadorial post in Berlin, but the German government declined to recognize him as persona grata on account of his war poem.

OFFICIAL CLOSE OF SESQUI-CENTENNIAL LAST NIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Formal observance of a century and a half of American independence came to an end tonight with the official close of the sesqui-centennial exposition.

On the desk of the city council tonight rests bills aggregating more than $5,000,000, to pay which a bond issue was authorized at the election early this month. It has been estimated that the show cost the city of Philadelphia approximately $17,000,000, not including $3,000,000 contributed by citizens through the purchase of participating certificates.

The end was marked by the final booming of cannon and shrilling of bugles over the grounds, as city officials, augmented by Governor Trumbull of Connecticut, and his staff, reviewed the final maneuvers of the military units at the exposition.

Today was both Connecticut day and directors' day. The Connecticut executive was met on his arrival by Mayor Kendrick and his aides and was escorted under the big illuminated liberty bell guarding the entrance, while cannon from Camp Anthony Wayne, sounded his salute.

Governor Trumbull called at the Connecticut building, and also participated in the presentation of the Connecticut state flag to the women's state committee at the state roof house, on Old High street of 1776. The flag was added to permanent, collection of state emblems assembled by the women of the sesqui and will be preserved in Independence hall.

GRAIN SHIPS HURRYING TO ESCAPE INSURANCE RATES

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Nov. 30—(AP)—Snow was playing the role of first assistant to the insurance companies today.

Insurance on hulls increases at midnight tonight by one half of one per cent and on grain cargoes by 20 cents per $100. For this reason loading at the elevators was proceeding with a rush until the weather man decided to take a hand in the game.

Orders of the inspection department are that loading must be suspended during snow and rain and all day soft snow drifted downward while ship owners fumed. All ships unable to clear by midnight must pay the new rate.

"ONE-EYE" LYNCH WAS EXECUTED IN TRENTON

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 30—(AP)—James "One-Eye" Lynch of New York was executed in the electric chair at state prison tonight, for the murder of Frank Brennan, 20-year-old express messenger, who was killed during a holdup at the American Railway Express office in Hackensack on July 21 last.

Lynch entered the death chamber at 8.03 o'clock, received the shock at 8.13, and was pronounced dead at 8.18.

He was very calm as he was seated in the chair, and all that he had to say was spoken to the Rev. Father Cornelius Mahoney, of Jersey City, when he asked to see that his wife and child were provided for.

FOUR BANK ROBBERS GET $20,000 AT POCAHONTAS, ILL.

POCAHONTAS, Ills., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Four robbers late today held up the Bond County State bank here and escaped in an automobile with all the cash at hand, roughly estimated at $20,000. Ten or twelve shots were fired but no one was wounded.

RUM CONSPIRACY CASE MAY RESULT IN INTERNATIONAL COMPLICATIONS

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—International complications involving British liquor distilling interests were hinted at by federal officials tonight as the newest phase of the so-called Cretan rum conspiracy case.

The seizure of the Cretan here last August with $800,000 worth of alcohol aboard, has led to the indictment of 47 persons, including Lewis H. Rothchild, vice president of the Chelsea Exchange bank of New York, two of his assistants, and the captain and crew of the Cretan.

Assistant U. S. District Attorney Elihu D. Stone tonight expressed the opinion that the Cretan was not the only vessel in control of a big liquor ring and that he believed it "highly probable" that British selling interests placed men here to make arrangements for other mamoth liquor shipments such as the Cretan was found to be carrying.

He added that Boston business men may become involved in the alleged conspiracy and that through them the trail might lead to British distillers, seeking an outlet for their product.

The investigation is still being pressed, he said, in the hope of revealing that the Cretan was only one of several vessels operated by a powerful combination that "did not make the mistake of putting all their eggs in one basket."

Word was received from New York at the federal building today that Rothchild and the other bankers had agreed to appear here when wanted for trial and that at a commissioner's hearing eight defendants were ordered removed here for trial.

Reports that two New York magistrates were involved in the case were denied here today, but it was understood that a New Jersey justice of the peace was under suspicion.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

A family of five was killed at a farm five miles north of Marlow, Okla, and their bodes were cremated in a fire that destroyed their home.

The Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association sold at Lexington, Ky., nearly twelve million pounds of tobacco of the 1923, 1924 and 1925 crops.

GOV'T PILING UP EVIDENCE AGAINST FALL AND DOHENY

Twelve Government Witnesses Testified Yesterday in the Elk Hills Naval Oil Conspiracy Case—More Than Sixty Documentary Exhibits Have Been Presented by the Government—Former Attorney General Harry Daugherty Testified He Never Had Rendered an Opinion Upon the Legality of the proposed Leases.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—Twelve government witnesses piled up a small mountain of evidence today in the Elk Hills naval oil reserve conspiracy trial in the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

Buttressing its case against Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny, California oil magnate, with more than sixty documentary exhibits the government went into the first night session tonight with the bulk of its material in the trial records.

Today's testimony and exhibits presented a connected narrative of the negotiations which culminated in the award of the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, naval base construction program to Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co., in April, 1922, and the subsequent leasing of the Elk Hills, Cal., petroleum reserve to the same interests in December, 1922.

These were the principal points in the government's offensive today in its efforts to convict the two defendants of criminal conspiracy in the lease and contract awards.

Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty testified he never had rendered an opinion upon the legality of the proposed leases, and that he could not recall the subject's ever having been discussed by former Secretaries Fall or Denby of the navy department, in a cabinet meeting. Attempts to draw from Daugherty testimony concerning discussion of the projects in the cabinet were wrecked on the shoals of government objections.

R. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the interior, testified Fall personally authorized acceptance of the Pan-American bid on the Pearl Harbor storage project in April 1922, and identified Fall's telegram from his Three Rivers, New Mexico ranch, in which Finney was authorized to notify Doheny of acceptance of the bid. The government then directed testimony to the fact that the Pearl Harbor contract contained a clause pledging to the Pan-American interests "preferential rights," in such portions of the Elk Hill reserve as should thereafter be opened by the interior department to leasing.

Clarence C. Chase, of El Paso, Texas, a son-in-law of Fall, testified Fall told him in December 1921, that the $100,000 loan which enabled him to extend his New Mexico land holdings was from Doheny.

The prosecution had previously submitted in evidence a letter from Fall to the senate investigating committee in 1923 in which Fall explained he obtained the loan from Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post.

Chase testified he met Fall a few days after his father-in-law left Washington, with $100,000 in cash which Edward L. Doheny, Jr., carried from New York in the little black satchel. Fall had approximately $100,000 in his possession when he arrived in El Paso, the witness said, and then told of banking operations through which Fall acquired the Harris ranch, adjacent to his previous holdings near Three Rivers.

Commander Harry A. Smart of the navy presented more than 100,000 words of department correspondence between the navy and interior officials regarding the Pearl Harbor, Elk Hills and Teapot Dome projects. In cross-examination Defense Attorney Frank J. Hogan sought to develop that such intimate contact between these departments precluded all possibility of collusion between Fall and Doheny.

MERGER OF TWO LARGE COTTON TEXTILE CONCERNS

BOSTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—Two of the largest New England cotton textile concerns, employing more than 8,000 workers, joined forces today. They were the Pepperell Manufacturing company and the Massachusetts Cotton mills, both of which have invaded the southern field while continuing their northern operations. By the vote of the stockholders at special meetings here today Massachusetts stockholders will receive for each of their eight shares, five shares of Pepperell stock.

The purpose of the merger was explained by Russell E. Leonard, treasurer of the Pepperell Manufacturing Co., at the stockholders meeting today as follows:

"In the development of our merchandising policies we have reached a point where the addition of new lines of lines of goods is desirable, if not necessary. The investigation I made convinced me that the Massachusetts Cotton mills came nearer to having what the Pepperell Manufacturing company needed for its proper development than any other company I knew."

MAGISTRATES IN BOSTON RUM RING INDICTMENTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP)—That two New York city magistrates were being investigated in connection with the conspiracy charges made by the federal grand jury at Boston in rum ring indictments, was denied by Assistant United States Attorney H. C. Thompson of Boston, who today appeared before Federal Commissioner O'Neil.

Mr. Thompson came from Boston over night. When shown a despatch from the latter city which quoted the Boston Advertiser, he said he had not heard of any city magistrate being involved.

Prior to Mr. Thompson's statement Chief Magistrate MacAdoo wired to Boston asking for official confirmation or denial of the report that two members of his board were being investigated in connection with the rum indictments.

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF HIS MISSING SWEETHEART

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Erdman Olson, 18 year old college youth charged with the murder of his mysteriously missing sweetheart, was reported seen in Iowa today and officers sped to the border, but kept their destination a secret together with the source of their information.

Meanwhile farmer neighbors continued their search for the missing girl, Clara Olson, 23, no relative of the youth. She disappeared last September 9 and a few weeks later the youth vanished. As yet there is no proof that the girl is dead, although the warrant charging murder has been issued.

WATERBURY CASE THROWN OUT OF THE SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—During argument of an appeal by John B. and Lois Macken, challenging the constitutionality of the Connecticut law creating the board of park commissioners for Waterbury, the supreme court today halted the proceeding and announced it would not further hear counsel in the case. Under court practice, this was taken to mean that it would sustain the lower courts in upholding the law and throw out the appeal.

DANBURY, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A mass meeting of citizens to hear the version of the striking operating employes of the Danbury Power and Transportation company, has been called by the central labor union for Thursday evening in city hall, it was announced today.

A hearing by the public utilities commission on the application of the company for permission to put motor busses on new routes will be held here Friday.

MEMORY OF MORSE CASE WITNESS HAS CLARIFIED

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP)—Horror at being indicted in the Morse conspiracy case so affected his memory four years ago that he made erroneous statements to an undavit sworn to at the time, George E. Wells testified on the witness stand today.

Wells, one of the seven defendants, took the stand in his own defense. He said that he represented J. E. McDowell, oil man, as attorney when Charles W. Morse was considering propositions to convert steamships into oil burners.

He told of Morse telephoning him at Asbury Park, N. J., and telling him about a proposed letter to bear Wells' signature concerning exchange of steamship stock under a merger plan. He said he told Morse not to send the letter until he had seen it but when he went to the office of the steamship company two days later he found the letter had been sent.

At this point Assistant Attorney General Overend produced an affidavit in which Wells had said that he authorized sending of the letter after Morse had read it to him over the telephone.

"Does not that contradict your present testimony?" the prosecutor asked "Is your recollection bette nnow than it was in 1922?"

Wells replied that his today's testimony was correct and that his memory of the matter was clearer now that four years ago "because then I was so horrified at being indicted."

EAST HADDAM PLANT IS TO START WITH $100,000 CAPITAL

HARTFORD, Nov. 30—(AP)—Certificates of incorporation and organization were filed with the secretary of state today by the Undine Twine Mills, Inc., of East Haddam. The company has an authorized capital of $100,000 and is starting business with the full amount paid in.

The incorporation is taking over an incorporated business of the same name which was owned by the late Albert E. Purple, of Moodus. It was said tonight by James E. Bryan, of Upper Montclair, N. J., the vice president and treasurer of the company.

The president of the new company is Arthur J. Silliman, who was the executor and principal legatee of Mr. Purple's will. Mr. Silliman holds 500 shares of preferred stock and 498 shares of common stock, each of a par value of $100, according to the organization papers.

Aven Erickson of Moodus, who has been superintendent of the mills for some time, is secretary. The three men are listed as the incorporators.

The company will continue to manufacture twine, ropes and knitted goods there having been no interruption in its activities, according to Mr. Bryan who is also export manager.

FLYING FROM HARTFORD PLANE REACHES CLEVELAND

HARTFORD, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Lieutenant Earl W. Fleet and Corporal Arnold, of the 113th observation squadron, who left Hartford Saturday, on a cross country flight which will take them as far south as Texas, reached Cleveland tonight, according to a telegram received here by Major William F. Ladd, squardon commander. Detroit was expected to have been the next stop after Buffalo, which the flyers reached Monday, but Major Ladd is of the opinion that weather reports showing unfavorable flying conditions in that direction has caused Lieutenant Fleet to abandon Detroit as a landing point on his flight.

FRUSTRATE PLOT TO SLAY FORMER MAHARAJAH OF INDIA

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A plot to slay Sir Tukaji Rasholkar, former Maharajah of Indore, India, now in Los Angeles on a tour of the United States, was frustrated today, United States immigration inspectors believe, with the arrest of three Hindu Turks at Beaumont, 175 miles south of here.

DUQUETTE MUST PAY FOR SUPPORT OF WIFE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 30—The wreckage of another matrimonial ship was brought into the police court chambers this morning when David Duquette faced a charge of non-support of his wife whose testimony was substantiated by their 20-year old daughter, Miss Delia Duquette. The family have been residing in their own home on Brown avenue. Last week Mrs. Duquette left her husband to make her home with her married daughter who resides in the same locality. Mrs. Duquette said that her husband had become violent about a week ago and that he absolutely failed to provide for her. He is now employed in the woods in Andover. Judge Frank H. Foss saw no opening for an attempt at reconciliation and he ordered the case continued for one month. Duquette agreed to pay the sum of seven dollars a week for the support of his wife. Mrs. Duquette made it plain that living with her husband was something that she could not even bear to think of and so the court allowed that she continue to reside with her daughter.

Charles Lee was also charged with non-support and the case was continued until this Wednesday morning. Judge Foss placed the bonds at $200. Out of three cases of intoxication heard two of the accused were without funds and were committed to jail.

This week marks the closing of the Willimantic Red Cross membership roll call and it is the hope of iLeutenant James J. Lee, chairman of the drive, that at least 500 members will have been enrolled. Scotland and the Windhams and part of Willimantic have already been canvassed although the drive is not so intensive a house to house campaign as it was a few years following the World war. A roll call booth has been established at the Windham National bank and this week another has been set up in the lobby of the Willimantic Trust company in charge of Miss Pauline Houle.

Having secured the restoration of the morning train service of the New Haven railroad from this city to Hartford, local commuters are now filing still further petitions for minor changes in schedule so that arrival in Hartford will not be later than 8 o'clock. The train service was restored by the railroad upon application to the state commissioners. The train was supplemented with a gasoline car. The present schedule is to leave Willimantic at 7:10 a. m. and arriving in Hartford at 8:20 a. m. There are but a few stops enroute. The commuters are eager to arrive in the Capital City not later than 8 o'clock and in order to make this possible are willing to make an earlier start from this city.

Another petition which has been filed is for the New England Transportation company to issue a combination or family book of tickets at a fixed rate in price that would bring the average individual passenger rate to about 20 cents as compared with the established price of 25 cents between this city and South Coventry.

Some material and very apparent ailment has gotten into the vital organs of the electric light service in the city. "Lights out" has been altogether too common expression within the past several weeks. Rain, wind or electric storms have in turn been blamed for the trouble. Late Tuesday afternoon, however, when the weather-man was taking a rest part of the town was pitched into darkness, the trouble being mainly along Main street where some of the business blocks were without lights.

A small amount of damage was done when a Buick coach operated by Dr. E. J. Ottenheimer of 311 North street and a Chrysler coach, owned by Mrs. Velina G. Maine and driven by Daniel G. Maine of Windham road, collided at the intersection of Church and Prospect streets Monday night. Motorcycle officer Arthur Hurley investigated the accident. The drivers came to an agreement for the settlement of damages.

A total of 55,783 books were circulated from the Willimantic library according to the annual report for the fiscal year which has been prepared by Mrs. Ruth C. Terry, city librarian. Of the number given 20,776 were used by children. Five hundred sixty-two were added to the library during the year, 513 being acquired through purchase, 12 from the state grant and 11 gifts from individuals, while 157 books were discarded due to worn out condition. There are now 12,418 books in the library.

The first grade pupils of the Windham Street Model school, who hold their sessions in the town building were taken to the Bank street engine company No. 1 building Tuesday afternoon by their teacher, Miss Rita Kelley. Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley instructed the children on the uses of the equipment.

A group of pupils from the Plainfield high school arrived in this city Tuesday morning with the intention of attending the Windham county superior court session. There was much disappointment in their ranks when they were told that high court had adjourned last week without date.

The Dramatic club of Windham high school will stage three plays, A Minuet, The Ghost of Jerry Bundler and The Robbery at the school auditorium next Friday evening. The plays are under the direction of Miss Catherine H. Wheeler of the faculty.

A rededication service was held in St. Paul's Episcopal church Tuesday evening as the opening service marking the observance of St Andrew's day as a day of penitence, prayer and spiritual preparation for the Bishops' Crusade. Rev. F. C. Williams, rector of the church, announced that next week will be a week of prayer in special preparation for the crusade. Services will be held each day.

Comparisons in thermometer readings show that while the readings were 23 low and 33 high on November 30, 1925, the temperatre wat nine o'clock Tuesday forenoon, just one year later, read 50 degrees. This high temperature was accompanied by a drizzling rain.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the annual football hop of Windham high school which will be held in the town hall in about two weeks. Members of the past year's football squad will be the guests of honor.

Charles Lee, charged with non-support, whose case was continued in police court Tuesday morning, was arraigned at a special session of the court at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He pleaded not guilty. Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher introduced Mrs. Lee as witness for the state. Mrs. Lee said that her husband had failed to provide for herself or their three children, Thelma aged 8, Ruth 4, and Richard 1, for the past six weeks. Lee said that he worked with the New Departure company in New Britain and that he only earned $19 a week. Judge Foss ordered him to pay three dollars a week for the support of each of his three children, making a total of nine dollars weekly. Mrs. Lee did not claim support for herself. Lee was required to place a cash bond of $200 as assurance that he would carry out the order of the court.

Miss Jane F. Ashton was in charge of the whist party held at the Windham Girls' club rooms Monday evening. Eleven tables were in play and prizes were awarded to: Miss Mary H. Meigans, first; Mrs. Jeremiah Murphy, second; Mrs. J. M. Lapham of South Windham, consolation. A special prize was awarded Miss Alice Peterson. Miss Ashton was assisted by the Misses Alice Peterson, Mildred Moulton, Rose and Marie Giguere. Refreshments were served.

In a contest of members of the classes in domestic science of the Windham evening school, for three prizes offered by a national company for the best baking powder biscuits, the final tryouts were held Monday evening and awards made as follows: Mrs. Leora Brooks of 812 Main street, first; Miss Josephine Chalecki of Windham, second; and Miss Jennie Sagal of 660 Jackson street, third.

A turkey owned by Ben Chappell on Riverside avenue Monday afternoon made its get-away from the coop and started for Rogers boat yard with all the neighbors chasing him. He dodged them like Red Grange would at a football game, got on the building of the boat yard and stopped to have a rest. A ladder was secured but the bird flew to another building. Gordon Clark, coming on the dead run to see what was the matter, understands turkeys, so he climbed up alongside the building, told the bird something and caught it and put it back safe in its coop. The whole street saw the turkey caught, after holding them at bay for an hour and a half.

Paul Chesebro has returned to his studies at Princeton after spending a few days at his home.

The voters of the town turned out for the special meeting at Poquonoc town hall, Monday evening, to vote on a fire engine for the town of Center Groton to be used for forest fires and to protect houses along the rural routes. The meeting opened with the chairman, Mr. Whaley wielding the gavel. The truck proposed was made by the Fonesmite Childe Co., and it was given a test in Groton last week. The hall was filled with people to vote against it, for its purchase would make the taxes higher. The fire engine plan was voted down by a big majority so Center Groton will have to do without an engine unless the residents buy it themselves. A committee was appointed to look the matter up again.

Miss Charlotte Main after a vacation for a week in the village, has returned to Boston college.

Workmen have been engaged during the past month building a new bridge to span a stream of the lagoon near the casino at Groton Long Point. MYSTIC

Asa B. Fish, 86 who died Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daboll, in Ledyard, near Lantern Hill, where he has made his home for several years, had been in failing health for some time owing to his advanced years. His funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at funeral parlors in Mystic and were conducted by Rev. Walter R Davenport, D. D. pastor of the Methodist church. Burial was in Noank Valley cemetery. Members of Williams Post G. A. R. and Woman's Relief corps attended the services.

The annual canvass Thanksgiving day, with the traveling basket of the auxiliary to Richard William Morgan post, American Legion, headed by the president, Mrs. Wilhelmina Gremley proved most gratifying. The visitors were received kindly and friends aided them in the work so that when the canvass was completed they had received $103.

Several from here went to Noank Thursday evening to attend the second in the Lyceum course given at the Noank Baptist church. Fanny Washington and her company proved to be good entertainers.

There will be a brief service here before going to Mousup.

Friends of Mr. Gauthier of Central Village extend their sympathy to him at this time since the death of his sister, Mrs. Delia Maynard.

The class of 1929, Plainfield high school, received their class rings on Tuesday.

WESTMINSTER

A large number of parents and friends attended the community supper given at the Raymond school Tuesday evening. It is to be regretted that some of the young men had not been educated as to the proper rules of conduct at such entertainments. Throwing things, stamping feet, unnecessary loud-talking denote the rowdy and detract from the pleasure others might enjoy. After a bounteous supper of baked beans, escalloped potato, rice pudding, coffee, pies and cakes which the housewives of the district as generously furnished, a brief entertainment by the pupils of the school was followed by solo and duet dances.

JEWETT CITY

LEARN OF DEATH MONDAY OF MRS. FRED OWEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Nov. 30—The sad news of the death of Mrs. Ida Tift Owen, wife of Fred S. Owen, in Fort Wayne, Indiana, on Monday morning was received here today. The cause of her death was not given, only that her illness was brief. Mrs. Owen was born in Poquetanuck, the daughter of William H. and Emily Mitchell Tift. Her life was spent in Jewett City until her marriage. She graduated from Norwich Free Academy, and taught school in Jewett City for nine years. For several years her home has been in Fort Wayne where her husband is a meter expert for an electrical company. Every year Mr. and Mrs. Owen and their daughter came by automobile to New England and always visited friends inJewett City. In September, Mrs. Owen and her daughter left Jewett City en route to Fort Wayne. She was extremely interested in geology and had collected much valuable data. She was a member of the Order of Eastern Star. Her body will be brought to Jewett City and she will be buried in the Tift family lot. She is survived by her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Hubert Saunders of Indianapolis, Ind., and a brother, Herbert H. Tift of Norwich.

Mrs. Kate Perry and her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Ducharme, and their daughter, Imelda, are at home after a week's visit in New York with Mr. and Mrs. Medos Perry, the latter being Mrs. Kate Perry's son and daughter-in-law.

A. L. Stebbins formerly assistant superintendent for the Ashland Cotton Co., has reentered the employ of that concern as superintendent of ravon. During his vacation Mr. Stebbins enjoyed an extended automobile trip through the south.

The brothers and sisters of Patrick Welsh, living in the borough received notice Monday of the death of their brother which occurred at the age of 59 in New York City, Monday morning. Mr. Welsh, with the other members of the family living here was a native of Franklin, N. J., coming to Jewett City at the age of 12 years. Older residents will recall that some 30 years ago he was one of the expert mule spinners of the village and was employed in the Ashland mills, under William J. Barber.

Those who survive Mr. Welsh are three brothers, John, the town clerk of Griswold, Thomas of Taftville and Jeremiah, also three sisters, Mrs. John Mort, Mrs. Annie E. Edmond and Mary Welsh all of Jewett City.

The vital statistics for Griswold for the month of October are as follows:

Seven births: Tadeusa Tarka, to Mr. and Mrs. John Tarka, (Albina Robinson); Harry Andrew Brown, to Mr. and Mrs. Stanton E. Brown (Iola M. Button); Alice Lillian Exley, to Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Exley (Flora Lucier); Lewis Joseph Gray, Jr., to Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Gray (Diana A. Pepin); Joseph Hubert Edward LaFavre, to Mr. and Mrs. Hubert LaFavre Estelle Roy); Richard Jean Peterson, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peterson (Elisabeth McSheffrey); two deaths: Cecelia Geist, 48, phthisis; Maria Richotte, 56, cerebral hemorrhage; one marriage: Stanislaw Sibrowicz and Bertha Muszenejke.

After 26 years of operation over the iron of the New Haven road, the Connecticut Co., ran its last trolley south, on the night of Nov. 30, 1925. Just one year ago this Wednesday morning the first motor coach for regular passenger traffic left Jewett City.

A three weeks' evangelistic campaign to be conducted by Dr. Milton S. Rees will begin this (Wednesday) evening in the Methodist church. This effort is being promoted by the Protestant churches of the borough to awaken Christian thought, and to quicken spiritual life in the community. The chorus singing will be led by Mrs. Rees and the choirs of the various churches will unite for this purpose.

The following officers and committees will have charge of the details: Executive, Rev. J. W. Carter, Rev. E. E. Scates, Rev. G. F. Goodenough, C. F. Gardner, E. M. Gray, W. J. Robertson, Jr., A. C. Burdick, Alex McNicol; Music, Mrs. G. H. Prior, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, W. J. Robertson, Jr.; finance, Martin Davis, Everett Thornton; canvassing, Mrs. J. T. Wilbur, Mrs. Harry Howes; advertising, Irving M. Thornton, J. F. Post; ushers, Edward Thornton, Delwyn Martin and others.

ROCKVILLE

Funeral services for Miss Lucretta A. Crandall were held Wednesday, Nov. 24 at 2 p. m., at the residence of Albert S. Babcock, where she had made her home for many years. Rev. Paul S. Burdick, pastor of the S. D. B. church officiated. The bearers were Albert S. Babcock, Charles C. Crandall, Clarence A. Vars and Raymond C. Vars, the last two being grandnephews of Miss Crandall. Burial was in Rockville cemetery.

Miss Crandall was the daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Vincent) Crandall and was born in Rockville, R. I., May 21, 1827, so lacked only six months of being 100 years old. Her entire life was spent in Rockville.

Her mother died when she was 15 which left the cares of the household, and later of the farm also, to her and her elder sister, Hannah, who died Jan. 5, 1925 in her 97th year.

Being left alone Miss Crandall disposed of her farming interests and came to live with Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Babcock, who have since provided a home for her. Mrs. Babcock being her niece. Aunt Lucetta as she was called by many who were not related to her, was baptized by Elder Matthew Stillman and united with the Rockville Seventh Day Baptist church, Oct. 24, 1843, hence had the unique record of more than 84 years of continuous membership with this church which was so dear to her and until she was incapacitated by age, whose services were her greatest delight. Her nearest living relatives are nieces and nephews. She was the last of a family of twelve, brothers and sisters.

Rev. Paul S. Burdick was given a birthday party Saturday evening, at Canonchet, by the people from Hopkinton, Rockville and Canonchet which proved a veritable surprise to him. He and Mrs. Burdick were invited to take supper with Mr. and Mrs. Gillett Burton, after which they were taken over to the chapel where a crowd was gathering. A social time with music and reading was enjoyed, and refreshments were served. Mr. Burdick received many tokens of good will, including a birthday cake, handsomely decorated.

NEW LOWER PRICES remove the Chrysler "60" further than ever from any other light six in the industry

Nothing so surely emphasizes the unique value that Chrysler "60" offers, as the attempt to compare Chrysler "60" performance with that of other cars in its price class.

The difference is so pronounced—in smoothness of operation, in wealth of power, in alert response to steering wheel and throttle—that anybody driving or riding in the Chrysler "60" recognizes it at once.

The model number "60" means a 60-mile-an-hour standard of performance. This, combined with proved long life of Chrysler products, is made mechanically inevitable by the unique Chrysler plan of Standardized Quality manufacture.

At its new lower prices, the Chrysler "60" stands forth more emphatically than ever—a value not even remotely approached by any other light six in the industry. A demonstration at your convenience will speedily convince you.

DANIELSON

DEATH OF ATTORNEY CHASE
A SHOCK TO DANIELSON
(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 30.—At his home in Southington early this morning death claimed Attorney Warren D. Chase, a man that Killingly has regarded for years as one of its distinguished sons. Death came, as it often does, with that startling rapidity which makes life so uncertain.

On Thanksgiving day Attorney Chase was a happy member of a family party at the home of his mother, Mrs. Charles D. Chase, on North Main street here in Danielson. He was his usual self and apparently enjoying the best of health. For him death seemed a most remote possibility. He retained all his natural virility and keenness—the joy of living. Taking his departure for Southington last Friday morning, there was not the slightest forecast his life was so near its end.

Within the day, however, he was stricken with a serious heart attack and as early as last Saturday morning press dispatches told that his condition was highly critical. Over the week end there was no improvement and before dawn of Tuesday he had passed on. His death caused all of the thousands in the town of Killingly who knew him either intimately or casually to pause Tuesday upon the announcement of his death, shocked by the untimely close of the life of a man of brilliant attainments.

Warren Doty Chase was born in Holden, Mass., April 18, 1873, a son of Charles D. and Eliza Doty Chase. At the age of seven he came with his parents to this town, where his father for years was engaged in the woolen manufacturing business, and studied through the elementary and high schools of the town up to his graduation from Killingly high school in the class of 1895. His unusual mental alertness was manifest throughout his high school course and indicated to his instructors what might be expected from him in achieving marked place in the world that he would enter in due time—and this promise was fulfilled.

After graduation from Killingly high school he studied at Leland-Stanford university at Palo Alto, Cal., for three years, returning then to Danielson to engage for a brief period of time in newspaper work for the Windham County Transcript.

Turning his attention to the law, a profession for which he later demonstrated he was eminently qualified, Mr. Chase studied in the offices of Attorney Harry E. Back here, later going to the office of Attorney Edwin D. Robbins, Hartford, then chief counsel for the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company. His final preparation for admission to the bar of Connecticut, which distinction he attained in June, 1928, was with Attorney Charles L. Torrey of Putnam, a lawyer of preminence in the profession in Windham county and with a special gift for teaching students of the law.

In April of 1907, Attorney Chase became associated with the legal staff of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company and for a number of years was trial counsel for the road, and with striking success. Later he was associated with Attorney Harry E. Back in the practice of law in Hartford.

Primarily and instinctively a lawyer, Attorney Chase, ever quick to perceive opportunities for achievement through the prodigous efforts of which he was capable and in which he indulged for years, turned for a time from the practice of his profession to a venture in the business world. As president and treasurer of the Rowe Calk company of Hartford, this concern, selling horseshoe calks throughout the frost areas of the United States and Canada, he accumulated a generous fortune within a few years, his great talents for organization and successful operation being all important factors in this success. The destruction by fire of his Hartford plant was the first blow to his advancement in the business field. Later he re-established the business in Plantsville this state, but eventually turned from it to re-enter the practice of law in Southington, where he had made his home the past few years and where he filled the office of prosecuting attorney.

Unanimous is the verdict of all his associates and acquaintances in the legal profession that Warren Doty Chase was a man of brilliant intellectual achievements, of gracious personality and amazing capacity and inclination for long and sustained effort at whatever happened to be engaging his attention at any particular time. He was the exceptional personality, a real figure among the prominent men of Connecticut.

Mr. Chase leaves his mother, resident in Danielson; a brother, Herbert G. Chase of Danielson, who was with him when he died; three sisters, Mrs. Clayton Smith, West Springfield, Mass., Mrs. Harry Storer, Spokane, Wash., and Miss Blanche Chase of New Haven; his wife and two sons, Charles Ward Chase, a junior at Princeton university, and Warren D. Chase, Jr., a student in a private school in Hartford.

Attorney Chase was a member of Moriah lodge, No. 15, A. F. and A. M., of Danielson, a member of Warren chapter, No. 13, and of Montgomery council, No. 2, also of Danielson; Columbia commandery, K. T., No. 4, of Norwich, and Sphinx temple of the Mystic Shrine at Hartford.

Last May at the Union Baptist church in East Killingly, Attorney Chase delivered the Memorial day address. That was the last occasion upon which many of his friends of this town had an opportunity to greet him and converse with him. During the course of his forceful address he digressed to reveal once again his deep-seated love for picturesquely beautiful Killingly, especially that section of the town where he was at the time speaking, and of the fact that this township had long been the residence of his forebears. "My eyes have never looked upon a fairer land," said Attorney Chase that day. His body is to be brought here for burial. He should rest peacefully with his ancestors under the stately oaks of Westfield cemetery. He will be at home.

Look up the chickens. Get out the gun. A notice received here Tuesday from the New England Ruffed Grouse association, sponsored by the Massachusetts Fish and Game commission, contains this information:

New England is being visited by a tremendous flight of hawks, owls and other predacious animals driven from the north by a scarcity of food. The only important food supply available here during the winter is rabbits and game birds. The N. E. R. G. association is prepared to collect and corelate al lavailable facts regarding the effects of these birds on our native game in New England and eastern Canada.

Sportsmen and all others who may kill large hawks or owls are earnestly requested to have the specimens or at least remove the intestines, particularly the crop and stomach, sprinkle them liberally with salt and send them by mail at once to Dr. Alfred O. Gross, Bowdoin college, Brunswick, Me. It is of the greatest importance to know exactly what proportion of the food of these birds consists of native game, birds and rabbits.

Here is a bit of hair-raising news the communication contains: Bob cats (wild cats) are also working southward in great numbers and the stomachs and intestines of any of these animals that ma ybe killed are wanted at Bowdoin college for scientific study.

Thus the migration into this territory and all southern New England of the snowy owl and goshawks that has received mention several times of late in this column gets official attention.

A director of the Bronx Zoological park in New York in a communication printed Tuesday discusses the appearance of the hordes of snowy owls and goshawks in New England and New York stats and states that similar invasions from the north have occurred on several recorded occasions, the last time during the winter of 1905-1906, a matter of 21 years ago. This scientist attributes the appearance of the snowy owls to lack of food for them in the far north.

A death that will be particularly sad to all who knew him was that of Harry Chester Young, 20, at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam Tuesday afternoon. The young man had been so critically ill the past fortnight that there has been practically no hope of his recovery during the period.

He was a native of this town, born Oct. 27, 1906, a son of Ralph C. and Bertha Hutchins Young. His parents are dead. Since completing his education he has been with the firm of Young Brothers and at the time he became ill about three weeks ago was in charge of the Dayville office of the concern. He is a grandson of Cosmer A. Young, now at New Symrna, Fla., for the winter season. He leaves a brother, Marion of Danielson, two uncles, Louis E. and Harry Young, and two aunts, Mrs. F. P. Todd and Mrs. Gaston A. Maindon, all of Danielson. The body was brought here Tuesday afternoon in charge of Undertaker A. F. Wood.

Dr. W. H. Judson gave notice, as health officer of the town, Tuesday afternoon that residents can aid materially in securing the enforcement of the sanitary code of the state by reporting all cases of measles to him. Parents, teachers and nurses are responsible in regard to reporting promptly all cases of contagious diseases. Withholding such information is liable to do great injury to the town of Killingly and makes those so responsible liable to arrest and a fine.

With representatives of the churches of the Windham association and of churches here in attendance and a list of specially invited clergy and a large congregation representative of this community, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord was installed on Tuesday as pastor of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson, which has served for several months past. Clergy and delegates to the ecclesastical council assembled at the church at 4 o'clock for the examination of the candidate, review of the Westfield church's proceedings, in accordance with Congregational usage. A supper was served at 6:30. At the evening service the sermon was preached by Dean Charles R. Brown of the Yale Divinity school. The committee of the church arranging for the installation was made up of Attorney Harry E. Back, Mrs. W. F. Bidwell and Miss Marion D. Chollar.

A sell out of the house marked the presentation here on Tuesday evening at the Orpheum theatre of Abie's Irish Rose, and the capacity audience indulged in gales of laughter during the evening.

It seemed assured Tuesday that release of Christmas club deposits in Danielson's banks will not be delayed beyond next week, though the exact release dates remain a closely guarded secret of the banks.

At Wauregan the newly constructed bridge over the Quinebaug river remains closed, and the temporary bridge is still in use.

In observance of St. Andrew's day there were special services at St. Alban's church on Tuesday.

Jeffery A. Standish of Middleboro, Mass., was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Tuesday.

Mrs. John Gebert is a patient at a hospital in Worcester.

Rev. Edward Shelley, M. S., formerly an assistant at St. James' church, is now a member of the LaSalette mission band. Father Shelley has been a recent visitor in Danielson.

An additional half inch of rain was added to the winter's store of water for this town in the rainfall that began during the early hours of Tuesday morning.

PUTNAM

SEEKING NEW BOOKS FOR POMFRET LIBRARY
(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 30—Mrs. Belle Holcolmn Johnson, state library inspector, recently spent an evening with the Pomfret library committee and cataloguing and other work was done for the opening of the new library at Pomfret. The following is a list of of books recommended for high school pupils and printed with the hope that some having duplicate copies of the same might care to donate them to the library: Oliver Twist, Dickens; Little Dorrit, Dickens; Cranford, Mrs. Gaskell; Master of Ballantree, Stevenson; Bird sand Bees, Burroughs; Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail, Roosevelt; The Marshall, Andrews; A Friend of Caesar, Davis; Tom Brown of Oxford, Hughes; Alice of Old Vincennes, Thompson; Life of Edison, F. With the closing of the college football season, several college boys from this section have played their last game for their respective schools and have won their letters. Michael Mahar of Pomfret, a graduate of the Putnam high school, won his letter from the Norwich university at Northfield, Vermont, playing at half back; Chandler Morse of Putnam played his final game as left end for Amherst college and won his letter; Jack Cronin, half back on the Boston college team, ended his college football career in last Saturday's game in which the Boston college and the Holy Cross of Worcester tied the game in a 0 to 0 score. The newspaper accounts of this game featured Cronin's punts.

Mrs. Margie Mirwold and son Paul, of New York city, and Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Delancy of Miami, Florida have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Michel of South Main street. Mrs. DeLancy and Mrs. Mirwold are sisters of Mr. Michel. Mr. and Mrs. DeLancy made the trip from Miami by automobile.

The Red Cross membership drive at Thompson was very successful and $103 was given the Putnam chapter. It is gratifying to realize that the interest in this great work continues. At the time of the Florida disaster, Thompson people contributed $250 for the relief of the sufferers in that stricken territory.

Lewis Place of East Putnam is at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester with a badly cut hand. He was working in Hawkins mill at that place and in some way his right hand slipped and the saw cut the back of it very badly. Dr. Russell sewed the hand and ordered him to the hospital for treatment.

A St. Cloud, Florida, paper recently devoted two columns to an address made by Dr. Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins college at Winter Park, Florida. Dr. Holt was the principal speaker at the celebration on Armistice day. Dr. Holt has his summer home at Woodstock.

The engagement is announced of Miss Natilie Harris, daughter of Mrs. Donald Unger of Pomfret, to Pierre Collins, chief scenario writer for the Lasky corporation. The marriage is to take place sometime in January.

Wilbur Lown, who has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Effie Lown, has returned to his studies at St. Stephens-on-the-Hudson.

Harrison Mills, the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Mills of Thompson, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital where he was operated upon for appendicitis. He is doing as well as can be expected.

A large number of the local members of the Shrine motored to Providence to attend a meeting of the Shrine at that place.

Russell Perkins recently sailed from New York on the Conte Biancamano for Naples, where he will be joined by Mrs. Perkins who sailed several weeks ago to first visit relatives in France.

William J. Hanley, Jr., of Pomfret Center has been appointed administrator of the estate of William J. Hanley, late of Pomfret by Judge Willis Covell.

The local theater was filled to capacity Monday night when Ann Nichols' "Abie's Irish Rose" was the attraction. The performance met with the approval of the audience as was demonstrated by the continued applause. This show has established a record in theatrical history never before known, as it is now in its sixth year on Broadway. This particular company had unusual interest for local people as a Putnam boy, William J. Brady, played one of the leading parts. Except in the movies, Mr. Brady has not been seen here for a number of years. He is a Putnam boy and frequently visits his sisters who still live here.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grosvenor of Norwich have returned to their home after a visit with their sons in Boston and their daughter, Mrs. Omer Milot, of this city.

Omer Milot of this city is in Boston on a business trip.

Miss Mary Child of Hartford has returned to her work there after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Child for the past week.

Miss Ethel Gardner has closed her summer residence at Eastford and has gone to Paris to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Barton of Thompson have returned from an extended visit to England.

Alex Vonsiatsky and Nicholas Yarnoff are on an automobile trip to Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Diamond of Grove street have returned from a visit with their son Maurice Diamond and family at Hartford.

Mrs. Jack Cronin and Miss Ruth Fallon have returned from a visit with their father, John F. Fallon at Westfield, N. J.

Little Miss Muriel Grosvenor, who is spending the winter with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Omer Milot of Fremont street, has returned from a visit with her parents at Malden, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lapsley have closed their home at Pomfret, Fox Hill farm, for the winter and are at their apartment in New York prior to going to their winter home at Tallahassee, Florida.

NATIONAL PROSPERITY

What must be regarded as a highly encouraging report is that which was submitted by Secretary Hoover of the department of commerce for the fiscal year 1926-27. This shows the country has been going along at a record breaking pace, that it was a year of real prosperity, that the volume of production and consumption reached new peaks, that there was practically no unemployment, that standards of living were at a record level and that while there were spots where the conditions were not quite as good as in others the general average was much above normal.

This review by the head of the commerce department of the industrial and financial situation for the year is a pleasing pen picture, for with wages to American workers at the highest point in industrial history, with wages to American workers at the highest point in industrial history, with railroad traffic increased and greater transportation efficiency shown, with the volume of imports and exports setting new marks, with financial activities reaching new heights and a substantial decrease in the federal debt, with tax reduction in effect and with conditions in general improved there cannot fail to be a general feeling of satisfaction and elation.

Secretary Hoover makes reference to the conditions in the farming area, to the textile industry and the soft coal industry as being the only unsatisfactory features of the year and to the difference between the price levels of the agricultural and industrial groups, but showed that there had been a steady advance in the prices of farm commodities during the past five years.

These conditions represent the year which closed with the month of June, but observers know full well that such conditions are continuing during the current year with no indication of relaxation.

It is thus a gratifying statement of conditions which Secretary Hoover has been able to make and what is even more gratifying is that the outlook holds forth quite as much promise. Encouraged by sound conditions it has forged ahead and being upon a stable basis the continuance of national prosperity is not only desirable but probable.

TAXLESS COMMUNITIES

Some years ago the prediction was made that by 1930 Norwich would become a taxless city. This optimistic expectation was based upon the benefits to be derived from the municipal light plant. It was taken with probably a bit more than the proverbial grain of salt and when it failed to materialize there was no surprise. The prediction was as far off as many others for just about then Norwich was paying an unusually high tax.

But Norwich wasn't the only place that had visions of being taxless. South River, N. J., had ambitions in the same direction, and strange to say it relied upon a municipal light and water plant to get it. It established its plants and after it began to see profits there was a question as to whether the water and power rates should be cut down or whether the borough of 13,000 should be made taxless. By 1928 the profit was shown to be about $50,000 and as the latter idea made a strong appeal it was voted. South River was immediately put on the map, signs proclaiming its taxless situation were erected a real estate boom because of the new attraction was started and for the period of two years things seem to go along swimmingly.

All is, of course, well that ends well. South River has been taxless but it has found that it must abandon that experiment. It has come to the realization that it has a large bond issue for road improvements that comes due next year and it has interest to pay on the bonds this year but it has no money to meet these obligations. South River is going to resume taxation, but in that respect it will not be alone or its people subjected to conditions which do not generally prevail elsewhere.

Norwich in the meantime continues to go along without a realization of the taxless dream, but even though taxes continue to mount and mount it has been spared the experience of stopping taxes and then having them applied again, although there is a question as to whether South River has realized anything of a lasting benefit from its "off again, on again" experience. Certainly the experiences of the two communities have been quite different in regard to the roseate prediction of a taxless city.

THE TEST IN ONTARIO

Canada has been having its experiences with the wets and drys, and because of them there will be no little interest on this side of the border in the test which is to be made today in the province of Ontario in determining whether there shall be government control of liquor there in the future or whether prohibition under present conditions shall remain.

It is because there is dissatisfaction over the results of prohibition that this test is to be made. The legislature is up for reelection today. If the conservative party is returned to control it will mean government control of liquor. If it is defeated it will mean a continuance of prohibition, which according to the premier cannot be enforced.

Ontario has been a strong dry province. Experience under prohibition and the difficulties encountered in enforcement has resulted in modifications and even the sale of more than 4 per cent beer. Now the belief is among the conservative party members that the best solution lies in placing the control of the sale of liquor in the hands of the government of that province. It is not a new idea. Other Canadian provinces have done the same thing, though possibly Ontario will not pattern after them to the extent of allowing public drinking places. But, faced with the difficulties of enforcement and with the belief existing among a great number that conditions are not what they should be and are much worse than they would be under restricted sales, the contest is on to effect such a change.

The conservatives, and the wets, get much encouragement out of today's prospects from the fact that on each test since prohibition was first voted, less than ten years ago, there has been a steady decrease in the dry majority. It was so small the last time the people had a chance to express themselves, a majority of about 30,000 that the wets, or those favoring government control, believe this majority will be readily overcome at this time. The will of the people as expressed today will govern.

SHIPPING CHANGES

A transaction which creates the greatest shipping combination in the world was completed when the Royal Mail Steam Packet company purchased the White Star line from the International Mercantile Marine. These vessels have been operated under the British flag and they remain there, but they come under the control of Lord Kylsant, a big figure in British shipping circles, whose lines reach out to most all continents.

When such large transactions take place the question is invariably asked as to why such lines are not acquired by American interests or placed under American registry. This results from the desire to see American shipping developed and brought to the point where it is believed it should be in keeping with out position among the nations of the world.

But there is no secret about it. Shipping in other countries is not surrounded with the same laws as American shipping. There are not these restrictions in other countries, while in addition to this advantage when it comes to competition foreign shipping company stand in the way of shipping companies stand in the way of obtaining government subsidies.

The attempt to operate such a fleet under American registry would have encountered deadly competition. Our shipping policy and shipping laws are against it. American capital may control foreign steamship lines but it is forced to foreign registry in order to meet the favorable conditions experienced by foreign lines.

The next move of the International Mercantile Marine will be awaited with interest. There have been intimations that it would undertake to develop American shipping and take over some of the government owned ships. If that is the plan the country will be interested in watching the progress of the undertaking.

CHINA

China has long since presented a problem for other countries, and the end is not yet. Developments have been taking place there which bring up old or new questions constantly.

Because conditions in China have been what they were other nations have felt it necessary to offer assistance in order to give the courts maintained by the favored nations for the purpose of dealing out justice to their subjects. This means a network of foreign courts and officials to deal with the foreigners and has gotten to the point where it has aggravated China.

Naturally China wants to get rid of this situation, and because of the resultant situation a committee representing the nations has been making a study of China and the conditions there and it makes a report setting forth just what was found.

If China would establish a strong government, create a better judicial system in keeping with western ideas and make it evident that the courts would not be subject to the military leaders there would be a disposition on the part of other countries to abandon their efforts in behalf of directing justice in that country. How soon China will be able to take such a stand is a question. There are evidences that it is making progress that it is awakening to present day needs and if it can convince the others that such is the case it should have little difficulty in attaining its aim.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Those who shop early retain their patience and pile up no regrets.

There remain only a few weeks and busy ones, in which to get your 1927 resolutions in shape.

It is necessary to turn now from the outdoor to the indoor sports, but arguments will still prevail.

Some people remember to get plenty of alcohol for other purposes but forget it for the radiator.

It might be a good idea to have a referendum on the suggestion that there be a Be-Kind-to-Ash-Cans week.

The man on the corner says: The demand for foolproof auto drivers and pedestrians gives no promise of early compliance.

Commendable and determined efforts are being made in behalf of the town of Ware, Mass., because its chief industry is to move away. Why not similar efforts in behalf of Voluntown?

It is interesting to note the estimate that there will be 25,000,000 motor vehicles by 1930, but just give heed to the number of deaths that means each year for failure to observe safety first.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

On Saturday morning Frank Freeman telephoned me he was exceedingly sorry to be obliged to break an engagement he had made to take me to an organ recital in the afternoon. Of course I was nice about it. I am not keen over highbrow music in the summer time.

"You're a lucky good sport, Lucile," he said. "I simply have to run out to Elgin today on unexpected business, but I'll make up for this defection later. We must have some music soon".

"An evening at Ravinia or something like that will be delightful, but, Frank," I laughed, "Why can't you make up for the defection as you say by taking me to Elgin? I'd enjoy the drive."

"Wouldn't you be bored while I'm seeing my man?"

"I bored? With a book I can wait indefinitely anywhere and you know that I adore country driving. Shall I meet you downtown?"

"Yes, if you will. I have to be out there early. My car will be parked in front of my office. Please come there as soon as you can."

"I'll be there toute de suite," I promised gayly, but by the time that I was dressed I discovered that I should have to take a taxi in order not to be late. Frank was waiting by his car when I arrived and he paid the chauffeur, which was convenient for me, as I had no change in my purse. I do hate to break a $10 bill for small expenses.

"We drove like the wind all the way out and Frank managed to catch his man just as he was going out to lunch and Frank asked me to excuse him, as he could not detain the man much longer.

"Don't bother about me, Frank. I'll enjoy hunting up a tea shop and poking around," I said cheerily, for I like to have my man friends see what a good fellow I am. Frank insisted upon financing my luncheon. Of course I protested, but I finally saw his point—that I was his guest. I was not hungry and I ate only a piece of cake with my chocolate, and I thought it would be awkward to return money to Frank that I invested the surplus in a charming Quimper plate. I've always been crazy over Quimper ware since I was in Brittany.

"Shall we eat supper in Aurora?" asked Frank, as we were starting homeward.

"No, let's have a picnic. We can buy some rations and have an al fresco meal at a lovely place I know on the Fox river. It belongs to my friend, Ruth Bartluff's family, but I don't think they're there yet this season."

We were soon bowling along toward Rivermarge, the Bartluff place. Just as we drove in the gate rain started and I began to wish that we could get into the house. It seemed hopeless until Frank discovered a loose window.

"Are you prepared to housebreak?" he asked.

"Certainly; I told you that the Bartluffs were my good friends," I answered, and when we were safely installed in the pleasant living room I lighted a fire on the hearth to take away the dampness, and I thought it would be fun to make coffee, as I had found some in the pantry. The fire smoked terribly. I thought we would be suffocated. Tears streamed from our eyes and Frank said it was the most lugubrious party he had ever attended.

Just as we were desperately wondering how to stop the smoke Ruth and her parents entered the house. They all gasped in astonishment. It was really funny to see them.

"Why, Lucile," exclaimed Ruth, "what are you doing here?"

"Seeking shelter from the storm and incidentally being smoked alive. Your chimney must be defective. We found an unlocked window, and I knew you would be glad to have Mr. Freeman and me eat our lunch here."

"Open all the doors and windows," ordered Mr. Bartluff. "The chimney was stopped up to keep out the flying squirrels. The fire's got to be put out before we can remove the old comfort in the chimney. This is a nice mess." He did not even thank dear Frank, who brought pails of water from the well.

"Great Caesar," he exclaimed, "you've been burning those walnut boards I was going to build into book shelves."

"Oh I am sorry. I thought they were just old lumber piled in here for the fire," I said apologetically.

"Father and mother are tired," explained Ruth, "and we have come out for a quiet, restful week-end."

I told Frank as we drove away that I was really shocked at such lack of hospitality, though nothing would have induced me to remain in that atmosphere a moment after we had eaten our last sandwich. Frank was strangely silent all the way into the city. I am afraid he is a little morose at times, though on the whole he is a dear fellow.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

WHAT KIND OF TEETH SHALL YOUR BABY HAVE?

By G. Ulysses Meere, M. D., Portland, Ore. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

They were three years old, two little maids from a home of culture and refinement, one a blond and the other a brunette, vivacious, bright and intelligent. As a study in diets, however, they are more than ordinarily interesting.

When a few days old, Madge seemed to be as well as her sister May. So, following some ill-advised counsel, the young mother weaned the ailing Madge from the breast and put her on artificial feeding. The more fortunate May was allowed to retain her birthright, her mothers milk. Both grew and thrived and gained about equally well it seemed. Insidious influences were at work in poor little Madge, however, which later came to light.

When the teeth of the twins appeared, May's were hard and white and firm. Madge's seemed softer, and less white. At two years they began to show signs of decay. At three the four upper front teeth were decayed and broken off at the gums, and the roots remaining were foul sources of infection. May still presented an unbroken, marred set of pearly teeth.

The contrast was strikingly evident. May's teeth were separating as they should at this age as her jaw was properly widening and enlarging for the time when the larger permanent teeth should appear. Madge's poor little decayed wrecks were as tightly crowded together as possible, showing no spreading of her jaws.

Plaster of Paris impressions of the teeth and jaws were made by a dentist. May's jaw was found to be 40 per cent broader than Madge's. How could it be otherwise?

Whereas, during the first nine months of life, Madge had merely drunk her food through a freely-flowing, rubber nipple, May had "worked for her living," tugging with all her little might to draw her sustenance from her mother's breast. This exercise of the tongue, jaws, and facial muscles, had resulted in their development both as to size and strength.

Not only is breast milk superior to any other as an infant food, but the method by which it is obtained, is likewise of superior benefit. When these sisters obtain their permanent teeth, May's will be well-enamelled, straight, strong and durable. Madge's will be poor in enamel, crooked, crowded, overlapping, and protruding.

The permanent teeth are well advanced during the first year of life. No better dental insurance can be given a child than to see that he is breast-fed for nine months. By the latest methods every mother who is well enough to care for her baby can nurse it. Consult your doctor and the latest books on this subject. Preparedness is the Gorgas Memorial slogan. Let us apply it to the infants.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

G. Howard Ferguson, whose government is at stake in today's general election in Ontario, has attained a dominion-wide reputation during the several years that he has held the premiership of that province. Premier Ferguson is 56 years old and a lawyer by profession. After graduating from the high school in his native city of Kemptville he went to Toronto university to complete his studies. In 1894 he returned to Kemptville to begin the practice of his chosen profession. His public career dates from 1906, in which year he was first elected to the Ontario legislature. In the present election Mr. Ferguson is appealing to the people on a policy of government control of liquor sales, similar to the system existing in Quebec and the four western provinces. At present Ontario is a "dry" province, with the sale of liquor banned except on prescription.

Little Talks on Thrift

SHOULD HAVE DEFINITE GOAL

Every personal plan of saving should embrace a definite goal, attainable before the best of years of life have gone. The old-fashioned school of thrift taught people to save, save, save, by constant self-denial, throughout the whole span of life.

In modern school of thrift there is a happier and more practical philosophy. It teaches us not to keep in mind alone the "rainy day" which is likely to come, but rather the "happy day" which is sure to come if we save with moderation for a definite object and purpose.

Our plan of saving in brief, should be based upon a worthy objective which is controlled by our ability to save without denying ourselves the rightful comforts and conveniences of life.

Moderation in all things, our thoughts, actions and deeds, is necessary to our happiness. This is particularly true in formulating any plan of thrift. If we attempt to put aside each week or each month an amount which is beyond our reasonable capacity, we set too high a goal, make saving a drudge and destroy not only the real value of thrift but its purpose as well.

If our plan of saving does not contemplate the true philosophy of thrift-consistency and moderation—we miss much of the pleasure and often fail to reach our goal and to enjoy the fruits of our efforts.

A plan of patient, prudent saving, with self-denial, in moderation, is better than spasmodic economy, and far better than attempting to save at any time beyond the reasonable bounds of ones capacity.

We cannot reach success without enduring some hardships and privations, but it is folly to overtax our strength and attempt to attain the impossible. Aim high always, but never beyond a rational and reasonable mark.—American Society for Thrift.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Discloses Genius

The light, too, which is thrown by biography on the conduct of life is very great. Theory, philosophizing, opinions, reasoning, are of little worth when compared with the actual facts of the life of a man who has attained distinction in any department of human achievement. Reading of this kind teaches us that chance is only to a small extent an element of success, that nothing is attained by the brightest minds without that infinite patience and labor which in itself is genius. To think of the brave way in which such men met the trials that they were called upon to endure is a most healthful remedy for warped and selfish ideas of life.

Take the life of Scott by Lockhart; note the domestic tastes of the author of Waverly, his kindly interest in the humblest persons around him, the heroic way in which he nerved himself to meet single-handed the overwhelming catastrophe of the failure of Constable, the way in which, while struggling with physical weaknesses that would have rendered another conscious only of his own sufferings, he retained his complicity and gentle thoughtfulness for others,—all these lessons may be learned from that noble biography.

Stories That Recall Others

After You My Dear Gaston

No woman, unless she be too old and decrepit to stand, wishes another woman to offer her a seat, so the fine line of etiquette which permits a woman to make a show of offering courtesies to one who is perhaps a few years her senior, is none too popular.

The other day a charming young woman entered the trolley and prepared to join the straphangers, when a friend who could not have been more than a few years her junior, rose and offered her seat. Taken completely by surprise, the other gave a haughty refusal, the younger insisting. In the argument which followed neither noticed a young flapper who slyly slipped into the seat.

Finally in the heat of the argument, when all eyes were focused on the pair, both saw the girl. A hasty exit ensued.

Let George Do It

There was a bad chimney fire some time ago and one of the neighbors, in speaking of it afterward, said delightedly, "Why, I sat and watched that fire for about 15 minutes before any one else saw it."

"Why didn't you give the alarm?" she was asked.

"Oh, I thought someone would attend to it," she replied complacently.

FILM SHARPSHOOTING POPULAR IN ALASKA

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Nov. 30 (AP)—The sensitive motion picture camera is winning a place with the high-powdered rifle in the equipment of hunters who comb the Alaskan wilds in search of big game.

"Taking a close-up or catching a still picture of a bull moose or bear at a distance of 30 feet has its thrills," says Robert S. Bragaw, Jr., who conducts parties of hunters on Kenai peninsula.

"On a recent trip the moose were so thick that one could make selections of almost any kind of picture desired. On several occasions I was so close to big bulls that I could have jumped on their backs, and was compelled to back away in order to get them within the focal range of the camera."

The animals often pay no attention to the cameraman, Bragaw says, but sometimes curiosity or resentment overcomes their indifference and it is advisable to flee.

She Corrects Speech Defects

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 30 (AP)—Miss Esmer Knudson, a young school teacher, is making great progress with a class of potential orators who have speech defects. She says that all speech defects such as stammering, lisping, baby talk and in some cases muteness, when functional are capable of cure.

"It is a matter of psychology. The trouble is usually the result of nervousness, lack of self-confidence, bad hurry habits or possibly repressions of some sort buried deep in the child's unconscious mind."

A silver dollar isn't very heavy, but some men find it difficult to raise.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Mr. Grouse Becomes Bold

Confidence, so we are told,
Will often make the timid bold.
—Mother West Wind.

Of course Farmer Brown's Boy saw Mr. Grouse whirr away into the Green Forest. "Ha!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy, "Mrs. Grouse has been having a visitor. I wonder how he found out where she is? I think I'll have to put some food out for him. Perhaps, as he has found the way once, he will come again. He isn't likely to come over here during the daytime, but perhaps he'll come just at dusk. I'll watch."

So Farmer Brown's Boy took care to scatter some food outside the pen in which Mrs. Grouse was kept. Late

Farmer Brown's Boy held his breath as he watched that afternoon he went out and hid where he could watch. But he watched in vain. Mr. Grouse did not appear. The next morning, however, when Farmer Brown's Boy went out to feed Mrs. Grouse he discovered that the food he had put out for Mr. Grouse had disappeared. "He must have come just at daylight," thought Farmer Brown's Boy.

That day Farmer Brown's Boy prepared a hiding place by sticking bushes in the ground. He made it close to the pen of Mrs. Grouse, and in front of it he scattered buckwheat. He was up before daylight the next morning and safely hidden by the time jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun began his daily climb up into the blue, blue sky. He didn't have long to wait then. He heard a low "quit, quit" from Mrs. Grouse in the pen; almost at once it was answered from outside. It was clear that Mr. Grouse had not flown over, but had stolen over on his feet. You know, Grouse travel some distance sometimes without flying.

Wonderfully handsome was Mr. Grouse standing with his head stretched up, feathers on the top of his head raised, and the ruff on his neck out, as he looked and listened before venturing to eat his breakfast. Then, satisfied that all was well, he fell to picking up that buckwheat in the greediest way; and all the time he and Mrs. Grouse were talking in low tones. Farmer Brown's Boy held his breath as he watched.

At last Farmer Brown's Boy had to change his position. He had sat so long in one position that he had become cramped, and he just had to move. Accidentally he snapped a dry twig. Instantly Mr. Grouse was all attention with his head up, his bright eyes staring suspiciously at those bushes behind which Farmer Brown's Boy was hiding. Slowly he took a couple of steps in that direction. Then, through the bushes he saw Farmer Brown's Boy. Farmer Brown's Boy saw that he was discovered. He held his breath, waiting to see what Mr. Grouse would do. At the same time Mr. Grouse looked as if he were holding his breath. He didn't move. Not so much as a feather did he move.

By and by, after what seemed a long time, the feathers on the top of the head of Mr. Grouse began to go down. Then, as if not a suspicion had entered his head, he picked up a grain of buckwheat. To see him you wouldn't have known that he even suspected that Farmer Brown's Boy was there. But he did know that Farmer Brown's Boy was there and Farmer Brown's Boy knew that he knew he was there. Farmer Brown's Boy understood perfectly. He understood that Mr. Grouse was bold with the boldness of understanding, and that this was his way of showing that he accepted Farmer Brown's Boy as a friend. So Farmer Brown's Boy took the greatest care to make no motion that might frighten Mr. Grouse, and he resolved that he would be there the next morning.

STRUCK BY TROLLEY IN BURNHAM SQUARE

While Charles W. Taggart, general manager of the city gas and electric department, was operating a Cadillac touring car through Burnham square Tuesday evening about 6.30 o'clock, the machine was struck by a trolley car coming from Greeneville and rammed up against the beacon in the square. Damage estimated by Mr. Taggart was done to the automobile, which is owned by the gas and electric department.

The trolley was a one-man car operated by Lewis Beckwith who claimed that the automobile stopped suddenly in front of the trolley.

MISS LEVITSKY AT PIANO WAS HEARD OVER RADIO

On Monday evening, the many friends of Miss Viola Levitsky had the pleasure of listening to her play several difficult classical selections on the piano from WTIC radio station at Hartford. Miss Levitsky is a Norwich girl, an Academy graduate and has been heard from both the Storr's station WCAC and WCBR when in Norwich. Her delightful rendition of classical selections has won her much praise and many admirers. At the present time she is studying with a Hartford professor, under whose direction she is advancing rapidly. Her many Norwich friends wish her the best of success. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Levitsky of Margerie street.

WEDDINGS

Perry-Taylor

Miss Lorena K. Taylor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Clifton Taylor of Best View, Quaker Hill, was married on Saturday afternoon at the home of her parents, to Raymond Edison Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Perry of Uncasville. Rev. Herbert B. Hutchins, pastor of the Quaker Hill Baptist church, was the officiating clergyman. The bride, gowned in white satin and wearing her mother's wedding veil, held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms and carrying a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley, was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Emily Minson, a teacher at Glastonbury, was maid of honor and wore a pink satin hat and gown and carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds. Miss Virginia Taylor, a niece of the bride and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Taylor of New London and the Misses Beatrice Church and Laura Lewis of Quaker Hill, members of the bride's Sunday school class were flower bearers. They were prettily gowned in pink and white and carried baskets of pink roses which they scattered in the path of the bride. Robert N. Taylor, brother of the bride, and a student of medicine at Yale university, was best man.

The bride's gift to the maid of honor was a white gold bracelet set with pearls. To each flower bearer she gave a decorated bead purse. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a large cabinet of rare design. His gift to the best man was a pair of white gold cuff links.

An orchestra directed by G. Victor Grinnell, instructor of violin at Connecticut college, provided music for the ceremony and the reception which followed. A caterer served a tempting collation. The house was transformed into a veritable tropical garden.

The bride is a graduate of Williams Memorial institute and of Connecticut college in the class of 1926. She also attended Statson university in Florida. The bridegroom is a graduate of Chapman Technical high school and is associated with his father in business with the International Silver company in this city.

Owing to recent deaths in both families invitations were limited. There were present about 50 guests from this vicinity, as well as from Lebanon, Hartford, Providence and Boston. The couple received many beautiful wedding gifts.

They are spending their honeymoon in Washington, D. C.

Redfield-Burdick

At a quiet wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Briggs of Brooklyn, this state, Miss Gertrude M. Burdick of Leominster, Mass., and Charles P. Redfield, of Rockville, were united in marriage, Nov. 27, by Rev. Francis P. Bacheler of Taloottville. The bridal party entered as Mrs. Louis Parkhurst sang "O Promise Me." The decorations were yellow chrysanthemums, ferns and laurel. Guests were present from Hartford, Leominster, Mass., New London and Providence. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Redfield will reside in Vernon, where they will be at home to their friends after January first.

Doyon-Deneault

Wilfred Doyon of Moosup and Miss Rosa Deneault of Holyoke, Mass., were married in the Massachusetts city on Monday, Nov. 22, and left shortly after the ceramony on their honeymoon to Sherbrook, Canada, where relatives of the bride reside. They are also to visit in Moosup and from there will go to Glasgo, where a brother of the bridegroom lives, and will also visit in Voluntown, before returning to Holyoke, where they are to reside.

Perry-Tucker

Miss Evelyn Tucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Tucker of Golden Spur, Waterford, and Arthur Perry, son of Joseph Perry, also of Waterford, were united in marriage Monday afternoon by Justice of Peace J. James Floyd. The couple will reside in the Golden Spur section of Waterford.

FORMER NORWICH PASTOR DIES AT 93 IN CRANSTON

Rev. Lyman Beecher Tefft, dean of Brown alumni, preacher, author and educator, died Monday night at his home in Cranston, R. I., after an illness of less than two weeks. On July 15, last, Mr. Tefft observed his 92rd birthday.

In 1858 when Mr. Tefft received his master of arts degree commencements were held in September when the school actually commenced. He was graduated from Rochester Theological Seminary in 1860. He held Baptist pastorates in Prescott, Wis., Winona, Minn., and Norwich and Colchester, Conn., during the early nineties.

COMING TO POSITION AT NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

Dr. Edward G. Rowland, who for three years has been senior assistant physician at the state school at Belchertown, Mass., is to leave there this week to take a position at the Norwich state hospital.

Of the departure of Dr. Rowland from Belchertown, the Springfield Republican says: This change removes not only a physician at the state school, who is also an authority on birds and a student of other nature subjects, but will leave vacancies in church and other organizations as well.

Dr. Hamilton Fiske Biger, 87, for a long time personal physician to John D Rockefeller, Sr., died in Cleveland.

MADE 105 ARRESTS IN NOVEMBER; FIRE CALLS WERE FEW IN CITY

Arrests made by the Norwich police department in November numbered 106, which was about the average, but three less than for November a year ago.

Intoxication led in the causes for arrests with 43, while breach of the peace and violations of motor vehicle laws each caused 23 arrests. Other causes were the following: Theft 4, begging 2, keeping gambling houses 2, frequenting gambling house 7, and the following one each: Resisting officer, theft of gas, non-support, cruelty to person and deserter from army.

13 Calls For Firemen

The month of November was an extremely light one in point of fire loss in Norwich. Throughout the month the fire department was called out only 13 times, all calls being by telephone. The loss for the month is under $100.

Reservoirs Gain in Month

The month of November gave a rainfall beyond the average, the total being 4.11 inches, which was over half an inch more than a year ago.

The result was a raise in the level of the water supply in the two city reservoirs. At the beginning of the month Fairview reservoir was 5 feet 1 1-2 inches down from full pond and Stony Brook was down 17 feet 8 inches. At the end of the month Fairview was down 4 feet, 4 inches from full pond and Stony Brook down 17 feet.

CHENEY SAYS COMPENSATION LAW NEEDS CHANGING

Changes which should be made in the state compensation law were outlined by Howell Cheney of Cheney Brothers, South Manchester, and a member of a committee appointed by the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut to study the problem, when he spoke this week before the Bridgeport Manufacturers' association.

There should be a clear interpretation of exactly what "arising out of and in the course of employment," means, Mr. Cheney explained; accidental injuries and occupational diseases should be separately and clearly considered; compensation claims must be made within a year from the date of the accident or the first notice of symptoms of occupational diseases; it should be stipulated that accidents must occur on the premises or elsewhere if working under supervision and direction to be compensable. Mr. Cheney also had suggestions with regard to waiver claims.

Radical Change Wanted

What are considered by him to be the evils of the present compensation law are not to be cured by any simple amendments, he stated. Laws cannot be expected to change human nature, he said, and, unless "we go back and treat men as individuals, the workmen's compensation act will not be a success," he stated.

Disability is proof of injury, according to the law and a man must be out of work for seven days "to cash in," as Mr. Cheney put it. An investigation made a year ago by the Cheney company showed that the average absence for injuries which had been three days at the start of the compensation plan had worked up to 15 days. Positions were invented by this company and jobs suitable for the capacity of the injured. During the past nine months the average absence has been three and a half days, he stated. It was found that when put on a day rate employes on an average asked to be put back on their original posts within three days. During the nine months the company saved about $8,000 he said.

Estimating that between 60 and 75 per cent of industries are insured for compensation and that this group is increasing in number rather than the group of those carrying their own risk, Mr. Cheney stated that the claim of insurance companies is that, having become insured, manufacturers lose their anxiety about enforcing the law. Insurance companies, anxious for the business, employ a similar class of mass psychology, he stated, and do not contest the claims. The employer is anxious to get back the money he paid in premiums through payments to his employes at least and today the premium load is three times what it was in 1913, he explained. The insurance companies get increased compensation costs back through increased premiums, he said.

The legislation was started "without clearly knowing what we were doing," said Mr. Cheney, who explained that all that was seen was that the liability of employers had become discredited, that more was being paid to ambulance chasers, shyster lawyers and others than to the injured men; that the manufacturer in jury cases was pictured as "the rich octopus" feeding on his unfortunate employes; that the man who justly deserved compensation often didn't get it until nearly dead.

"We are looking toward an economic adjustment of an economic problem," he explained. Unfortunately, he said, the supreme court did not take the same view, but looked at the law as a compromise.

In 1919 an amendment was passed consequently, that provided if an injury arises out of or in the course of employment, the fact that it cannot be traced to a definite time and place shall be no bar to compensation. The amendment was so worded as not to include contagious, communicable or mental diseases, said the speaker.

Since then in some cases the supreme court has referred to "weakened resistance to infection" caused by the occupation and resulting in the contraction of communicable disease and has granted such appeals, he said. This aroused the state and insurance companies, he stated. In the effort to bring diseases and accidents under the same act, it was done carelessly, said Mr. Cheney, declaring that care and caution must be used in preparation of further amendments.

Hernia victims in numerous instances have victimized employers and there has been no protection as to the length of time within which claims must be filed.

FUNERALS.

Ernest C. Cook.

The funeral of Ernest C. Cook, who died in Portland, Ore., November 22nd, was held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the parlors of Undertakers Church and Allen. Rev. Joseph F. Cobb conducted the service and burial took place in Poquetanuck cemetery, Rev. Mr. Cobb conducting a committal service at the grave. The bearers were Isaac Cook, Charles Cook, Isaac Rathbun, and Luman Smith. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and the floral tributes were many and beautiful.

DRIVERS GIVEN HEARINGS IN AUTOMOBILE CASES

Hearings in the cases of six automobile drivers were held Tuesday afternoon before Inspector Phillip E. Devnew of the motor vehicle department in the rooms of the court of common pleas in this city. Eight received summons to appear but only six were in court. The hearings resulted as follows:

John A. Monroe, 129 Broad street, Norwich, convicted of evading responsibility, allowed to retain his license.

Joseph Polomski, R. F. D. No. 4, Jewett City, reckless driving, will have to wait until December 18 before he can operate a machine as his license was suspended for two months.

David P. Planchog, Plainfield, reckless driving, 30 days suspension, Wellington Bitgood, 64 Broad street, Danielson, operating under influence of liquor, decision reserved until driver produces letters relative to his good character.

Samuel Polinsky, 43 Linden street, New London, conference, in regard to two accidents; he was allowed to retain his license with a warning.

License returned to James A. Doyle, 36 Aspinook street, Jewett City; operating under influence of liquor.

John Northrop, Ridgefield, operating under influence of liquor, reckless driving and evading responsibility, indefinite suspension. Richard F. Abernathy, U. S. N., New London, reckless driving, failed to appear.

$10,000 SUIT SETTLED BEFORE REACHING TRIAL

The $10,000 damage suit of Hilma Aarnio of Brooklyn, N. Y., against the Louis K. Liggett Co., and C. D. Joslyn, local truckman, which was assigned for trial in the superior court here Tuesday morning before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury was settled out of court and did not come to trial.

The Brooklyn woman brought the suit that she had been seriously injured on July 20, 1925 by falling down an elevator shaft in the sidewalk that was suddenly opened as she stood looking in the window of the store in the Shannon building.

The Liggett Co. set up as defense that the elevator and trap door were being operated by Frank Hoxie, an employe of C. D. Joslyn, the truckman, and this caused Mr. Josyln to be made a party defendant.

ADDITION TO YALE QUARTERS AT GALES FERRY

Work has been started on the construction of a large addition to the Yale training quarters at Gales Ferry. The addition, which will be known as the Sheffield Memorial addition, is being made to the main crew quarters building and consists of a living room 24x24, on the ground floor, with four sleeping rooms above, and two porches, each 14x24, on both the second and ground floors. The entire addition will be finished in colonial style and a large open fireplace will feature the living room.

The addition, which has long been needed at the Yale quarters, has been made possible through the generosity of Mrs. Sheffield, widow of the man whose millions founded the Yale Sheffield Scientific school, who donated the funds for its construction.

Connecticut College

"The mining situation is a ghastly situation in England today," said Kenneth Lindsay, in addressing a group of history and sociology students at Connecticut college on Tuesday morning. "The coal mining problem is not merely a mining problem, it is a good many other problems also. The isolation of mining communities from the rest of the world has to be dealt with, the problem of inadequate education is a large one. There is not much future for the miner's children."

The immobility of labor is partly due to a lack of education. But one of the greatest problems, in Mr. Lindsay's opinion, is the fact that of "Adolescence". Our laws are different and on the whole much better. In England 85 per cent of the child population leave school at the age of fourteen and plunge into the world. There are about 90,000 unemployed children in England. Unemployment results in stagnant pools of unskilled labor, which can be directly attributed to lack of opportunity and education during the period of adolescence."

Mr. Lindsay spoke of the "Poor Law" in England. "The old poor law did not think of dealing with a million people. This law is to be abolished within a year. In England it is a very difficult thing to tie up job getting with job finding. Improvement and continuation does not take place in England as it does in this country. The farmer has a very stringent method of selection which does not exist in this country. This fact can be illustrated by a comparison of the number of boys and girls who attend the universities in both countries. There is a lack of democracy in education in England. The latter is now two nations not one, due to the differences in the mental and physical aspects of its people.

Mellville Cobbledick introduced Mr. Lindsay at his afternoon lecture held in New London hall. Mr. Linsay spoke of the general situation in England, and compared it with the situation in the United States. England is a world today where every thing is being questioned, the United States a world where everything is being accepted. This questioning is a direct result of the serious situation prevalent in England, but lacking in this country. England's prosperity is based on her coal mines, now many things are substituted for coal. As a result of this lack of prosperity there is a smaller amount of trade with other parts of the world.

Then Mr. Lindsay gave a general survey of economic conditions in England. The whole economic condition of England is based on the feudal system, which has been abolished in practically all countries. One important economic fact in which the United States differs greatly from England is the fact that the miners in the United States can move away from the mines, but that the same thing cannot be done in England, since there is no place to move to. England is now in the 28th week of its coal strike. The results of the cycle of the industrial revolution are first being felt in England, since England was the first to experience this revolution.

The labor movement has had a slow development in England, but today universities, literary men, trade unions and also women have given it a hearing. Mr. Lindsay spoke of the different organizations which had been formed to carry out this labor movement. The greatest pressure of this movement is felt where labor conditions are at their worst. English women do not play anywhere nearly as large a part in English politics as American women play, but the first evidences of women in politics is being felt in the labor party. The general strike did not prevail in England and will never prevail. It cannot be the method by which bad conditions can be improved and economic problems as well as social ones solved. England must find the best way out by a scientific application of intelligence to prevalent bad conditions. America may save herself a great deal of trouble by learning to avoid mistakes which England has made.

LEGHORNS FELL BACK IN STORRS EGG LAYING

Rainy days with sudden temperature changes sandwiched in between, have halted the advance of the pullets in the Storrs laying trials. Their offensive, however, has been so splendid and so consistent that the management believes they are only temporarily stopped. In the fourth week of the contest they eased off 218 eggs, but even at that they laid over 300 eggs more than in the corresponding week a year ago. In other words, they are a fine team of egg layers, and this little penalty for offside in the first quarter merely means that some of the pens were a bit over anxious, perhaps. To be specific, the Leghorns were largely responsible for failure to gain, as the Barred Rocks just about held their ground and all other classes actually made gains. The total production for all pens for the last week in November was 4,154 eggs, or a yield of over 42 per cent.

A pen of Barred Rocks entered by R. W. Davis & Sons from Rockland, Maine, just about duplicated their performance of last week. These ten pullets came across with 61 eggs, which no other pen could match, and jumped Maine from third place in the Barred Rock class to first place. Two Connecticut pens of Reds owned by John Z. La Belle of Ballouville and Hall Brothers of Wallingford tied with White Leghorns entered by Alfred J. O'Donovan of Katonah, New York. These three pens did 55 eggs each. Incidentally it may be remarked that this puts the Wallingford pen at the head of the list, all classes included. Harold G. Colt of West Hartford, Conn., and Globus Poultry farm of Attleboro, Mass., tied for third place with 54 eggs each. White Wyandottes entered by the Locusts at West Cornwall, Conn., and White Leghorns entered by Kerr Chickeries, Trenton, N. J., tied for fourth place with 53 eggs each.

Barred Rocks

R. W. Davis & Sons, Rockland, Maine.	152
R. C. Packard, Brockton, Mass.	135
Edgar Stoughton, Wapping, Conn.	121

White and Buff Rocks

E. A. Hirt (White Rocks), S. Weymouth, Mass.	196
S. Bradford Allyn (White Rocks), Holliston, Mass.	135

White Wyandottes

Winlay White Wyandottes, Colebrook, Conn.	182
The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn.	175

Rhode Island Red

Hall Brothers, Wallingford, Conn.	210
Globus Poultry Farm, Attleboro, Mass.	207
Wallicetn Farm, Westford, Mass.	201
Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, Conn.	202

White Leghorns

Ruehle's Sunnyside Farm, Pleasant Valley, N. Y.	201
Alfred J. O'Donovan, Jr., Katonah, N. Y.	201
Broadview Farm, Winsted, Conn.	200

ANALYSIS SHOWS FOOTBALL TEAMS HAD BETTER DEFENSIVE THAN SCORING POWER

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP)—The attack in football, after a brief forward surge last year, again has felt the checking influence of sturdier defensive work. Records for the season just closed reveal the average scoring power of college teams throughout the country to be at its lowest ebb in five years.

These figures, covering the regular campaigns of 120 representative aggregations in all sectors of the gridiron front, show that a grand total of 13,960 points were rolled up in 917 games.

This is an average of 116.3 points per team, representing a sharp decline from the 1925 average of 123 and an especially marked drop from the 1923 figure of 134 points.

The decrease in the average game score also is notable for the five year period, scaling from 18 to 14.6 points, but the latter figure represents a slight advance over the 1924 average, which was 14.5. There has been comparatively little change in the game average, in fact, over a four-year stretch.

The downward scoring trend for 1926 may be traced directly to the general ineffectiveness of passing attacks that flourished last season on a wide scale, to the increased emphasis upon all-around team defense and to the development of more close order attacks. There were plenty of thrills for those who like the features of the "open game" and the pass but among major teams, there was a distinct return to the more old-fashioned running games, with variations, and to the use of the field goal as a vital scoring weapon.

Where the University of Washington led the scoring brigade in 1925 with 459 points in capturing the Pacific coast championship, this year's high scoring honors went to Lafayette, only eastern team neither beaten or tied, with 330 points. Georgetown, with 306, was the only other team to pass the 300 mark.

Among major elevens Alabama, Pennsylvania and Northwestern exhibited consistent defenses. The southern champions permitted only 20 enemy points while rolling up 243 themselves. Penn also allowed only a score of points. Northwestern yielded 27 points and Lafayette 37.

Notre Dame's goal line had been crossed only once in eight games when Carnegie's 19-0 avalanche buried the Hoosiers. This sensational victory emphasized Carnegie's defensive as well as attacking strength, the "Skibos" having yielded only 38 points, 17 to Washington & Jefferson and 6 to New York university, in the team's only defeats. They scored 307 in capturing 7 out of 9 games.

Analysis of the team figures discloses 33 games decided by field goals and 26 by the margin of a single point after touchdowns, both totals setting new records. Safeties were the only scores in four contests while 30 ties, many of them in the most important games, were recorded.

The trend of scoring power over the last five-year period is shown in the following table:

YEAR	Colleges	Games	Total Points	Team Average	Game Average
1922	83	593	11,000	133	18
1923	200	814	13,684	137	16.5
1924	96	780	11,368	119	14.5
1925	108	895	13,150	123	12.7
1926	120	967	13,960	116.3	14.6

SIX-DAY BIKE GRIND STARTS AT GARDEN SUNDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP)—Twenty eight riders will mount their wheeled steeds and push off at Madison Square Garden Sunday night in New York's forty-first six day bike race, pairings for which were completed today.

The grind will mark the return to competition of Al Goullet, famous veteran who has won more races than any other rider in the history of the sport. Goullet will be partnered by Freddy Spencer of Plainfield, N. J.

Other pairings are Reggie McNamara and Pietro Linarin, Franco Georgetti and Gaetano Belloni, Cecil Walker and Tony Beckman, Charley Winter and Carl Stockholm, Georges Wambst and Charley Lacquehay, Otto Petri and Dave Lands, Alphonse Goosens and Harry Stockelynch, Alex McBeath and Billy Grimm, Bill Coles and Leroy Garrison, Fred Taylor and Billy Hanley, Teddy Wynosky and Bill Coburn, Tom Bello and Norman Hill, Pietro Bestetti and Alfredo Dinale.

NO PROSPECT OF CHANGE IN BRITISH OPEN DATES

LONDON, Nov. 30—(AP)— There is no prospect of a change in the dates of the 1927 British open golf championship, scheduled for the week of June 21, to avoid a conflict with the American open event, Henry Collen, secretary of the Royal and Ancient club, announced today.

"For years our championship has been played on certain dates, and we are not prepared to alter them," he said, adding that British professionals had made no request for a change.

Scheduling of the two premier golf fixtures of Great Britain and the United States during the same week for the first time is expected to curtail international competition and may prevent a team match between professionals of the two countries.

COMMISSION DIVIDED ON TUNNEY'S STAGE ACTIVITIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP)—A division of opinion developed in the state athletic commission today over the arrest of Gene Tunney for alleged use of a theatre as an "unlicensed boxing club" in his Broadway vaudeville debut.

While Magistrate Silberman was adjourning the heavyweight champion's case to Thursday, William Muldoon, senior member of the board, and Commissioner George Brower were squaring off against Chairman James A. Farley in a verbal skirmish over the commission's attitude. Both Muldoon and Brower contended that the commission had no right to interfere with the stage activities of Tunney, whose act includes two one-minute rounds of sparring.

Muldoon revealed that he and Brower opposed action by the board on the ground that the matter was one for the police and the district attorney's office to investigate. A resolution was accordingly passed referring the question to District Attorney Banton to "take such action as he deemed necessary."

Tunney's arrest was made after letters had been forwarded by Secretary Bert Stand on behalf of the commission to the theatre and the police, setting forth that any sparring by Tunney would be in violation of the state commission rules.

Dudley Field Malone, appearing as Tunney's attorney this morning, consented to adjournment of the case on condition that the police in the interim "would not break up the show."

ACADEMY-TORRINGTON GAME HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Owing to a conflict in dates for Saturday the Torrington high school basketball manager yesterday notified Manager Spotten of the Academy five that Torrington would be unable to play the local school. However, the Academy will play Torrington on February 19th. Manager Spotten is now endeavoring to bring some high school five from the eastern part of the state to the local floor for Saturday evening. The Academy opened the season last Saturday night with as fast a basketball game as could be asked and the concensus of opinion among basketball followers is that N. F. A. will have a most successful season.

Practice is held at the "Y" gym three days a week and Coach McKean is rounding into shape a real contender for state basketball honors. There is basketball material in plenty, in fact enough for four or five teams at the present time. Of course there will be a cut in the squad within a short time but every candidate is working hard for a place on the squad. Reporting this week for practice was Schwartz, L. Pitt, S. Pitt, Artie Armstrong, Jimmy Williams and Lloyd Jarvis, all strong basketball candidates.

TRINITY EXPECTS BETTER YEAR NEXT SEASON

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 30.—(AP)—With only three first string men graduating next June, and convinced that the injury jinx which pursued the Trinity eleven all the past season cannot continue as disastrously through another season, Trinity coaches look forward to a better season next year.

Injuries began in training camp this fall and continued into the last quarter of the last game. They included broken bones, concussions of the brain, cracked ribs, and internal hemorrahage along the shin bone, a deep muscle bruise, besides lesser troubles.

Next fall, however, only Captain O'Brien, tackle, Eberle, end and Condit, center, will be missing. Cooper and MacInnes of this year's freshman outfit are rated by the coaches stronger than Condit, while Smith and Gillilen, guards, and Rogers, tackle, on the yearling outfit, are considered stronger than the 1926 varsity guards. Gillis and Burleigh, both sophomores next year, are hard-running, shifty ball-carriers who will make some of this year's back field work to remain on the varsity.

DENIES OFFICIALS IN ARMY AND NAVY GAME WERE LAX

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30—(AP)—Wilmer G. Crowell, referee of the Army-Navy game which ended in a 21-21 tie in Chicago last Saturday, took exception today to a report that officials were lax.

Denying that Army's second touchdown was scored after Left End Harbold had kicked a fumble by Bansford, Crowell declared Walter Eckersal and other officials told him the touchdown was legal and there had been no kicking of the ball.

Crowell still is in possession of the ball and has written both institutions asking about its disposition. Crowell says he warned both teams he would hold on to the ball in case of a tie.

Reports that an Army-Navy play-off would be held here December 18 in the Sesqui-Centennial stadium, were denied by stadium officials and Navy academy officials.

NAT. LEAGUE TEAMS NOT TO PLAY AGAINST COLLEGE MEN

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 30—(AP)—National League Football clubs under a new order issued today by President Joe F. Carr, are forbidden to engage in games in which players participate who have finished their college football careers this fall.

The new prohibition goes a step farther than an earlier order which bars college players from the league teams until their classes have been graduated from college. The ruling will be enforced by imposition of fines on violating teams, Mr. Carr said. The executive also refused permission for National league clubs to play against the Philadelphia Quakers. He said the request for games came from the Quakers.

BOXING BOUTS AT WESTERLY DISAPPOINTING

The two main attractions at the Lorraine club boxing show in Westerly on Tuesday evening proved rather disappointing to the fans as well as to the promoter as two of the principals in both bouts failed to show up and substitutions had to be made. Collins, who was supposed to take on Jim Ross of Westerly in the main bout did not put in an appearance and Waters of the sub base was substituted. It was a poor substitution for Ross kayoed Waters in the first round.

In the second bout Young Ross substituted for Hookie Jackson against Young Bruno and the bout was a tame affair. The other bouts however were entertaining.

Vaccarelli Gets Verdict

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Tony Vaccarelli, New York lightweight, and pupil of Johnny Dundee, won a technical knockout over Johnny Rocco, of New Rochelle, here tonight. Rocco sprained his ankle just before the bell ended the fourth round and was unable to continue.

Kid Blair, Utica lightweight, lost the decision to Jackie Horner of St. Louis, in the ten-round semi-final.

TAFTVILLE CELTICS HAND HARTFORD TEAM BAD TRIMMING

At Parish hall on Tuesday evening the Taftville Celtics walked away on the long end of a 43 to 21 score in the game with the Hartford Rubber works team. The score does not show the real calibre of the game for it was fast and at times very closely contested. The teamwork of the Celtics was largely responsible for the one-sidedness of the final score. Featuring the attack for the Celtics was Pingree and Normandin, the lanky center and the speedy forward working well together. Coady also played a brilliant offensive game as well as keeping his man well covered.

In the preliminary the Norwich All Stars won from the Nordics, 21 to 25 in an overtime contest. The summary:

PLAINFIELD CLASHES WITH NEW BRITAIN TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 30—The Plainfield Town team will attempt to strengthen its hold on first place as contenders for the state basketball championship here tonight when they meet the New Britain National Guard quintette at the Plainfield Community house. The service men defeated the Bristol outfit, state champions of last year, last Saturday at New Britain by a score of 28 to 16. As the Plainfield team plays Bristol here next Wednesday it makes it imperative that the local boys must defeat the guardsmen tonight to claim distinction over the Bristol five.

Since the last tussle with New Britain, both teams have strengthened and the fans should witness a hard-fought battle The Plainfield fans are pinning their hopes on Dissinger, who has recovered from last week's injury enough to start the game. The lineup will include Normandin and Dissinger, forwards, Norris, center, Benson and Madden guards, Stavinsky and Martelli will both see service.

A fast preliminary game between the Buddies, so far undefeated this season, and Danielson will start at 8 p. m. sharp.

A Reply to Speedboys

Sports Editor: In reply to the statement of the Jewett City Speedboys appearing in Tuesday's Bulletin I would say that the Greeneville Tigers are not ignoring any chances that the Speedboys might offer, providing the game takes place at the J. B. Martin grounds. A game has already been scheduled with the manager of the Speedboys, or whoever took the burden upon his shoulders, for Dec. 5, on a 60-40 basis at the J. B. Martin grounds.

As to the field markings, goal posts, etc., not being properly fixed I can say that these will be arranged to the satisfaction of all because I realize that the Speedboys are probably accustomed to performing on some of the best gridirons in eastern Connecticut such as Ashland field which would make a fine toboggan slide at the best but has never been the delight of any visiting team. If the Speedboys wish to play and keep their word in regards to the game they will reply in Thursday's Bulletin, or keep their so-called championship.

Manager of Greeneville Tigers.

BILL CARRIGAN APPOINTED MANAGER OF RED SOX TO SUCCEED LEE FOHL

BOSTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—William F. "Bill" Carrigan of Lewiston, Me., the manager of the Boston Red Sox in the heyday of their championship form before the World war today was again named manager of his old club on a two years contract to succeed Lee Fohl, resigned.

President Bob Quinn made the announcement after a five minute conference with Carrigan at Fenway park today, and although no salary was mentioned, it was understood the figure named was the highest ever offered a Boston manager.

Carrigan reached the height of his first stay in fast company in 1915 and 1916, when he piloted the Sox to successive world's championships over the Phillies and the Brooklyn Dodgers. It was during this period that he developed and handled such stars as Ruth, Carl Mays, Dutch Leonard, Joe Wood, Ray Collins, Everett Scott and the famous combine of Lewis, Speaker and Hooper, often dubbed the greatest outfield organized baseball ever saw.

Although he is returning to the big leagues at the age of 48, he was called the "original boy manager" when he succeeded Jake Stahl as pilot of the Red Sox in 1913.

Entering Holy Cross from the Lewiston high school in 1904 Carrigan first attracted big league attention by his work behind the plate in 1906. That spring he signed a Red Sox contract and was farmed out the following season to the International club of Toronto. Toronto won the pennant and with the closing of the international season an accident on the Boston team gave Carrigan his chance.

Lou Criger, regular Red Sox backstop, broke his hand. Carrigan stepped into the injured players' shoes and never stepped out again until he retired in 1916, one of the richest men in baseball at the time.

Since then he has become increasingly well-to-do in his home town of Lewiston in banking and theatrical agency managing. He retired from active business a few years ago to devote all his time to "loafing" and his family, which consists of Mrs. Carrigan and three children, Beulah, 10, Constance 8, and William F., Jr., 5.

Carrigan announced that he had not yet discussed policies with Quinn, but he indicated that he would attempt to secure the services of Heine Wagner, his old shortstop and boon companion of the Red Sox, to come to Boston next year as his chief assistant.

The club owner said the new manager will be left free to pick his own assistants.

ROGERS GIVES UP IDEA OF TURNING PROFESSIONAL

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30—(AP)—Charley Rogers' professional football dreams were shattered tonight and with them went his plans for leading an all-collegiate team into the paid ranks of professionalism.

The great open field runner of the University of Pennsylvania announced that he had given up the idea of turning professional for this year at least.

Rogers's action came as a climax to a series of obstacles which he apparently found insurmountable. He encountered active opposition from influential alumni of Pennsylvania and from the ranks of professional football. He also found it difficult to obtain the signatures of players, most of whom were members of Pennsylvania's 1926 varsity and who Elwood Rigby, manager for Rogers, had assured him were anxious to join his team.

Under the pressure of college and family influence, the men who were said to have promised to play with Rogers today announced that they would not turn professional. These included Jack Butler, Richard Odirone, Joe Laird, Don Singer and Bob Pike. Then came a telegram from C. C. Pyle cancelling a game between the New York Yankees and Rogers' team which had been scheduled for next Sunday, and announcement by "Big Bill" Edwards, president of the American Football league, that such a game would be in violation of the organization's by-laws.

Rogers said this was the "last straw", but he added that it gave him a good excuse to quit.

MORAN NOT TO BE RETAINED AT BUCKNELL

LEWISBURG, Pa., Nov. 30—(AP)—B. W. Griffith, graduate manager of athletics of Bucknell university, announced that the athletic council and Charles B. Moran, head football coach had not received an agreement for a new contract. Moran's 3-year contract expired Saturday.

Griffith declined to state why the contract had not been renewed and Moran could not be located.

"Uncle Charley" Moran sprung into prominence at Center college several years ago. In his first year at Bucknell he developed one of the leading teams in the east, but his 1926 eleven did not measure up to the expectations of the fans.

CARROLL UNIV. TEAM HAD THREE BLIND PLAYERS

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 30 (AP)—Notre Dame had its "four horsemen"; Penn its "four magicians," and John Carroll university, boasted during the season just ended of its "three blind mice."

Pat McDonnell, playing in the back field and Bill Herzog and Dick Quinn, who held down the first positions at tackle were totally blind in the left eye.

McDonnell and Quinn inured their eyes in football games in previous years while Herzog's blindness grew out of eye strain during high school days.

Moeser Elected Tiger Captain

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 30—(AP)—Charles R. Moeser, of Cincinnati, Ohio, today was elected captain of the 1927 Princeton eleven. Moeser has been a member of the varsity for two years and played right end the past season.

Drake Gets Decision

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Billy Drake, who claims the championship of Germany for his weight, was awarded a decision in his ten round bout with Frankie Rice of Baltimore here last night. Drake weighed 143 pounds and Rice 139 1-2. Rice erroneously was announced the winner.

Although its written records come back more than a thousand years, it is only within the last few decades that skiing has won a place among the popular winter sports in northern Europe and in North America. Even in Norway, where skis have been used from earliest times, the sport was not organized until 1883, when the Norwegian Ski association came into existence.

SPORTING NOTES

Women's hockey clubs exist in nearly all cities and towns in Holland.

Tex Rickard has promoted nearly every heavyweight championship bout since the Johnson-Jeffries fight at Reno, Nev., in 1910.

One of Britain's greatest hockey clubs was the Irish club of Palmerston, which in six successive seasons lost only two matches of 160 played.

Lord Beaconsfield, England's famous novelist and statesman, is credited with having been the first to designate the Epsom Derby as the "Blue Ribbon of the Turf."

The gutta-percha golf ball did not come into use until the late 40s. Originally the balls were made of wood. Later, leather balls stuffed with feathers were introduced.

The general committee of the American Trapshooting association makes all the rules that govern trapshooting throughout the United States, Canada and the Canal Zone.

Trapshooting has been taken up in earnest by women members of the fashionable Nassau Country club, at Glen Cove, L. I., and a series of tournaments for the women shots will be held this winter.

Stud books, in connection with the breeding of race horses, are said to have originated in the mind of Joseph Butler, who about 160 years ago had charge of several famous racing stables in England.

"Tad" Jones, the Yale football coach plans to attend the game at Los Angeles on December 4 between the University of Southern California, of which his brother Howard is coach, and Knute Rockne's battlers from Notre Dame.

The four principal football games to be played by Columbia university next season will be with Cornell, Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Colgate, the last-named being a newcomer on the gridiron schedule of the Blue and White.

The International Skating union, which is to conduct the annual international skating championships at St. Moritz in early January, is an association of governing bodies of skating in many different countries. The organization came into existence in 1892.

ADMITS AUTHORSHIP OF "BANKERS' MANIFESTO"

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The authorship, which has been a secret, of the "Bankers' Manifesto," issued in many countries, including the United States on Oct. 19 last, was disclosed to night at a meeting of the "Economic circle of the National Liberal club."

Sir Charles Mallet, once financial secretary to the war office, announced that he had drafted the manifesto at the suggestion of the moving spirits, Henry Bell, one of the ablest bankers and economists in the city of London, and another veteran free-trader, Sir Hugh Bell, who asked him to "draw up something which, without displaying too aggressively the guile of the free-trade politician, would put the case for reopening European trade on the grounds of business, economics and common sense."

Big Poultry Exhibit

The world's largest poultry exhibition will be held at Ottawa, Canada July 27 to August 4, 1927. Since this is the first international exhibit of the kind to be held on this continent, United States department of agricultural poultry experts are making preparations to have America's chicken raising industry adequately represented. The world poultry fair is to be educational in character and open to the public. M. A. Jull, poultry expert of the department of agriculture, says an elaborate graphical representation with moving pictures will show the growth of the poultry business in this country from its earliest beginnings to the huge industry it has become. The United States, he says, leads other countries in poultry raising.

WESTERLY

GEORGE A. GOLDEN NOW PENSIONED BY RAILROAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 30.—When the east-bound Bay State and the west-bound New Yorker expresses, scheduled to leave the Westerly railroad station at 1:23 and 1:39, respectively, had departed this afternoon, George A. Golden had sold his last ticket for the New Haven railroad. Mr. Golden retires on a pension from the New Haven railroad after a continuous railroad service of 33 years, five months.

Mr. Golden will have occasion to recall many times his last official moments at the Westerly station for the occasion was taken by some 15 employes and habitues of the depot, headed by Baggage Master Edward W. Pitcher, with the most years of service about the Westerly station, to visit the office en mass. With them they carried as a token of remembrance a complete smoking outfit, consisting of electric lamp and standard, cigar lighter, stands for ash tray, cigars, etc., including a pipe. Mr. Golden was taken by surprise and as he rose to thank the donors, tears streamed from his eyes. Mr. Golden's successor, Reuben H. Austin, who advances from night to day ticket clerk, had been on hand to keep Mr. Golden from taking an early departure.

Frederick R. Wilcox, who has been a spare ticket man, now comes from the freight office to assume the duties of night ticket clerk. Robert Brundrett of the freight office is to be the spare ticket clerk. Frank E. Collins of Pawcatuck, who went to Mystic from Westerly in 1916, cashier in the Mystic freight office, on Dec. 1, begins his duties as an accountant at the Westerly freight office.

George A. Golden, who was born in Belchertown, Mass., at the early age of 23 years, went to New London, where in 1884 he entered the employ of the Central Vermont railroad. With a desire to begin railroading Mr. Golden had sought employment with the Boston & Albany road, but lack of experience was his handicap. For three or four years he worked as a brakeman on the C. V. road and began service in the baggage room of the New London station for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad on June 20, 1888, about the opening of the drawbridge. C. Fred Stoll was ticket agent at the time and George P. Smith the station master. He then went into the New London ticket office as night ticket clerk and was there for 16 years before coming to Westerly.

Coming to Westerly on Nov. 4, 1904, Mr. Golden took up his Westerly ticket duties and has been here continuously since, with no longer vacation than following an illness, he was off duty for 90 days and made a trip to California, about four years ago. When the new Westerly station of the New Haven railroad was open, Mr. Golden sold the first ticket to Boston through the new office window to Col. A. E. Dick, a Watch Hill visitor and the proprietor of the Watch Hill house.

As New Haven Trainmaster William J. Smith remarked to Mr. Golden, he has found that all kinds and classes of people come to the railroad, for their weddings, funerals and even births. In the New London office Mr. Golden reports that Harvard-Yale regatta day made the biggest business. In Westerly, he reports that Eclipse day was the biggest day ever had and he added "the smoothest day ever for handling crowds."

Mr. Golden now retires to his newly built bungalow on Courtland street in Pawcatuck, where he will seek to regain his health which has not been of the best. He does not contemplate any extended visits away from Westerly at this time.

From his late home, 14 Pond street, on Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock were held the funeral services of Michael DeBartelo, who was accidentally killed by the explosion of his shot gun Sunday morning while on a hunting expedition in the woods of North Stonington. A solemn high mass of requiem was sung at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, with Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M., celebrant, Rev. J. P. Cassagne, S. M., deacon, and Rev. Lawrence Fahy, S. M., sub-deacon. Following the mass, Martin H. Spellman sang Face to Face.

The services at the church were attended by a host of relatives and friends of the young man and the cortege which escorted his body to St. Michael's new cemetery was the longest ever seen here, there being over 100 cars in the line. Among the friends present was a delegation from Narragansett council, No. 21, K. of C., of which he was a member.

Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M., conducted the committal services at the grave and the bearers were six cousins of the deceased: Louis DeBartolo, Anthony DeBartolo, Samuel DeBartolo, Frank DeBartolo and Louis DeBernarde.

Deborah chapter, No. 9, Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. Agnes M. York, worthy matron, held a regular session on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Masonic rooms on High street. A business session was followed by an initiation and the serving of refreshments. Past Matron Mrs. Nora Fowler was the chairman of the committee of arrangements.

The society page of Tuesday morning's New York Herald Tribune has the following of interest to Westerly readers:

The engagement is announced of Miss Kathryn Cottrell, daughter of Mrs. C. Byron Cottrell and the late Mr. Cottrell, of Westerly, R. I., to Mr. Randolph Ellsworth Chandler, of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Henry Chandler of Thompson, Conn.

Miss Cottrell, whose father was secretary of the C. B. Cottrell & Sons Co., printing press manufacturers of Westerly, R. I., attended the Masters' school, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., after which she spent a year of study abroad.

Mr. Chandler during the war was vice consul in charge at Montreal, Canada, and is now associated with Calloway, Fish & Co., of New York. His clubs are the Montreal Hunt, Royal St. Lawrence Yacht, Yale and Hartford. He is a life member of the New England Society and the Sons of the Revolution.

When in Westerly Miss Cottrell resides with her mother at 18 Elm street.

From Washington, D. C., there is the following note: Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry will be at home Thursday afternoon, Dec. 9, for the first time this season, receiving at her residence, 2132 R street, from 4 to 6 p. m.

During the last Rhode Island preelection campaign for state officers and members of congress from the three R. I. districts, at the time of the democratic rally held in the Westerly town hall on Tuesday evening, Oct. 26, R. I. United States Senator Peter G. Gerry arrived late and accompanied by his wife, who was formerly Edith Stuyvesant Vanderbilt, passed through the audience, both taking seats on the platform with other campaign speakers.

Announcement of the New York debut on Dec. 27 of Miss Ottilie M. Schreiber, daughter of Otto A. and Elisabeth M. Davis Schreiber of New York and Watch Hill, R. I., is also made.

On Saturday, Sept. 5, 1925, Miss Ottilie Schreiber was the maid of honor at the Watch Hill Union Memorial chapel wedding of her sister, Miss Elise Wendall Schreiber, who was married by Dr. Edward S. Travers, D. D., of St. Peter's Episcopal church to John William Moore Robbins of Yale, Sheffield, class of 1924, and manager of the 1924 Olympic team, and who made their home at Ardsley park.

The reception was held at the Watch Hill cottage, Samoset, on Little Narragansett bay, but during the 1926 Watch Hill summer season the Schreiber family resided at their cottage, Pinecroft, Ninigret avenue.

Judge William A. Wilcox was a Pawcatuck business visitor in Stonington borough on Tuesday morning.

Miss Betty Lena returned on Monday night to New Haven to resume her studies at the Arnold School of Physical Training, after being the Thanksgiving recess guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lena, in Pawcatuck.

J. F. Conway of Baltic was a visitor with Westerly business associates on Monday.

Robert Hazard of the Westerly post office was confined to his Pawcatuck home on Monday by reason of an injury received to one of his eyes.

James E. Hodgson of White Rock returned home the past week end after a several days' visit with friends out of town.

Probate Judge Frank H. Hinckley of Stonington on Tuesday afternoon held the Pawcatuck session of court in the probate court rooms in the Walton block on West Broad street.

Randall B. Smith of Echo farm, Road district, was a caller in Westerly on Monday afternoon.

Can You Draw A Picture of Quality?

Someone asked us the other day why we didn't write an advertisement on the fine quality of our products, and draw a picture of quality.

"How would you illustrate quality?" we asked.

That ended the discussion. We may not be able to draw a pen and ink illustration of quality, but we have been making illustrations of quality products for ninety years for our customers.

Listen to the appeals that manufacturers of inferior products place before us and then listen to our refusal to stock nothing but the best obtainable and you have an illustration of quality.

For years, we have jealously guarded the enviable position we hold. Hundreds of families in and about Norwich bear enthusiastic testimony to the fact that our products furnish that indescribable quality not found in inferior products.

We like to deal with people who are exacting in their coal and lumber requirements. Then we have a better opportunity to show illustrations of quality

During the last week of the month three permits were granted by Fire Marshal Stanton including one for a stone and concrete building at 34 Washington street. The permits issued are as follows:

To William P. Church to extend a storm porch on the present frame house owned by Andrew Jackson at 5 Clay avenue. The porch will be 5x7 feet and of frame construction.

To P. F. Sweeney, contractor, to alter and change the interior and front of the store at the corner of Franklin and Main streets for Mrs. Emma Welte. The present front will be removed and replaced with plate glass set in copper. The building will be reinforced by steel girders. The interior will be refinished with tile floor and hard plaster walls. A metal ceiling will also be installed. The approximate size of the store when completed will be 26x30.

To John Pasqualini to erect a new building in the rear of 34 Washington street. The new building will be stone, brick and concrete construction and will be 36x45 feet and one story. There will be steel sash windows every two feet. The roof will be of asphalt composition roofing paper.

Westerly

Construction work on the electric light and power office building being erected at 45 High street for the South County Public Service company has progressed to the point that the cornice of the south and north walls is being placed in position this week and a section on each side of the High street front wall. Steel arches for the support of the roof above this point are already in place.

At the Nardone block, corner of Canal and High streets, the brick side walls have reached a point on the third story, steel girders having been laid on the Canal street side for the support of the third floor.

For the fourth week in November, 1926, Westerly Zoning Building Inspector Louis J. Rossi has issued the following permits.

Nov. 22. Nunzia Finizio, Potter Hill. Two-car garage, 20x16 at the junction of Nooseneck Hill state road and Red Stone Quarry road.

Nov. 23 Florence Collings, 13 Spruce street. Alteration and addition to present dwelling house at 13 Spruce street on the north side of the house and addition to the second floor for extra room.

Nov. 23. Lennihan and O'Connell Company, 30 Oak street. Three-car garage, 24x30 on Oak street.

Nov. 23. South County Public Service company. Gas holder, 93 feet in diameter and 109 feet high when extended on the north side of Industrial drive.

Nov. 24. James Collins, 67 High street. Storage garage, five hundred feet north of Atlantic avenue at Pleasant View beach.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were five sales of real estate as compared to 18 sales for the corresponding week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $3,936 and $23,870.

There were 11 sales of real estate in New London during the past week, two more sales than during the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for respective weeks were $67,500 and $32,847.

Building Permits in State

The total number of permits issued during the past week in the sections of Connecticut covered by the Commercial Record numbered 303, comparing with 343 permits issued in the like week of last year and 258 in 1924. The total estimated cost of new construction was $1,006,005 for this year, $1,400,149 in the corresponding week of 1925 and $1,838,625 in 1924.

Building Costs

Wage scales of building craftsmen throughout the country are generally holding firm and there is no indication of any immediate widespread downward revision of rates, according to a national survey of labor conditions in the building industry just completed by the building economic research bureau of the American Bond and Mortgage company. Building labor conditions are summarized as follows: 1. Rising tendency in labor costs seems to be stopped for the present at least. 2. Building crafts plan to maintain wages and working conditions attained during the building prosperity period. 3. Common labor plentiful and supply of skilled craftsmen adequate. 4. Bonus payments and practice of contractors bidding against each other for men have practically disappeared. 5. Labor fairly tranquil and little interference to building operations from strikes expected this winter. 6. Building unions with largest membership in history plan renewal of campaign for five-day week. 7. Definite progress being made by labor officials in eliminating jurisdictional strikes.

New London

Indications of a building boom are seen in the 26 permits for 34 individual constructions granted by the council this week. With the permits previously granted this month the total to date is brought up to 75 permits issued, which already exceeds the high monthly record established last month when 64 permits were issued.

Of particular significance in the permits granted this week is that nine of them are for new dwellings, including eight cottages and one three-family house. The permits for new dwellings issued this month have now reached a total of 19.

A decided spurt in the construction of garages is indicated in the list of permits issued. Previous to this week the council had issued permits for 35 garages and the permits this week brought the total for the month up to 41, or more than half of the permits issued during the month.

Jensen and Olsen have broken ground for a new cottage of frame construction in Gardner avenue. The new structure will be 24 by 26 feet, and will be equipped with all modern improvements.

A screen on which are projected fleeting colors may become an essential part of a symphony orchestra concert in the future, if a device demonstrated at the meeting of the Association of German Natural Scientists and Physicians in Duesseldorf by Alexander Lassio, a musical composer of Munich, comes into general use. Previous attempts to correlate color with sound and to produce a visual form of music have been made by the French composer Scriabine and others but, it was stated, it is scientifically impossible to follow any relation between the wave lengths of light, which determine color, and of sound, which determine pitch. However, it can be done by correlating the light effects with the individuality of the composer. The Lassio apparatus was made by a large optical firm in Dresden, and makes use of six separate projectors, which operate in conjunction with a piano.

DEATH OF MRS. HARRIET ALLYN, 86, ONE OF NEW LONDON'S BENEFACTORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 30—Harriet Upson Allyn, 86, widow of James Allyn, died this morning about 1.45 o'clock at her home, 612, Williams street after an illness of nearly four years, resulting from infirmities of age. Mrs. Allyn was born in New London, March 3, 1840, the youngest child of Lyman Allyn, who was born in Montville and Emma Turner, born in New London. Mrs. Allyn's father was the eighth generation from Robert Allyn, who settled at Allyn's point. Lyman Allyn was born in 1797 and retired in 1852 to make his home until his death in 1874 in the house where Mrs. Allyn died. The house was already built when he bought it, and the place was called the Deshon farm.

Capt. Lyman Allyn had five daughters and one son, John Turner Allyn, all of whom died many years ago. His daughter, Mary, who married Harvey Seymour of Hartford, and later Mr. Henry of Princeton, N. J., left bequests to New London. Mrs. Harriet U. Allyn was born in New London, on Main street, where the Learned Mission is now located and in 1852 moved with her parents to her home on Williams street. In 1889 she married James Allyn, who lived on Raymond hill in Montville. He had retired from active business and after his marriage lived in his wife's home in New London. He died in 1893. Mrs. Allyn lived her entire life in New London with the exception of many long trips through this country and in Europe of this city. She was a sister-in-law Lucretia L. Allyn, lived with her for many years.

Mrs. Allyn had a remarkable memory, a keen business sagacity, remarkable dignity of bearing and had great generosity. From her girlhood she has been a member of St. James Episcopal church and has been liberal in its support and was much interested in the Joseph Lawrence Free Public hospital, giving large sums there. It was through her gift of a valuable tract of land on the northern portion of New London that the Connecticut College for Women had its inception.

Mrs. Allyn took an active interest in the affairs of the nation, state and city.

She was never made a voter but took a deep interest in politics and favored the democratic party, of which her father had been a member.

Mrs. Allyn is survived by two cousins, Rev. Horace S. Allyn, who lives in Georgia, and Mrs. Frances U. Lockhart of Manchester, N. H., also her sister-in-law, Mrs. Lucretia L. Allyn of this city. She wa sa sister-in-laws of the late Calvin Allyn of West Thames street, Norwich..

FAILURE TO CONVICT IN HOWARD ST. CASES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 30—There was a brawl in Howard street the evening before Thanksgiving day, when one man was cut in the stomach and another was hit in the eye with a baseball bat, but the participants in the scrimmage and murderous attack that followed have escaped punishment. The prosecutor announced when the testimony was given compelled him to the belief that he could not convict the accused that some of the witnesses were lying. At the time of the trouble it was represented that Adolph Frausini was the assailant. This morning that story was not adhered to by the man who was walloped over the face with a bat, nor was there any accusations by the man who was stabbed in the abdomen, Albert Iverson, that the man who cut him was known. Thomas Lusk was with Iverson when the row occurred. They saw a scrimmage occurring on Howard street and crossed to ascertain what the trouble was. Then the striking and cutting occurred. William Geise was the man who received a blow that might have resulted in a home run if wielded on the ball field. He was laid out, but he said he did not become unconscious and immediately got on his feet again. He said today that he believed it was one Margini who struck him. Margini cannot be found With Margini accused and the statement made that Frausini was innocent, the court had no course open except to allow a nolle.

Augusta Viscione, residing on Howard street and at whose house the men had been, was arrested for having liquor in her possession ostensibly for sale, but it turned out that the liquor was found outside her home with the inference that it was placed beneath the veranda of the house by parties outside. That case also fell down. The liquor was ordered destroyed.

Stonell Walter, a youth employed on the tugboat William G. Howard, admitted in court that he was a thief and that he stole a suit of clothes from a member of the crew. The suit was valued at $75. Walter attempted to sell the clothing to a dealer, but was unsuccessful. When the clothing was missed the master of the tug and others aboard the vessel set out to find Walter and to recover the stolen property. They succeeded, too. Walter then returned the stolen goods. He is in bad shape physically so he was allowed to get out of town and Probation Officer Mansfield was delegated to see that he should leave this section.

Tom Entee, a youth found drunk at the railway station was allowed to get to Saybrook where he said he had employment.

TWO MORE LIENS ARE FILED AGAINST THEATRE CORP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 30—Two more mechanic liens were levied against the 325 State street corporation owners of the Garde theatre, today. The F. H. & A. H. Chappell Co., caused the liens to be filed at the office of City Clerk Julian D Moran. The liens are for material furnished the theatre corporation for the construction of the theatre and aggregate an amount of $5 016 62. The liens are only two of about a score of claims that have been filed against the corporation and the aggregate sum represented as being owed for labor and material furnished is about $100,000.

Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh is absent from his post, corner of Bank and Howard street, being confined to his home on Shaw street, by illness.

Mrs. Dennis McEwen, of 58 Washington street, detected a man fumbling at a rear window of her home shortly after last midnight and reported the fact at the police station. Patrolman William Riordan was sent to the house but when he arrived the crook had disappeared, evidently having been scared away. Officer Riordan found the window raised and Mrs. McEwen is positive that it was closed during the early evening, but is not positive whether it was locked.

William R. Golding has sold a house and a lot, corner of Ocean avenue and Henry street, to Jennie Wolfe.

At Middletown Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock the new Rosemary C. Anderson home at Long Lane farm was officially dedicated. Governor John H. Trumbull, members of the board of directors and many officials about the state, attended the dedication, which was followed by an inspection of the plant.

The new building was authorized at the last session of the legislature and is named in honor of Mrs. Rosemary C. Anderson of New London, the first woman to be named to the directorate of the institution. Declaring that the naming of the new cottage at the Long Lane Farm for Women, in her honor, "was the greatest honor which has or ever will be conferred" on her and pledging herself to "be worthy of the honor as long as I live and can serve the farm and the state," Miss Anderson told of her gratitude to those who had been responsible for her appointment to the board and to Marcus H. Holcomb, the then governor, who appointed her, in her address at the dedication of the new cottage.

Following the formal acceptance of the new building by the governor in behalf of the state, and his expressed hope that the Rosemary C. Anderson home may be the forerunner of other permanent additions to the farm. Miss Caroline DeF. Penniman, the superintendent, announced that she would ask the 1927 general assembly to appropriate $574,280 for the farm, including $195,000 for four new construction projects.

The exercises included school songs and cheers by the girls, selections by the school glee club, with visiting graduates and trustees present, and a tea.

Miss Penniman and her assistant, Miss Mary Anne Tuthill, were praised by Mrs. Anderson. During her speech, Mrs. Anderson had a corsage bouquet given her by the girls who are to live in Rosemary C. Anderson hall, and at the conclusion of her speech received a large bunch of yellow chrysanthemums from members of her family.

The guests were escorted through the new building by Miss Penniman and members of the board of directors and staff. The first floor at one end contains a large living room, furnished in mission style, with a fireplace, and at the other the dining room and kitchen. Also on the first floor are a small laundry, rooms for four girls, a bath for the girls, and a room and bath for the housekeeper. The second floor has 16 rooms for girls, with a bath for them, and three rooms for members of the staff, with a bath for them. In the basement is what is designed a rough recreation room for use in rainy weather, a vegetable cellar, coal cellar and shower baths. The shower baths are designed primarily for the use of the girls who will do farm work during the summer and a separate entrance to the cellar has been provided so they will be able to come directly from the fields to the shower room without passing through the upper part of the house.

Mrs. Anderson received a number of telegrams during Saturday. The following message was from Sophia Irene Loed of New York magazine writer, lecturer and president of the Child Welfare association of America:

"It is most worthy indeed that recognition of your splendid work is made in dedication today. Sorry I am not to be with you."

Another from Ellen and Gaston Platiff, of Forest Hill, N. Y., read:

"Thinking of you and extend all greetings at this auspicious event. Love."

From Ruth A. Knott of New York city came the telegram:

"Sorry not to to be with you. Kindest thoughts and love."

On the bouquet of roses from the girls at the farm was a card which read:

"With love to our Mrs. Anderson from every one on Long Lane Farm."

SCOUTS JOIN IN SEARCH FOR LANTERN HILL MAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 30—Local Scout Master F. E. Burdick today made it possible for the assigning of Boy Scouts to scour the wooded section of Lantern Hill in an effort to find Wayle Vaughn, 65 who has been missing since Thanksgiving day, for it is believed that the aged man has either perished in the woods or else in a helpless condition from exhaustion Scoutmaster Burdick received a request for aid from residents at Lantern Hill, near Salem, and he communicated with Postmaster William Holloway in charge of Troop 15, Mystic with the result that this afternoon over a score of scouts started the search for Vaughn, who is mentally deficient, although harmless. Vaughn, who disappeared from the residence of Daniel Whipple, has strayed away from home before, but always was located a day or two after his disappearance.

That the United States Coast Guard officers, local section base, No. 4, state pier, intend to exercise their best efforts in obtaining an improvement in the deportment and decorum of the sailors, was evidenced tonight when a detachment of 15 officers and men were assigned to patrol the streets and see to it that the behavior of the coast guarders was all that it should be. A lieutenant was in charge of the patrol force and he had for his subordinates, two chief petty officers and 13 sailors. The sailors patroled the streets in pairs and their greatest attention was in the central part of the city and in that part of the negro blank belt. It is understood that the officials at the pier have made it known that the patrol force will be kept on duty nightly, the patrol reporting on and off duty at police headquarters. Although today was pay day in the coast guard service, there was no serious outbreaks of disturbance.

Carl Brown, colored, of Ledyard, where he is employed as a wood-chopper, was arrested last night by state police, Groton barracks, charged with breach of the peace and upon complaints of residents of Ledyard. Brown was locked up for the night at Groton, but today he furnished a surety on his bond for his presentation in a justice court at Ledyard the latter part of this week.

Steam freighter Suelco, bound from Boston to the west coast with a miscellaneous cargo, is berthed at the state pier because of boiler trouble. The Suelco put into port during last night and will remain here several days and until the repairs have been completed. The freighter carries a crew of 38 men

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Emeline A. Opperman, daughter of Patrolman and Mrs. Ernest C. Opperman, 32 Starr street, to James S. Heeren, son of Mrs. Anna Heeren, Great Bend, Kansas.

Arthur Perry, Waterford, and Miss Evelyn Tucker, of Golden Spur, Waterford, were married yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace J. James Floyd Mr. and Mrs. Perry will reside at the Golden Spur.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Sullivan of Hillside road, are in Boston, to which city they have been called by the death of Mrs Sullivan's brother, Frederick C. Henderson. Mr. Henderson was well known in New London and frequently visited his sister here.

The condition of Mrs. Margaret McGuire, who has been critically ill of pneumonia at her home on Wall street is improved to such an extent that she is able to exercise daily. Mrs. McGuire is mother of Attorney Frank L. McGuire.

Mrs. Harry Salomon, Pearl street, has returned home after having spent a week with relatives in Boston.

Frank J. Cullen, warrant officer, U. S. A., who has been a patient three years at Walter Reed hospital, Washington, D. C., has been discharged and is now at his home, Connecticut avenue.

Mrs. Fannie Parke has moved from 63 School street, Groton, to 116 Hempstead street.

Mr and Mrs Raymond Getchell have returned to their home on Morse avenue, Groton, concluding several days' stay in Philadelphia.

Patrolman Braxton Hill, who is having his vacation has returned to his home on Bank street, having spent a week in Canadian cities.

After one of the most important and spectacular political campaigns in the annals of Canada, the election of a new legislature will be held in Ontario today with prohibition as the chief issue. The result is regarded as of great importance because of the effect it is likely to have on the other provinces where the liquor question is a live issue.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lecture in Slater Hall

All who are interested in young people should attend the lecture by Angelo Patri in Slater Hall Friday evening. Mr. Patri, whose articles on child training are daily published in dozens of newspapers throughout the country, is one of the most widely known school men in America. He is the author of numerous magazine articles and of several books. Among the best known of the latter are: The School That Everybody Wants, and a School Master of the Great City.

Strand Theatre

The grand feature of the new program that opens a three-day engagement at the Strand theatre is one of the finest Keith-Albee acts on the vaudeville stage. These are Joe Small's seven stylish steppers. It is a glittering galaxy of gay goddesses, gorgeously gowned. Rulers in the realm of entertainment, songs and roly poly dances of pep, dash and originality.

There will be, of course, with this grand feature, four other Keith-Albee acts, each in themselves another feature.

Also a photoplay that will have its first Connecticut showing. More about it in tomorrow's paper.

Palace Theatre

Today is your last opportunity to see "We're in the Navy Now" which has been thrilling large audiences at the Palace theatre at every showing. Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, the two inseparable comics by far have eclipsed their splendid achievement in Behind the Front. This pair just stumble into a boatload of laughs and shrieks in their new sea-going comedy vehicle. This is their second attempt to depict the war's sunny side, and they have made themselves more popular for their splendid action. This amazing, rollicking comedy has broken all attendance records in Norwich, just as it has been doing all over the country, and if you haven't seen it yet, today is positively the picture's last showings, and you won't regret seeing it. The Palace theatre has received numerous favorable comments on bringing this success to Norwich, and this is the start of a series of the latest and biggest photoplay presentations that is coming soon to the Palace theatre. On Thursday another great vaudeville program will be offered. The management guarantees another great show, five big select acts, bigger and better than last week's will be shown, in addition to one of the latest pictures, The Grand Duchess and the Waiter with Adolph Menjou and Florence Vidor.

Bird Lecture at Slater Hall

It is a comparatively easy matter to attract all of our song birds around your home on account of the trees, grass and shrubs and the natural beauty of the grounds. Our song birds (insectivorous birds) are a real asset and should be protected from an economical standpoint, aside from their beauty and song; as they will protect trees, green shrubs and gardens from insect pests.

The value of our song birds to man is based principally on their feeding habits. Their greatest help is through their activity in eating harmful insects, their eggs and larvae. Without this constant aid we would be powerless to protect our trees and crops from the ravages of caterpillars, beetles, borers and such creatures. You can't spray forest trees, therefore, the song birds (insectivorous birds) are their only protectors. The purple martin is the most valuable of all of our insectivorous birds. It is so preeminently aerial that its food necessarily consists of flying insects.

Among these may be some of the dreaded Stegomyia. It is a well established fact that this and other species of mosquitoes convey both malarial and yellow fever. Human lives are sacrificed every year; immense sums of money are expended for investigations and prevention of yellow fever and other malaria fever plagues. Every mosquito, therefore, that is destroyed by a martin lessens so much the chance of the spread of these plagues. One purple martin will catch and consume on an average of 2,000 mosquitoes a day, besides other annoying insects, such as flies, gnats, etc., and with a colony of these wonderful birds there will not be a mosquito in your vicinity. And if there is anything in the world that represents home life, it is a colony of purple martins. Contentment, happiness, prosperity is here and the cheerful social twitter of the martins and their industrious habits are a continual sermon from the air to their brothers of the earth. So those who love the martin for this cheery social nature and his inestimable worth should do something at once to educate those who do not appreciate this valuable bird. Hear more about the birds at Slater hall tonight.

Municipal Morticians

TOKYO, Nov. 30 (AP)—In order to halt profiteering in funerals, Tokyo has established a municipal undertaking business with rates considerably lower than those of private corporations. Low rates on motor cars also have been fixed.

Norwich Produce Market

With the stormy weather, market conditions are quiet with little produce offered and the demand weak. Apples continue plenty, particularly the poorer grades, and all grades, including westerns, sell slowly. Cranberries are steady and oranges, while offered more freely and are a little easier, as yet there is not much change in prices.

Poultry of all kinds appears to be plenty and is easy. Eggs are also more plentiful and the market is rather easy with prices holding practically unchanged. Butter continues firm and hard steady.

Dressed meats and grains of all kinds remain steady with no changes in prices.

WOMEN ADOPT STANDARD COLLEGE ATHLETIC GARB

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 30 (AP)—Styles in athletic garb for undergraduates in Connecticut college for women are going to stay "put" hereafter and not change at the whim of the students themselves.

The freshman's costume is a "hockey tunic." Succeeding classes will use it and until each in turn arrives at the dignity of senior rank. The tunic is navy blue with white blouse, the instructors wearing black in contrast. The chief points in the costume are that they are neat, tailored and comfortable.

Makes Hair Behave But Doesn't Show!

There's a way to keep your hair just so, without any of that objectionable, "plastered-down" look. Just use a few drops of Danderine—comb it through hair, or use a Danderine-dampened towel—you'll be amazed at the way your hair then behaves, and its beautiful lustre!

Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff! Dissolves every bit of it. Puts scalp in the pink of condition. Invigorates hair and hair-roots. Why use anything else?

Ask Your Druggist

Get a bottle of Danderine and start its benefits today. Every druggist in America has it, for only 35c. For the finest dressing you could find, and the best aid to hair health yet discovered, just try—

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
New York

Stocks steady. South Porto Rico Sugar jumps to new high.

Bonds irregular, New Belgian 7s at record high.

Foreign exchanges mixed, French francs lower.

Cotton barely steady, southern selling.

Sugar higher, reduced European crop estimate.

Coffee weak, disappointing Brazilian markets.

Chicago

Wheat easy, weak Winnipeg.

Corn steady, continued light receipts.

Cattle irregular.

Hogs active and higher.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment imparted considerable irregularity to today's stock market. Trading appeared to be confined largely to professional operators, with "bears" forcing a few issues to new low levels for the year while "bulls" bid up others to record high prices. The volume of business showed a sharp reduction.

Call money renewed at 5 1-4 per cent and then advanced to 5 1-2 as banks called between $35,000,000 and $30,000,000 in loans. This was regarded, however, as the usual month-end shifting of funds, as there were no indications of a change in time money and commercial paper rates. However, commission houses reported that the high charge on day to day loans had a tendency to keep speculative operations for the rise in check, and probably encouraged some short selling.

U. S. Steel common, Baldwin, General Motors, American Can and most of the other standard industrials showed only mixed fractional changes on the day, although some of them fluctuated within a range of several points.

Sugar shares responded to the higher commodity prices under the leadership of South Porto Rican, which jumped nearly 9 points to a new record high at 156 3-4 and then yielded 2 points on realizing. American Sugar Refining preferred crossed 110 to a new top, and new peak prices also were registered by Vivadou common and preferred, Bayuk Cigar, Phillips Petroleum, American Home Products, American Can, preferred, Columbia Gas (new) and Bloomingdale Bros., the last-named responding to reports of large current earnings and prospects of record-breaking holiday trade.

Resumption of the upward [illegible] in Eureka Vacuum which touched a new high at 61 coincided with the announcement that the company was manufacturing 1300 machines a day, a new high record. A jump of 12 points in Porto Rican Tobacco and the establishment of a new high in Congress Cigar was associated with rumors concerning a possible merger of those companies.

Texas & Pacific Land Trust engaged in another of its sensational movements by jumping 110 points to a new record high at 1195. Sharp gains also were recorded by Commercial Solvents B, Congoleum, Ward Baking B and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, on the other hand, new low records were recorded by Peerless Motors, Goodrich Rubber, Pathe Exchange, Savage Arms, American Snuff preferred, Real Silk Hosiery and advance Remely preferred.

Rails failed to make much response to the announcement that the first 70 class 1 roads to report showed combined net operating income nearly 5 per cent. above the same month last year, and 2.40 per cent. above September. Rock Island 7 per cent preferred touched a new high. Rock Island directors meet here tomorrow and are expected to place the common stock on a $5 annual basis.

In the commodity markets raw sugar advanced 1-8 of a cent a pound, but wheat, cotton, sugar and coffee futures lost ground.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. Demand sterling ruled steady just below $4.84 1-2 and French francs were back to around 3.62 1-2 cents. Italian lire sold just under 4 1-4 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Plans are practically completed for the annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church which is to be held next week. The various parish societies are to have charge of the booths at the fair and the Dramatic club is to present a three act comedy on one night and a minstrel show on the second night. In former years the fair was held for three nights, the last night a dance being held, but for the past few years the dancing has been discontinued.

Lucien Breault of South A street has resigned his position with the weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Theodore Snow of Springfield, Mass., is spending some time at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Snow of Hunters avenue.

COUNTY HOME CHILDREN ENTERTAINED AT PALACE

Fifty children of the county home were entertained at the Palace theatre Tuesday afternoon, being guests of the management, in witnessing one of the funniest comedies ever produced for the screen "We're in the Navy Now." The funny antics by the inimitable stars, Wally Beery and Raymond Hatton, continually kept the youngsters humorous and happy all the afternoon. It was a great treat for them, and by their broad grins of expressions on leaving the playhouse, it was very evident, they had enjoyed themselves immensely.

RECEIVERSHIP AND FORECLOSURE ASKED ON 90 ACRE LEBANON FARM

Appointment of a receiver to take care of the mortgaged premises and foreclosure of a mortgage for $43,000 on two pieces of property at Leonard's Bridge in the town of Lebanon are sought in a suit brought by Sherman P. Woodward of Bethany, this state, and Morris Gold of New Haven against Solomon Liebman of New Haven and others. There are about 90 acres in the two tracts.

The mortgage was given to secure two notes given on Jan. 30, 1926 by Solomon Liebman, one for $23,000 to Woodward, and the other for $19,000 to Gold, with the provision, according to the complaint, that the principal of the notes should become due immediately if the interest should remain unpaid and in arrears for fifteen days after payment of interest became due.

It is alleged that Solomon Liebman failed to pay the interest that fell due on Aug. 1, 1926 and has failed to pay upon demand the principal of the two notes with interest from Jan. 30, 1926. It is further claimed that $966.48 in taxes on the list of 1925 is unpaid with interest from May 1, 1926.

Hyman Liebman, Louis Liebman and Barnet Liebman, all of New Haven, are made party defendants as holding a lease on the premises which accrued after the plaintiffs' mortgage, and the Broadway Bank and Trust Co. of New Haven is made a party defendant as holding a mortgage for $17,900, which accrued after the plaintiffs' mortgage.

The suit is returnable in December.

O'CONNELL IS HELD IN JAIL IN NEW HAVEN

Edward O'Connell, 25, who was arrested in this city Friday for the Waterbury authorities, is in the county jail at New Haven, on failure to give bail for $1,000 for release in the charges of illegal voting against him. His case was continued to the January term of the superior court to Waterbury.

O'Connell was arrested on a warrant issued in Waterbury on Jan. 27. The warrant, signed by State's Attorney Lawrence L. Lewis and Clerk George H. Freeman of superior court, charged that O'Connell voted in Waterbury on Oct. 5, 1925, under the assumed name of Charles E. Shea, who was a registered and qualified voter.

County Detective Roland Alling brought O'Connell to Waterbury Saturday morning from this city. Superior court was not in session. In default of a $1,000 bond, the prisoner was returned by Sheriff Gray to the county jail at New Haven to await the next term.

O'Connell is quoted as denying that he had ever been in Waterbury. His home is in Lawrence, Mass., he said. Police say he has been working around in restaurants and living in a rooming house.

After his arrest, O'Connell is said to have asked the Norwich police to call up ex-Mayor William H. Sandland in Waterbury, stating that he knew Mr. Sandland's son in the army.

OLDEST STATION AGENT DIES AT UNIONVILLE

After 52 years of service as a station agent of the New Haven road, and known as a fearless defender of the railroad's property by reason of his shooting a burglar at the station some time ago, Albert A. Burnham died at his home on Burnham avenue, Unionville, Sunday afternoon at the age of 73. He is believed to have been the oldest agent of the company in point of service. His death followed an illness of several months.

Mr. Burnham received praise for his bravery some years ago when alone he routed several burglars who broke into the station. The agent shot and killed one of them and put the others to flight.

Mr. Burnham's first post was at the East Wallingford station, then at Cobalt and since 1882 at Unionville station. He was born in East Haddam, Dec. 31, 1854, the son of David and Elvira Burnham. In 1871 he entered the employ of Lyman, Munson & Edward incorporated, who built the Air Line railroad from New Haven to Willimantic. Three years later he went to work for the New Haven road.

On June 3, 1879, he married Emily E. Brown of Middle Haddam. He leaves his wife and three children.

SPECIAL DELIVERY MAIL FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES

are intended by the senders for special delivery is in forc. and which, though insufficiently prepaid, are prepaid at least 20 cents, whenever they cannot be returned to the senders for the deficient postage without serious delay, are to be dispatched onward to their destination where the amount of postage due will be collected. If the articles are not prepaid to the extent of 20 cents they will be forwarded as ordinary mail matter. The new regulation was announced by the postal department at Washington.

It was also announced that effective today (Wednesday), the contract air mail route, Philadelphia to Norfolk, Va., via Washington, will be temporarily discontinued.

Effective December 1, articles in the regular mails addressed for delivery in Poland, will be given the benefit of special delivery service when prepaid 20 cents in addition to the regular postage, by United States special delivery or other stamps affixed to each article.

BREACH OF PEACE CASES IN CITY COURT

The proprietor of a lunch wagon and a local druggist were in the city court Tuesday morning on charges of breach of the peace following a personal encounter over the parking of an automobile at the foot of Rose alley. A nolle was entered by Judge A. F. Libby in the case of the druggist, but a fine of $25 was imposed upon the lunch cart proprietor, suspended for a year.

A local white man, 28 years old, appeared before Judge Arthur F. Libby on a charge of breach of the peace. He was arrested Monday night after he had an argument with two colored young men and another white man on Main street. Accused objected to one of the colored boys talking to two white girls and threatened to beat him up if he caught him talking to a white girl again. His case was continued for six months, and he was informed by Judge Libby that it would be well for him to mind his own business.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR STATE COMMERCE CHAMBER

Willis A. Staubus, formerly secretary of the Post Chester (N. Y.) chamber of commerce, has joined the Connecticut state chamber as assistant secretary.

Mr. Staubus fills the position made vacant last summer when the directors elected Clark Belden, secretary to succeed George B. Chandler, who is now secretary of the Ohio chamber of commerce.

Mr Staubus graduated from the high school at Chandler, Oklahoma, and later from Drury college, Springfield, Mo., Union seminary and Columbia university, New York city.

Before becoming secretary of the Port Chester chamber of commerce, he was assistant secretary of the Elizabeth, N. J., chamber of commerce. He has had experience in public speaking, as well as in organization work.

The Fort Point school in Preston, with Miss Louise Mysench, teacher, reached the hundred per cent attendance mark during the month of November.

NEW ENGLAND INVADED BY NORTHERN HAWKS AND OWLS

Arthur L. Clark, secretary of the committee on the ruffed grouse investigation for New England has sent out a warning about the unusual way hawks and owls are invading New England and the menace they are to game birds and rabbits.

His notice says:

New England is being visited by a tremendous flight of hawks, owls and other predacious animals driven from the north by a scarcity of food. The only important food supply available here during the winter is rabbits and game birds. These are likely to be very seriously depleted in numbers by this great migration of predacious birds in search of food. Their activities will have an important bearing on the ruffed grouse situation. The New England ruffed grouse investigation is prepared to collect and correlate all available facts regarding the effects of these birds on our native game in New England and eastern Canada. Sportsmen and all others who may kill large hawks or owls are earnestly requested to save the specimens or at least remove the intestines, particularly the crop and stomach, sprinkle them liberally with salt and send them by mail at once to Dr. Alfred O. Gross, Bowdoin college, Brunswick, Maine. It is of the greatest importance to know exactly what proportion of the food of these birds consists of natural games, birds and rabbits. Stomachs and intestines of bobcats which are also working southward in large numbers, or any other wild cats are also desired for study. Please send specimens and records to Dr. Alfred O. Gross, Bowdoin college, Brunswick, Me.

SUPT. CRAWFORD TO GO TO KALAMAZOO POSITION

W. A. Crawford, for the past six months superintendent of the Tidewater Paperboard company of this city, has resigned his position to accept a position as superintendent of the Standard Paper company of Kalamazoo, Mich. Mr. Crawford's resignation is effective December 15th. On learning of their superintendent's intention to leave Norwich, the Tidewater employes presented him a farewell gift in the shape of a handsome traveling bag and a set of military brushes. Mr. Crawford came here from Canada six months ago to assume the superintendency of the local plant when it was reopened after a shutdown of some time.

It is expected that Roy Cameron, who came here with Mr. Crawford, will be the new superintendent of the plant. The Standard Paper company is somewhat larger than the local plant and his position there will be an advancement. Kalamazoo is the home town of both Mr. and Mrs. Crawford. They will remove their residence to that city as soon as possible.

PAYS FINE; CAR HELD FOR SECURITY FOR COSTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 30—Oscar Forand of Norwich, driver of the Ford sedan which was wrecked at the Andover underpass late Saturday night, causing injuries to Mrs. William Zoet and her two year old daughter Stephanie, of 329 Palmer street, Norwich, was fined $25 and costs of $23.10 when he pleaded guilty in the Andover town court tonight to a charge of reckless driving.

His plea of guilty to the charge saved him from facing a series of other charges, according to officials.

Forand paid the fine, but having no further funds, his wrecked car, which was finally located in Norwich, will be held as security till he pays the costs. His arrest came after Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover and State Policeman Henry Heinold of Stafford Springs had followed a complicated trail to learn his identity.

Justice Charles A. Faulkner presided at the court and Grand Juror Holden Brown prosecuted.

TRINITY EPISCOPAL SALE NETS SUM OF $90 TUESDAY

A Christmas sale and food sale held by Trinity Episcopal parish, opened at 10 o'clock, Tuesday morning in the former Chocolate Shoppe, on lower Broadway, being so liberally patronized that the supplies were sold out by afternoon and the sum of $90 was realized.

Especially did the tempting array of homecooked food appeal to buyers, cake, bread, rolls, doughnuts, pies, home made candy, etc., selling like the traditional hot cakes.

In charge of the sale was Mrs. Oscar H. Main, aided by Mrs. Fred Clark, Miss Eliza Dolbeare, Mrs. Catherine Wolfe, Miss Alice L. Bennett, Mrs. James J. Moore, Mrs. Walter C. Brinkman and Mrs. Alexander Williams.

The use of the Chocolate Shoppe was generously given by the owner, Henry H. Vignot.

Freeman Going to Washington

Congressman Richard P. Freeman plans to leave for Washington next Saturday so as to be on the ground when congress convenes on Monday. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Freeman and in all probability their residence on the boardwalk in Neptune park, Ocean beach, will be closed for the winter. Congressman Freeman, who was re-elected for the seventh consecutive term at the elections last month, is ranking member of the house committee on rivers and harbors which has a large number of important matters coming before it at the impending session of congress.

SANDHILL 5-FOOT CRANE AT NORWICH POULTRY SHOW

Members of Norwich Poultry and Pet Stock association were busy Tuesday night putting the finishing touches to arrangements for their third annual show. Last year New London held a poultry show with nearly 1,000 exhibits; but as there is to be no show in that city this fall, there is interest in the lower end of the county, too, in the success of the Norwich exhibit.

This is indicated by the entries of both poultry and pet stock. Up to Tuesday night there were over 300 in place. A number of these have special merit and rarity—as for example an exhibit of Brazilian marmosettes made by Roy Clark, these being some of the smallest monkeys in the world. One exhibitor has sent a Brahma cock which is surely "cock of the walk," a big fellow weighing 15 pounds. By contrast with him are bantams which weigh only fifteen ounces.

A sandhill snowy crane is some majestic bird, strutting about, being nearly 5-foot tall. Then there are novelties in the shape of a half dozen Japanese silkies, the odd fowl with hair instead of feathers.

A Westerly pigeon fancier, William R. Wells has sent up some beauties in the fantail class. Harry Main, of Old Mystic has an entry which will interest all poultry sharps as well as the general public—two cockerels of the Old English game breed, which resemble the wild jungle fowl from which all poultry is descended.

Women are taking a special interest in promoting this show, and have some of the most attractive exhibits. Miss Eva Willis, from Willimantic sends single comb Minorcas, the birds which lay the largest white eggs of any known poultry.

Mrs. George Wilson, of Leffingwell has sent in some of her choice rose comb Rhode Island reds; and Miss Ella C. Lester, of Laurel Hill road is represented in the Jersey giant class, birds which must weigh from 11 to 16 pounds to be eligible to compete.

The youngest exhibitors are Joyce Ricker aged 9 and her sister Harriet, 7, little daughters of Secretary Carl Ricker. These juniors are keen poultry sharps and are proud to show their buff cochin bantams.

This year the association officers have devised a number of novelties to interest the public, more particularly the housewives of the county and beyond. In one instance, Miss Gladys L. Peckham, home service expert is to demonstrate the cooking of chickens, letting the observers sample the cooked product. Also a Frigidaire is to be demonstrated. The officers were feeling elated Tuesday evening over the high class exhibits of good poultry assembled for the show, not alone in all the popular varieties but including as well a number of rare breeds.

Jolly Social Club Met

The last meeting of the Jolly Social club, was held at the home of Mrs. William Carson, on Norwich avenue, Taftville. The evening was spent in sewing, later in the evening refreshments were served by Mrs. William Carson. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Pauline Wunderlich, on Norwich avenue, Taftville.

Tenth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George Kent celebrated their 10th wedding anniversary at Palmer house, Pleasure beach, Saturday night. About 50 guests were present at the party. Music for dancing was furnished by radio. The evening was made enjoyable by piano solos, exhibition dances and recitations. Many from out of town attended the affair and Mr. and Mrs. Kent received a large number of beautiful gifts.

STIPULATIONS MADE IN SUITS OVER STORE RENT

The sum of $1,325.13 was stipulated and judgment entered accordingly in favor of Walter E. Dunlop, of Franklin, N. H., in his suit against Harry Trefes of Stonington in the superior court here before Judge Allyn L. Brown on Tuesday.

Trefes, it was alleged, was indebted to Dunlop for rent and services, labor, rendered to Trefes, Harry E. Patch and James Giannestras, the latter two of Franklin, N. H., doing business under the name of A. T. Patch & Co., for remodelling two stores in the Syndicate block.

By stipulation filed in the court, Israel Barg and Max Solomon, of Franklin, N. H., are to receive $2,500 from Harry Trefes of Stonington in the suit brought by the New Hampshire men in which $10,000 damages was asked.

It was alleged in the papers, that on March 24, 1924 the plaintiffs rented to Trefes and two others of New Hampshire, two stores in the Syndicate block, at Franklin, at a monthly rental of $250. The allegations charge that the defendants had paid no rent for many months and the defendants, who were jointly and severally liable, broke the covenant of an alleged lease.

Voted $5 to Near East

When Comfort circle of the King's Daughters met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William H. Baker, Phillips avenue, Laurel Hill, there was a brief business meeting in charge of the leader, Mrs. Albert T. Utley, when it was voted to give $5 toward the Near East relief fund. There were eighteen present for this and for the cafeteria lunch which followed and on which $10.75 was cleared.

FOR DEDICATION OF ST. ANN'S IN BRIDGEPORT

Invitations are being received here for the dedication by Bishop John J. Nilan, next Sunday morning of the new St. Ann's church in the new parish in the Black Rock section of Bridgeport, where Rev. J. F. Ford is the rector.

Rev. Father Ford has been in Bridgeport only a short time but has met earnest support from his parishioners while he has been there. He is a former Norwich man, the son of the late Thomas and Ann Sullivan Ford, former residents of this city.

Showed Armistice Pictures at Hospital

Through the courtesy of the Breed theatre the Armistice day parade picture was shown at the Norwich state hospital on Tuesday evening. The picture was greatly appreciated by both attendants and patients. On Friday evening the American Legion play "When a Feller Needs a Friend" will be given at the auditorium at the institution.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY FOR NEAR EAST RELIEF

Next Sunday, December 5th is Golden Rule Sunday for the Near East relief, and the Norwich Near East relief committee announces that it will receive gratefully any Golden Rule contributions for the orphans. They may be sent to the Norwich treasurer, Guy B. Dolbeare, at the Norwich Savings society.

Golden Rule Sunday is endorsed by President Coolidge and is also observed internationally. To those who are interested it is suggested that they eat on that day a simple meal such as the orphans of the Near East will receive, and then give of their plenty to the children who have nothing save what America gives them. There are still about 25,000 children in the care of the Near East relief in Armenia, Syria and Palestine and Greece.

In response to a number of inquiries from local people as to whether old clothes will be received again this year the local committee makes the statement that a clothing campaign will be held early in 1927. Those who wish, however, to send clothing immediately may ship it direct to the Army base in Brooklyn, addressing it care of Near East relief.

DEMOCRATS IN THE HOUSE ORGANIZE FOR TAX FIGHT

Democrats Will Contend For an Immediate $350,000,000 Cut in Tax Rates—Minority Members of the Ways and Means Committee Have Drafted the Democratic Program—Speaker Longworth Will Oppose Any Tax Reduction at Present.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The breach between republicans and democrats over how to tap the treasury surplus to the best advantage to the taxpayers' pocket book widened today at the capitol.

This subject virtually excluded all other issues, and drew into the vortex of discussion practically every recognized party leader of the house, where revenue legislation must originate.

House democratic leaders, after a conference, came out in favor of an immediate $350,000,000 cut in tax rates while republican party chieftains that they would oppose, as ill-advised, a new revenue bill at the approaching session.

The democratic program, drafted by minority members of the house ways and means committee, which has initial jurisdiction in taxation matters, is based on an agreement reached between Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking democrat on the committee and Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who heads the minority membership of the senate finance committee.

Under the democratic proposal, the corporation tax, at present 13 1-2 per cent, would be cut probably to 11 per cent. The plan was made public by Chairman Oldfield of the democratic congressional committee, who said:

"The exact rate of the corporation tax was left subject to determination after further figures for which the treasury had been asked are available. It was the sense of the conference that the treasury will have a surplus at the end of the present fiscal year approximating a half billion dollars and that further relief to the taxpayers can well be afforded and ought to be given without delay."

Even before the democratic program had been announced, Speaker Longworth, after a visit to the white house asserted that he was opposed to tax reduction at present and felt the treasury surplus should either be applied to President Coolidge's tax credit proposal or to reduction of the public debt.

The democratic plan also will encounter the opposition of Chairman Madden of the house appropriations committee, who holds that the seventieth congress would present the right time for a new revenue law, although, in his opinion, the president's proposal should be enacted this session.

Both Madden and Longworth contended it was impossible to estimate returns under the present revenue act and that congress must go slow for that reason.

Chairman Green of the ways and means committee also has taken the position that the time is not ripe for a new tax bill, while Representative Tilson, the republican Leader, holds a similar view.

TOLD WOMEN OF POWER TO PURIFY POLITICS

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Corrupt control of political affairs can exist only so long as women consent to it, Governor Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming told the New York League of Women Voters tonight.

"They have the numbers," she said, "and they have the power to thwart it."

"If the women," she continued later in her address, "permit themselves to be used by either party to advance the cause of corrupt candidates, they cannot escape their full share of responsibility.

"The recent success at the polls of candidates for public office regardless of self-confessed corrupt practices suggests that the women voters in some state failed to repudiate those methods and rebuke them by the ballot."

"The truth is that women, like men, are often so keen for mere partisan or factional triumph that principle is obscured by the desire for party advantage. But when they have secured that triumph what have they won if its only result is to place in office a candidate of unworthy standards; a corrupt public official serves neither his party nor his country."

Party organization, she asserted, is the only vehicle through which women can exert their influence. Both by voting and by taking their seats in the councils of the party, she continued, "they ought to make it clear that no political organization, however attached they may be to its traditions, that employs corrupt methods or nominates corrupt or unworthy candidates can rely upon their support."

SUMMATION OPENS IN THE HALL-MILLS MURDER CASE

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Motion for mistrial was denied without comment today as the Hall-Mills case passed into the speech-making stage.

Indications tonight were that the case would be given to the jury Friday, with all of tomorrow, and a portion of the next day, occupied with addresses to the jury.

Only a part of the first speech was delivered today, Robert H. McCarter, opening for the defense, holding the floor at the close of the court day when he had spoken for two hours and 15 minutes. He will probably speak for another hour tomorrow, and will be followed by Clarence E. Case, to continue the defense summing up.

Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor said tonight he would not speak at the "tag end" of the day when the jury was fagged. If the defense arguments continue into the afternoon session the state's summation and judge's charge will go over to Friday. It was understood tonight that contrary to expectations the charge of Justice Charles W. Parker, presiding, would be brief, probably less than one hour in length.

TESTIMONY IN $500,000 SUIT FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 1.—(AP)— Miss Anne Caldwell, New York musical revue actress, testifying today in federal court in her $500,000 suit for breach of promise against John W. Hubbard, wealthy Pittsburgh manufacturer and clubman, said Hubbard told her she was "a girl in a thousand" and asked her to become his wife while they sat "in a large dreamy room filled with palms, flowers and potted plants."

The proposal, which Miss Caldwell charged Hubbard later repudiated, was made in an Atlantic City hotel in January, 1922, she said, and added that he told her then they could not be married immediately, explaining that he had a young daughter who would be married soon. Hubbard told her, Miss Caldwell said, that their wedding would follow that of his daughter.

WINTRY WEATHER PREVAILS IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(AP)—December and real winter weather arrived simultaneously in the midwest today. Old man winter, three weeks ahead of the time set for his official debut, sped eastward tonight with prospects that by tomorrow, the most severe cold of the season would extend from the upper Mississippi valley to the Atlantic seaboard.

In Iowa a drop of nearly 50 degrees in temperature was recorded since yesterday when the mercury stood around sixty. Crookston, Minnesota, reported twenty-six degrees below zero.

Lake vessels were cautioned to remain in port because of the gale over the Great Lakes region.

SUES FOR $100,000 DAMAGES FOR ARREST FOR THEFT

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Suit for $100,000 damages was filed in supreme court today by Margaret McConnachie, former pantry maid in the home of Myron C. Taylor, attorney, based upon her arrest in connection with the theft of jewels valued at $300,000 from the Taylor home November 8. Miss McConnachie also asked she be awarded $10,000 exemplary damages because of the "total disregard of her rights and liberty."

Miss McConnachie averred she was arrested by private and city detectives without warrant or justification, and that her good name and her health have been permanently injured by the humiliation of arrest and police court appearance. She was discharged a few days after her arrest when detectives said they had no evidence against her.

SEES UNDERWORLD "ETHICS" USED BY COAST GUARDSMEN

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Charges that the "ethics of the underworld" were employed by coast guardsmen who preferred charges against Chief Boatswain's Mate John H. McEnroe, on trial for trafficking with rum-runners, were made by William H. Lewis, defense counsel, summing up today before a naval court martial board.

Naming one "Wilson", a department of justice agent who joined the coast-guard service to obtain evidence, and William Roulet, who testified against McEnroe, as ringleaders in a plot, Lewis said the men "framed the commander behind his back." The attorney described the accusers as "a pair of fine birds" and attacked their records in the service. "Wilson" served on patrol boats 243 and 151, while Roulet was cook on the latter vessel.

STOLE FROM HER HOME TO MARRY RUSSIAN BARON

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Evading virtual imprisonment in the family home, Florence e Marjorie Clendenin, 26, daughter of Joseph Clendenin, vice-president of the American Smelting and Refining company, stole from the family mansion at Ardsley, N. Y., this afternoon, rushed to New York city and took out a license to marry the Russian baron. George Turnow, the New York American says in a copyright story.

The couple were reported by the paper as cruising about the city in a taxi-cab tonight seeking a minister to wed them after a jury at the request of Mr. Clendenin refused to marry them.

ASK GUNBOATS TO PROTECT FOREIGNERS AT FOOCHOW

PEKING, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Foreign gunboats to protect foreigners at Foochow, capital of Fukien province, have been requested of their governments by consuls stationed at that river port, 35 miles from the sea.

Troops of Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang have mutinied and attacked loyal forces of the overlord, while the armies of the Cantonese government prepare to attack the city. The situation is considered hazardous to foreigners, to whom the Chinese authorities cannot guarantee protection.

Within the city's walls are approximately 200 each of British, Americans and Japanese and 100 of other nationalities amid a Chinese population of 700,000.

ACTRESS DORINDA ADAMS INJURED WHEN HORSE FELL

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Arnold Van Leer (Dorinda Adams), 24, New York actress, who was playing the part of a nun in Morris Gest's "The Miracle" here, was seriously injured today when a horse she was riding stumbled and fell on her.

Mrs. Van Leer, formerly a Zeigfeld Follies girl is the wife of Arnold Van Leer, assistant manager of the production. Physicians said she would be in a hospital about six weeks.

U. S. SENATOR ELECT GOULD OPPOSED TO WORLD COURT

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—United States Senator-elect A. R. Gould of Maine is opposed to the world court, he informed the New York Evening Post today.

Answering a query by the newspaper, Mr. Gould sent the following telegram: "So far as I know now, I shall support the president in everything except the world court, to which I am opposed. Other matters will be taken care of as they come along."

Wets Victorious in Ontario Elections

Result Shows a Majority For Government Control of Liquor.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Premier Ferguson carried to victory with him his entire cabinet with the exception of David Jandeson, minister without portfolio.

Premier Ferguson's appeal to the country on a policy of liquor sales by permit has met with popular support in the elections for members of the Ontario legislature. Final returns are likely to show that his government has been returned with a following equal to or exceeding that accorded him in 1926, when the conservatives came back with 76 seats as compared with 36 held by all the opposition groups combined.

Conservatives—70.
Liberals—13.
Progressives—9.
Liberal-Progressives—4.
Independent-Liberals—3.
Labor—1.
Prohibitionist—1.

Of these 74 are pledged to government control of liquor.

If the tide toward the government continues at this rate until final returns are in the total opposition members in the 17th Ontario legislature will be the weakest the province has ever known, with the possible exception of the election of 1911, when the conservatives captured 83 seats against 23 by the opposition.

POSSEE IS SEARCHING FOR MISSING GIRL

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Dec. 1.—(AP)—An organized posse recruited from the ranks of farmers, business men and former service men of this vicinity awaited tonight for the dawn of Thursday to start an intensive search throughout the Kickapoo valley for Clara Olson, 22-year-old missing girl.

Under the leadership of Sheriff Harry Sherwood of Prairie Du Chien, they will search the wild country of southwest Wisconsin in the theory the girl is dead. Sheriff Sherwood said tonight that the posse was organized and would start from Stony Point, a mile and a half from the home of Chris Olson, father of the missing girl.

Today brought no clews as to the whereabouts of the girl or Erdman Olson, 18 year old Gale college student, Sheriff Sherwood said. The youth is sought on a murder warrant obtained by the father of the girl, who believes is daughter was slain on September 10 in Crawford county.

It was on the night of September 9 that the girl was last seen and Erdman Olson Clara's sweetheart, has been missing since September 27, when he left the college at Galesville after attending school for a few weeks.

FRANCE PASSING BUDGET TO TOTAL 40,000,000,000 FRANCS

PARIS, Dec. 1.—(AP)—France's largest budget, totalling forty billion francs, is being passed by parliament in the shortest time in history.

Premier Poincare three weeks ago set Friday, December 3, as the date for adoption of the appropriations, and he is driving through on schedule so that the income side can be approved and the budget become law on New Year's, which has not been done before since pre-war days.

It is also the only time that the budget has been reported to parliament by the budget commission at a lower figure than the government submitted.

MANKIND BECOMING TOO LAZY TO WORK OR PLAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(AP)—All men are lazy and "we are a race of button-pullers, and lever-pullers," Prof. J. B. Nash, of New York university, told the International Boys' Work conference today.

"If it gets much worse," he said, "we will begin to hire other men to play our tennis and golf."

"We are slaves to the automobile," he said, and "we pay to have our shoes shined, our fingernails manicured and our hair permanently waved."

FIND YOUTH JUSTIFIED IN SHOOTING STEPFATHER

CASPER, Wyo., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Lyle Derr, 18 years old was justified in shooting his step-father, John Paton, to save his mother from injury, a coroner's jury decided here today. Paton died Sunday evening.

Paton was beating and choking his mother, the boy testified, and she called to him to get the gun.

"Dad, if you don't stop I'm going to shoot you," he said he warned.

Then he fired, intending, he declared, merely to frighten Patton.

To Investigate the Albany Baseball Pool

Politicians, Town and Police Officials Are Said to Be Involved.

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Politicians high and low as well as city, town and police officials of western Massachusetts and upper New York state are involved in the so-called Albany baseball pool, it was indicated here tonight on the eve of a federal grand jury investigation.

From a score to two score witnesses from Springfield, Pittsfield, Albany, N. Y., and other cities have been summoned to appear here tomorrow for the inquiry, and it is understood that indictments will be asked against a number of persons alleged to be connected with the interstate shipment of the pool's tickets.

Prize winners as well as alleged agents of the pool are understood to be among those summoned. Department of justice agents working on the case are believed to have obtained valuable information from several alleged agents arrested here several weeks ago and it is understood that the quest for leaders of the organization has led chiefly into New York state.

SPEEDING UP MAIL FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Linking the Atlantic and the Pacific with the loss of only one business day is the goal toward which the air mail service is working.

Postmaster General New said today this would be accomplished as soon as congress provides funds for lighting the last leg of the trans-continental railway from Salt Lake City westward.

The schedule then will call for departure of planes from New York and San Francisco at the close of the business day and the arriving of mail on the opposite side of the continent on the second morning in time for first deliveries.

MORE TROUBLE FOR KING OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Dec. 1.—(AP)—The troubles of "King" Benjamin Purnell, leader of the House of David, and his "queen" were increased with the service upon them today of federal court notices from Grand Rapids, Mich., to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of a court order placing the cult property in federal trust.

The action is based upon the allegations that the cult in placing their property in security for bond for Purnell in criminal assault cases pending against him, violated the intent of federal injunction returned in the Grand Rapids court last summer on complaint of former cult members.

MAN DROWNED HIMSELF IN SOUND NEAR STAMFORD

STAMFORD, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The body of Nicholas Daquilla, 41, of 94 Avery street, this city, was found in shallow water off Holsteen park, Long Island sound late this afternoon. He had disappeared Sunday night after a period of brooding which followed the death of his wife, who was buried on Thanksgiving day. His death was attributed to suicide.

He is survived by eight children ranging in ages from 20 to 9. The man appeared unbalanced since the death of his wife and his eldest son Michael, watched him carefully, he told police.

LIONESS KILLS CHAMPION HUNTER OF THE TRANSVAAL

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Dec. 1.—(AP)—John Vandermere, champion lion hunter of the Transvaal is dead, the victim of his 39th quarry, a lioness.

He shot the animal, but only inflicted a slight wound. Before he could escape the infuriated beast leaped through the air, knocked him down and mangled him viciously. A fellow hunter, disregarding his own safety, rushed up and shot the lioness through the head, but Vandermere's injuries proved fatal.

PRESIDENT OF WOOLEN AND WORSTED MANUFACTURERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP) — State Senator R. Leland Keeney, of Somerville, Conn., was elected president of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers at the association's 20th annual meeting today. Senator Keeney is the first manufacturer to fill the office, all former presidents having been sales agents.

Merle Bell, of Worcester, Mass., and F. W. Tippen, were elected vice presidents. J. J. Nevin, will continue as permanent secretary and H. E. Peabody as field secretary.

SIX OF EIGHT COUNTIES SHOW EXCESS OF RECEIPTS OVER EXPENDITURES

HARTFORD, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Six of the eight counties of the state show an excess of receipts over expenditures for the year ending September 30, according to the annual reports of the county commissioners, which have been filed at the office of the secretary of the state, the total receipts being $1,736,755.20 and the total expenditures $1,616,270.34. New Haven and Windham counties reported larger expenditures than receipts. Included in the receipts, however, is $673,892.03 levied against the towns of each county except Windham, as a county tax and $153,300 which Hartford county borrowed during the year.

Windham county will lay a county tax of $60,000 the first tax on the towns of that county since 1922. Fairfield county had tentatively scheduled a $33,000 cut in its county tax, from $203,000 to $170,000. Tolland county is considering an increase in its county tax, while the other counties are expected to keep the county taxes at approximately the present figures.

Jails were responsible for expenditures of $314,060.29 by the counties, although receipts from jails for labor and board of prisoners and other persons amounted to $142,551.20.

During the year 9,266 persons, including 691 women, were committed to the county jails. Of these, 3934 were committeed for drunkenness and 727 for violation of the liquor law, the combined commitments on these two charges representing 46 per cent of the total number committed.

The average net cost for each commitment by counties was: Litchfield $30.93; Middlesex $69.03; Windham $32.67; New Haven $24.41; Tolland $23.25; Fairfield $12.53; New London $6.93; Hartford $6.39. The Hartford jail had the largest number of commitments during the year and Tolland, the smallest. Hartford also led in the number of commitments for drunkenness and liquor law violations, with Litchfield and Middlesex equally low in drunkenness commitments and Windham and Litchfield equally low in the number of liquor law violators committed. The commitments for these causes were:

Drunkenness, Hartford 1,853; New Haven 1,404; Fairfield 467; New London 277; Windham 180; Tolland 31; Litchfield and Middlesex 34 each.

Liquor law violations, Hartford 258; Fairfield 192; New Haven 128; New London 61; Middlesex 34; Tolland 23; Windham and Litchfield 19 each.

DEFENSE WILL OPEN IN THE FALL-DOHENY CASE TODAY

Prosecution Yesterday Endeavored to Establish Personal Responsibility of Former Secretary Fall For the Major Developments in the Oil Leasing Program—Defense Presented a Letter From President Harding Expressing Approval of Policy Adopted in Dealing With Oil Land Leases.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—A new guide post in the legal wilderness centered on the oil reserve leasing policies of the Harding administration was reared in the supreme court of the District of Columbia today, when government counsel virtually completed their case in the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial.

The defense will begin presentation of evidence tomorrow after a ten minute re-examination of Senator Walsh of Montana, the senate oil committee's prosecutor three years ago, on technical points for the record.

Half a dozen witnesses were called by the prosecution today in an effort to establish personal responsibility of former Secretary Fall of the interior department for the major developments in the oil leasing program. In every case, the defense on cross examination sought to establish that the intimate contract maintained by the navy department with negotiations involving naval reserves were such as to render impossible any collusion between Fall and Edward L. Doheny in the interest of Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum company, lessee of the Elk Hills, California reserve.

A letter from President Harding, June 7, 1922 to the senate, in response to a resolution requesting information on the administration's leasing policy was offered by the defense.

"I think it is only fair to say in this connection," the letter read, "that the policy which has been adopted by the secretary of the navy and the secretary of the interior, dealing with these matters, was submitted to me prior to the adoption thereof, and the policy decided upon, and the subsequent acts have at all times had my entire approval."

Previous evidence by the prosecution had fixed the date of the Pan-American company's contract for the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, naval storage base, as April 25, 1922. This contract gave the Doheny interests "preferential rights" on such portions of the California naval reserve as might be thereafter opened to leasing.

Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, when Fall was a member of the cabinet, told the jury his recommendation that secrecy be preserved in negotiations for the Pearl Harbor project was dictated by national interest, since the plans had come originally from the navy's war plans division. He said the recommendation to congress that the proposals of the war plans division be considered in secret committee sessions was not unusual when a project of that nature was before either house.

Roosevelt testified he never had discussed the leasing policy with Secretary Denby or Fall prior to the conclusion of the Pan-American lease.

Senator Harreld of Oklahoma, testified Fall told him on Dec. 11, 1922 the date of the Elk Hills lease, that the interior department "acted only as business agent" for the navy in the administration of oil lands.

Edwin Booth, solicitor of the interior department under Fall, testified he never had been asked for an opinion on the legality of the proposed Elk Hills lease.

Representatives of four oil companies and of one construction concern presented correspondence with the interior department protesting against its method of handling leasing applications.

J. W. Clark, a Pueblo, Colo., mining attorney, said he was advised in a letter signed by Fall in March, 1922, that the department proposed not to develop the naval reserves "more rapidly than is necessary."

Paul Shoup, president of the Pacific Oil company, said the Elk Hills land leased to the Pan-American company was at the time of the lease covered by an agreement between his company and the interior department under which each party convenanted not to begin drilling operations without six months' notification to the other. Shoup said such notice never had been given.

S. D. Wible, president of the Eight Oil company, Bakersfield, Calif., testified that he was advised by Fall on Oct. 7, 1922, that the navy and interior departments did not the contemplate additional leases in reserve number one.

Government counsel read to the jury correspondence between the Pan-American company and the interior department in July, 1923, regarding operation on the Elk Hills reserve, where the Pan-American already had leases on 22 offset wells.

The government also presented a telegram of April 22, 1922, from Fall from Three Rivers, N. M., to F. B. King, Austin, Texas, oil operator, in which the secretary said: "Am not now making additional leases on naval reserve number one in California."

Previous evidence had established that negotiations then were pending for the Pan-American lease on reserve number 1.

QUEEN MARIE LEAVES PARIS FOR BUCHAREST

PARIS, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Bound for Bucharest Queen Marie of Rumania, with Prince Nicolas, Princess Ileana and her entourage and a car full of trunks, left Paris this evening. The queen had a final animated talk with the correspondents who crowded the platform below the car window, out of which she leaned.

There were anxious inquiries by the correspondents as to what had taken place between the queen and her son, the former Crown Prince Carol, when they met this morning, but Marie tossed her head and replied: "I really cannot discuss that."

The former heir to the throne did not see his mother when she arrived last night from Cherbourg, nor did he appear at her hotel today. The queen about ten o'clock this morning entered a taxicab and drove to Neuilly, a suburb, where Carol resides. The meeting between mother and son took place in a private dining room of a restaurant at the edge of the Bois de Boulogne.

WOMAN GUILTY OF DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Paula Gibson, said to be the divorced wife of Addison Gibson, an oil broker, was remanded to Jefferson Market prison today on being found guilty of driving while intoxicated. Mrs. Gibson gave a fashionable Park avenue apartment house as her address, but is reported to be living now at the Commodore. She will be sentenced Friday.

The patrolman who arrested Mrs. Gibson said she nearly wrecked a taxicab, then backed into a steam roller, and that when he arrested her she said she wanted to go to jail "to get a thrill."

When refused bail Mrs. Gibson fainted and asked for a lawyer. Her plea to be taken to prison in a taxicab rather than the prison van was refused. Mrs. Gibson explained that at the time of the accident she was under the influence of a very strong medicine, prescribed for her by a physician in France.

"BOOZE RING" PRINCIPAL IS HELD IN $15,000 BAIL

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Louis Smith, of Montreal Canada alleged to have been one of the principal figures in the "booze ring" organized to dispose of the cargo of the schooner Eker, seized last April, was held in $15,000 bail today on charges of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

Assistant Federal Attorney Stichman, at a hearing before Commissioner O'Neil, said Smith was the principal negotiator for the landing of the Eker's cargo of liquor and wine at Edgwater, N. J. He alleged that $60,000 had been "distributed" to "grease the way for the landing of the cargo."

WARNS AGAINST POLITICS IN RADIO LEGISLATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Warning that congress should not be permitted to make radio legislation the vehicle of politics was sounded tonight by James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, at a demonstration of radio progress in the Brooklyn chamber of commerce.

The demonstration was marked by the reading of messages and news reports from London, Paris, Berlin, Warsaw, Stockholm, Honolulu and Madrid, gathered by Associated Press correspondents in those cities and transmitted by radio.

RECLASSIFYING ALL STATE EMPLOYES IN BAY STATE

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—As a step toward fulfillment of Governor Fuller's order of "a square deal for every employe of the state without fear or favor," a sweeping reclassification of the public service with adequate wage increases as a corollary was recommended by the committee on administration and finance today.

Elimination of the "blind alley" job by merited promotion regardless of department location, recognition of sponsibility, heightened efficiency to reduce costs and offset salary advances were some of the advantages sought in the plan.

The report was based on a survey completed about a week ago by a Chicago firm which conducted similar surveys for congress, the Canadian government and states and cities. The commission report was in accordance with the direction of the legislature, and while no definite action was taken on the compensation rates, the salary schedule drawn in the survey accompanied the report.

Action will be taken on the salary question only after the reclassification, representing 210 types of employment, has been approved and all state employes allocated to their proper classification.

SEARCHING FOR SHIP THAT KIDNAPPED DRY OFFICIALS

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The three-masted schooner Arsene J., believed to be carrying two kidnapped prohibition men, tonight was the object of an extended search into the gulf of Mexico with all available revenue cutters and patrol boats called into service.

The schooner, an alleged rum runner, disappeared from anchorage off the Mississippi coast today after it had been captured by a patrol boat and J. B. Matthews, assistant prohibition administrator, of New Orleans, and a machinists' mate had been stationed as guards while the patrol boat visited port to refuel.

When the patrol boat returned the ship was gone. Believing it had been recaptured by the alleged rum runners, other cutters and patrol boats were called to aid in the search. All shipping in the Gulf of Mexico was asked to watch for the ship and take the kidnapped men off if possible.

COURT RULING ON RIGHT OF WAY FOR MOTORISTS

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—A knotty problem for motorists involving the right of way at intersecting streets was explained today by the supreme court of Massachusetts. The law of the road has been that a driver approaching an intersection must yield the right of way to a driver approaching from the right. The full bench ruled that today that the entire area of the intersection of the streets is "the point of intersection" and not the exact point where the paths of the cars would cross.

THREE PAIRS OF TWINS SAVED BY THEIR MOTHER

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Three pairs of twins and a seventh child were rescued by their mother, Mrs. E. J. Hanley, when fire destroyed their home here today. The twins are 8 months, 3 years, and 6 years old. The other child is four. The mother rescued one little girl a second time, when she toddled back into the house to save her doll.

LOUIS PAULHUS, FORMER OFFICER, DIED WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 1—Louis Paulhus, 60, formerly a member of the Willimantic police department for nearly 30 years died at his home, 23 Bowitt street at 7:15 o'clock this morning following a long period of illness. He is survived by five children, Miss Emelina, Raymond, Louis Jr., Omer, and Joseph C. Paulhus of this city; two brothers, Jean B., of Hartford, and Joseph F. Paulhus of this city; four sisters, Mrs. Jacob Lariviere of Wethersfield, Mrs. David Laferte of Bristol, and the Misses Octavie and Caroline Paulhus of this city; and several nieces and nephews.

Louis Paulhus was born in St. David, Canada, January 20, 1866, a son of Honore and Emily Ricard Paulhus. When he was still a youth the family removed to this country, first residing in Baltic and then in this city. Mr. Paulhus entered the employ of the old Willimantic Linen company and continued at his work when the plant was taken over by the American Thread company. He was appointed a supernumerary member of the police department on February 1, 1894. Twelve years later, on September 6, 1906, he was assigned to regular duty. He performed a faithful and efficient service until April 1, 1925 when he was retired on a pension. Since his retirement he has seldom visited the business section of the city and the scenes of many adventures while he covered his "beat" and a host of friends missed his cheery smile and the pleasure of greeting him with a "hello Louis."

Mr. Paulhus was an devout member of St. Mary's parish and was affiliated with San Jose council No. 14, Knights of Columbus and St. Jean Baptiste society.

Always ready, fearless and a keen student of human nature, he qualified as a most valuable police officer during his 28 years of service. He performed his duty as such with an unshaken faith in the administration of justice and he passed on from the force and from this life with a peaceful conscience in the knowledge that he had lived by the Golden Rule. These traits in him won the admiration and respect of his superiors and brother officers.

Clarence Borgeson, 13, son of Oscar and Alma Anderson Borgeson of Village Hill died at Uncas-on-Thames, Norwich, Wednesday forenoon. The deceased was born in Village Hill, June 19, 1913. Besides his parents he is survived by two brothers, Robert and Elmer Borgeson; six sisters, Mrs. Siene Carlson, and the Misses Anna, Agnes, Edith, Alice and Lillian Borgeson, of Village Hill.

The deceased died at the door of what promised to be a brilliant career. He graduated from Windham high school with honors in the spring of 1925 and returned in the fall of that year to take a post-graduate course. He was taken ill last March and was a patient in a Hartford hospital for some time, later returning to his home and then to the Norwich institution.

Frederick W. Costello, 24, of Eagleville, driver of the Dodge touring car which turned bottom-side up at the corner of Ann and Jackson streets shortly before 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon after having collided with two other automobiles and a telephone pole, was fined $100 and costs and given a five-day suspended jail sentence in police court Wednesday morning. Costello pleaded guilty. His total assessment was of $11.15. As stated in Wednesday's issue of The Bulletin, Costello's car struck a Ford sedan driven by David Yorke and a Flint touring car driven by William Anderson and then crashed into the side of the pole. Costello and his companion escaped injury through some unexplained act of fate.

The "shop early" slogan of the post office department is being advertised around town under the direction of Postmaster Frank M. Smith. To shop early and to follow rules in making up packages and properly addressing them is again the annual plea of the department. The local postoffice ranked high in the delivery of Christmas mail for the past several years and Postmaster Smith does not intend that any glories should be lost this year. He has a highly efficient force of veteran postoffice men on hand and feels that with fair cooperation from the public the fine records of the past should be duplicated and perhaps improved upon.

Mrs. Cora Merry, 56, of 328 West Preston street, Hartford, widow of George W. Merry, died at her home in Hartford Tuesday night after a brief illness. She was born in the town of Scotland, a daughter of Mrs. Ora A. Bill and the late Amos W. Bill. She had resided in Hartford for 30 years. She was a member of Ivanhoe chapter, Order of Eastern Star, Nathaniel Lyon Woman's Relief corps and the American Legion auxiliary. She leaves one daughter, Miss Grace A. Merry of Hartford and a son, A. Gordon Merry of Huntington, W. Va.

Charles F. Brenn, who was elected representative from the town of Scotland to the general assembly, will return the favor of an excellent majority at the polls, this (Thursday) evening when he will preside as host at an oyster supper to be served at the Congregational church chapel and to which all of the voters of the town, irrespective of party affiliations, are cordially invited to attend. This custom is one which was established many years ago and has become a tradition to be followed. Mr. Brenn, republican, defeated Sadie Kimball, democrat, by a vote of 11 4to 16. The town has a population of 410 and there are 167 names on the voting list. The average republican vote is 125 and the democratic 232.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah S. Congdon were held at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Hampton Congregational church. Rev. W. L. Mutart officiated. Burial was in the south cemetery, Hampton. The bearers were, Fred Carey, George Clark, Luther Brooks, and Henry Blackman. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt.

Officials and employes of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company connected with the Willimantic, Stafford and Rockville plants will gather at the Nathan Hale hotel this (Thursday) evening for their annual get-together and banquet. Assistant Treasurer John F. Ahern of this city will be toastmaster for the exercises and Ralph H. Gibson music leader.

The trouble in the electric lightning service which put a number of business blocks along Main street in darkness about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon was traced to the burning out of a transformer on the pole at the corner of Main and Bank streets. Within some 15 minutes the load was transferred to another transformer and Wednesday a crew from the works department of the company replaced the defective transformer.

Mrs. Edwin J. Ottenheimer was guest of honor at a bridge party given Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Owen O'Neill. The dining room and parlor had been arranged in seasonable decorations. Four tables of bridge were in play. Mrs. Margery B. Church won first prize, Mrs Lyndon B. Little, second, and Mrs. William E. Hendry, third. Mrs. Ottenheimer was presented a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. King entertained 15 at a family reunion dinner last Sunday, given in honor of the former's great grandmother, Mrs. William A. King of Hartford. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Carlton P. King and two children of The Ridges, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer King and two children of Worcester, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis of Hartford and Miss Harriet King and Morris King of this city.

The Misses Helen Collins and Marion Stott of Holyoke, Mass., have been visiting in this city this week.

Mrs Albert E. Welch is entertaining Mrs. Stuart Hanckel of New York and Mrs. M. L. Masson of Pelham, N. Y., as house guests.

Raymond Desrosiers has purchased the seven-room cottage at 26 Ash street from Frank Press. The cottage is part of the former Dion estate.

Fire alarm box 51, at the corner of Windham road and Pleasant streets, which was demolished several weeks ago when run into by a Ford truck driven by a resident of Warehouse Point, has been returned from the factory in repaired condition and was installed Wednesday by Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley and Electrician George Larkin.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Lincoln were visitors in Hartford Wednesday.

Mrs. Don H. Curtis is spending a few days in New York city.

Mrs. John Reilly of the Visiting Nurse association has been named as director of sales of Christmas seals in the town of Windham by Miss Mabel Baird, who is the state campaign director for the commission. The sale of seals this year is the 19th annual and is always welcomed by the public as a means of contributing in the great battle against the great white plague.

The Windham high school basketball squad is now bein gorganized off practice, with 30 candidates, including the five letter men from last year's team headed by Captain "Eddie" Nichols. The others are Tinker, Sabe, Connor and Heller. Coach Thomas A. Callaghan is conducting negotiations for a game in this city with Fitchburg high school of Fitchburg, Mass. It is understood that that school's squad was national champion last year and this year will make a tour of the state playing Manchester, Bristol and Meriden. No reply has been received from the Bay state school as yet.

LIBERTY HILL

There were many family gatherings over the recent holiday. Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke entertained Rev. and Mrs. L. L. Harris and son Robert Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Foote, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Oehlers and son, Homer and Mr. and Mrs. J. Geo. Clark, all enjoyed a fine dinner and a season of singing.

At Calmer, home of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Davoll, there were fourteen present, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Fuller of Andover, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Davoll and family, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Davoll, Misses Mary E. and Nancy R. Fuller, Miss Harriet Fuller, of Columbia.

At White Feather farm, home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Goodrich, there were Mr. and Mrs. James Cochran of Webster, Mass., John Kinnaird and Miss Abbie Goodrich.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hoxie entertained the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Standish, their son Clarke and two daughters Ruth and Julia of Lebanon Center and other relatives.

The holiday exercises at the local school included a short play entitled "The Puritans" which was finely presented. A good number of parents and friends attended.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Payson and son Carl were guests of Mr. Paysons' mother and sister, in Willimantic, on the holiday.

Mrs. Sarah S. Clarke was with her daughter, Mrs. Myron Hoxie and family at the center, Thursday.

Saul [illegible]el has sold the farm where he formerly resided to Joseph D. Zadul, who recently lost his home by fire. He is making repairs and getting ready to shortly move into his new home. This place was formerly known as the Daniel Baily farm.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Choquette and son Vernon spent the holiday with the former's son and daughter and their families in Southington.

One weather prophet forstold snow for Thanksgiving day, but it didn't materialize here. The day was clear and quite mild so that every one remarked, "What a beautiful day!" Lawns are still green.

J. A Choquette lost one of his pair of gray horses recently.

Having resigned Saul Wachtel finished as rural mail carrier after over 19 years of service. Mr. and Mrs. Wachtel plan to move to New York as soon as possible, Mr. Wachtel has been a very accommodating mail carrier and a kind and thoughtful neighbor. Stuart Pitcher of Labanon Center has been appointed substitute mail carrier.

The semi-annual business meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of Liberty Hill was held at the church Sunday evening. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. E. C. Payson; vice president, Henry V. Oehlers; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. E. Adams; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. Geo Clark.

Rev. L. L. Harris' excellent sermon Sunday morning was developed from the verse of scripture found in Hebrews IV-15, "But was in all points tempted like as we are yet without sin."

EAST WOODSTOCK

J. S. May and family, with George Phillips, spent Thanksgiving in New Haven with Thomas Bowers and family.

Miss Mildred May is visiting her brother, Harry May and wife at Watertord.

Miss Esther Burnham of Potsdam, N. Y., accompanied Doris Lindeman home for the Thanksgiving recess.

Mrs. Christine Anderson will spend the winter with Paul Gifford and family in Quinebaug while Miss Nellie Pratt will be with Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Lindeman.

Baker, last Friday evening. A fine entertainment was given by the young people, consisting of songs, drills, violin solos, piano duets and a little playlet given by the boys. The women served cake and coffee and a sale of household articles brought a goodly sum to the treasury of each society.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

George M. Barlow of West Stafford died at the Norwich state hospital Tuesday morning after several months' illness. Mr. Barlow was 47 years old and was a native of Westford. He came to Stafford several years ago and with his brother, Herbert C. Barlow, opened a grocery store in West Stafford. A few years later he bought his brother's interest in the store which he conducted up to the time of his recent illness. Besides his wife, Mrs. Myrtle E. Barlow, he leaves two brothers, Everett H. Barlow of Westford and Herbert C. Barlow of New Britain. He also leaves three sisters, Mrs. Grace Thompson of Southbridge, Mass., Mrs. Archer Walker of Eastford and Miss Gladys Nichols of Mansfield and three children, Claude, who is at Amherst college, Milton, who attends the Stafford high school, and Robert Stanley, at home in West Stafford. Mr. Barlow was prominent in the business and social affairs of West Stafford and his death is a keen loss to that little community.

The annual Red Cross enrollment this year was a great success. The subscriptions amounted to $1,638.55, which is about $550 more than what was received a year ago. Robert W. Smith was chairman of the committee which so successfully conducted the drive for membership and funds.

Charles Velk of Willington was fined $10 with costs of $11.25 by Judge Heald in the borough court Tuesday morning after pleading guilty to operating an automobile without a license.

The town school committee has made its return to the state comptroller, of children between the ages of four and 16 years residing in the town of Stafford on the first Tuesday of September, 1926. The report shows 1,494 children between these ages. This is 31 more than were enumerated last year.

The officers and board of control of the recently organized Exchange club of Stafford held a meeting in the rooms of the Business Men's club Monday afternoon and acted upon a set of by-laws which will be presented at the next meeting of the club, Dec. 7.

Mrs. John Foley has returned home after a week's visit with relatives in New York and New Jersey.

TITLE GOES WITH SALE OF BIRTHPLACE OF KINGS

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP)—The birthplace of two English kings, Usk Castle in Monmouthshire now in ruins, is to be sold under the hammer. The ownership carries with it the title of Lord of Manor, and on this account is expected to bring a good price.

The castle, birthplace of Edward IV and Richard III, was built about the time of William the Conqueror, and long held a promient place in English history. In 1256 the castle was captured by Simon de Montfort but after occupation of only a few days he was forced out by Gilbert and Prince Edward.

The castle was the home of Richard, Duke of York, in 1438 and afterward passed into the hands of William Herbert, the first Earl of Pembroke. The castle was partly destroyed by assaults of Owen Glendower.

The eighty-foot steeple of the Unionville (Conn.) Congregational church is a study for a naturalist. At the top, which is covered with a brass cap, clusters a swarm of bees. Twenty-five feet below, growing in a crevice in the east wall, is a sunflower in full bloom, its stem three feet long. The seed was blown there by the wind or dropped by a bird and took root in the crack, where there was sufficient moisture and soil.

Left in a snow bank overnight —and in the morning

TEXACO FLOWS

But you need not wait for the first cold, snowy night to make sure of your oil. Try it with any other oil —and Texaco—anytime. Place the two bottles in a jar of crushed ice and salt for half an hour. The temperature will drop to about zero, yet Texaco flows freely.

When it begins to freeze, any motor oil not free of paraffin, begins to thicken

Then begins the starting resistance that burdens your battery—when every moving part is wiping its working surface bare of lubrication. One short minute of this action is more destructive than many miles of ordinary driving.

No such condition is necessary—Texaco Motor Oil flows at 32°, at zero — and below. For Texaco is free of paraffin wax, tars and cylinder stock. Be sure that your oil meets the severe test of winter driving. Golden Texaco does.

POETRY

The Eyes of Youth

I came upon a waterfall
Old friends of boyhood's day;
A merry woodland vagabond
Still singing on its way.
Time took me from its comradeship,
Wrought changes, too, in me;
I tried to think the waterfall
Just as it used to be.

Yet, as I lingered at its brink,
Joy-dampened by the spray,
My eyes revealed it greatly changed
Since I had been away.
The water leaped not half so far,
The flow was strangely small,
In fact I boldly vowed 'twas not
My cataract at all!

Then, as I mused of bygone days,
There dawned Life's ancient truth;
No longer was my vision ruled
By wondering Eyes of Youth!
Things once beheld with childish thrill
As massive, lofty, far,
When focused through Time's open lens
Show what they truly are.

I wondered why this queer old world
Had been so oddly cast;
That fancied things young eyes discern
Assume true form at last.
God may have planned it thus to teach
Our older eyes to see
That Heaven no illusions has—
Just sweet reality!
—William Herschell in Baltimore Sun.

The Memory

Down the little crooked street that went to meet the sea,
The torn nets were drying on the grass
Allie was mending at the old nets—she never looked at me—)
On a blue September morning with a west wind blowing free.
She never raised her head to watch me pass.
'Tis all I took away with me—a blue September morning.
The little street, the green grass, and one girl's scorning.

I've forgot my father's house—the house that saw me born—
Forgot my mother's blessing at the last;
There's nothing but the old nets tangled-like and torn,
And the head that bent above them, yellow-colored as the corn,
That never raised to watch me as I passed.
I wish I'd be forgetting it—a blue September morning,
The blowing grass, the torn nets—and one girl's scorning.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

First Girl—Has Gloria any lines in the new show?

Second Girl—Only outlines, understand.—Boston Transcript.

"Your champion's arms seem very sore. Did she get that from swimming the channel?"

"No, from shaking hands afterwards."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Wilson—Is Jack Flicker, the film star, modest?

Buell—Yes, he's hired six press agents to tell the world how modest he is.—Detroit News.

Mrs. Fozzleton—Well even the well-informed woman doesn't know it all, John.

Mr. Fozzleton — Nope, she doesn't know when to be silent, Jane.—New Bedford Standard.

Native—Haven't you got even a nibble yet?

Sweet Young Thing—Oh, I don't know. The cork's been under for such a long time I've been unable to tell.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Lady (to little boy) — What are you crying for, sonny?

Little Boy—My brother and I were having a race to see who could lean out of the window farthest, and he won.—Northern Daily Telegraph.

"How strikingly this reminds me of the words of the poet," remarked the boarder, after complying with a third request to pass the butter.

"What words?"

"Life's butter passing dream."—The Progressive Grocer.

An old gentleman walking along a country road saw a boy leaning on the wall of an orchard. "My lad," said the old gentleman, "why are you looking so longingly at those apples? Don't you know it is wicked to take what does not belong to you?"

"Yes, darn it!" was the quick reply. "I wish I didn't."—Boston Transcript.

Buckets, dippers and pitchers are now being made of hard rubber.

A peculiarity of Siamese cats is that their hair grows darker in old age.

The Roman Emperor Heliogabalus once served 600 ostrich brains at a banquet.

An entirely new American insect pest, a beetle from Japan, has been reported in New York and New Jersey.

Prehistoric forests were often set afire by lightning, but the flames rarely spread widely because the woods were thick, dark, damp and cool.

In 1876 H. B. Curll stamped a half dollar with the inscription "H. B. C. Clarion, Penn." He went to the centennial exhibition at Philadelphia and spent the half dollar there. Just lately Curll received the coin from a friend who had got it in making change and recognized the inscription.

Offended because he was scolded by Mrs. H. C. Erno, at Shasta Retreat, Cal., Teddy, a big Collie dog belonging to her brother, William Mensel, disappeared. He was not seen again until he arrived at the Mensel home at Redding. The dog had traveled more than seventy miles of highway during the day to reach the friendly shelter of his master.

At Pontefract, England, recently a doctor as bridegroom, a doctor as bride, both the children of doctors, with physicians' daughters as bridesmaids, a doctor's son as page, the bride given away by a doctor, the best man a doctor, and a doctor at the organ were features of the wedding of Dr. Edward Eldridge Blomfield and Dr. Elizabeth Brearley, local practitioners. The clergyman was not a physician.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, who lived to be ninety-two years old, vigorous and alert to the end of this long span, gave out, shortly before his death, a few simple rules, observance of which had helped him keep fit: "That I have borne much labor and responsibility without ever suffering even a temporary breakdown seems to be due—after the inheritance of a sound constitution—to my possessing a good muscular and nervous system, preserved by open-air exercise and the habit of moderate eating. It may have contributed to the fortunate result that at no time of my life have I ever made habitual use of any nerve stimulant like tea, coffee, tobacco or alcohol, although I have never been a total abstainer from any one of these stimulants except tobacco. When I have taken them it has always been in dilute forms."

The famous railway coach in which the armistice was signed in November, 1918, will shortly, thanks to the generosity of an unnamed American, become a permanent memorial at the "Armistice Crossroads" at Rethondes, where the historic act took place. The interior of the coach will be restored as nearly as possible to its appearance at the time Marshal Foch received the German emissaries. French subscribers have guaranteed a permanent en-

DANIELSON

POSTMASTER KEACH ASKS PEOPLE TO MAIL EARLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 1.—Postmaster E. H. Keach is making every precaution to handle Christmas mails without congestion or delay, something that can be done, because of the enormous volume of it, only with the co-operation of the public. To this end early mailing is requested, the careful wrapping and marking of packages urged.

In its list of suggestions the postoffice department recommends that strong paper and heavy twine be used in wrapping packages. Special packing is required for umbrellas, canes, golf sticks, etc., this to be reenforced their entire length by strips of wood and tightly wrapped and tied to withstand transportation. Fragile articles should be crated or protected against breakage by use of excelsior or other materials. Special delivery stamps are suggested for use on packages containing perishable matter; these packages to be marked perishable.

No parcel forwarded by parcel post can be over 84 inches in length and girth combined. For delivery in the first, second and third postal zones 70 pounds is the maximum weight allowed, in all other zones 50 pounds.

Letters or other correspondence may not be included in parcel post packages. All valuable parcel post should be insured, the insurance fees being low.

Full information as to mailing may be obtained of the staff at the postoffice.

Highland grange of South Killingly has its preparations made for the entertainment of the members of Quinebaug Pomona grange next Saturday, when the assemblage there will be representative of many sections of the county. At the fifth degree session opening at 10:30 a. m., reports of officers excepting the treasurer and secretary will be given and officers elected. Dinner will be served at noon. The afternoon session, opening at 1:30, will be given over to a program that will include addresses by State Librarian George S. Goddard of Hartford, Mrs. C. M. Haines of the home economics committee of the Connecticut State grange and Louis G. Tollers, overseer of the State grange. Vocal and instrumental numbers also are included in the afternoon program.

Robert F. Chilton, 69, died Wednesday at the home of his son, William Chilton, of Wauregan. He was a native of Canada.

Merchants are looking forward to a very considerable boost for their holiday business through the release of the Christmas club funds in the various Danielson banks. There is approximately $100,000 of this money. Anticipating having it within a few days, numbers of the club members, who number several hundred, have already made tentative purchases, asking that certain articles be held for them until they get the money. With the release of this money, saved especially for the making of Christmas purchases, will certainly boost business here, it has been the invariable experience of past years that a very considerable part of the money is turned back into savings accounts by depositors, probably as much as 25 to 30 per cent of it.

It is understood that extensive operations will be undertaken the coming year by the state highway department on the stretch of state highway between Danielson and Wauregan. Engineers of the department already have surveyed along the route for the elimination of various sharp curves and for other changes in line with the department's general plan for making state highways safer for the traveling public. Most of the important changes involved on the Danielson-Wauregan route are provided for just north of Wauregan and south of the Killingly border.

So comparatively mild has been the season up to date that farmers in various parts of the country hereabouts are getting along with farm work that usually waits until early spring. These activities were to be noticed on Wednesday, the first day of December.

At the Goodyear church last Sunday Rev. Charles A. Downs spoke on Idealism in a Practical World, taking as a text Exodus 25: 40.

Boy Scouts here are going in for basketball this season and are now engaged in regular practice.

The Putnam County club has been closed for the season. The greens have been covered for the winter period, but temporary greens are available for those who still wish to play around the course. Tyler P. Andrews of this town has signed again to act as professional at the club during the 1927 season, opening about April 1.

A surprise party was recently given in honor of Mrs. Francis Ducharme of Main street by local friends and friends from New Bedford and Providence. Mrs. Ducharme received a number of fine gifts.

There is well sustained interest and increasing attendance at the mission services being given this week at St. James' church of the English-speaking members of the parish.

Sportsmen here are being circularized in a New England movement against a proposal for a federal closed season of indefinite length of woodcock. It is contended that this species of game bird is increasing in this part of the county and that New England should be exempted from the proposed legislation, which is to be before congress the comnig session.

One hears of a proposal for a man's gymnasium class at Killingly high school, something that likely will be of interest and appeal to many a male adult who senses the fact that gymnasium work would be of great benefit.

Timid people hereabouts read with some concern in this column Wednesday morning the wild cats are working from the north into this territory and are likely to be seen in numbers the coming winter, but people who know these big wood cats and their habits say they will not molest human beings and avoid them on every possible occasion.

Less than a fortnight remains in which to pay personal taxes in the town of Killingly, yet here is a matter that hundreds of citizens are letting drift without giving it much attention.

Snow fences provided for the state highway department to protect exposed sections of state highway from drifts and blockading are going up these early December days in various sections of Windham county.

Killingly grange will confer the first and second degrees on a large class of candidates next Monday evening.

Miss Lucile E. Downs, who is teaching in Massachusetts, recently has been a visitor in Goodyear with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Charles A. Downs.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney S. Stone and Miss Ruth Fiske are en route to Florida, where they will remain during the winter season.

More lists of taxable property in the town of Killingly were filed with the board of assessors than during 1925. The increase in lists is about 30.

Receptacles for contributions for Christmas dinners to be provided by the Danielson organization that each year looks after the need of the borough are now in stores about town and other similar receptacles have been put out by the Salvation Army.

On Wednesday a state highway crew was engaged in replacing sections of broken state highway fence knocked over and damaged in automobile accidents of the past season on Reynolds street.

Supt. William E. Parker of Killingly's schools is at Watervelit, N. Y., called there early this week by the sudden and unexpected sudden and seriously illness of his father.

Up at East Killingly poles that supported the overhead along the abandoned trolley road and some time since purchased by George W. Jacques are being cut down and chopped for fuel, another step in the gradual elimination of all remembrance of trolley service in that section.

It was a year ago Wednesday that the Connecticut company began the operation of its motor coach lines through Danielson. The service is now firmly established, efficient in operation and very convenient.

Along the state highway north of the borough line on the route to Elmville the state highway department is setting out young trees that eventually will beautify the route and furnish abundant shade.

A regular meeting of the Civic federation is scheduled to be held with Mrs. H. D. Crosby of Academy street Friday afternoon.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM IS INTERESTED IN REV. MERRILL'S ACTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

UPTNAM, Dec. 1—People in Putnam are interested in the announcement of the resignation of Dr. George Angier Gordon as pastor of the Old South church in Boston, after 42 years of service there, as there also comes the announcement of the resignation of the Rev. Boynton Merrill as assistant pastor. It had been understood that when Mr. Merrill accepted the appointment that he would remain only until Dr. Gordon's work was completed. Rev. Merrill was pastor of the Second Congregational church in this city during the two years following his discharge as chaplain of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania during the World war and resigned from the church here to accept the one at the Old South church in Boston.

A Boston paper has the following to say of Mr. Merrill: "The Rev. Boynton Merrill, who resigned as associate minister of the Old Congregational church, was born on July 21, 1891, at Lowell, son of Otis A. and Anna Boynton Merrill. When he was 9 years old his family moved to Pepperell, where they now live, and he continued his education started in Lowell. From 1908 to 1911 he attended Mt. Hermon school at Northfield.

"He entered Dartmouth college in 1911 and was graduated four years later. The following fall he entered Union Theological seminary, New York, remaining there until January 1918, when he was appointed chaplain of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, flagship of the American fleet, with 1800 men in his charge. Two weeks after his discharge in June 1919, he married Miss Virginia Young Worsham of Henderson, Ky. They have two children, Marian Barrett, 3, and Boynton Jr., 1 year old.

"He assumed his first charge at the Second Congregational church at Putnam, Conn., on July 1, 1919, and in October 1921 was calle dto his present position. He entered the theological school at Harvard in 1925, and was graduated this year, also receiving a degree from Union Theological seminary as of 1918. He was founder and chairman of the campaign, in which 13 Back Bay participated last fall, to bring children to some church, which was tremendously successful. He is an acting chaplain of Radcliffe college and a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity, the Charles River Country club and the University club."

Michael Mahar, of the Norwich university, Northfield, Vt., has been very successful this season as fullback on the team of that college according to the information received here. The cadets won four games, lost three and tied one. Only one small college, Springfield, was able to beat them. Their other losses were at the hands of the big Brown and Dartmouth teams. The Horsemen defeated Union, Forth Ethen Allen, Middlebury and Vermont. The latter victories gave them the championship of the state of Vermont.

Mahar is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mahar and graduated from Putnam high school in the class of 1923.

In the annual report of Frederick M. Salmon, comptroller of the state of Connecticut, under extraordinary expenses of the executive department of the state in the year ending June 30, 1926, are two items amounting to $6,801.74 for investigation and examination of the state treasurer's accounts as the result of the Gilpatric case. For this purpose there had been appropriated $10,000. Only the above amount was used.

The senior class of the Laurtelette Memorial high school presented on Tuesday evening at Abington, the comedy The Dutch Detective. This is the play that has been presented twice during the past month with great success at North Grosvenordale and Quinebaug. At each of the three performances the audience was limited only by the standing room of the halls. Each year of the comedy is exceptionally well taken from the Dutch detective himself to the lunatic just escaped from the asylum. Pupils of Miss Marguerite C. Burns, supervisor of the Thompson schools, furnished special music between the acts.

The Child Lumber corporation of this city has bought a large tract of land from the Briggs Manufacturing company of Voluntown.

A well child conference was held Wednesday afternoo nin the Grange hall at South Woodstock and several children were examined.

Billiards, Chartier lost to Holden; Rich won from Padgett; Pinochle, Burt and Cavanaugh won from Diamond and Sherman. cribbage, Rafferty and Rawley lost to Wheaton and Chadwick. Checkers, Warren won from Stanton.

A car driven by Frank D. Thayer of this city in which Eric Johnson was a passenger skidded and went off the road between here and Providence Tuesday night and both men were badly shake nup and bruised, and in addition Thayer had his nose broken. The car was badly damaged but the injured men drove it back home and to the Day Kimball hospital where they had X-rays taken and were given the necessary surgical treatment.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubes. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

JEWETT CITY

OVER $350 REALIZED FROM CHRISTMAS SALE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 1—One of the most successful Christmas fairs ever held in the Congregational church was that of last evening. In the afternoon there was a sale of fancy articles, aprons, candy, an arts and crafts table, home made candy and jello. The arts and crafts table was a novelty and very attractive in effect. The articles were all hand made and ornamented. There were parchment shades, painted and fancy dipped candles, painted pans, wax flowers, reed baskets, holding straw flowers and heather, fancy baskets and 20 woven and crocheted rugs, the rugs having been woven by Mrs. W. A. Richardson, who was in charge of the table with Mrs. C. D. Wolf and Mrs. L. G. Buckingham. Jerusalem cherries found a ready sale at this table. Mrs. Abraham Egger, Mrs. J. T. Stewart and Mrs. Fred Whalley were at the fancy article table and Mrs. S. R. Waters was in charge of the apron table, Miss M. A. Burdick, assisted by Isabel Marshall, Bessie and Sadie Thompson, sold home made candy and jello. Christine Marhall, the girl with 100 pockets, was an animated grab, and did a rushing business. A chicken-pie supper was served to nearly 300 people, among whom were a large number from Reid & Hughes, Cranston's and Hagberg's in Norwich. Mrs. E. A. Faust and Mrs. F. E. Robinson were the women in charge, assisted by Mrs. Herbert Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. John Whalley, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. French, Mrs. W. E. Marshall and Mrs. A. F. Anderson, Mrs. F. D Ballou was in charge of the sale of tickets, and L. G. Buckingham and E. Curtis Hull received them at the door. Mrs. E. H. Hiscox was in charge of the dining room and the waitresses were Mrs. H. E. Paul, Mrs. Ernest Larkin, Mrs. Andrew McNicol, Mrs. Lester Blanchard, Mrs. J. T. Steward, Mrs. Fred Stewart, Isabel Marshall, Sadie and Bessie Thompson, Ethel Fisk and Myrtle Stetson. During the evening, the supper committee received a telegram and substantial check from Mrs. Faust who was obliged to be out of town. The total receipts were about $350.

The November meeting of the Baptist missionary society was held in the church vestry on Tuesday afternoon with a record attendance of 47 members.

Mrs. A. M. Brown presided and when the business was disposed of she took charge of the program, which was a continuation of the subject "Moslem Women."

After this the meeting became a Christmas party, Mrs. E. M. Swift being the leader. A very prettily decorated Christmas tree was arranged in the center of the room and the members placed their gifts to be forwarded for distribution in the south, around the tree.

A few members of the World Wide guild and the Crusaders then became the entertainers, Miss Susie Morgan, in charge of the Crusaders and Mrs. R. A. Wilbur, acting for the guild, led their respective organizations in the singing of appropriate songs, while all circled the Christmas tree. A very pretty feature of the meeting was a doll exercise performed by the Crusaders. At the conclusion of this enjoyable program Mrs. Swift assisted by Mrs. Edward Raney, served tea, sandwiches and cake, the waitresses being Mrs. Wilbur, Florence Quimby, Doris Oliven and Jennie Mager.

Children are selling Christmas stickers which should not be confused with the Christmas seals which are to be sold for the state tuberculosis fund. The latter are not on sale yet.

COLCHESTER

A state circular distributed here reads: During the holiday season parents need to keep a firm hold on the health plan for their children. These are the days when over-indulgence in the matter of rich foods is often displayed. The time honored customs of Thanksgiving and Christmas as great past days have continued, and children as well as adults indulge too freely in the various good things that appear at that time. The danger from over-indulgence at this time is due perhaps more to the combination of foods than to the actual amount eaten, such as several kinds of pies, rich plum puddings and oftentimes one or two other sweet desserts besides an already heavy dinner of some meat dish with its accompaning assortment of vegetables. Children are also inclined to be showered with too much candy during the holiday season. It will be far wiser to substitute more healthful sweets, such as oranges and apples, or finely chopped dates, raisins and figs, or make use of the simple sugar candy for the young child. The wise parents at this time of the year will look carefully to see what the child eats, using a guiding hand in controlling its instinct to eat amply of all things that appear. If there were more wise parents in this respect, there would be fewer illnesses among children at this time of the year. These usually take the form of dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, shown by symptoms such as headache, bad temper, coated tongue, listlessness, etc. All such reminders to busy parents are to be discussed at the monthly well child conference held in the chapel, Colchester, Tuesday, Dec. 7, from 3 to 4 p. m.

THE SESQUI

While it may be possible to get into and walk about the exposition grounds in Philadelphia during the rest of this month, the exposition is officially over. Efforts to have it continued and opened up next year were unavailing. The fact is that there is already too much debt to think of sending more good money after bad, for there already exists a deficit of more than $5,000,000 to be met.

The exposition has not been the success that was expected of it. There are those who have attended it and been greatly impressed thereby. Others have felt that it was a big show but if they had gone to Philadelphia for no other reason than to see it, and met the necessary expenses, they would have been disappointed.

From the very beginning almost there were unfortunate circumstances connected with the sesqui. Lack of harmony as to the early arrangements, many changes in plans, much evidence of inside friction created obstacles which handicapped and hurt. The result was that the exposition was not ready when it was opened, buildings were not completed until long after the date fixed, exhibits were unpacked and it is said some of them have never been seen.

These facts all had their effect upon the people who were expected to attend. Instead of there being an enthusiastic desire to see the exposition, there was much self congratulation, following the reports of those who did attend, that no effort had been made to get there. The people couldn't be worked up to the right degree of interest in advance and the exposition itself didn't help the situation any. In addition there were numerous questions raised following the opening that had a detrimental effect in many directions.

On the other hand it is a question whether there is the interest in such expositions now that there was at the time of the big fair at Chicago and whether, if there had been no bad mistakes, jealousies and handicaps, there would have been a much greater attendance. The occasion has been observed by Philadelphia. It responded to its patriotic duty but what encouragement has it gained for the observance of the bicentennial? Or what is going to be the attitude gained for the observance of the bicentennial? Or what is going to be the attitude concerning the fair it has in mind for 1932?

RED CROSS SEALS

The appeal which is being made at this season in behalf of the Red Cross seals can be depended upon to get its customary favorable reception in Norwich and vicinity. It is through the purchase of these seals that each and every one can make a contribution to the work of fighting and preventing tuberculosis, and in that direction all hearts must beat as one.

In behalf of this excellent cause there seems little need for stirring up interest, for it cannot fail to exist in large measure. All may not be able to do as much as is desired but each can have a part, and that is the important service which the Christmas seals render.

While it can be shown that the fight against the white plague has been waged so successfully within the past two decades that there has been a reduction of 55 per cent. in the death rate, it is still to be remembered that it has not been conquered. There is much work that remains to be done, much relief that can be extended. Tuberculosis is responsible for about 100,000 deaths each year, about one in every four deaths among people from 15 to 45 is from tuberculosis, 4,000 school children die from the disease each year and there were 5,000 children under five years who were carried off by it.

Thus while highly commendable work is being done in checking it there remains much that can be done, much that ought to be done in the way of prevention as well as treatment and to that effect there should be a common desire to have a hand. From the sale of the Red Cross seals a certain portion of the proceeds goes to the carrying on of the tuberculosis fight in this county. Having had such fine demonstrations of what can be done in preventing, arresting and curing the disease there just be a desire to increase the record. The larger the purchases of seals the quicker the fund will pile up, but whether the amount obtained is large or small there's a chance for all to help. Many hands make light work.

A BAD LOSER

After the trouncing he got in the face of the charges that were made with their petition that they would react to his advantage, the defeated candidate in the Maine election for United States senator this week isn't apparently satisfied. He not only doesn't want to abide by the result but he threatens to submit the whole affair to the Reed committee for the purpose of having Senator-elect Gould thrown out of the upper house of congress and himself seated in his place.

It seems to be getting a habit to appeal to the senate to say who shall sit in that body from the various states rather than abide by the votes of the people. Mr. Redman who was defeated in Maine ignores the fact that he was completely snowed under when the whole campaign charges were submitted to the people, but regardless of that he would have the senate upset the election because of charges regarding the primary, about which there is probably no more ground than there was for other claims set up at the 11th hour in the campaign.

If there has been anything brought to light by the Reed investigation, or as the result of primaries in states where no investigation has been made, it would appear that the trouble lies with the primary law, that it fails to accomplish what was intended and that it permits of practices which were not desired. Such being the case it would appear to be time to give some attention to the real cause of all the trouble—the primary law.

Candidate Redman, takes his defeat rather seriously, quite as if he thought he had a chance of election in the rock-ribbed republican state of Maine, and from all indications he expected to be chosen just because of the charges which were brought against his opponent, the strength of which failed to make any impression upon the secretary of state before whom they were heard in advance. Just because he is a hard loser is insufficient ground for believing that the United States is going to rush to his relief and out of sympathy for a defeated candidate try to placate him by turning out the choice of the people and putting the loser in office.

ONTARIO HAS SPOKEN

The people of the province of Ontario have been given a chance to say what they prefer in the way of prohibition, whether they desire a better enforcement of the temperance act which was instituted as a war measure and has been in effect for ten years, or whether they favor the plan of Premier Ferguson to place the control of liquor in the hands of the government.

From all indications Ontario has given endorsement to the Ferguson plan, the one that was backed by the conservatives. There was reason for believing that this would be the outcome for with that party in control of parliament it would not have brought about a dissolution and a call for a new election based on that question if there was not much certainty of success.

The way in which the temperance act has been enforced indicates that it has encountered much the same difficulties that prohibition has in this country. With the province overrun with bootleggers the people have grown tired of conditions, the election was in response to a demand for a change and the voters have given authority to the conservatives by putting them in control to proceed to correct conditions which fail to meet with majority sentiment.

Ontario has had plenty of time in which to try out its prohibition law. That test has not been favorable and the people have shown that they were ready and desirous for a change. Premier Ferguson is quoted as claiming that under government control with certain sales of liquor and beer under regulations temperance conditions in the province will be far better than they were under prohibition. Given the chance it is to be expected that the conservatives will make good in their endeavor.

FOOTBALL ACCIDENTS

The days of flying wedges and battering rams in football are over. Instead of that line driving plan the game has been opened up and the change makes it more spectacular and has the desired effect upon the number of accidents and fatalities.

Football is a game which has its hazards, a bit more so than most other sports. Injuries may be received in many ways and there's no escaping the fact that as far as roughness is concerned it stands at the top of the list. But with the proper training casualties are kept at a minimum as the record for the present year would indicate. From figures given out there were eight players who died this year of injuries received in football games or during practice, and of the 300 or so injured about a quarter received injuries that kept them off the field three weeks or more, that caused him to be sent to a hospital or that disclosed broken bones.

That may seem a much greater sacrifice than ought to be expected of those participating in sports, but it is a marked improvement over a year ago when two and a half as many were killed and a decided change from the days of heavy line driving, and yet it isn't always at those times when injuries might be expected that they are received. Frequently they are the result of little slips or falls that are as apt to happen elsewhere as on a gridiron.

Nevertheless the open game has brought an improvement that is gratifying, even with more football playing than ever. While it may be too much to expect the time when no one will be seriously hurt yet there's no harm in hoping for it.

CHOCOLATE PEPPERMINTS

Simpson is the sort of person who is always having alventures. He rarely takes even a quiet week-end holiday without something unusual happening to add spice to his outing. It has become the custom in his office for his fellow workers to gather around him on his return from any trip and eagerly inquire about his latest experience.

"Well," he said depressingly on Tuesday morning when he resumed his desk after an over-Sunday jaunt into Wisconsin, "you birds want to know if anything thrilling occurred during my brief travels. There wasn't anything exactly hair-raising, but I must admit I had the scare of my life. But it taught me a lesson. Hereafter safety first is going to be my motto."

"At your old trick of driving like a hurricane on strange country roads?" asked the senior partner. "Smashup?"

"No, I didn't drive. My car's in the shop, so I tried the bus. It's pleasant enough, but there are risks. The drive was enjoyable until we reached some town—I believe it was Jefferson—where the chauffeur announced that there would be a ten-minute wait. I got out to stretch my legs and among the others who also descended was a pretty young woman. She handed a small bundle of a baby to the woman next to her and asked her to look after it while she did an errand. She disappeared around the corner of the street and the baby at once set up a heartbroken wail. I flatter myself that I know something about infants (I was the eldest of a large family) and when I saw that old lady violently bouncing that unhappy youngster I felt sure that it wasn't the best thing for its little inside.

"Let me have a try at it,' I said, and I took the screaming child in my arms and began a sentry go up and down the street by the bus. I felt a little cocky when the small person stopped howling almost immediately, and when I saw the other men looking at me I couldn't help wondering if there was any other chap on the bus who could handle a baby as well as I. In a few minutes their glances, which I had fancied were admiring, turned into mixed amusement and pity, for the bus driver shouted, 'All aboard!' tooted his horn, hot to be off, and the owner of the body was still absent.

"'Say do you think she's ditched it?' asked a young fellow, grinning, from the front seat, and the old lady to whom the baby had been consigned murmured that it was just a shame that some women hadn't no sense of responsibility at all.' It wasn't very warm, but I tell you every time the impatient driver tooted his horn and looked at me suspiciously I could feel the perspiration break out all over me. I began to wonder what my future would be as the bachelor father of an adopted boy or girl. That baby was snuggling right into my neck, and I knew that if its mother never did turn up I'd have to keep it. Just as the driver was announcing to me, as if the delay were all my fault, that he couldn't wait another second the young mother returned as calm as a daisy.

"'I've been all over this place,' she remarked as she nonchalantly climbed into the bus, 'looking for chocolate peppermints and I couldn't find a one.'

"'Really,' I said scathingly as I dumped the baby on to her lap. She sighed and kissed its pudgy chin and she looked so idiotically like a child with a big doll that I felt it would be a waste of breath to give her the lecture that was on the tip of my tongue, but I glared at her severely when she wondered aloud if she could get chocolate peppermints in the next town."

"I bet you were glad when you could shake her," remarked a privileged young clerk in the office.

"That's the funny part—I couldn't shake her," answered Simpson. "The next town proved to be the destination of us both. I inwardly swore that I wouldn't touch that baby, but she confidingly handed it to me before she stepped out of the bus. I must say that I felt slightly self-conscious a moment later when my charming hostess hove in sight in her smart car and found me there on the sidewalk with the infant in my arms, the young mother by my side and our combined luggage at my feet.

"'Why, how perfectly jolly,' she exclaimed. 'You two have got acquainted already.' She kissed the mother, gently pinched the baby's toe and remarked that I was a perfect old dear. 'Now we must pile into the machine and hurry home, for dinner is waiting my guests,' she smiled at us comprehensively.

"'Can you wait just a minute?' I asked, giving her the baby. 'I wish to buy something.'

"'For goodness' sake, what?' she inquired in her pleasantly impatient way.

"'Chocolate peppermints,' I replied.

"'You ridiculous old thing,' she said, but she waited, and that evening while the little mother was putting the baby to bed she asked me how I knew that her young friend liked chocolate peppermints. I told her.

"'Poor child,' she sighed after a moment, 'she does need somebody to look after her and the baby. I do hope she will marry soon again.'

"Oh," said the office force in one breath, and Simpson brusquely called the stenographer to take a letter.—Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

Things to be Omitted

Ever since school started little Noah's sister, who is in the first grade, has insisted on instructing her four year old brother in A. B. C's. Each evening, much against his will, he has been urged to take paper and pencil and carefully write A. B. C. The other day he hesitatingly approached his sister and said: "Sister, please write me a letter to Santa Claus, but don't use no A. B. C's."

Talking Turkey

Earl, who is unacquainted with bowling, was watching his friend George bowl a few games the other night. Earl did not know that in bowling parlance among some at least three strikes in a row is called "turkey," although it was the day before Thanksgiving, when turkeys are given away in many contests. George made his three strikes and someone remarked: "Well, you got a turkey."

"Is that right?" Earl queried. "Do you get a turkey?"

"Yes," George explained. "Three strikes in a row is a turkey."

Earl soon tired of the game and on his way home he stopped in to tell George's family all about the game. Everyone was delighted to learn that George got a "turkey" and right away they made arrangements to dispose of a duck which they were holding for the Thanksgiving feast.

"Where's the turkey?" was the first thing George was asked when he arrived.

"I haven't any turkey," George answered somewhat puzzled. "Yes, you have," one of the youngsters piped, "You got three strikes and Earl said that won a turkey."

And so it was with difficulty that George convinced the family that it was a mythical turkey and not a real one that he won in the game.

YOUR HEALTH

Health Needs Illumination-Not Glare

By Alice G. Bryant, M. D., Boston, Mass., member Gorgas Memorial Institute.

The time of the year is here when the housewife begins to use more electricity and her bills creep up to meet the added demand for light and more light. Electricity has become a necessity to the social and economic life of the nation, so that the luxury of yesterday has become the necessity of today.

There is nothing wrong with electricity except when a wrong use is made of it. Some of the wrong uses have been disclosed by the researches of electrical companies and others. Many interesting features in reference to adequate, deficient and high intensity illumination have been brought out.

For example, adequate illumination is a protection against accidents and, furthermore, it enables the worker to maintain a better quality and quantity of output; whereas, deficient illumination does not favor this condition or improve the morals of the worker.

Too bright light produces undesirable glare when the lamp filament is unprotected or light is unshaded. In our zeal for novelty and ornamentation, in lamp equipments, the real purpose of house illumination has been lost sight of. More attention has been given to illumination in the home than to heating and ventilation.

Illumination is a more visible undertaking. It appeals to the imagination. But what is needed in lighting the home is the help of the architect and illuminating engineer at the draughting board.

Above all, the eyes of a little, helpless babe-in-arms or a growing child should be protected from the glare of intensely bright lights. It would be far better if they never saw an electric light and were permitted to have their full quota of sleeping hours. Adequate sleep conserves their best forces to meet the arduous tasks of coming years. In fact, in all ages, the wrong use of the electric light cannot be too strongly condemned.

Efforts to spread the ideals of good lighting and the beneficial effects on health are being undertaken not only in this country but abroad as rapidly as the knowledge is revealed by research. This is a health movement "to conserve eyesight, life and health," and demonstrates how more and more, the human side of science is being stressed.

CHINESE USE FIREWORKS TO WARD OFF EVIL SPIRIT

One of the most recent signs that Shanghai is returning to normal, that the Chinese scare of the "foreign devils" is pretty much allayed, is seen in the reappearance of firecrackers in the streets. One night recently the whole city was a riot of small explosions and flaring rockets. Some of the more uneasy tourists thought a new anti-foreign riot had broken out, or that the much talked of civil war between Kiangsu and Chekiang had become a reality. A glance at the moon and an understanding of Chinese superstitions, however quickly settled their doubts. On the night in question the moon was almost totally eclipsed. To Chinese, young and old, educated abroad or uneducated, an eclipse is an event of significance. It is the dragon devouring the moon after which he is expected to turn his jaws upon the earth. There is only one means of slopping him. Firecrackers do the trick. Hence thousands of dollars were spent in smoke and noise and an equal sum went up in burning joss paper. This kept up for two hours until the moon emerged at the full unharmed by the experience. During the state of emergency within the foreign settlement firecrackers are prohibited, but the police made no attempt to stop the display.

ITALY FOSTERS ART BY COPYRIGHT LAW

Italy's new copyright law is an absolute innovation in the prevailing copyright law of the world. The innovation consists in the abolition of the concept of public property and the creation of the concept of state property in copyrighted works after the expiration of the period of private ownership of works of literature or art.

In other countries such works, after the copyright period, become public property in the sense that any one may publish or perform them without paying royalties to the author or his heirs. In Italy, hereafter, the state will receive a royalty of 5 per cent, which will be devoted to the maintenance and encouragement of national art.

At present the Italian government contributes a considerable amount to artistic purposes. Under the new law probably much more will be provided by the state royalties. For example: After the Puccini rights to La Boheme expire the Chicago Civic Opera company, when it presents the opera, will have to pay 5 per cent of its receipts to the Italian Ministry of Fine Arts. But the money will go toward the maintenance of Italian art collections, the funds for which are administered expertly and conscientiously.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Lord Reading, who has joined the ranks of London newspaper publishers, has had as remarkable a career as any Englishman of his generation. Born in London, of Jewish parentage, he was educated at University College school, and, later at Brussels and Hanover. In his youth he ran away to sea and upon his return to London devoted himself at first to business, and became a member of the stock exchange. He, however, quickly saw where his abilities lay, and he forsook the stock exchange for the bar. His rise in the legal profession was meteoric. As Sir Rufus Isaacs he filled successfully the highest legal and judicial positions in the realm—solicitor-general, attorney-general, governor-general, from which he retired several years ago.

Take a Sympathetic Interest

We should take a sympathetic interest in the lives of high-minded men, and note how in spite of obstacles and failures they have accomplished their purposes and how some have been great because they nobly tried and in spite of the fact that they nobly failed. Nothing is more helpful than to see that our ills are not peculiar to ourselves, but that others have overcome the same difficulties that are perplexing us.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Perfect Understanding

No greater gift can Fortune send Than just an understanding friend.
—Mr. Grouse.

Farmer Brown's Boy and Mr. Grouse had become the best of friends. Yes, sir, they had so. Mr. Grouse is naturally one of the shyest of all birds. He is very shy indeed, is Mr. Grouse. Mrs. Grouse is just as shy. Mrs. Grouse has known Farmer Brown's Boy so long that she was not afraid of him, but she could hardly believe her eyes as every morning she watched Mr. Grouse and Farmer Brown's Boy.

Every morning when Farmer Brown's Boy went out to feed Mrs. Grouse he took along some extra buckwheat to feed Mr. Grouse. At first he remained quietly behind the bushes which he had set up so as to watch Mr. Grouse. But one morning what did Mr. Grouse do but walk right around those bushes, and when Farmer Brown's Boy reached out and scattered some buckwheat before him Mr. Grouse at once began to pick it up. After that Farmer Brown's Boy didn't try to hide. It wasn't long before Mr. Grouse would take food from the hand of Farmer Brown's Boy.

Now perhaps you think I am telling a story. I am, but it is a true story. You see, I have known Mr. Grouse to do just this thing, and it had all come about through perfect understanding. Farmer Brown's Boy used to talk to Mr. Grouse, and Mr. Grouse acted as though he understood every word. Of course he didn't understand the words, but he did understand the meaning. There was perfect understanding on his part.

"Mr. Grouse," Farmer Brown's Boy would say, "you know I wouldn't harm a feather of you. You know I wouldn't let any one else harm you. The Green Forest wouldn't be the Green Forest without you and Mrs. Grouse there. No, sir it wouldn't. You two are just as necessary to make the Green Forest what it is as are the trees themselves. That is why I won't let anybody shoot you. You may not know it, but you are a very wonderful bird. That is, you are wonderful now while you are alive. Dead you would not be wonderful at all. I wonder that hunters don't think of that sometimes when they are shooting. If they did, they wouldn't shoot."

While Farmer Brown's Boy was talking Mr. Grouse would be watching him with those bright eyes of his, and he appeared to understand every word that Farmer Brown's Boy said. What he really did understand was that here was a friend whom he could trust, and that was all he needed.

Farmer Brown's Boy on his side understood how fearful Mr. Grouse must have been the first time he came over there. He understood how fully Mr. Grouse now trusted him, and it made him tingle all over to feel that this wonderful little wild person of the Green Forest should trust him so fully. There had been a time when Farmer Brown's Boy used to shoot and was very fond of hunting. He could remember very well the thrill he had felt when he had shot a Grouse on the wing. But now he knew that that thrill was nothing compared with the thrill of having Mr. Grouse come up and pick grains of buckwheat from his hands. When he had shot a Grouse he knew that for a time there was going to be a lonely spot in the Green Forest. Now he knew that there would be no lonely spot because of him, and it was a splendid feeling.

So there was perfect understanding between Farmer Brown's Boy and Mr. Grouse, who had his freedom; and between Farmer Brown's Boy and Mrs. Grouse, who hadn't her freedom because as yet it wasn't safe for her to go free.

The next story: "Johnny and Polly Chuck Stay Up Late."

"Mr. Grouse," Farmer Brown's Boy would say, "you know I wouldn't harm a feather of you."

DISTURBED SLEEP

Caused From Bladder Irritation is Nature's Signal of "Danger Ahead."

Joseph Dow, R. 55, Trenton, N. J., says: "My rest at night was disturbed 10 to 20 times. Lithiated Buchu has reduced this and entirely relieved me of that terrible burning and smarting. I was told there was no help for me. I want others to know and will tell or write my experience."

Lithiated Buchu is not a patent medicine. The formula is on the package. It acts on the bladder as epsom salts do on the bowels. Drives out abnormal deposits, lessens excessive acids, thereby relieving the irritation which causes "disturbed sleep." Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Sold at all drug stores.

Today's Big Offer to All Who Have Stomach Agony

Read What Lee & Osgood Has to Say About Dare's Mentha Pepsin

When you have any trouble with your stomach such as gas, heaviness and distention, why fool with things which at best can only give relief.

Why not get a medicine that will build up your upset, disordered stomach and make it so strong and vigorous that it will do its work without any help.

Such a medicine is Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a delightful elixir that is sold by Lee & Osgood and all live druggists with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't greatly help you your money will be gladly returned.

It has helped thousands—it will no doubt help you.

"Cascarets" for Bowels, Stomach, Headache, Colds

Clean your liver and constipated bowels to-night and feel fine

Get a 10-cent box now.

Are you keeping your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

No odds how sick, headachy, bilious and constipated you feel, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

CAMPAIGN TO ELIMINATE ILLEGAL HIGHWAY SIGNS

Illegal advertising signs along the highways are doomed for the scrap heap unless the owners comply with state regulations as a result of an intensive campaign inaugurated by the state police this week against the outlaw signs.

Sergt. Clifford N. Gorgas of the Groton barracks stated Wednesday that every available man of the Groton force is systematically covering the highways of the county in search of the outlaw signs and from early reports there are many.

According to Sergt. Gorgas signs on private property on which taxes have not been paid are termed outlaw and signs on highway property are "out of order." When illegal signs are found the owners will be given written notice to remove signs found on the highway property and to pay taxes on signs on private property or to have the signs removed. If the notices are unheeded prosecution will follow.

The campaign will continue until the county is cleaned up of what is termed the sign nuisance.

FINAL ROLL CALL FOR SEDGWICK POST COMMANDER

Orrin M. Price, commander of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., answered the final roll call early Wednesday evening when death came to him suddenly at 6:30 with an attack of heart trouble at his home, 35 Lafayette street. Although Mr. Price had suffered from heart trouble for years, there had been no premonition of the end as he had been down town during the afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial, the headquarters of the G.

ORRIN M. PRICE

A. R. post, and was apparently in his usual health when he came home, and the heart attack came upon him without warning, causing his death almost instantly.

Mr. Price was the son of Captain Zalman and Elizabeth C. Price and was born in this city, Dec. 14, 1844, in a house on Broadway which stood where the Masonic temple now is. As a youth he learned the trade of millwright and carpenter and on May 3, 1865 in Bozrah was married by Rev. George Pryor to Angeline Guile daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Guile. For three years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Price continued to live in Bozrah, where Mr. Price took a prominent part in town affairs, holding at times most of the town offices except selectman and town clerk.

From Norwich they moved to this city where their residence has continued and Mr. Price has been employed at his trade until about five years ago, when he retired and since then his chief activity has been as commander of Sedgwick post, which he had served in that position for the past 13 years. Several years ago he served a term as department commander of the Connecticut Grand Army of the Republic.

Commander Price's Civil war experience began with his enlistment in Norwich, Dec. 6, 1861 in the 13th Connecticut Volunteers, with which he was a sergeant in the company of Capt James J. McCord. He saw considerable active service in the Department of the Gulf under Generals Butler and Banks and was at the siege of Port Hudson on the Mississippi. Later he was in the Shenandoah valley under General Sheridan and he received his honorable discharge in April, 1866. He was twice wounded in action, once in the head and once in the foot.

Surviving him are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Carrie N. Edgarton of Hartford and Elsie L. Price of Los Angeles, a son, William of Clark Falls, Mass., and a brother, George, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Besides his membership in Sedgwick post, he was a 32nd degree Mason. Affectionate and faithful in his home relations, he was an exemplary citizen and a true friend who was held in warm affection by his comrades in the post and his acquaintances in general.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Kies left at the week end for their home in Hartford, having been holiday guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Story.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Williams, Jr., have returned to their apartment on Broad street, following a holiday and week end visit with Mrs. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Klous, in Newton Center, Mass.

The Wednesday Afternoon club was entertained by Mrs. Richard S. Gernon at her home on Washington street. The paper read by the hostess dealt with the internal working of the soviet government in Russia. Informal tea followed.

Wednesday evening, at the meeting of the Trefoil with Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., of Broadway, the highest score was made by Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard. As this was a special meeting, each of the twelve players received a prize.

PRIZE AWARDS MADE FOR POULTRY EXHIBITED IN NORWICH SHOW

With over 900 birds on exhibit the Norwich Poultry and Pet Stock association opened its third annual show Wednesday at Pulaski hall. Throughout the day and evening many people interested in poultry and pet stock visited the hall and very favorable comment was heard on all sides. The show is larger and better than in either of the two previous years and is a credit to the association. It demonstrates the value of co-operation between the fancier and commercial poultry growers. It was in 1874 that the first American poultry association was organized for the purpose of standardizing the numerous breeds. Through the efforts of such associations old breeds were standardized, some breeds were discarded and new breeds developed. There are a number of splendid entries at this year's show. The best pen in this year's show is the black Langshan exhibit by George Wilson. This pen, four hens and a rooster, was awarded the trophy cup.

Barred Rocks, one of the most popular breeds for meat especially, are shown in large numbers. Leghorns, which reign supreme on egg farms are also seen in numbers. Other breeds shown include Silver pencils and Golden pencils, two of the newest varieties of the Plymouth Rocks, American Dominique, Black Jersey Giants, a new breed recently developed, shown by Miss Eva Ellis of Willimantic, R. C. Buff Leghorns exhibited by Frank Fitch, Italian and Spanish breeds, developed from the Island of Minorca, Japanese Silkies, Mottled Houdans, Hamburgs, Buff Cochin bantams and many others.

The pet show entries include guinea pigs, pigeons, etc. G. L. Tourtellotte is showing an especially fine pen of Red Parlor Tumblers.

The youngest exhibitors are Joyce Ricker, 5 and Harriet Ricker 8, the daughters of Secretary Carl Ricker. They are displaying their buff cochin bantams.

The Wirthmore Feed company has a booth in the hall where various kinds of feed are on display.

An attractive booth is that of Roy Clark's Pet Shop where are seen Brazilian monkeys, gold fish, parrots, a pair of love birds (Parakeetes) and various kinds of feed for pets.

Carl Brown is showing a Frigidaire show counter in which are seen high class dressed poultry and eggs. The Frigidaire is automatic and electrically controlled. The poultry and eggs in the cooled show case are displayed by Swift and company, through the local office.

At 7.30 o'clock in the evening there was a demonstration in roasting chickens, given by Miss Gladys Peckham, demonstrator for the Norwich Gas and Electric department.

MISS CARUTHERS' POEMS ISSUED AT BALTIMORE

One hundred and thirty copies of the latest among the exquisite poems of Miss Mazie Virginia Caruthers, of Norwich, have been issued at Baltimore, copies of the dainty book reaching her friends this week. There are thirty-six poems in the collection, grouped as "Songs Out of Sadness."

Many of these have appeared in various publications, the author acknowledging permission to reprint by The Garden Magazine, House and Garden, Munsey's, Top Notch, Literary Digest, Catholic World, Ladies Home Journal, the Lariat, The Buccaneer and the New York Times.

The collection includes Traveling Companions, Unforgotten Gardens The Harp, Kinship, A Wayside Shrine, a haunting sea lyric "Fog", the pathos of "Kinship". Told at Twilight, Seedlings, the beautiful stanzas of "Supplication", "Up Hill" with its grim philosophy ending in a line of optimism, and other verses with Miss Caruthers' delicacy of fancy and in her graceful phraseology.

Some of the most appealing of the poems reprinted are inspired by personal sorrow—great-hearted tributes to one rarely gifted with charm and skill in artistry and expression, as indicated by the foreword:

FOR FAITH.

We walked together many a mile—
Like silver threads the future shone

Before us. Now, a weary while
It is, since I've gone on alone;

So, when my sad heart tries to sing,
It can not — for remembering!

ACCOUNTANT'S SUIT IS SETTLED WITHOUT TRIAL

In the superior court here Wednesday settlement without trial was effected in the $2,500 damage suit brought by John F. Murphy, an accountant of New London against Isadore Opper of New Haven. The case was to have been tried before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury.

Murphy claimed that he rendered services to Opper in straightening out the income tax returns, after the books and records of the defendant were examined by U. S. revenue agents, and disclosed certain discrepancies of upwards of $190,000.

Murphy claimed that he relieved Opper of paying penalties, etc., in excess of $40,000, by his services.

District Y. M. C. A. Meeting

At the supper hour Wednesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. representatives of Y. M. C. A. from New London, Willimantic, Norwich and Windham county met to discuss the interests of the association work as it relates to the national foreign and home work and also the state work. James L. Case, national councilor, presided and a very profitable session was held. State Secretary Harry Henley Smith of New Haven was a guest and brought to the meeting much valuable information regarding the larger work of the institution.

ULINE FOR CUT

Opposing Closed Season On Woodcock

A strenuous protest is being entered by the sportsmen of Massachusetts against a closed season on woodcock. This protest has been hastened on account of agitation from the middle west urging that a closed season be made on these birds, owing to their scarcity in that region.

There is unanimous opinion that breeding woodcock are steadily increasing in Massachusetts and the whole of New England judging by the answers which have been received from 250 questionnaires sent to sportsmen and sportsman's clubs in Massachusetts by the Massachusetts Fish and Game Protective association of Boston.

During the past two seasons there has been a large number of nesting birds in localities where they have not been seen for many years, each pair of birds raising normal broods.

Post Office Warning

Post office officials at Washington, D. C., have requested Postmaster C. K. Bailey to call attention of the public to the fact that instructions for repairs, directions for making garments and other unauthorized inscriptions are being inclosed with articles mailed as third and fourth class matter, although such illegal inclosure subjects the parcel to first class rates.

The attention of the public is called to the conditions under which a communication or other first class mail may be attached to the parcel. The envelope should be attached to the parcel on the outside with first class postage attached.

The Norwich police, who grow accustomed to all sortsof weather reported the first real snow of the winter about 10.30 Wednesday evening.

OBITUARY

Frank E. Greene

On Tuesday morning the death of Frank E. Greene of Ledyard occurred at the Backus hospital, after an illness of nearly three months. Mr. Greene was born in West Woodstock, Feb. 9, 1861 a son of the late Caleb and Maria Greene. He lived on the home place until about 10 years ago, and since that time in East Woodstock, East, Greenwich and at Gales Ferry.

Mr. Greene's only survivor is a sister, Mrs. Florence G. Hayter of Clinton, Mass. Burial is to be in West Woodstock.

Mrs. George W. Merry

Mrs. Orra Merry, 58, of No. 324 West Preston street, Hartford, widow of George W. Merry, died Tuesday night at her home after a short illness. She was born in Scotland, Conn., a daughter of Mrs. Ira A. Bill and the late Amos W. Bill and had been a resident of Hartford for twenty years. She leaves a daughter, Miss Grace A. Merry of Hartford and a son, A. Gordon Merry of Huntington, W. Va.

Henry W. Rogers

Henry W. Rogers, 86, retired marine engineer, died of pneumonia Nov. 22 in Los Angeles, Cal., where he had been a resident for six years following his removal from Uncasville, according to word received here Wednesday. Death followed an illness of one week. Mr. Rogers has been a resident of Uncasville nearly all of his life until his retirement.

He was born in Uncasville, April 12, 1840. As a boy of 15 he began his career on the water as an employe of the Fall River Line Steamship Co. For a number of years he was employed on vessels plying from Fall River to Providence, to New York. He had been a marine engineer for nearly 50 years. For a quarter of a century prior to his retirement he was employed as a marine engineer by the Coney Island Steamship line, between New York and Coney Island. He was formerly a member of the Association of Marine Engineers of America.

Mr. Rogers is survived only by a daughter, Mrs. Winfield Hogaboom of Los Angeles. Mrs. Hogaboom arrived in this city Wednesday, a few hours before the arrival of the body, which was sent here by rail.

NATURALIST MAKES PLEA TO SAVE THE SONG BIRDS

Under the auspices of the Norwich Rotary club a free illustrated lecture was given Wednesday evening at Slater Memorial hall by Joseph H. Dodson of Bird Lodge, Kankakee, Ill., president of the American Audubon association.

Mr. Dodson was introduced by the Rotary president, Edward A. Harris, and the speaker's pictures and words were of compelling interest to the good sized audience as he showed views of bird life, particularly referring to the song birds and pointing out their value as destroyers of countless numbers of insects. At the present time, said Mr. Dodson, our song birds are fast disappearing and he is making it his mission to arouse the people to help save the remnants of our feather songsters.

He has been studying birds for 45 years and he pointed out methods which would be successful in attracting song birds to a locality and inducing them to stay there. This was through putting up the kinds of houses which the birds like for nests, supplying them with places where they know they can find food and shelter from storms, and providing nesting material, such as horsehair, string and old gummy sacks which the birds will shred up to build into their nests.

Towards one bird, the English sparrow, Mr. Dodson spoke his wholehearted aversion, declaring it should be eliminated, and towards cats he was equally bitter because their destructiveness towards bird life. The one useful place for a cat, he declared, was in a grave at the foot of a flowering shrub or a fruit tree.

SEEKS FORECLOSURE ON SILEX MINE PROPERTY

Suit has been brought in the superior court for foreclosure of a judgment lien upon four tracts of land of the Connecticut Silica corporation in Ledyard and North Stonington by Charles Arthur Richards of New York. The judgment was obtained by Mr. Richards in the superior court, June 11, 1926, for $2,734.55 and $75.61 costs.

The property covered is the well known silex mine at Lantern Hill.

MRS. ROSEMARY ANDERSON ADDRESSES ROTARY CLUB

Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson of New London, a director of the Long Lane farm, spoke Monday at the weekly luncheon meeting of Middletown Rotary club held in Hotel Arrigoni. She urged the members of the organization to take interest in child welfare work and to accomplish anything which might aid the cause. The address was very well received, according to The Middletown Press.

CHILD GETS SICK CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

Look at tongue! Then give fruity laxative for stomach, liver, bowels

"California Fig Syrup" can't harm children and they love it

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup Company."

To Attend Wedding in Brooklyn

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Greenstein and family and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Greenstein and family have left for Brooklyn, N. Y., to attend the marriage of their son and brother, Morris Greenstein, who is a lawyer, to Miss Freda Engelman, a teacher. The wedding will be held Sunday afternoon, Dec. 5, at the De Luxi Palace in Brooklyn.

They also expect to visit many interesting places while they are in New York for a two weeks' stay.

Woodchopper Fined

Carl Brown, negro woodchopper of Ledyard, was fined $5 and costs by Justice of the Peace Walter M. Buckingham at Ledyard Tuesday on a charge of breach of the peace. The man was arrested by the state police of the Groton barracks Monday night following complaints from residents of that section.

Men Have Bible Study

At the Men's Bible class at the Norwich "Y" Wednesday evening a very interesting study was held. James W. Jackson was the leader of the study and the group was well pleased with the thoughts he gave them.

PLAINFIELD TOWN TEAM HANDS NEW BRITAIN GUARDSMEN BAD BEATING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 1—At the community house here this evening the Plainfield town team gave a crushing defeat to the New Britain National Guard team, 34 to 25.

What threatened to be defeat for the local boys after the guardsmen had twice trounced the Bristol Endees, state champions, last week turned out to be a comparatively easy victory for Plainfield. Excellent pass work by the local boys gave them the edge in the early part of the game which they maintained throughout. From the moment of the toss-off the Plainfield team kept the ball in their control never giving their opponents a chance to work team play. Most of the New Britain baskets came from pop-shots from the center of the floor.

In the second half the New Britain five rallied and scored several successive baskets but a change in players who relieved the Plainfield forwards checked the onslaught and kept the tally within bounds.

In the preliminary game the Gudies walloped the Danielson Town team 33 to 19.

NOTRE DAME UP AGAINST TOUGH TEAM SATURDAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—(AP)—Only one team this fall has been able to withstand the shift attack of the eleven man backfield of the Notre Dame football squad, but in their tenth game of the season at Los Angeles next Saturday against the University of Southern California some of the drive may be lacking, according to their coach, Knute Rockne.

At the top of their form, none but the Minnesota battering ram was able to cross the Notre Dame goal line. The boys were mentally tired out when they succumbed to Carnegie Tech, Rockne said. Whether the week's rest from practice has revived them, the Trojans will find out Saturday afternoon.

Under Rockne's system of interchanging backfields, no one back has stood out much above his fellows. Four of his eleven ball carriers are dangerous open field runners. Four others are of the line smashing type, and there are three quarterbacks almost equally qualified for running the play and tossing passes. The greatest weakness of the team this year has been the lack of a good punter.

The Notre Dame backfield shift this year was the basis of most of Rockne's strategy but, it cost the team many penalties, when referees decided it violated the rule governing backfields in motion in the Northwestern game alone, the rooks drew 14 shift penalties.

The first play of the Notre Dame line, both on offense and defense has pave the way for the successes scored by the backfield galaxy. The Army backs failed to pierce the Rockne line further than the thirty yard mark, while the perfect covering of each defensive player after a big hole had been opened in the Army line, enabled Flanagan to go through tackle for 53 yards and a touchdown against the Cadets.

JEWETT CITY SPEEDBOYS ACCEPT GREENEVILLE OFFER

Sports Editor:

The Jewett City Speedboys were very pleased to find in Wednesday's Bulletin an article signed by the management of the Greeneville Tigers. Peculiar that the ferocious Tigers refused to meet the Speedboys on a decent, ruled field with competent unbiased officials but then the Greenevillites sporting angle is a queer one. However inasmuch as the gate will be divided 60-40 with the winner receiving the larger share, the Speedboys will gladly meet the elusive Tigers on the J. B. Martin field Sunday.

In justice to both teams, it is hoped that the field will be marked off and police protection secured. All teams in eastern Conn. have voiced disapproval throughout the season at Greenevilles selection of officials and we wish that fair ones be chosen.

If the Speedboys win Sunday's game the championship is clinched while if the Tigers triumph a triple tie between the above teams and Westerly will be the outcome. So fans prepare to witness one of the hardest fought gridiron battles you have ever seen.

The Speedboys will start the following eleven: Capt. Smith and Moore, ends; Cobb and Maggia, tackles; Bakanowski, Skaradowski or Shea, guards; Sawicki, center; Allard, Gallup, French and Parkhurst, backs. Mondor, Sweet and Derda, utility.

Manager of Jewett City Speedboys.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MAY NOT SUPPORT LANDIS AGAIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Support of K. M. Landis for re-election as baseball commissioner by a majority of American league club owners hinges upon revision of his agreement with the two major circuits, Col. Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York Yankees said today.

While the Yankees owner declined to specify the changes in the contract which are under consideration, baseball men here interpreted his remarks as indicating a concerted effort by American league magnates to curtail the authority of Landis at the joint meeting of the leagues in Chicago, on Dec. 16.

The possibility of altering his agreement is not considered bright, however, since National league owners already have indicated their desire to return Landis to office for another seven-year term without change in the conditions under which he rules virtually with absolute authority.

WEST VIRGINIA COMPLETES GRID SCHEDULE FOR 1927

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 1.—(AP)—With announcement that Davis Elkins college will be played Nov. 12, West Virginia university's football schedule for 1927 has been completed.

The schedule, probably the most difficult ever arranged for the mountaineers, calls for games on successive Saturdays with Pitt, Lafayette, Georgetown, Carnegie Tech and Missouri. The annual Thanksgiving day battle with Washington and Jefferson closes the season. Other opponents will be Washington and Lee, West Virginia, Wesleyan and Davis Elkins.

MABBUTT CLAIMS DEMPSEY WAS VICTIM OF POISON

BALTIMORE, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Poison in Jack Dempsey's coffee the Saturday before his fight with Gene Tunney at Philadelphia, sent the champion to defeat, Captain Charles J. Mabbutt, generalissimo of the Dempsey training camp, charges in an article written for the Baltimore News today.

"It is now more than nine weeks since Jack Dempsey lost his heavyweight boxing crown to Gene Tunney at Philadelphia," Captain Mabbutt says. "I have purposely refrained up to this time from discussing in detail what happened at Dempsey's training camp at Atlantic City, but after due deliberation I offer as my firm belief that both Dempsey and I, as well as his trainer, Jerry the Greek, were victims of foul play, and that a poisonous substance introduced into the cream used by our party did the work."

Describing what he says he has satisfied himself to be "the facts of the case," Captani Mabbutt says:

"On the Saturday preceding the fight Dempsey, Mike Trent, his bodyguard, Jerry the Greek and I had breakfast with him as usual at Carney cottage in West Atlantic City, where Jack made his home, while he was training. This was about 7 a. m.

"After Saturday, Dempsey did practically no training, and barring punching the bag for a few rounds Sunday, he discontinued active work of any kind. He was a sick man."

He said all at the Saturday breakfast table except Mike Trent drank cream in their coffee on Saturday morning. Trent, he said, took black coffee and was not sick.

TRANT CLAIMS POISONING STORY IS ALL BUNK

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—(AP)—Sergeant Mike Trant, Chicago detective and Jack Dempsey's bodyguard, always takes cream in his coffee—and so he termed today as "a lot of bunk" a statement by Capt. Charles J. Mabbutt, generalissimo of Jack Dempsey's training camp, and which was printed in the Baltimore news.

The statement said that Mabbutt, Jerry the Greek, Dempsey's trainer, Dempsey himself and Trant, had breakfast together the Saturday morning preceding the fight with Gene Tunney and that all except Trant were made ill by what Mabbutt believed was poisoned cream served with coffee. Trant, the statement said, did not use cream, and was not made sick.

"I always take cream with my coffee and tea," Trant said tonight. "Furthermore, I don't remember seeing Mabbutt at any meals with the Dempsey party. He ate in another part of town."

"Although Dempsey was not his old self, he was not poisoned when he went into the ring to fight Tunney. If he was poisoned, then it was done in some mysterious way after the fourth round, for in that round, he was in wonderful fighting form. I do not think it possible that Dempsey could have been the victim of foul play before the fight. And he fought squarely, for he valued the championship even above Rockefeller's millions."

GIBSON SCOFFS AT CHARGES OF POISONING

CLEVELAND, Dec. 1—(AP)—Billy Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney and Ray Campbell, the heavyweight champion's personal representative, in a statement tonight scoffed at the charges of Captain Charles J. Mabbutt that Jack Dempsey was poisoned the day he lost his crown to Tunney.

He declared that Dempsey was at his best, physically, when he met the present champion, adding that "Jack, great fighter that he was, never saw the day when he could defeat Tunney."

Gibson and Campbell are here without "Kid" Kaplan, former featherweight champion, who boxes Billy Wallace tomorrow night.

CINCINNATI CLUB MAY BUY COLUMBUS FRANCHISE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Officials and directors of the Cincinnati National league baseball club decided today to make a definite offer within a week to purchase the Columbus franchise in the American association.

The decision was reached here at a conference of Cincinnati officials with Joe F. Carr, president of the Columbus club. The offer is to be made directly to Thomas E. Wilson, Chicago packer, who owns the association team.

The proposed purchase price was not made known by August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati club, who made the announcement. Some time ago Mr. Wilson wanted $200,000 for the franchise.

Members of the Cincinnati delegation said the Columbus club, if purchased, will be used as a "farm" for youngsters and other players whom the Cincinnati Reds expect to develop. Several major league clubs now follow similar practices.

FLOWERS FINISHES WORK FOR BOUT WITH WALKER

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—(AP)—Tiger Flowers, world's middleweight champion, today finished training for the defense of his title against Mickey Walker, one-time welterweight title-holder, at the Coliseum Friday night.

The match will be ten rounds to a referee's decision, with indications it will draw a crowd of 10,000, with the gate receipts close to $90,000.

Flowers has agreed to make the middleweight limit of 160 pounds at 3 p. m. Friday. He scaled 162 pounds after today's light session. Followers of Walker, who is going into the ring around 155 to 158 pounds, believe he has an excellent chance of winning.

Walker also finished his training today, stepping a pair of fast rounds with a southpaw lightweight.

MATSYUAMA TAKES LEAD IN BILLIARD PLAY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1—(AP)—Displaying brilliant form, especially in his masse shots and nursing, Kinrey Matsyuama, defending his title as national junior 18.2 balkline billiard champion against Ary Bos, Philadelphia challenger, jumped into the lead tonight in the second block of their 1200 point match.

At the end of the block Matsyuama had scored 800 points to 674 for the challenger, giving the titleholder a lead of 126.

CARNEGIE MAY PLAY NORTHWESTERN NEXT YEAR

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Carnegie Tech, conquerors of Notre Dame, may play Northwestern, co-champions with Michigan of the western conference, next year.

According to announcement by Graduate Manager Clarence Overend, Northwestern has invited Carnegie to play at Soldiers' stadium, Chicago, Oct. 29 of next year. The Tartans already are scheduled to meet West Virginia university on that day, but it was considered possible that some shift may be made in the schedule of one of the two teams.

DELANEY GETTING IN SHAPE TO DEFEND HIS TITLE

Jack Delaney has fired the opening gun of the training campaign to prepare him for the defense of his light heavyweight title this winter. The sharp-shooting Bridgeporter started active training Tuesday at his Park city quarters and worked ten rounds of rope skipping, shadow boxing and bag punching without even breathing heavily at the finish.

Pete Reilly, astute manager of the light heavyweight king, arrived in Bridgeport Wednesday to personally supervise Delaney's training. Mr. Reilly watches Jack like a hawk and attends to the smallest detail himself relative to his charge's conditioning. Pete said that three or four of the best sparring partners available would be mustered into service to help the champion get into tip-top fettle. It is likely that Georgie Ward and Happy Howard will be two of the trio to act as sparring mates.

Delaney will defend his title at least twice during the indoor season. He will figure in his first bout since winning the crown from Berlenbach when he faces Jamaica Kid, troublesome colored battler, in a fifteen round titular event at the state armory, Waterbury, on Friday, December 10th.

This contest is considered as a tune-up for Delaney's contest on the big Christmas fund show program at Madison Square Garden in December against an opponent yet to be named. That Delaney's newly worn laurels will be at stake and that he does not consider Jamaca Kid as a soft mark, is evidenced by the fact that Champion Jack is training just as hard for the Waterbury setto as he did for any other battle, including his championship tilts with Paul Berlenbach. Delaney does not underrate any opponents and always gets himself into top-notch condition. Besides Delaney and Jamaica Kid, some of the best boxers in the country will swing into action on the all-star program in the Brass city. Sammy Vogel, one of the foremost contenders for Sammy Mandell's lightweight diadem, will meet Cliksy Clarke, fast-rising Holyoke youngster, in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. Tony Canzoneri, sensational New York featherweight and conqueror of Andre Routis, will trade punches with Mike Esposito, Connecticut champion, in another eight spot. Another match over the same route will bring together Fred Bretonnel, French lightweight, and Tony Travers, classy New Haven battler.

BALTIC INDEPENDENTS TAKE FAST GAME FROM NORDICS

At the Baltic gym on Wednesday evening the Baltic Independents took a fast and hard-fought game from the Taftville Nordics by a score of 33 to 33. Les Pingree center for the Nordics was the star of the game caging 8 baskets from the floor and two from the foul line for a total of 18 points. He was closely followed by Provencher and Douville who each scored 10 points for their team. The summary:

DONOHUE BACK OF BILL TO REPEAL FIGHT FILM LAW

NEW LONDON, Dec. 1—(AP)—Following recommendations made to him by Thomas E. Donohue of this city, state athletic commissioner, Congressman Richard P. Freeman of this city at the session of the 69th congress which convenes next Monday, will introduce a bill seeking the repeal of present legislation prohibiting the interstate transportation of prize-fight films. The National Athletic association, whose membership is comprised of boxing and athletic officials of the various states is back of the plan, and at its recent convention in Detroit adopted a resolution submitted by Mr. Donohue, which called for an active campaign to secure the repeal of the existing law.

CONN. AGGIES TO PLAY BOSTON COLLEGE IN 1927

NEWTON, Mass., Dec. 1—(AP)—Georgetown, which last met Boston college in football in 1923, when the Boston eleven won, 31 to 0, appears again on the 1927 schedule of the Eagles. The game will be played on November 18.

The Boston college football schedule for next season, made public tonight, includes games with two new opponents, Geneva and Connecticut Aggies.

INGRAM PRAISES SPIRIT OF HIS NAVY ELEVEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—"Character, courage and a never-say-die spirit" carried the 1926 Naval academy football team undefeated through one of the stiffest schedules of any team in the country, in the opinion of its coach, William A. (Navy Bill) Ingram.

"They're just a bunch of fine, clean boys, playing the game of their lives," said Ingram, "but they're the best outfit I ever coached and the greatest Navy team I ever saw."

BROWN AND PENN. PLAYERS SHARE HONORS ON A. P. ALL-AMERICAN TEAM

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Brown and Pennsylvania share major honors in the selection of all-eastern gridiron stars for 1926, according to a consensus of coaches and newspaper critics, compiled by the Associated Press.

Each university placed two outstanding players on the first all-eastern team—Brown, with Roy Randall at quarterback and Captain Broda at end; Pennsylvania, with Jack Butler at center and Charley Rogers at halfback.

The canvass found little difference of opinion on line positions, indicating that the players chosen stood far ahead of their rivals, in the estimation of Atlantic seaboard critics. Harry Connaughton, giant Georgetown guard, polled the heaviest vote, but he was not far ahead of Frank Wickhorst, Navy tackle and captain.

Vic Hanson, versatile Syracuse captain, and Broda were almost unanimous choices for the wings, although the class of men in these positions was regarded as unusually high this season. Butler had little opposition for the pivotal position the poll showed, but there was a sharp contest for the other tackle position, with Sprague of Army barely gaining a lead over such stars as Cothra of Lafayette and Lassman of N. Y. U.

A wide difference of opinion prevailed in picking backfield men, although Randall was a strong favorite for quarterback, Rogers, of Pennsylvania, Kirkleski, Lafayette captain, and Amos of Washington and Jefferson gained the first team positions as critics showed a disclination to favor such stars as Noble of Yale and Slagle of Princeton because of their inaction, due to injuries, and to select Wilson of the Army, because of his long varsity experience.

The selections:

First Team	Second Team
Hanson, Syracuse	Born, Army
End
Wickhorst, Navy	Cothran, Lafayette
Tackle
Connaughton, Georgetown	Sturhahn, Yale
Guard
Butler, Pennsylvania	Davis, Dartmouth
Center
Carey, Cornell	Schmidt, Army
Guard
Sprague, Army	Lassman, N. Y. U.
Tackle
Broda, Brown	Hubbard, Geneva
End
Randall, Brown	Dooley, Dartmouth
Quarterback
Rogers, Penn.	Slagle, Princeton
Halfback
Kirleski, Lafayette	Wilson, Army
Halfback
Amos, W. & J.	Shaughnessy Colgate
Fullback

Honorable mention, end, Thayer, Penn.; Archouka, Syracuse; McGrath, Georgetown; Timm, Colgate; Towle, Brown; Saltonstall, Harvard.

Tackle—Eddy, Navy; Pennsylvania; Mankat, Colgate; Yoder, Carnegie Tech; Kevorikan, Brown; Coady, Harvard; Richards, Yale.

Guard — Smith, Brown; Davis, Princeton; Farber, Brown; Pauly, W. and J.; Dumont, Colgate; McHenry, West Va.; Lynn, Pittsburgh.

Center — Daly, Army; Gamache, Harvard.

Quarterback—Mehler, Colgate; Caulkins, Princeton; Connor, N. Y. U.; Harding, Army, Harpster, Carnegie Tech.

Backs—Wilson, Lafayette; Donohue, Carnegie Tech; Hamilton, Navy; Mishel and Lawrence, Brown; Murrell, Army; Noble, Yale; Carr, Syracuse; Cooke, W. and J.; Welch, Pitt.; Nork, Georgetown.

J. C. Pros. Practice

The Jewett City Pros, one of the fastest basketball teams in this section last year, has again organized for the present season and are now booking games. Dynamite Joe Faber, will direct the team on the floor and C. J. Parkhurst will handle the affairs for the club. Practice has been going on for the past two weeks and backers are favorably impressed with the condition and ability of the squad. Joe Barry, one of the mainstays of last year's team will not be available this year as he is attending college. Porky Blake, famed for his one hand trick shots will be at one of the guard positions and a newcomer in the pro ranks, Sawicki, will likely hold down the other back court position. As the class of candidates is so large and competition so keen Capt. Faber will not announce the other position selections until next week.

Teaming desiring games please write C. J. Parkhurst, Box 14, J. C.

Hagen Makes Perfect Score

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 1—(AP)—C. L. Hagen of Pittsburgh won the hundred target trapshoot here today with a perfect score of 100.

SPORTING NOTES

(By The Associated Press)

The field of 28 bicycle stars gathered for the 41st international six-day race at Madison Square Garden starting Sunday night is equally divided between American and foreign riders. Six Italians, three Belgians, two Frenchmen, two Australians and one German will face the American pedders.

The return of "Bill" Carrigan to baseball as manager of the Boston Americans is probably will bring back to prominence the old Red Sox star's "safety first" style of play. While leading Boston to world series' triumphs in 1915 and 1916, Carrigan coached his team to play for single runs, rather than the dashing style of attack that brought great reward or none at all.

Mickey Walker, former king of the welterweights, has shown such sterling form in training for his tilt with Tiger Flowers, the middleweight champion, in Chicago Friday night, that New York fans have made him a favorite to lift the Negro's crown. Although Walker lost to the late Harry Greb, and Flowers twice defeated the Pittsburgh windmill, Flowers has been knocked out several times and Mickey packs a wicked wallop, the experts point out.

Alexander Karkawienko, mammoth Russian wrestler, who failed to appear against Waldek Zbyszko in New York a few days ago, has a unique explanation to lay before the state athletic commission. While watching a preliminary bout, two chance acquaintances in the audience offered him a cigarette. A couple of puffs and Alex awoke in Central park, he says.

The injuries and misfortunes that dogged the Yale football eleven this season seems to have turned on the basketball five with the end of the pigskin campaign. Dick Jones, baseball captain, and star forward for two years, is in scholastic difficulties along with Merrill, outstanding forward of the freshman team last year. Frankel, another varsity prospect, has retired because of injury.

OFFICERS INSTALLED AND ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

Officers for Division No. 54, A. O. H., Ladies' auxiliary, were installed by the county president, Mrs. William Malone, of Taftville, at the division meeting held Wednesday evening in A. O. H. hall. The following were installed: President, Miss Nellie McCarthy; vice president, Mrs. Joseph Fitzgerald; recording secretary, Mrs. Charles O'Neil; financial secretary, Miss Catherine Sullivan; treasurer, Mrs. Timothy Brewer; mistress at arms, Mrs. Thomas Connelly; chairman of standing committee, Mrs. John McCarthy; sentinel, Mrs. Edward McCaffrey.

Following the installation, the 13th anniversary of the division was observed with a banquet with the attendance of 75, the tables being very prettily decorated. Mrs. John McHale was toastmistress and interesting remarks were made by Mrs. Julia Brock, state treasurer and retiring president of the division, with solos by Mrs. Susie Malone, Mrs. John McCarthy and Miss Nellie Nagle.

The retiring officers were the committee in charge with Mrs. Julia Brock as chairman.

WAS FORMER STOREKEEPER IN WEST STAFFORD

George W. Barlow, 47, a resident of Stafford Springs for more than 20 years, died in the Norwich state hospital Tuesday morning, after an illness of several months. He suffered a nervous breakdown early in the summer.

Mr. Barlow conducted a grocery and general store in West Stafford. He was an active member of the West Stafford Congregational church.

He was born in 1879 at Westford, the son of Anson G. Barlow and Jennie (Wilson) Barlow.

Mr. Barlow leaves a wife, Mrs. Myrtle (Willis) Barlow of West Stafford and three sons, Milton, Claude, and Robert Stanley. He also leaves two brothers, Everett H. Barlow of Westford, and Herbert C. Barlow of New Britain, and three sisters, Mrs. Archer Walker, of Eastford; Mrs. Gladys Nichols of Spring Hill, Mansfield, and Mrs. Grace Thompson, of Southbridge, Mass.

VAUDEVILLE'S GROWTH IS BEING CELEBRATED

NEW YORK, Dec. 1. (AP)—Vaudeville in celebrating its centennial in America, is demonstrating that the first 100 years were the hardest. The third generation of performers finds conditions in the modern theater entirely foreign to those of the early days.

A search for new talent to take advantage of the new conditions is a feature of the centennial celebration, which opens tomorrow, the anniversary of the first recognized vaudeville performance in the country. Special programs for the observance which extends to May, are being arranged by circuits throughout the country.

The beginning of variety entertainment in this country was inauspicious when on December 5, 1826, the Lafayette theater in New York began to emphasize what previously had been entre-act attractions in legitimate productions.

Among the early exploiters was T. Barnum, the circus man. Tony Pastor was one of the most famous of the early producers. In 1885, B. F. Keith and E. F. Albee, now extensive vaudeville producers, joined forces and pressed a determination to "lift variety out of the gutter and make it an honest member of society."

At that time variety was for the most part a strictly "stag" entertainment given in beer halls and renovated dance halls, with eating and drinking accompanying the acts. Slapstick, rough and tumble, and obscenity were common. Keith and Albee began to build theaters and enlist big names for their enterprise, which they rechristened vaudeville to escape the taint of the old title.

Within a few weeks nine new vaudeville theaters will be dedicated, the agencies here announce, while 40 theaters of the lastest design, have been completed within the last two years.

WESTERLY

MERRILL POST HOLDS ITS ANNUAL ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 1.—Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, Rhode Island American Legion, with Commander Walter F. Thorp of Pawcatuck, who has since been elected Rhode Island state commander, held its sixth annual meeting for election of officers at the post rooms in the Traggis block this evening. From the slate presented by the nominating committee, the following officers were elected: Commander, Abial B. Brown; first vice commander, John L. Sullivan; second vice commander, Edward W. Smith; chaplain, the Rev. A. L. Schoning; adjutant, D. Gerard Shea; treasurer, Robert M. Freestone; sergeant at arms, James I. Rose.

The new officers will be installed Wednesday night, Dec. 15. In connection with the second December meeting and installation ceremonies there will be an entertainment.

Officers of the Legion are making an effort to obtain in advance as many signed membership cards for 1927 as possible, in order that Merrill post may again receive a citation from national headquarters. During the past year the Westerly post led all of the other Rhode Island posts in a membership contest, thereby winning the Lester B. Carpenter trophy.

The following committees were named: Executive, Walter F. Thorp, Harold S. Barber, George J. Kemp, Rogers E. Trainer, John Smith; finance, Franklin C. Smith, J. Harold Kenyon, J. H. Farnsworth; social, James Agras, Edwin Barber, Jr., C. B. Price, William Critcherson, James Peale; house, John Beattie, Anthony Turo, Frank Colosaki; publicity, Arthur Mills, Frank W. Stolpe.

The nominating committee was H. Russell Burdick, George J. Kemp, Harold Barber and John Smith.

The Rhode Island state convention in 1927 will be held at Central Falls State Commander Thorp is in attendance at an executive committee meeting of the national convention at Indianapolis, Ind.

Sale of anti-tuberculosis seals and stamps is progressing in Westerly for the output of the annual Christmas stickers continues at a favorable rate, although no totals as yet are announced.

Westerly Historical society, Everett E. Whipple, president, will hold its regular December meeting this (Thursday) evening in the assembly hall of the memorial and public library building. The speaker will be Miss Katherine W. Foster, who will take for her subject, "Old Epitaphs" This meeting, as well as all other meets of the Westerly Historical society, is open to the public.

FUNERAL WEDNESDAY OF CHARLES A. MORGAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 1.—The funeral of Charles A. Morgan, Westerly insurance man and philanthropist, who died suddenly Sunday morning, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late home, No. 13 Elm street.

The brief services were conducted by Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church who also conducted the committal service at River Bend cemetery.

Acting as bearers were John Peabody, Robert Drysdale, Frank Burdick, George H. Bray, Joseph U. McFarland and Walter H. Krebs.

At the hour of the services the home was filled to its capacity with business associates and friends, who had gathered to pay a final tribute to a man who had been successful in his vocation and was beloved by a host of friends. The many beautiful floral tributes attested to the high esteem in which he was held by both his business associates and friends at home.

Among the large pieces were those from the T. B. club, Westerly lodge of Elks, Pawcatuck lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, Palmer chapter, R. A. M., Narragansett commandery, K. T., Palestine temple, Mystic Shrine, the board of trustees of the Westerly hospital, the Rhode Island Insurance company, Directors' Insurance company, Royal Insurance company, and the Washington county board of fire underwriters.

Among those from out-of-town who attended the services representing insurance companies with whom Mr. Morgan had done business for many years, were: Alfred Spencer, president of the Hartford Etna National bank of Hartford, Conn.; H. F. Warren of Providence, representing the North British & Mercantile Insurance company; W. H. Boutell, president of the New England Insurance exchange; Elliott Beardsley of Hartford, C. H. Senter of Boston, Clinton Elwell of Boston, E. M. Fuller of E. L. Watson & Co., Providence; William A. Quigley of Boston, J. F. Gough of Boston and H. A. Wiley of Providence.

Little action resulted on Tuesday evening from the meeting of the Westerly zoning commission in the Westerly town hall, but the Westerly town council will be asked to take action on the question of changing Residence A district at Watch Hill to a business district as a result of recommendations from members of the Westerly zoning commission and a group representing the Watch Hill improvement society.

The proposed change was first suggested prior to a hearing before the town council last week, and following a petition of John L. Breen and Thomas L. Breen of Westerly, to sell a portion of the property in the territory under construction to John D. Nichols of Westerly, for establishment of his fish business. Decision at that hearing was void, inasmuch as there was not a quorum of the council members present.

At the close of a meeting lasting almost until midnight, members of the building code committee of the town council and a lay committee representing carpenters and builders of Westerly Tuesday night came to a unanimous agreement that building ordinances should be adopted for what is known as the First voting district of Westerly, but that a building code plan would not be necessary for the outlying sections or the Second district.

The council building code committee, according to Chairman Roger E. Trainor, will revise the ordinances to confine their suggestions to District 1 and the matter of adopting the code will be presented at the financial town meeting next year.

John O. Mills left Westerly Wednesday for a business visit in Boston.

Herbert F. Rothemich of Pawtucket, R. I., was business caller in Westerly the first of the week.

Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck left Wednesday for a business visit in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Fontana, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Stoddard and Mrs. Fred D. Sisson were Westerly visitors in Providence Tuesday afternoon.

Master Clarence A. Vars, John R. Oppy, and John DeFanti, members of Franklin lodge, No. 30, F. and A. M., of Westerly, were in New London Tuesday evening to attend the Past Masters' meeting of Union lodge of that city.

Mrs. Aniello Matarese returned home Tuesday night from a visit with relatives in New York.

Narragansett commandery, No. 27, Knights Templar, Arthur J. Card, commander, held a regular conclave in their asylum, on High street Wednesday evening when routine business and rehearsal of officers duties was carried on.

Mrs. Arthur L. Perry left Westerly Wednesday morning for a visit in Providence.

Mrs. Maybel Vose Chapman was a visitor in Providence Wednesday afternoon.

After visiting Westerly relatives and friends Robert G. Thackeray returned to Providence Wednesday afternoon.

David K. Hoxsie of Canonchet left Wednesday afternoon for a visit in Providence.

Mrs. Edward W. Pitcher was a visitor in Providence Wednesday afternoon.

Merrill F. Ramsey of Boston of the Continental Insurance company, who was the first sergeant of Co. C, 102 Machine Gun Battery, 26th division, A. E. F., in which outfit H. Russell Birdick of Westerly was a lieutenant, was in Westerly Wednesday afternoon to attend the funeral of Charles A. Morgan.

The last checker games of the series between Kenneth Steele and eLo McGrath, of Mystic, to determine the champion of the two towns, were played at Traves hall. A large crowd filled the hall. The first match went to the boy up the river by several moves and many times he got a good hand from the crowd for his playing. But Steele fighting in the second match beat his rival badly and he failed to get a king. That made it one to one. The last match was the best as both men were fighting hard to win, so the crowd saw some good playing, but Steele won the last game by one move. McGrath tried for a block game but Steele saw his chance and got the move ahead of him. The players had cake and coffee with their managers. Steele therefore is the champion of both places. Sam Main was the manager of Steele, while McGrath had Elliott Bendett for his manager.

Steele received a traveling bag from his friends. The referee was Paul Sullivan; judges, William Fitzgrath, P. Crumb and P. Clay.

4-H CLUB WORK SHOULD BE EXPANDED

More than 565,000 farm boys and girls are enrolled in 4-H club work in the United States. They belong to about 41,000 separate clubs. There are about 11,000,000 young people on farms, all of whom could profit from learning better farm and home practices through club work. "The work should be so expanded," says Dr. C. B. Smith, chief of the office of cooperative extension work, in a new circular, "that all rural boys and girls who want to can take part in it and receive its benefits."

The organization, purposes and scope of 4-H club work are explained by Dr. Smith, who goes on to say that the outstanding characteristic of the work is that each member conducts a substantial piece of work, designed to show some better practice on the farm or in the home or community; keeps a record of results; explains the work to others; and makes a final report on the work. The individual boy or girl is reached through the national agricultural extension system, in which the United States department of agriculture, the land grant colleges, and various local agencies cooperate. Typical lines of club work are: Growing an acre or more of cotton in accordance with directions, raising a sow and litter of pigs according to instructions, growing fruit and vegetables in accordance with the dietary needs of the family, canning the surplus in the most approved ways, and other phases of farm and home work that especially appeal to young people.

The work is carried on with boys and girls 10 to 20 years of age, usually through groups of 10 to 20 members. These members not only come into contact with their local leaders, who know how to do things, but with the work of one another, in which rivalry plays a part, and with the public in field meetings, exhibits at fairs, festivals and demonstrations.

The particular value of club work is that it gets hold of young people while their minds are plastic and gives them guidance when they need it, teaches them some of the inspiring things in agriculture, and gives them visions of its possibilities as a life job. It provides opportunity for them to share home responsibilities in keeping with their ability and gives them a part in solving the problems of rural communities. It influences the farm and home practices of the members' families. It develops rural leadership. In short, the circular summarizes, "4-H club boys and girls are doers. They are taught high ideals and standards. They meet together, work together, play together, cooperate, achieve. They play the game fairly. They demonstrate, work, earn money, and acquire property. They learn and teach the better way on the farm, in the home, and in the community. They build up their bodies and their minds to think clearly, and their hearts to be kind."

TOO MUCH HAY BAD FOR HORSES

Most horses will eat 30 to 40 pounds of hay daily if it is kept before them all the time when they are idle. Records are available where a horse ate 40 pounds per day or at the rate of about a ton per month for a short period. Twelve to 15 pounds per day is not only all that the idle or lightly worked horse will need but they will be less liable to digestive troubles when the hay fed is limited to this amount.

Many farmers in Connecticut will be forced to buy hay in small quantities and on a high market this winter. Any way of saving hay which will not mean decreased returns from their livestock should be adopted in order to bring the amount of extra hay needed down to the smallest weight possible.

Three tons of hay per team of horses can be saved between now and haying time in 1927 by many farmers who feed all of the day the horses will take. This is likely to mean $75 or more in many sections of the state.

Twenty-three idle horses under the supervision of the Storrs Experimental station were fed on 13 to 16 pounds of hay and 2.67 pounds of grain daily for about five months two years ago. The horses were owned by the Bridgeport Ice Delivery company. They were weighed regularly and all hay and grain was weighed to each horse daily. The horses went on idle feed between October 14 and November 1 and were continued to March 25, 1925. The horses maintained their weight on an average. This light feeding was followed again last winter with equally good results.—John A. Simms, Connecticut Agricultural College.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING BY WISE CROP ROTATION

The starting point in business farming is crop rotation, or the establishment of systematic cropping systems to maintain soil productivity. The three farm practices which contribute most effectually to the production of such major crops as wheat, corn, and oats, are cultivation, crop rotation, and the use of fertilizers, both manure and commercial materials. These three operations rank almost equally in importance, but the bureau of soils of the United States department of agriculture points out that while the cultivation of the soil and the use of fertilizers are more or less expensive, rotation of crops does not appear as an item of expense in any farm cost-accounting system.

It is true that a farmer may spend time or energy in planning a rotation, that is, in determining a sequence of crops which will enable each crop to derive the maximum benefit from preceding crops and give the greatest benefit to subsequent crops, and in getting the rotation established on his farm. This, however, is counted as an expression of his managerial ability, for which he receives reward in the form of managerial income. If through good management he succeeds in realising net profits. Thus, in rotation of crops, a farmer has at his command, without any monetary cost to him, a means whereby he can materially increase the output of his land and reduce crop-production costs.

TIMELY TRICHINOSIS WARNING

"Cook pork well" is the seasonal warning of the United States department of agriculture. Uncooked or poorly cooked pork may result in the serious illness known as trichinosis. This disease, which is painful and frequently fatal, is caused by a small parasite that sometimes occurs in pork.

Hogs that harbor the parasites of trichinosis show no symptoms, and pork containing the parasites looks exactly the same as other pork. The most practical means of preventing the disease is thorough cooking of pork products. The heat of cooking destroys the parasites. Hence well-cooked pork is safe and trichinosis can not be acquired if the simple rule is followed of cooking pork well before it is eaten.

Outbreaks of trichinosis are generally most common during the holiday season when various special raw pork products and delicacies are consumed. The trouble also is likely to occur after the customary winter hog killing on farms, when raw products are eaten, hence the timeliness of the present warning. The main point to remember is to cook pork well.

MUCH LIME NEEDED ON CONNECTICUT FARMS

Enormous quantities of lime are needed on Connecticut farms. Fully 300,000 tons, or 10,000 cars of 30 tons each, would be required to seed the 100,000 acres of alfalfa. If alfalfa lives for five years, 30,000 tons would be required for reseeding each year. Pastures need much lime.

There will likely be a considerable acreage of sweet clover within ten years and this crop requires heavy liming. Most vegetable crops respond to lime. The lime actually needed in Connecticut is far greater than that now used. The use of lime is increasing but never will reach anything like the proper amount until lime is bought and handled as a quantity product. The original cost is only half the total cost with the ordinary methods of handling. While lower purchase costs may properly be sought, attention needs to be given to handling methods.

When is lime hauled? Hauling costs from one to three dollars a ton on the basis of time and equipment used. If hauled during the busiest days of spring, this cost may become much greater as other important work is delayed. Lime can be hauled, even spread, during the fall or winter. There are off seasons on every farm which may be utilized better by hauling and spreading the lime. Limestone can be piled in an old shed or even in the open and then spread by putting onto the loads of manure as it is hauled out. The frequently better condition of dirt roads in the fall or winter as compared with spring is another gain.

There are many fields which could be limed in the fall or winter. Corn stubble or other land to be seeded with clover or alfalfa in the spring will be in better shape than if limed just before seeding. The lime will be better incorporated with the soil when spread in the fall. Sod land fall plowed for corn is another splendid place for lime. Lime will improve the corn and the soil will be better prepared for the subsequent clover seeding. The old sour meadows may well be limed at any time. While lime may not benefit the present stand of grasses much, it will be here for incorporation when plowed.

Liming is one of the extra jobs about a farm. If done in the fall or winter there is no further procrastination. Spring liming often means no liming.

Lime is relatively low in cost per ton and many tons must be hauled. It will therefore not stand extra handling or storage charges. Even commission charges are usually not needed. A small group may buy a carload direct from the manufacturer. Frequently a whole car may be used on one farm. The number of farmers who buy a whole car of lime is rapidly increasing. Credit buying is always unsatisfactory on such a low value product.

Ground limestone is being quoted at three to four dollars a ton in bulk at the plant. If bagged, the cost is increased from 25 to 50 per cent. This bagging cost is very high in proportion to the original cost. Some farmers think there is an equivalent saving in handling when in bags, but this is doubtful. Many times the bulk product could be handled as easily or even easier.

"The cheapest lime I ever bought" is how Mr. Tompkeon of New Haven county described the car he bought last fall. It came in bulk and was hauled eight miles and dumped in the field at a cost of $1.50 per ton.

A common method in mid-western states is for a cooperative group to erect a storage bin at a central point on a railroad siding. The lime can then be hauled at the farmer's convenience. There are communities in this state where such a plan could be used to serve a dual purpose of making it easy to secure lime and thus increase its use. The storage expense can be kept less than the cost of paper bags.

There is no single solution to the problem of reducing the cost of lime. Yet we must have lime, much more of it than ever before. A substantial saving may be made by hauling and spreading when there is most time for it. Lime must be bought in large quantities. Services need to be reduced to a minimum; they are unnecessary.—J. S. Owens in Connecticut Agricultural College Review.

MOTOR SHEIKS IN NEW LONDON SAID TO BE OFFENSIVE TO WOMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 1—There is complaint of the automobile sheiks who seem to have an idea that they are attractive to women who walk the streets of this city. The sheiks drive up to the curbing and invite women to take a ride. While the autoists are generally snubbed, there have been a few instances where women have accepted the invitation. Women of character have notified the male members of their families of the liberties taken by the sheiks so that it would not be surprising to learn of arrests being made. The conduct of the masters is as much a breach of the peace as if blows were struck, or the vilest of language used."

LO! THE POOR LABORER LOANS FUNDS TO HIS BOSS!

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 1—Strange as it may seem, the fact came out today that an employer was borrowing money from an employe. The amount was not large to most men, but it was large enough to meet bills that were due and with which the establishment of the employer was kept going. Now surprise is expressed as to whether the employer or the employe is the more happily situated in life.

CAPT. LEMUEL H. WITHEY DIES IN NEW ORLEANS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 1—Capt. Lemuel H. Withey, former resident of New London, died last night at New Orleans, La., where he had been a resident many years and where he was employed by the Southern Pacific railroad as port captain of the steamship lines of the railroad. He was a brother of the late William H. Withey, former United States steamboat inspector in New London.

TALK OF SKATING POND AND PUBLIC CHRISTMAS TREE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 1—School boys are anxious that the city provide a skating place for them during the winter. The city can flood what has been known as Calkins park and make a skating place there, but whether that will be done is uncertain. The parents of children generally do not like to have the juniors go on the ice in the coves, because of the treacherous nature of salt water ice.

There is inquiry already as to whether the city is to provide a municipal Christmas tree and whether there will be dancing in State street, as during the period when the war was on. Some young men who are enthusiastic as to the dancing declared today that they would contribute to the expense of providing music for such a dance. New London never had as many dance places as it has now nor did the city ever have such places conducted as well as are the ball rooms of today.

The banks of this city are to begin sending out checks to all who have been saving money during the year in the Christmas clubs. The City bank, which was the pioneer in this city in the Christmas club enterprise, will send out some $40,000 Thursday night, so that the checks will be in the hands of their owners Friday morning. It is certain that much of the money will be distributed among the stores during the Christmas season, but it is equally certain that much of it will also be returned to the banks as deposits, to form the nucleus of a savings account that will be used for investment purposes. The little saver has absorbed the ideas of the people who receive dividends from investments and will make use of their savings so that the money will earn money. Some of the money will go into the banks again at the usual rate of interest paid by the savings banks.

The home of the late Mrs. Harriet Upson Allyn has for years been a landmark in this city. Now that Mrs. Allyn is dead it will pass to other owners. Situated at the corner of North Williams street and Mohegan avenue, it was familiar to all who rode north of the city. A large open acreage occupies the corner while the stone mansion stands a few hundred feet to the northward, on the Norwich turnpike. Mrs. Allyn's father, the late Lyman Allyn, was engaged some three generations ago in the whaling industry in which he accumulated a fortune. The family is among the oldest members of St. James' Episcopal church in which Lyman Allyn was a warden for many years. Mrs. Harriet U. Allyn had long been an invalid with nurses in attendance day and night.

G. O. Blood, when arrested some time ago, for violating the traffic ordinance that prohibits the parking of cars on the west side of Meridian street, near State, deposited a bond of $10 providing that he should appear to answer in court for his misdemeanor. He was to have been there this morning, but neglected his engagement, so his bond was called and his money was declared forfeited to the city. That was the only case before the court where business has dropped off in recent days. A week ago Monday there was about thirty cases before the court.

The customs house reported business quiet today, though the end of the year is at hand. The importations to this port have fallen to inconsequential volume in recent years. Rarely now is there a cargo brought to this port on which any duties are collectable.

The work of repairing the brick pavement on Bank street has progressed so that the work is nearly completed. It has been slow going, for the pavement was taken from the streets and then relaid when the bricks were worth using again. In some cases the bricks that were worn were turned over and the smooth side was placed on the surface, making as good a street as before the bricks were worn into grooves or broken.

Mrs. Laura Foley, of 36 West Pleasant street, employed as a clerk by the Connecticut Power company, believes that she has been made the victim of the act of maliciousness by one or more men and today reported that suspicion to the police after her automobile, which had been stolen, was found wrecked. Mrs. Foley last evening had her automobile placed in her garage, which is in the rear of her home. This morning when Mrs. Foley went to the garage, she discovered that it had been entered and further investigation revealed that the Ford sedan was missing. After reporting the theft at the police station, Mrs. Foley started to make a tour of the outskirts of the city in search of the automobile and when the search had been in progress but 15 minutes, Mrs. Foley found her auto badly damaged on Vauxhall street, but a short distance from where it was stolen. The police are investigating.

Robert McCarthy, well known mason and a member of the local masons and plasterers union, in which organization he is an office holder and also a member of F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company, is ill at his home, Connecticut avenue as a result of a shock. His condition is considered serious, although it is believed that he will recover because of his age for Mr. McCarthy is but about 50. Mr. McCarthy was employed at his trade Saturday, but Sunday he was stricken at his home.

George A. Golden, 68, who was retired by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad yesterday, had concluded 38 years of railroad service, the last of which was at Westerly where he had been employed many years as shipping clerk. He is a former resident of New London and for 18 years was employed in this city by the Central Vermont railroad and at one time was ticket agent at the Union station here.

Mrs. Ella Crean, of 8 Ocean avenue; Mrs. Harold Geer, 61 West street; Baby Eugene Sullivan, 557 Bank street and Mrs. Dayton Attwood, Hotel Mohican, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The New London police have been requested to maintain a lookout for George Kelly, who escaped from Norwich State hospital last evening. Kelly is described as being 16, about five feet six inches in height and weighs about 116 pounds. When he escaped Kelly had a blue sweater, blue shirt and black shoes.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the driver's license of Arthur Perry, Broad street extension, Waterford, suspended. Perry was convicted in the police court a week ago on charges of violation of the motor vehicle laws, failing to stop at a signal and driving an auto that was equipped with defective brakes.

Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh and Patrolman George Perkins started on their vacations of two weeks today. Traffic Officer William Graham and Patrolmen John Foley and Braxton Hill resumed their duties today after their vacations.

William R. Golding has sold to Mildred I Golding a building lot on Henry street.

Clara MacIntosh has sold a building lot on Henry street to William R. Golding.

The police tonight are investigating the alleged rape of a girl of 6 following complaint being made by the mother of the girl, but no tangible clue has been obtained that might lead to the identity and apprehension of the alleged perpetrator of the outrage. According to information given the police, the girl was on State street when she was accosted by a man and after making much of the child, he easily persuaded her to accompany him to a house where the crime is alleged to have been committed. The girl was then taken to the sidewalk and allowed to go to her home. She resides in the central part of the city and upon her return home the child informed her mother of her experience with the result that the police were sought in an endeavor to secure the arrest of the brute.

Girolini Girl, 35 Nameaug street was arrested this evening on a charge of breach of the peace and intoxication. In order to arrest Girl, he was forced from his bed and the arresting officers were compelled to partially dress him in order to bring him to police headquarters. Girl is an old offender and was fined $20 and costs in the police court last month for creating a disturbance at his home. Tonight Girl had been drinking and on entering the house is accused of creating a disturbance. He attacked his sister, biting her on the arm and then smashed a china plate upon the head of his aged mother, who is ill. Then he wrecked a window. A telephone message to police headquarters telling of Girl's actions caused Patrolmen William Riordan and Walter O'Neil to speed to the Girl house. There they found Girl abed and asleep. The mother and daughter related what had occurred and Girl was yanked from the bed and dressed. While the performance of placing Girl's clothes upon him was in progress he attempted to sink his teeth in Patrolman O'Neil's arm, but was baffled in this. A crowd of neighbors gathered in front of the house attracted by the disturbance at Girl's, for all are aware of his conduct when he returns home in drink. At the police station Girl protested against his arrest, declaring that he had done nothing to warrant such action and when lodged in a cell he became abusive and burst into tears as he denounced the police.

Students of Connecticut College for Women will give a public recital at the college auditorium Friday evening at 8 o'clock. A lengthy program of musical numbers has been arranged.

Ella Brown, an inmate at the State Farm for Women at Niantic made her escape from the institution this evening and in meagre raiment for the young woman was attired only in a nightgown and kimona. She is described as being 19 and has dark brown bobbed hair.

Miss Louise Corwin of East Lyme; Michael Presevorit, 40 Woodbridge street; Nathan Peck, 261 Huntington street and Mrs. Louis Margolis and infant son, 670 Bank street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Earl R. Edgcomb, 14 Hempstead street, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy charged with reckless driving and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Edgcomb's arrest resulted when a bus, which Edgcomb's auto crowded, narrowly averted running down Officer Murphy. The officer was on duty at the corner of State and Main streets and had signalled the bus driver to approach. The driver, Harry Nalian, speeded up the bus and as he did so, the automobile driven by Edgcomb and which had been parked beside the curb, started in motion and entered traffic without Edgcomb giving any sign. In order to avoid a collision, Nalian diverted the course of the bus, guided toward the left side of the street, at the same time applying his brakes with such force that the wheels locked and slid a considerable distance. Officer Murphy was in the path of the approaching bus and only missed being struck by his agility afoot.

When some people spend their time in self-contemplation it looks to others like a waste of time.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Goat for Elks' Initiation

A crowd gathered in front of the Elks club Wednesday afternoon to watch several men unload a huge crate from a motor truck. The animal inside could not be seen as the crate was kept covered with a canvas but the noise of the beast as he butted against the sides of the crate and his savage cries caused most of the bystanders to keep at a safe distance. It was reported that the crate contained the goat to be used by the Elks in their big initiation at their meeting Thursday evening, but as was heard from one of the crowd of onlookers—"If that is a goat in that cage; the Elks would have two goats if they told me that I had to ride him, for he would surely get my goat, too."

Palace Theater

Another great vaudeville show, bigger and better than the opening bill last week, is in store for the vaudeville fans at the Palace theater, for the last half of this week, commencing today. Five splendid big time acts direct from leading big time theaters will make merry in a variety of novelties. Every act a feature in itself. The Palace theater, on account of its convenient location, inviting atmosphere, and the untiring efforts of the new management in obtaining the best photoplays and vaudeville, is fast becoming the ideal playhouse for those who want to assure themselves of a good afternoon or evenings pleasure. Along with todays great show, The Grand Duchess and the Waiter with Adolph Menjou and Florence Vidor will predominate on the screen.

The sparkling story, which is regarded as one of the best ever written by the famous French playwright, was first produced in Paris and later appeared in England. With Elsie Ferguson and Basil Rathbone in the leading roles, it was put upon the American stage, and played at the Lyceum theater in New York.

The heroine of the picture is Florence Vidor, a haughty Russian Grand Duchess, who is forced to flee to Paris following the rise of revolutionists in her home country. Adolphe Menjou portrays the part of an adventurous young cavalier of the Boulevards who, for the love of Miss Vidor, masquerades as a floor-waiter in her hotel suite that he may be near her always.

Breed Theatre

Fred Niblo directed Cosmopolitan production "The Temptress," which comes Sunday to the Breed theatre. Niblo long has ranged among the greatest directors of the screen. Born in Kansas, he took up a stage career, traveling all over the world as an actor, explorer, and collector of odd weapons. He became a stage manager, then a producer, then took up motion picture direction. Among his notable pictures are "The Mark of Zorro," "Three Musketeers," "The Red Lily," "Captain Applejack," "Blood and Sand," and "Ben-Hur." He is married to Enid Bennett, noted screen star.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theater

A new program of Keith-Albee super vaudeville opens a three days engagement at the Strand theater today.

There are five acts of the feature kind scheduled with comedy predominating throughout.

That the average film fan likes to see his or her favorite actor and actress often on the screen has come to be recognized by the makers of the movies. Not only that, but they—the producers—all try to outvie each other in presenting as many popular screen personalities as story and budget will stand at one time in one production.

An instance of this is The False Alarm, the current screen feature at the Strand theater this week. Here is a big and thrilling story, glorifying the heroism of the fire departments of the country over, and with no less than a dozen star and near-star players in the cast. Mary Carr, Ralph Lewis and Dorothy Revier head it. Following close on behind is Maurice Costello, Johnnie Harron, Priscilla Bonner, George O'Hara and others.

Breed Theatre.

The days of danger were the real days of romance.

Today the modern woman is prone to judge her lover by his ability to dance, or his skill at sports, but in the frontier days it was the manliness of man that counted.

This is brought forcibly to the front in "War Paint," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's initial western film drama starring Col. Tim McCoy and now being shown at the Breed theatre.

The early days of the frontier witnessed a spirit of general unrest among the Indian tribes and white settlers and even the garrisons of the western forts were never safe from Indian attacks. The women of those days lived in constant danger but they lived among brave men and they had a real chance to judge the manliness of their men.

In "War Paint" Pauline Starke plays the role of the heroine who falls in love with a young army officer stationed at a fort in the Indian country. Her romance begins under the pall of an Indian uprising and continues to bud and blossom in the roar of battle and amongst the hardships of the frontier.

Karl Dane, one of the trio of heroes of "The Big Parade," has the comedy role of "Sergeant Clancy," while Charles French has the role of her father, Major Hopkins, a blustering officer sent by the government to put down Indian uprisings.

Lecture in Slater Hall

Angelo Patri is a great teacher because he understands life and human beings whether young or old. In response to a demand for his views and thoughts on life in general, he has of late written essays on this universal subject, which have from time to time been published in some of the big magazines. Since they deal with the problem of getting the most out of life, they appeal to readers of every age and circumstance. They are the ripe fruit of the experience of a man who has not only been notably successful in building up a richly worth while life for himself, but who has helped thousands of others to make their lives happy and successful. Hear him at Slater hall Friday evening. Auspices of Norwich Teachers League. See adv.

ROTARIANS HEAR INTERESTING TALK ON AMERICAN BIRDS

Joseph H. Dodson, president and director of the American Audubon association, the greatest living authority on American bird-life, was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Dodson who also delivered a lecture on birds at Slater hall on Wednesday evening told the Rotarians many interesting facts concerning the more common birds and their habits.

In his talk Mr. Dodson stressed the point that American song birds were the real assets to the country as practically all of them are natural enemies of all forms of insect life. It would be hard to state just the amount that birds save America every year by the number of destructive insects they eat but it is well into the millions of dollars. The female martin has been known to destroy 2000 mosquitoes in a single day. Corn borers, chinch bugs and Japanese beetles can only be destroyed by birds and yet we pay little attention to the birds. Mr. Dodson spoke of the cat as an enemy to the birds and also of the cat being a spreader of disease among human beings. The speaker also told of various habits of birds in nesting and mating and a number of interesting experiences he had had during his study of bird life.

Mr. Dodson's talk was interspersed with many humorous anecdotes and held the attention of his audience throughout his talk which was greatly appreciated by the members and guests at the meeting.

At the business session President E. A. Harris presided and Frank M. Aubrey was the song leader, the latter performing in exceptional manner considering his handicap, the lack of a pianist. Secretary Jewett read several communications of club interest. Lucius Briggs, chairman of the program committee had charge of the program for the meeting and introduced the speaker.

BUDGET MAKING GOES ON BUT PRUNING KEPT QUIET

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Neither the lurking potentialities of fall election returns nor the savor of Thanksgiving turkey has halted in the least the prosaic business of budget making in Washington. Departmental estimates of what is needed to run the government next fiscal year continue to pass interminably through General Lord's budget bureau shearing pens.

Just how amputations from departmental expectations are being performed will not appear officially until President Coolidge advises congress in his annual message what has been done. They must be painful operations for the sheeresses, however, if glum looks and gloomy comments that drift out through unstopped loopholes in the armor of budget secrecy are significant.

The silence obtaining at most departments on budget matters is gripping. Particularly in the war and navy buildings is the ban on budget conversation apparent. Officers have had experience with searching investigations to find leaks displeasing to the white house. They desire to be able to say flatly when the leaks come, as they always do, that they never talked to any outsider directly or indirectly, on the subject.

GUARD AGAINST "FLU" WITH MUSTEROLE

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

In Later Years of Life
Good Elimination is More Than Ever Important.

As we grow older, there is apt to be a gradual slowing up of bodily functions. The kidneys are the blood filters. Proper function cleanses the blood stream thoroughly. Sluggish function is apt to permit some retention of uric acid and other poisons. This tends to make one tired, listless and achy—so have drowsy headaches and dizziness and perhaps a toxic backache. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by scanty or burning passages. Elderly people recommend Doan's Pills in this condition. This tested diuretic is endorsed the country over. Ask your neighbor!

NORWICH TOWN

DR. LLOYD C. CASE MEETS FORMER NORWICH FRIENDS

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Norwich Town, are in receipt of a very interesting letter under date of Nov. 10, from Dr. Lloyd E. Case of Honolulu, T. H., in which is full description of his homeward trip is given.

Dr. Case, who is assistant territorial veterinarian for the government at Honolulu, and who was given two months' leave of absence, the latter part of the time being spent in Norwich, the home of his boyhood, sailed from San Francisco for home the latter part of September.

The letter describes brief visits made to former Norwich Town residents, en route to San Francisco, prior to sailing.

After leaving Norwich Sept. 14, Dr. Case visited relatives in Plainfield, N. J., for a day, thence went to Ithica, N. Y., where another day was spent at Cornell university, from which Dr. Case and his brother, Dr. Leonard Case, also of Honolulu, were graduated about 17 years ago. Here it was noted that many changes had taken place during the period, such as the erection of new buildings and snapshots of some of these new structures at the veterinary college are enclosed in the letter. Dr. Case commented that the men who go through this college now should have no excuse not to be well equipped when they come out, as there is everything there to give them training in all the latest that the veterinary profession has to offer.

From New York the next stop was at Chicago, where during a brief stay among friends who formerly lived in Honolulu, a visit was made to Chicago university. After passing a day at Kansas City, Mo., where Dr. Case stated he was wonderfully well entertained by Drs. Salsbury and Graham, who took him through the Johnson-Solsbury laboratories; he left for Sacramento. During his visit in Norwich he was informed that Mr. and Mrs. William MacLane (Natalie Fitch Allen of Norwich Town) and the latter's mother, Mrs. Fitch L. Allen, also a Norwich Town resident for many years, were residing in Sacramento. So Dr. Chase decided to stop over a trip and call on these friends. He was so cordially received and was made so welcome by Mr. and Mrs. MacLane and Mrs. Allen, that his call extended into a visit of three days and nights, during which he was delightfully entertained. Dr. Case found them happily settled in a new home recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. MacLane, who have two beautiful children, a daughter and son. While their guest, Dr. Case stated that he had some fine automobile trips around Sacramento in their car. When on a long trip up into the mountains, Dr. Case was privileged to witness the drilling of an oil well, in a new oil field, which was most interesting.

Other friends whom Dr. Case visited for a couple of days in Berkeley, Cal., were Mr. and Mrs. Aram Torosian. The former with his parents and other members of his family were among refugees years ago, obliged to flee for their lives during the terrible massacre by the Turks in Armenia.

The Torosian family, after reaching the United States, settled in Norwich, their home being the former William Bliss property on Washington street, near the old Sheltering Arms building. The father was a skilled cabinet maker and upholsterer. Aram, who attended Town Street school about the time the Case boys were pupils there, is at present a professor in the College of Agriculture, California university. His sister, Miss Christina Torosian, also well known to the older residents of Norwich Town, is said to have developed into a beautiful woman. Snap-shots of Professor Torosian with his wife and 19 months old son, also one showing in a group his mother, grandmother and sister, who live next door to his home, which were also enclosed in the letter, were especially of interest to Mrs. Lamb, who remembers this family well.

In concluding his letter, Dr. Case mentioned that the trip from San Francisco to Honolulu was delightful and that the party on board ship included many of his friends and acquaintances who were returning home.

William Bottomley for some time a salesman in the employ of Julian L. Williams at 25 Town street, has concluded his duties there and has entered the insurance business in Hartford. Mr. Bottomley has been succeeded by Louis Maples of Norwich.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the Norwich Town Congregational church, accompanied by Organist Herbert L. Yerrington, Senior Deacon Dwight W. Avery, and Frederick Ross, chairman of the trustees, spent Monday in New Haven in the interests of the church, concerning the rebuilding of the organ.

WOODS STATES REPORT BUMPER TOURIST CROP

ST. PAUL, Dec. 1 (AP)—The annual summer tourist crop of the northern out-of-door was a bumper one this year. Eight million visitors in the three states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, yielded a gross income to the three of some $400,000,000.

The last of the harvest is now being gleaned as the deer hunters defy the snow and cold for their pilgrimages.

State highway departments this year gave an official air to the tourist crop statistics, through road counts. In Wisconsin the count showed figures of a "foreign" invasion greater by nearly a million than the population of the state.

Michigan's summer playgrounds drew more than three million, and Minnesota a million and a half.

Most of the figures show an increase of 25 per cent over last year. One accurate comparison is the number of non-resident fishing licenses issued. Michigan sold 75,000 such permits, Wisconsin 60,000 and Minnesota 23,000.

MOSELLE MITHRA CULT LIVED IN ROMAN DAYS?

TREVES, Rhineland, Dec. 1 (AP)—A shrine to the Persian god of light, Mithra, has been discovered at the foot of the mountain of the Holy Cross near Treves by the Archaeological commission of the Rhineland.

This discovery would appear to confirm the hypothesis that the Mithra cult was in vogue in the valley of the Moselle and throughout the Rhine country during the Roman occupation.

The excavated shrine contained a collapsed altar of Jurassic lime-stone with the Phrygian cap and the dagger, which were the insignia of the god.

AMERICAN AUTHORS AT RIVERIA SWELL COLONY

NICE, Dec. 1 (AP)—American authors are becoming prominent in the Riviera literary colony which has been exclusively Anglo-French for many years.

Brand Whitlock spends the winter months writing at Cannes. Max Eastman is completing another book on Soviet Russia in the garden of his Antibes home. F. Scott Fitzgerald is polishing off another flapper novel at Juan-les-Pins; Struthers Burt is working at Hyeres and Frank Harris is dividing his time between preparing the third volume of his autobiography and attempting to free the second volume from the hands of the law

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks strong, oil shares advance.
Bonds, steady, firm money rates restrict trading.
Foreign exchange, firm, French francs rebound.
Cotton, easy, good spot demand.
Sugar, steady, firm spot market.
Coffee, higher, trade buying.

Chicago

Wheat, firm, unfavorable Argentine news.
Corn, strong on bullish weather reports.
Cattle firm and active.
Hogs, steady.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Constructive forces were again at work in today's stock market which was featured by a revival of activity and strength in the oil shares. Lowering of the call money rate from 5 1-4 to 5 per cent. stimulated pool activity in a number of issues in which special developments are pending, but there was no appreciable increase in public participation. Weak spots continued to crop out here and there, a sprinkling of net declines of 1 to 5 1-2 points being disclosed in the final quotations.

The day's business move was mixed in character. The increase in commercial borrowings at the federal reserve banks and the continuance of unusually heavy freight traffic for this season of the year were offset by a reported reduction in steel mill operations to below 70 per cent. of capacity. In the steel trade a further decline to around 60 per cent. of capacity is looked for although an upward turn is expected before the end of next month.

The declaration of an extra dividend on Colorado & Southern common were offset, to some extent, by the failure of the Rock Island directors to take dividend action at today's meeting, disappointing some Wall street traders who had expected the stock to be placed on a $5 annual basis.

Wall street has been hearing rumors for some time of a "December oil market" so that today's demonstration in these issues came as no surprise. The advance in the oils which took place in the face of record-breaking crude production, was associated with reports of large current earnings and meager rumors involving the Barnsdall and Phillips Petroleum companies, the common stock of the latter touching a new 1926 high at 56 1-2. Mid Continent Petroleum preferred and Texas & Pacific Land Trust also reached new high ground.

A sudden spurt of over 5 points in Allied Chemical featured the standard industrials. Baldwin moved up over 2 points and U. S. Steel common and General Motors about a point each. About a score issues were again pushed up to new high levels, the list including Brooklyn Union Gas, Columbia Carbon, Consolidated Cigar, Eureka Vacuum and Vivadou. Advance Rumely common and preferred and Stromberg Carburetor touched new lows.

Trading in the rails was restricted, pending the announcement of a decision on applications for wage increases which is expected this week. Frisco preferred and Lehigh Valley got up into new high ground. Chesapeake & Ohio was run up 3 points but lost half its gain.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A sharp recovery of 1 1-2 to 2 cents a bushel in wheat futures was the outstanding development in the commodity markets. Cotton drifted lower, raw sugar was unchanged and coffee was slightly firmer.

An extreme gain of 10 points in French francs, which again sold close to the 3 3-4 cent level, attracted the most attention in the foreign exchange markets. Demand sterling ruled steady around $4.84 9-16 and other European rates showed mixed and narrow changes.

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Heavy buying of the oil shares overshadowed all other developments in today's curb market, which continued to show considerable irregularity. The rally coincided with a similar movement in that group on the "big board," and was based chiefly on expectation of large 1926 earnings by most companies.

In the so-called Standard Oil group, gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded by Humble, Ohio, Eureka Pipe Line, and Illinois Pipe Line. Lion Oil, which is expected to show earnings well above the $2 annual dividend requirements, was pushed up more than a point, closing at the top price of 34 3-8. British American Oil touched a new top at 73, and Venezuela advanced to within a fraction of the year's top. Gibson was actively traded in around $4 a share, nearly 30,000 shares changing hands.

Victor Talking Machine continued to anticipate heavy holiday business by touching a new record high at 119, as against a low of 83 earlier in the year. New peak prices also were registered by American Seating preferred, Curtis Publishing preferred, and Estey Welte A. A sudden revival of activity in Fox theatres A, based on reports of large current business, sent that stock up 1 3-8. Celluloid Co. issues also showed marked strength.

Another attack against Warner Pictures B sent that stock down 3 points, but it recovered half of its loss. Anglo-Chilean Nitrate, Eastern Rolling Mills, and U. S. Gypsum sank to new low levels.

Erratic fluctuations in American Light & Traction, which advanced from 242 to 246 1-3, broke to 238 and snapped back to 238 off 4 points net, featured the public utility group, which was reactionary. American Light & Traction preferred fell 3 1-2 points and American Gas & Electric and a few others a point or more.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—(AP)—With corn the leader, all grain scored a sharp advance today, surprisingly small deliveries on December corn contracts were a feature, and so too was knowledge that corn receipts today throughout the west had shrunk to about one-third the total a year ago.

The entire grain list finished strong at nearly the day's top figures, corn 2 1-4c a 2 3-8c to 2 3-4c net higher, wheat 1 5-8c to 2 1-8c up, oats showing 1c to 2c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 32c.

Developments in the corn market were of such a character that some trade leaders expressed an opinion there would be little heavy movement of corn at any time this season. With deliveries of only 182,000 bushels here today on December contracts, a much smaller amount than had been looked for, and with no selling pressure in the market, aggressive buying which took place caused values to jump. Liquidation in the current month was generally believed to be over, both for corn and oats. Prospective heavy feeding of livestock helped further to lift the corn market.

Oats and rye as well as corn and wheat acted over-sold.

Provisions were responsive to grain strength.

Red Men Gave Whist

The Red Men held a successful whist party Tuesday evening in Hibernian hall. Prizes were won as follows: Ladies: First, Mrs. Albert Barrows; second, Mrs. Joseph A. George (won on cut with Miss Nellie Bacon); consolation, Mrs. Swanton. Men: First, Harold Wickham; second, F. Connor; consolation, Ray N. Harris.

Entertained At Groton

Mrs. Ellyn Nichol and Miss Marcella Kelley of Lafayette street, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Finn of Jewett City, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Wessel of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Mrs. Mary Sandora of Groton were entertained at a Thanksgiving dinner by Mrs. Elizabeth Sleeper and son, Harold R. Sleeper, at Groton.

Did Not Appear In Court

John O'Malley failed to appear in the city court Wednesday morning to answer to a continued charge of resisting an officer and the case went over until today (Thursday). O'Malley was in court Monday on two charges, intoxication and resistance. He was fined on the intoxication charge but pleaded not guilty to the resistance charge and the case was continued to allow the arresting officer to secure witnesses.

Reception For Capt. Andrews.

Captain Adolphus Andrews, new commandant of the submarine base, and Mrs. Andrews will be welcomed with a dinner and dance given in their honor at the Mohican hotel Friday night by the officers of the submarine base and the submarine division 2 and the school student officers.

Officers of the Coast Guard service, and army officers attached to the forts, as well as 150 civilians, have been invited to attend.

Made $125 For Synagogue.

One hundred and twenty-five dollars was realized from the benefit bridge given by Mrs. Barney Belgrane at Ocean beach Tuesday night. The proceeds are to go to the Bilinman street synagogue in New London.

Forecast of Cold Weather.

A big flight of wild geese on their way south passed over the city about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. This is regarded as an indication of winter weather to come.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Bond prices drifted aimlessly in today's dull trading which failed to derive any stimulus from indications that money rates were beginning to relax after the month-end tightening, with a few exceptions, changes were held within fractional limits, providing no reliable index to the market's trend.

Dealings in the foreign list were relatively unimportant, but several price movements attracted more attention than the fluctuations of the domestic bonds. German General Electric 6 1-2s and Cuba 4 1-2s both jumped more than a point, while Chinese Railway 4s sagged to a new low level in reflection of the disturbances in that country.

Considerable interest was aroused in reports of new foreign financing, including prospective loans of $5,000,000 or so to the Union Electric Works of Italy and a northern Italian utility company. Rumors of a $40,000,000 Rumanian loan also were afloat in Wall street but were discredited by bankers.

Obligations of the New York public utility companies were among the most active features of the day. Purchasers of Brooklyn Union Gas 5 1-2s were based on the recent favorable court decision affecting the local gas companies. Traction issues overcame an early spell of profit taking and scored moderate gains for the day. Railroad liens marked time, although Great Northern 4 1-4s and New Haven 4s were in good demand.

With the approval of the interstate commerce commission, the New Haven railroad awarded a $4,995,000 issue of 4 1-2 per cent. equipment notes to a banking group headed by the First National corporation of Boston.

TAFTVILLE

The members of Council Gagnon, No. 208, Union St. Jean Baptiste, held a well attended whist at Parish hall Wednesday evening. This was one of a series of whists which is being conducted by the council. After cards, dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Although local sportsmen have been asked to be on the lookout for snowy owls which have been reported as invading southern New England in large numbers, none have as yet been discovered in this territory. The birds are very destructive to game, and sportsmen are being asked to shoot them on sight. Pictures have been received in town of a large owl shot just across the Rhode Island border, and these give an excellent idea of the large size and powerful make-up of this bird of prey.

William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue was a visitor in Providence Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad LaSalle and family have moved here from Canada, and have taken a house on South A street.

SEVENTEEN IN LIST OF SUSPENDED OPERATORS

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are 17 names on the list. Three cases were appealed. One was a Connecticut operator convicted in another state. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles. The list follows:

Earl S. Booth, Derby; John B. Hudak, New Britain; George Kocsis, Fairfield; Peter J. Lee, Middletown; George Leroy, Danbury; Frederick Marsh, New Milford; Michael McNamara, Danbury; Ernest Merriman, New Haven; Frank Nowak, Suffield; John Palmatier, Sharon; Harold B. Parmelee, Norwich; Ellis Pettaway, New Haven; John Riordan, Hartford; Antonio Santarcangelo, New Haven; Natale Scollo, Bristol; Wesley R. Shields, South Manchester; Joseph Trzcinski, New Britain.

DIVORCE SUITS FILED WITH SUPERIOR COURT CLERK

Four divorce suits are among the cases for the superior court, returnable in December, which were filed here Wednesday at the office of the clerk of the court.

On the ground of desertion since April 22, 1922, Rose Keane Rich of New London brings suit for divorce from Jerome Rich of New York. They were married Nov. 25, 1920. She asks custody of a four year old son.

Intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1922 is claimed by Ines Loper Strickland of New London in bringing suit for divorce from Frank H. Strickland of Waterford. They were married April 13, 1921.

Salvatore Campagna of New London seeks divorce from Josephine Crossman Campagna of that city. They were married Nov. 29, 1925 and he alleges she committed statutory offenses with unnamed persons since Oct. 1, 1926.

On the ground of intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1910, Elizabeth Nothdurft Fowler of this city seeks divorce from Edwin E. Fowler of Montville, whom she married April 27, 1904 She asks the custody of two minor daughters.

SETTLEMENT REACHED IN SUIT FOR $25,000

Settlement out of court was effected Wednesday in the $25,000 damage suit brought by George Babcock of New London against The Walter T. Murphy Amusement Co., also of that city. The case was scheduled to be tried before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury in the superior court here on Wednesday.

Babcock sued for injuries, claimed to have been received when on June 26, 1925, a section of the plastering in the Crown theatre fell, striking him "on the head, chest and body."

Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced

People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal. Lee & Osgood Co. sells lots of it.

NEW PRESIDENT AND SECRETARY FOR COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

The New London County Agricultural society at its annual meeting Wednesday evening in the town hall elected as its president for the coming 12 months, Hiram W. Schriver, of Groton, as successor to the retiring president, Charles P. Bushnell, who announced that he was not a candidate for re-election. To succeed the retiring secretary, Gilbert S. Raymond, who also announced that he was not a candidate for re-election and would not accept any office in connection with the society, the society elected Frank T. Maples.

With President Bushnell in the chair, the meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock and the attendance numbered about 50. Secretary Gilbert S. Raymond read the call for the meeting and also the minutes of the last meeting of the society. The minutes were approved as read. President Bushnell then read the following message to the meeting:

Ladies and Gentlemen: I am very sorry at this time to be unable to render a more favorable report as president of this organization, as we have had a deficit in the two years which I have served. In the year 1925 the dates were changed to later date, viz: Sept. 17, 18 and 19, which was very fortunate as Labor day was a very rainy day and resulting in deficit for the year. This year the dates were changed back to Labor day but Providence was again not in our favor and the fair was postponed, holding over for three more days, proving unsuccessful also. I would recommend to the directors and executive committee that if they should decide to hold the 1927 fair Labor day that they choose the two days preceding that day instead of following, starting on Saturday and holding over Labor day, thereby improving the Saturday afternoon holiday in most of the mills and shops in the county. The secretary and treasurer will give you the financial standing of the organization in detail I have no doubt. I wish to thank the members for the honor they have conferred upon me these last two years and state that I am not a candidate for re-election. I also wish to thank the officers and executive committee for the kind acts and assistance that they have given me during the two years which I have served. I also wish to state that I shall be glad to render any assistance within my power to the newly elected officers for the ensuing year.

Respectively submitted,
CHAS. P. BUSHNELL, President.

The president's report was accepted as read.

Treasurer Albert J. Bailey, who was not a candidate for re-election, then submitted his report for the year as follows:

Following the acceptance of the treasurer's report, Secretary Raymond read his annual report, which was as follows:

To the officers and members of the society: Since the last annual meeting there have been held 3 special meetings and 5 adjourned meetings of life members, 1 meeting of the directors, 10 meetings of the executive committee.

On October 29th, the first evening meeting of the life members was held since which time two others have been held in the evening.

There was a deficit from the 1925 fair of over $3,000, which was not cleared up until December, 1925, when six members of the society gave their demand note for $3,500 and then all outstanding bills were paid. The makers of the note were given a second mortgage on the grounds as their security.

The Norwich meeting of the Bay State Circuit was held on the grounds June 22nd, 23rd and 24th with over 200 horses present from all over the east and Canada, and the track record was broken in the Free-For-All by Kate Hal entered by Ed Jackson of Toronto, Canada. The time, 2:05 3-4, was the fastest made in any race of the season on that circuit. The net profits of this meeting, $300, were paid into the society in lieu of rental and also repairs were made to the stables and the track.

The 1926 Fair

The outstanding features of this fair were:

Reduction of gate admission from 75c to 50c.

Reduction of grand stand prices.

A new feature—the dog show, held the first day, Labor day.

Co-operation of the Duwell Athletic club in supervising the athletic events held on Wednesday.

Receipts—1926 Fair

The gate receipts for the fair were:

Gate admission, four days
7113 adults at 50c	$3,556.00
1347 children at 25c	336.75
Auto admission, four days
1070 autos at 50c	535.00
Total	$4,437.75

Deficit

The only cause of the deficit of about $5,500 was the rainy Labor day, which made necessary the postponement of the fair one day so that it was held on four days. Immediately after the fair, the executive committee held a meeting, considered the situation, and decided to present the matter without recommendation to a special meeting of the members which was held October 1st. This meeting appointed a committee consisting of Albert W. Lillibridge, Thomas F. Burns, and James E. Lathrop to ascertain what could be done to raise this deficit. This committee unanimously reported to an adjourned special meeting October 15th, suggesting a reorganization and sale of the property at a price at least sufficient to pay all debts and another special meeting of the members was called for October 29th to act on that report.

There was a record attendance of 84 members at this meeting. A motion to sell the property was made and as the sentiment of the meeting seemed to be against a sale the motion was withdrawn and another committee of 14 members was appointed to report a definite, specific plan to provide funds. This meeting was adjourned to November 5th when the committee made a report of progress and a further adjournment to November 23rd, at which adjournment they made a report in writing which showed that the unsold bonds to the amount of $2,100 had been sold and a three months' note of $2,800 would be discounted on December 1st and they also recommended a drive for life members and to request members to give up the interest on their bonds for one year and to ask the ten and fifteen dollar members to increase their memberships to twenty-five dollars, which report was accepted.

Present Situation

As I understand it, the present financial situation of the society is as follows:

Indebtedness

First mortgage bonds	$25,000.00
Balance unpaid on $3,500 second mortgage note	1,400.00
Unpaid bills now overdue and payable (including bond interest to date $750.)	5,656.66
Total	$32,056.66

Condition of Grounds

The grounds and buildings on the whole are in fair condition, the track better and faster than ever before. The roof of the main Exhibition hall is badly in need of paint. The old grandstand has become unsafe and should be torn down as soon as possible. The old fence on the back of the track and on the north side of the grounds is in very poor condition and should be replaced as soon as possible. The new wire fence will very soon be in need of paint.

Your secretary desires to especially thank the members of the executive committee who have so faithfully attended the monthly meetings of that body and taken such vital interest in the fair without expectation of any compensation or reward and also desires to thank all the members of the society who have supported him during this trying year. I am not a candidate for re-election and will not accept any office in connection with the society but pledge my support to a new administration.

Respectfully submitted,
GILBERT S. RAYMOND,
Secretary.

The election of officers was the next business before the meeting. On motion of Charles D. Greenman, the following were named a nominating committee, W. A. Gordon, James K. Shaughnessy and Frank T. Maples. While the nominating committee was deliberating, President Bushnell appointed Edward Cook and S. E. Holdridge tellers.

The report of the nominating committee was made as follows:

For President: Hiram W. Schriver, Groton.

For 1st vice president: Edwin W. Higgins, Norwich.

For 2nd vice president: James K. Shaughnessy, Groton.

For 3rd vice president: Harold D. Larrabee, Norwich.

For 4th vice president: Charles Ducey, New London.

For 5th vice president: F. C. Rawlle, Salem.

For 6th vice president: F. N. Dimmock, Waterford.

For secretary: Frank T. Maples, Norwich.

For treasurer: J. Frank Corey, Norwich.

For directors: New London: Edwin Swanson, Charles Ducey; Old Lyme: Carlton Jewett; East Lyme: Fred Beckwith; Montville: James E. Lathrop Jerome W. House, Wesley Gordon; Salem: Griswold Morgan; Ledyard: Samuel Holdridge, Walter T. Clarke, Joseph Clark; Sprague: Allison Ladd, Charles F. Charon; Lisbon: James Graham; North Stonington: John D. Avery; Lebanon: Edward A. Hoxie, Arthur C. Williams; Franklin: Frederick S. Armstrong; Bozrah: Thomas Leningwell; Colchester: Myron Abel; Groton: James K. Shaughnessy; Preston: Albert Bennett, Arthur E. Shedd; Waterford: F. N. Dimmock; Voluntown: Walter Tanner; Stonington: George Dennison; Lyme: Ray Harding; Griswold: George Norman; Norwich: H. H. Gallup, Grosvenor Ely, Daniel Polsky, Joseph George, Dr. I. J. Manwaring, Geo. Dolbeare, Kenneth Webb.

The secretary was authorized to cast one ballot in favor of the election of the entire list of officers as presented and the election was declared a unanimous one.

The retiring president, Mr. Bushnell, then presented the newly elected president and secretary to the meeting and then turned the remainder of the meeting over to President Schriver. The meeting adopted a vote of thanks to the retiring board of officers, and as there was no more business to come up for action the meeting adjourned, about 8:45 o'clock.

SPEAKER FROM WASHINGTON FOR FARM BUREAU MEETING

The annual meeting of the New London county farm bureau will be held at the Buckingham Memorial on Friday, December 3rd and will be called to order by President Imbert Fellows at 10.30. During the morning there will be reports by the officers and agents followed by a dinner served by the women of the Fitchville church. Beginning at 1.30 p. m. there will be community singing and a demonstration.

The speaker of the day will be A. B. Graham of the extension office, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C. The title of this address will be "How Can Rural People Get Something Out of the Farm Bureau." Mr. Graham has had wide experience in extension work and in working with rural people.

Mr. Graham was born and reared on a farm in western Ohio, and since then has spent practically all of his life in work with rural people. The first 17 years of his active life was spent as a rural school teacher and superintendent of rural schools. The last 21 years have been spent in agricultural extension work, his first service being with the Ohio State university as its first agricultural extension director, covering a period of about 10 years. Eleven years of it has been with the U. S. department of agriculture in the office of extension work. He started with the extension aspects of the work by organizing boys and girls of the rural schools into agricultural clubs from 1903 to 1905 immediately preceding his taking up extension work at the Ohio State university. His great aim has not been to figure out the shortcomings of rural life, but to really get a proper view of rural opportunities. He has never been an exponent of the idea that we should keep boys and girls on the farm, but that we should create the right state of mind in them toward the things of the farm and rural communities, then the right type of boy or girl will desire to live on a farm. His interest in educational work for rural people has been the great tie that has held him to the present type of educational work through extension organizations. The purpose in his effort, as well as that of many others, has been to build up a more satisfying rural life.

The programme for the meeting will be as follows:

10.30 a. m. Report of officers; Arthur H. Davis, secretary; W. W. Service, treasurer; 10.45 a. m. Agents report for 1926 and plans for 1927, Gladys E. Stratton, home dem. agent; Walter T. Clark, county agricultural agent; 11.30 a. m. Report of nominating committee by Dorothy K. Messler, office secretary, any other business; 11.55 a. m. Changes in New London county agriculture in the past five years, B W. Ellis, director of extension service; 12.15 p. m. Diner served by ladies of Fitchville church; 1.30 p. m. community singing; 1.45 p. m. demonstration by Rose Norcross and EmBeth Bennett of Jolly Cookies 4H club, Gales Ferry; 2.00 p. m. address, "How Can Rural People Get Something Out of the Farm Bureau." A. B. Graham, U. S. D. A., Washington, D. C.

FORECLOSURE SUITS BROUGHT IN THE SUPERIOR COURT

Mortgage foreclosure suits in this city, Noank, Taftville and Stonington are among the new cases which were filed here Wednesday at the office of the clerk of the superior court, all being returnable in December.

Foreclosure of a mortgage for $5,350 on real estate in Noank is sought in a suit brought against Alice C. and David W. Doyle and others by the National Bank of Commerce of New London. The mortgage is dated Sept 4, 1926.

Jacob R. Slosberg, doing business as the Shetucket Coal & Lumber Co., brings suit against Elton McKenzie and Archibald J. Norman, both of this city, attaching real estate in Taftville on a claim for $5,117.52 on the common counts.

Suit against Gilbert P. Coates of this city and others, for foreclosure of a $3,000 mortgage on two tracts of land on Boswell avenue and Division street has been brought by the Chelsea Savings bank. Marjorie M. H. Barber, claiming two mortgages for $1,430 and Arad R. Manning, claiming an interest under an attachment, are made party defendants.

Suit to collect a judgment secured against James B. Pelton of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Andrew J. Maynard of New London has been brought by the Winthrop Trust Co., of New London. The judgment was obtained in the superior court, Dec. 11, 1926, for $643.94 damages and $52.98 costs.

Charles H. Smith of Pembroke, N. H., brings a foreclosure suit against Max and Minnie Gordon, 84 Ridge St., N. Y., and others on a mortgage for $1,000 on the Payton Randall farm in Stonington and 28 lots in the West End Land Co. plot. The mortgage was originally given by Emma Fischer, on June 14, 1920 and by her transferred to the Gordons in 1922. Party defendants named are Albert G. Martin of Stonington, claiming a mortgage for $1,200 and the Jewish Agricultural society of New York claiming a mortgage of $2,000.

Two suits against Ralph McCraken of Uncasville are brought, one by Martha Eddy to collect a loan of $1,000, alleged to have been made on Jan. 1, 1921 and the other by Grace McCraken to collect a loan of $1,200 alleged to have been made on the same date.

Clarence R. Petri of Brooklyn, N. Y., seeks foreclosure of a $2,300 mortgage on real estate on Harbor street, Stonington, dated Jan. 26, 1924, bringing suit against Hamilton E. Reynolds of Stonington, now at 153 West 57th street, New York.

OLD CANDLESTICKS SHOWN AT D. A. R. CHAPTER MEETING

Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, preceded its November meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the Wauregan house by holding the second of four luncheons that have been planned for this season. There was an attendance of about 50 for the luncheon and social hour.

Mrs. W. H. Dawley, the regent, called the business meeting to order at 3 o'clock and after the regular opening exercises monthly reports were made by Mrs. William S. Elliott, secretary, Mrs. A. S. Comstock, treasurer, Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins, registrar and Mrs. George A. Ashbey, historian.

Report that two small gifts of money had been received for the museum building fund was made by Mrs. W. Tyler Browne for the museum committee, and Mrs. Charles L. Stewart, for the patriotic education committee, reported gifts brought in for the box for Ellis island.

Reporting for the ways and means committee, Miss Helen P. Browning stated that although definite figures of the proceeds from the Thanksgiving eve dance could not yet be given, the committee knew that its earnings to date are enough to equal three-fourths of the sum called for in the budget for the year. Nothing more is to be attempted at present.

Mrs. Daniel M. Lester reported some necessary changes in the conservation committee, Mrs. A. S. Comstock taking the place left vacant by the death of Mrs. Harriet Blackmar, the resignation of Mrs. Frank Hempstead and the appointment of Mrs. Raymond Sherman.

The special committee for the float for the Armistice day parade, Mrs. A. H. Lathrop, chairman, reported on the work done and stated that the materials had been carefully removed from the truck and stored so would be ready for use at any time.

The treasurer, Mrs. Comstock, said that the bills had been paid from the money left over from last year, not disturbing this year's work at all.

The program for the afternoon opened with a delightful informal talk by Mrs. Amos A. Browning in connection with a loan of old candlesticks placed on exhibition by the chapter. She illustrated her remarks by showing examples of antique candlesticks, snuffers and trays. There were also in the collection an old church sconce and a fine candelabrum. Mrs. Browning traced briefly the history of candlesticks down through colonial days and until they were superseded by the more modern kerosene lamp. The candlesticks on exhibition were of various types and periods, and ranged in materials from humble iron to Sheffield plate. Quaintest among them was a glass candlestick, known as the "Sailor's Comfort" which had the advantage of serving as a goblet when inverted. Appropriately enough a dolphin served as the supporting column. The collection was augmented by a whale oil lamp, used in the days when stout hearted sea captains set forth from New London and Gloucester in quest of the leviathans of the deep.

An entertainment by the Campfire Girls of the United church under the direction of the Misses Dorothy Holden and Beatrice Freeman, was much enjoyed which closed the programme.

Silliness is called sentiment by those who are still in love.

REV. A. N. FOSTER APPOINTED UNIVERSALIST SUPERINTENDENT

Owing to acceptance of a call to Melrose, Mass., Rev. G. H. Leining of Danbury has resigned as superintendent of the Connecticut Universalist convention. Rev. A. N. Foster of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, of this city, has been appointed by the official board to complete the unexpired term.

Mr. Foster's maternal grandfather, Rev. Abraham Norwood of Meriden, was the first preacher chosen to that position, coming from Massachusetts for that purpose in 1850. In those days the position was called "State Missionary".

STATEMENT FROM MEXICO MAY EASE LAND LAW DISPUTE

State Department Officials Puzzled by Explanatory Statement Made by the Mexican Embassy—Seems to Wipe Out Many of the Points at Issue—Document is Being Studied to Ascertain How It Will Affect American Companies.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—The Mexican embassy tossed a new factor in the whirlpool of the dispute over Mexican land and oil laws today which left state department officials completely at sea as to what it portends.

On its face, the embassy announcement, headed "Plain Facts Concerning the Mexican Oil Laws," seems to wipe out many of the points in dispute which brought American-Mexican relations to an admittedly critical deadlock on application of the new laws to American oil and mining companies in Mexico. It asserts the intention of the Mexico City government to apply its new laws and regulations, when they become effective in January, "preferentially" so far as foreign companies are concerned, without confiscatory retroactive enforcement of provisions of the Mexican constitution nationalising natural resources.

Because of the informal character of this supplement to the formal diplomatic correspondence already published state department officials would make no comment. It took them by surprise and was promptly subjected to close study. Whether it foreshadows resumption of the formal discussion and escape from the crisis which might have resulted if the new laws and regulations had been enforced to the letter against American companies could not be learned.

Specifically, the embassy statement says of foreign rights acquired by exploitation work begun prior to May 1, 1917, the date on which the new constitution went into effect, that they "will be confirmed through governmental concession on application within one year December 31, 1926.

"The concessions through which the government will confirm the rights of foreign companies will have exactly the same duration as the original rights, being either for the entire life of the company, or for the time provided in the contracts on which those rights are based," the statement continues. "The government has declared that in cases in which interests of foreigners are involved the alien land law and its regulations shall be applied preferentially."

Limitation of these concessions to a 50-year term was a major issue in the official correspondence, yet the embassy statement next states that the 50 year concessions "are granted solely for the purpose of confirming rights acquired by Mexican companies before May 1, 1917.

"Rights acquired prior to May 1, 1917, by foreign companies will be confirmed by the Mexican government not only without cost, but without the declaration renouncing diplomatic protection required by the law for future acquisitions," the statement adds.

The correspondence between the two governments failed to bring about an agreement that American nationals should not be required to waive such rights under penalty of forfeiture, while the statement seems to narrow the application of the law in that respect to "future acquisitions" only.

The statement discusses "actual operations" requirements, presumably referring to what has been known as Mexico's "positive act" doctrine in the official exchange. Since this doctrine "seems to have caused uneasiness among foreigners," the statement says it is "convenient" to point out that the government interprets the regulations involved "in the sense that investments made before the granting of the concession will be considered satisfactory and in compliance with the condition as to "actual operations" and nothing further will be required during the term of the concession."

"Concessions granted • • • confer legal possession of the rights under consideration without necessity for any further formality," the statement continues. The government will maintain the owner of such rights in his legal possession in case of controversy thus not only recognizing rights derived from private agreements but lending them additional strength.

"Therefore, the concessions granted by the government to foreign companies, imply no expense to the beneficiary, do not reduce the term of the original rights, an dto obtain them no renunciation of diplomatic protection is required; on the other hand, the concessions will have over former titles, leases or agreements, the advantage of being unassailable in either administrative or judicial controversies."

Defense Opens in Fall-Doheny Case

Effort Being Made to Refute Charge That Fall Personally Favored Doheny.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Defense counsel today began their effort to clear Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny, California oil magnate, of criminal conspiracy charges growing out of the leasing of the Elk Hills, Calif., Naval oil reserve in 1922.

In an all-day examination of Dr. H. Foster Bain, director of the Interior Department's bureau of mines under Secretary Fall, Frank J. Hogan, chief of defense counsel, centered his fire upon the government's contention that Fall personally favored Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company in negotiations which culminated in awards of three Naval reserves to Doheny interests.

The government rested today after introducing in evidence, through the senate oil committee's record, another reference to the $100,000 loan by Doheny to Fall on November 30, 1921.

Bain testified Fall manifested no more interest in the Elk Hills negotiations than he had shown in previous leasing proposals which did not involve Doheny interests. The secretary was out of Washington most of the time he project was before the department, the witness said.

In support of the defense contention that the navy department's interest in the oil reserves and the consequent contact of naval officers with the negotiations precluded all possibility of collusion between Fall and Doheny, Hogan drew from Dr. Bain a detailed account of the conversations between navy and interior officials before the Doheny contracts were concluded.

In a twenty minute cross examination, Owen J. Roberts of government counsel, drew from Bain a statement that Fall had remarked on Oct. 25, 1921, forty days before the navy had submitted specifications on Pearl harbor to the interior department, that he, Fall, expected the Pan-American company would be a bidder for the naval oil with which the Hawaiian plants was to be financed.

Plans for a night session were abandoned at the last minute. Almost every one seemed agreed the strain was too great.

Gambling Pool is of Oceanic Proportions

Trails Have Led to the Very Portals of the Capitol in Washington.

BOSTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—A gambling pool that handled "staggering sums in weekly lotteries on baseball statistics, clearing house quotations and other figures," was under investigation today by the federal grand jury here. Federal investigators called it the "Albany Pool" but said that the same organization also conducted operations under the names of the Hudson Pool and Clearing House Pool. Prizes were said to have run as high as $7,000.

Trails followed by department of justice agents led to the very portals of the capitol in Washington, it was asserted. Pressure was brought to bear by influential persons to have the inquiry halted, they declared. New York state politicians, clubmen, bookmakers, barroom keepers, race track touts and agents scattered in New York and New England were said to have been implicated.

The rooms of the United States attorney's office here were crowded today with witnesses waiting to testify. Summonses were sent to detective sergeants from Troy, N. Y., and Springfield, Mass., the West Springfield chief of police Boston and Albany railroad detectives and others. Some of the 25 or 30 witnesses were understood to have been investors.

It was revealed today for the first time that the investigators had picked up the trail where a bank clerk who had embezzled more than $10,000 told of having lost a part of the money "playing the pool."

Eight suspects, said to be agents, are said to have accepted an offer of the government to turn state's evidence in the government's campaign to convict the higher ups in the pool.

CONVICTS ACCUSED THE COURT OF UNFAIRNESS

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Two eastern penitentiary convicts, on trial for having attempted to escape last June, today stood up in the prisoners' docket and defiantly accused the court of unfairness, demanding a lawyer.

Court attaches searched unsuccessfully for a lawyer. Elmer Leotheiser, deputy warden at the penitentiary, then was called to describe the tunnel the men were accused of having dug. "I have been asked to look out for both sides," explained Charles F. Keiley, assistant district attorney, prosecuting the convicts.

"This is awful," shouted Charles Fiscara, convict, jumping to his feet, "I appeal to you people out there to see that we get a fair trial," he added, addressing the spectators.

Judge Harry S. McDevitt thundered: "Sit down!" Half a dozen court attaches forced the convict into his seat.

Immediately Albert Langer, another convict, stood up and leered at the judge.

"We'll never get a fair trial here," he growled.

He was forced into his seat and Captain Leotheiser resumed his description of the tunnel.

ATTACHMENT OF BUSSES ENRAGED PASSENGERS

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 3—(AP)—Passengers became enraged and schedules were seriously interrupted today after two New York-Boston motor coaches were held up and attached by Sheriff P. J. Reilly while passing through Bridgeport. The sheriff took up his post out in the Black Rock section of Fairfield avenue to take them under his care and protection.

Unpaid bills for gasoline and oil, extending over a period of two years and claimed to be due the Sunfield company, were the basis for the attachments, brought through City Court Judge William J. Buckley, acting as counsel. One bus was delayed for three hours while its passengers fumed and sputtered and the other was still in a garage tonight, its patrons having departed on various trains for their destinations.

INVESTIGATING MYSTERIOUS ASSAULT OF PROF. JORDAN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 2—(AP)—Investigation of the mysterious assault on George W. Jordan, professor at Wiley college, Marshall, Texas, and graduate student at Harvard, was begun today. The professor, a negro, was found unconscious yesterday in his room in a lodging house with a dislocated shoulder and several bruises about the head.

His landlady told the police she heard Mr. Jordan come in the night before but heard no disturbance. His bed had not been slept in. Jordan had gained slightly today but still was semi-conscious. His wife was said to be an instructor in a North Carolina college.

TWO SCORE OF TOURISTS TRAPPED IN A BLIZZARD

TONOPAH, Nev., Dec. 2—(AP)—Two score of more of California-bound tourists who were trapped in a blizzard at Montgomery Pass, in the High Sierras near here, are alive today only because of the heroic efforts of two old-time mushers, who effected their rescue when death seemed imminent because of cold and starvation.

The motor caravan, on its way to balmy Southern California to spend the winter far away from snow and cold, was caught in the pass in one of the worst storms in years. There were 31 automobiles in the group.

BROKER CLARKE'S AFFAIRS IN HANDS OF RECEIVER

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 3—(AP)—Until the affairs of Clarke and company, investment brokers charged with misuse of more than $200,000 of their clients' funds, can be straightened out, Henry Rabinowitz, of this city will act as receiver. His appointment was filed today, and bond of $2,000 with surety was posted. The brokerage concern has been petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy as part of the outcome of the sensational developments which have included the arrests of three partners and a salesman.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Dec. 2—(AP)—More than 3 inches of snow have fallen in northwestern Vermont during the past twelve hours, with considerably more in southern Quebec.

THREE SHIPS REPORTED IN DISTRESS OFF CAPE COD

Coastguard Cutter Acushnet Got in Trobule While Doing Relief Work—Cutter Mojave, With a Disabled Coastwise Coal Carrier, is Wallowing in Heavy Seas South of Nantucket—Along the Massachusetts Coast Snow Flurries Were Driven Before a Gale That Reached a Velocity of 64 Miles an Hour.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Three ships were in distress off Cape Cod tonight with two coast guard cutters splitting the work of assistance as a result of winter's first real assault on New England. The entire section was in the grip of a sharp cold snap following a day of stinging snow flurries driven before a gale that reached a velocity of 64 miles an hour at the Blue Hills observatory this morning.

Late today the Boston schooner Horace A. Stone, lumber laden from Port Maria, Que., to New York, was reported in urgent need of help 30 miles off Chatham. Stripped of sails and with both anchors gone, she was rolling in heavy seas half full of water.

The coastguard cutter Acushnet, which a few hours earlier had gone to the assistance of the British schooner Whitebelle, also stripped of canvas off Chatham, left the Britisher anchored 17 miles east of the cape port and started for the Stone.

The Acushnet got into trouble herself when heavy seas sheared off the bolts on the steering quadrant, but repairs were effected and she got under way again at dusk. The Acushnet wirelessed that she hoped to pick up the Stone later tonight and tow her to Vineyard Haven.

The cutter reported the Whitebelle was safe as long as her anchors held, an dalthough the gale was still blowing at a 50-mile rate it was believed that the wind would drop during the night.

Meanwhile the cutter Mojave and the disabled coastwise coal carried, Lemuel Burrows were wallowing in heavy seas south of Nantucket, unable to make any headway. The Burrows went out of control two nights ago when the intermediate engine cylinder broke down. A deep sea tug, carrying an extra hauser to replace one snapped today left this port today to help the Mojave with her stubborn tow.

On land the wintry weather was heralded by snow flurries and sharp temperature drops overnight. Morning readings ranged from eight degrees above zero in northern New England to 34 along the southeastern coast. Readings tonight were eight to ten degrees below the morning marks with still sharper drops forecast before morning. Rising temperatures were predicted for tomorrow.

AIRING MARITAL TROUBLES OF COMEDIAN CHAPLIN

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3—(AP)—The marital rift in the home of Charles Spencer Chaplin is to be permanent, announcements from both domestic camps tonight indicated.

From her grandfather's home in Beverely Hills, where she went Tuesday with her two children, Mrs. Chaplin, the former Lita Grey, declared: "I'm never coming back—never, never, never."

In another section of Hollywood's exclusive residential section, the famous comedian himself, secluded in his palatial home, seemed to have lost considerable of the eagerness he at first displayed to have his child-wife and his children return to him.

At the Charles Chaplin studio, the curt announcement was made by Al Reeves, manager, that the comedian would not be responsible for further debts contracted by his wife. The studio announcement added that Chaplin was "through."

Meanwhile, the separation formed the sole topic of conversation in studio circles, cafes and on the boulevards. Every one in Hollywood apparently had been looking for some such thing to happen. The boldest of the speculators, recalling the film actor's many heart affairs, hinted at a new romance.

Miss Merna Kennedy, who replaced Lita Grey as the comedian's leading woman when the latter transferred her activities from Chaplin's studio to his home, didn't even arch her eye-brows when told of the separation.

"I am not surprised at all," she said.

At her grandfather's home, Mrs. Chaplin bitterly assailed Chaplin as a "husband and father." She charged that he had been cruel to her and insisted that she could tolerate no further the treatment she had received. She accused him fo being "unfit to have the custody o four children," and told of his alleged habit of staying away from home at night.

BLACK AXLE GREASE
THE ONLY "BATHING SUIT"

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—(AP)—A coating of black axle grease as the only "bathing suit" of Mrs. Charlotte Moore Schoemmell of New York in the $25,000 marathon swim from Catalina island to California on January 15 has been approved by the rules committee of the event, the swimmer announced today through her manager, George Maines.

Mrs. Schoemmell, who holds several long distance records in eastern waterways, said she saw no "immodesty" in competing without the regulation bathing costume. It has been described as "disgraceful," however, by Mrs. Clemington Corson, first mother to swim the English channel, who has been quoted as threatening to withdraw from the 28-mile competition if Mrs. Schoemmell competed under such conditions.

Mrs. Schoemmell said she would spread ten pounds of grease over her body. She claimed she would then be more amply clad than most of the other contestants.

The grease not only will facilitate her movements in the water, she expects, but also will serve as a possible protection against sharks. "It is unusual for sharks to attack dark bodies, and I do not wish to take any chances," she explained.

Mrs. Schoemmell claims records for all distances between five and forty-five miles, having lowered Gertrude Ederle's mark for the Battery to Sandy Hook swim, besides setting new records for the swim around Manhattan island, and the Albany to New York swim.

CHAMBERLAIN IN PARIS TO CONFER WITH BRIAND

PARIS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, arrived here tonight to confer with Foreign Minister Briand on maters of mutual interest which are likely to come up during the league of nations council sessions in Geneva next week.

The French and British ministers probably will settle tomorrow the conditions under which the left bank of the Rhine will be evacuated and military control of Germany turned over from the present inter-allied organization to the league of nations.

Both M. Briand and Sir Austen, it is understood, will press for a solution of the question of German disarmament and the transfer of military control to the league at the forthcoming session of the council, because the following session, which will be held in Berlin under the presidency of Dr. Stresemann, the German foreign minister, is regard as unpropitious for the settlement of such a problem.

ARGUMENTS ON DEMURRER IN TORLONIA DIVORCE SUIT

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 3—(AP)—Arguments upon a demurrer against a plea of abatement filed by counsel for Duke Mario Torlonia, of Italy, who is being sued for divorce by his wife, Elsie Moore Torlonia, of Greenwich, will be presented to Judge John W. Banks at the short calender session of the superior court tomorrow.

Counsel for the duke entered the plea of abatement contending that the courts of Connecticut are without jurisdiction in the matter, as the duke is now and always has been a subject of the kingdom of Italy.

The demurrer contends that the state has the right to accept jurisdiction in a divorce proceeding brought against a non-resident and that the plea of abatement does not deny the allegations upon which the divorce action is based. The allegation in the case was one of statutory nature, representing that the duke had lavished his attentions upon one Marie Lorenzino, also of Rome.

GUGGENHEIM PROFESSORSHIP AT UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP)—Appropriation of $75,000 for completion of the aeronautical laboratory and for the establishment of the Daniel Guggenheim professorship of applied aeronautics at the University of Michigan, was announced today by Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics.

Last summer the Guggenheim fund gave approximately $600,000 to the California Institute of Technology and Leland Stanford university for the development of their aeronautical laboratories.

This provided research facilities in educational institutions of the west to supplement the work being done in the east at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and at the Daniel Guggenheim School of Aeronautics at New York university.

LOADED PISTOL FOUND IN CHICKEN SENT PRISONER

CAMRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 2—(AP)—A loaded automatic pistol was discovered today in the stuffing of a roast chicken sent into the East Cambridge jail for "Jerry the Pole," recently convicted of first degree murder in connection with the killing of Edward C. Ross, a bank messenger, during a payroll hold-up here last year.

The discovery was made in the jail office during a routine investigation of the prisoner's gift and it led to Jerry's commitment to state's prison in Charlestown, as well as the arrest of his sister Genevieve, who brought the delicacy and its unorthodox stuffing to her brother.

Sentence against Jerry whose real name is Jeremiah Gedzium has not been passed, pending the filing of exceptions by his counsel.

NORTHERN WAR LORDS HALT CANTONESE FORCES

PEKING, Dec. 3—(AP)—The northern war lords formed an alliance today to halt the victorious sweep of the Cantonese forces which within a few months has given them control over territory peopled by more than 300,000,000.

The war lords' conference at Tientsin produced its first result in the election and installation of Chang Tso-Lin, dictator of Manchuria, as generalissimo of what is proclaimed the union of all northern forces.

Labelled Ankuonsiun, or the "country pacifying army," the union's avowed purpose is "to relieve the distress of the people, exterminate rebels and strengthen the nation's foundations." By "rebels" is meant the Cantonese.

VIEWS ON WET VICTORY IN CANADIAN ELECTION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(AP)—Wets and drys in the capital turned tonight to the Canadian election for their latest vehicle upon which to transport their views.

Senator Edwards, democrat, New Jersey, a wet leader, saw in the Ontario vote for liquor sales by government permit an added impetus for the American anti-prohibitionists' drive for sane wine, beer and liquor legislation while Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon league, declared that while the "wets guessed right in their plan to put across a wet program," he believed "Ontario will again go dry because the majority of the electors are in favor of the dry province."

GIRL'S BODY WAS FOUND IN A CLUMP OF BRUSH

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Dec. 2.—(AP)—A crude and hastily made grave today yielded the body of Clara Olson, 23-year-old farmer's daughter for whom more than 1,000 men started a search here early today, following several weeks' unsuccessful efforts to locate the girl and her college boy sweetheart, Erdman Olson, for whom a murder warrant was issued a few days ago.

The body was accidentally discovered when one of the searchers stumbled into a clump of brush and his heavy shoe dragged in a mound of fresh earth which barely covered the partially clothed body. No marks of violence were found. The cause of death was not indicated.

Erdman Olson, 18 years old, and son of Albert Olson, a wealthy tobacco planter, lived but a short distance from the spot where the body was found. The two families are not related. Erdman Olson disappeared 17 days after his sweetheart dropped from sight. He was charged with her murder in a warrant sworn by her father before the body was found.

Erdman is believed by some to have taken his own life since his disappearance Sept. 27 from Galesville college at Galesville.

CONTEST OVER ESTATE OF THE LATE LOTTA CRABTREE

BOSTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—The foundation on which Mrs. Carlotta Cockburn of San Gabriel, Calif., hopes to build proof that she is the niece of the late Lotta Crabtree, popular actress of another day, and thus qualify for a share of the $4,600,000 estate, was laid by her counsel in Suffolk probate court here today.

The special administrators of the estate, which included a $2,000,000 trust fund for veterans of the World war or their dependents, have asked the court to find that Mrs. Cockburn is neither kin nor heir-at-law and hence unqualified to maintain action against the will which was offered for probate on the actress' death in 1924.

Mrs. Cockburn, however, claims that she is the daughter of John A. (Jack) Crabtree, the family "black sheep," who was "too sporty" for his famous sister. She claims that Jack married in San Francisco, that he record was destroyed in the fire which followed the 1906 earthquake, and that she was born in Tomstone, Ariz., and adopted by Ed Bullock, her father's partner in the livery business.

BREWERY STOCKS ADVANCE ON TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Ontario's vote yesterday in support of Premier Ferguson's plan for the sale of alcoholic liquors under government control today resulted in spectacular advances in the principal brewery and distillery stocks on the Toronto stock exchange.

Canadian industrial alcohol, in the short space of ten minutes advanced more than four points, adding more than $3,200,000 to its market value. Sooderham and Worts added approximately $1,000,000 to its market value, while J. E. Seagram and Sons went up more than one point, increasing its market value by $300,000.

GERMAN STEAMER TOTILA REPORTED A TOTAL LOSS

ST. PIERRE, Miquelon, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The German steamer Totila is piled up a total loss on the south coast of Langlade, Captain Roper of the French steamer Propatria reported on docking here late today.

Captain Roper said he sighted the Totila an hour before reaching this port. He added that there was no sign of life aboard the stranded steamer or on land, but expressed the hope that the crew had been able to get ashore.

SOLONS QUIET PRECEDING OPENING OF CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Senators and representatives evidently spent many an evening at home during the summer and fall tinkering with ear-phones and getting nothing but static, for today they seemed to thrust taxes, farm relief and alien property programs into their desks until the millions of listeners-in could obtain a better hearing.

Within the brief space of 24 hours, radio, that new-born entertainer so soon deserted by its federal guardians after discovery that no law existed providing even for a foster parent, has been ushered to the front in legislative halls with promise of early action to smooth out the differences as between independent control and regulations from within the commerce department.

After a visit to the white house, Representative Scott of Michigan, and White of Maine, chairman and banking republican members, respectively, of the house committee that considers radio legislations, expressed hope of agreement being reached on a radio bill at the approaching session.

President Coolidge was represented as being desirous of some settlement of the present chaotic situation.

DANBURY TROLLEY MEN REQUESTED TO ARBITRATE

DANBURY, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The Danbury Power and Transportation company and striking employes of the company were called upon tonight to arbitrate their differences, by a mass meeting of citizens called by the Central Labor union of Danbury. The union is composed of representatives from all organized labor bodies in the city.

The committee, which consists of union men, city officials, business men, and others was asked to wait on the company and the strikers tomorrow morning and demand arbitration be used. Failing in this plan, the committee was instructed to appear before the public utilities commission hearing, at Danbury, called tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock on the question of allowing the transportation company to operate eight busses in and from the city, in place of street cars, and request the commission not to grant the privilege to the company until arbitration was resorted to on the matter at hand.

WALL STREET CREATES $40,000,000 RUBBER POOL

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Creation of a $40,000,000 rubber pool, which will enable leading tire manufacturers and automobile companies to combine their resources for the purchase of crude rubber, was announced in Wall street today. The new organization will have the backing of several large New York banks, including the National Bank of Commerce and the International Acceptance bank.

The prime purpose of the combination, it is understood, will be to stabilize the price of the commodity at a level which will make unnecessary an additional ten per cent restriction in output under Great Britain's Stevenson act next year. At the same time efforts will be made to forestall any artificial rise in values based on the British restrictive regulations.

DEATH OF WORCESTER WOMAN REVEALS PROLIFIC PROGENY

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 2—(AP)—Herminie, (Challifax), aged 82 years, widow of Edmond Lambert, who died here today of senile debility, left two children, 28 grand-children, forty great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren. She had lived in Worcester forty years and was founder of the Holy Family society of Notre Dame church.

ARMOURED MOTORCYCLES FOR NEW YORK POLICEMEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Six armored motorcycles, the first in a future fleet of 50, were given the official O. K. of Police Commissioner McLaughlin today, before their induction into bandit pursuit service tomorrow.

The motorcycles will be used along Fifth avenue, Broadway, Wall street, Maiden lane and principal thoroughfares of Brooklyn.

Each of the machines had a side car attached, ned both its occupant and the man at the handlebars are protected by bullet proof steel and bullet proof windows, forming a fortress-like shield.

FUNERAL OF A. P. CRISTY TODAY IN WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 2—(AP)—The funeral of Austin P. Cristy, former publisher of the Worcester Telegram who shot himself last Monday, will be held tomorrow at eleven o'clock in his home on Salisbury street and will be strictly private. Burial will be in Hope cemetery.

LIGHTING CO. EMPLOYES HAD PLEASANT AFFAIR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 2—Success in every detail attended the annual social banquet of the officials and employes of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company held in the Nathan Hale hotel Thursday evening. There were 85 people present including Mr. M. J. Warner, treasurer of the company, from Pine Orchard, H. M. Whiting, assistant secretary, John F. Ahern assistant treasurer of this city and David Lorne, superintendent of the works department of the plant. The employes were from the local office, from Stafford and Rockville.

During the dinner an extensive program was carried out including vocal selections by Miss Spery and George Dunn of Hartford and popular airs by the entire group. A steak supper was served. Much enjoyment was derived from extemporaneous stunts by the employes. A five piece orchestra under the direction of Ralph H. Gibson played several fine selections and also played the accompaniments for the singing. During the course of the repast remarks appropriate to the occasion were delivered by the officials mentioned above. The committee in charge was composed of: Ralph H. Gibson, chairman, Paul L. Moran, Rae A. Hevria Eleanor B. Moriarty and Daniel O'Brien, all of the local clerical office. Dancing brought the banquet to a delightful closing.

After being conducted by Edward W. Avery for the past 36 years, the grocery store on the main highway in the village of South Windham changed hands Thursday when it was taken over by Frank T. Bennett of Hoxie Hill, formerly of this city. Mr. Bennett took immediate possession of the village store which is one of the landmarks in the town of Windham. In the historical records of the town it is found that the grocery store has been conducted at the stand for nearly a century. John B. Johnson took the store over in 1876 and conducted it until April 1890 when Mr. Avery purchased the business. The store has housed the village postoffice during most of these years, Mr. Avery having been assistant postmaster from 1890 to 1903 with the exception of four years during the late President Grover Cleveland's administration when the office was moved to Backus Brothers' store. Mr. Avery was appointed postmasted in 1903 and has continued in that capacity since that date. He will retain his position as postmaster and the office will remain in its present location. Clarence E. Avery, son of the retiring proprietor, has had charge of the management of the store for the past four years and he will continue to be employed there. Mr. Bennett moved to Hoxie Hill, South Windham in June of 1925 and conducted a chicken farm. FENTON WILL BE AMONG DEMOCRATS NOT PRESENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 2—Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton of this city, former minority leader in the lower house of the general assembly was among prominent democrats of the state who did not receive an invitation from Chairman James J. Walsh to attend a meeting at New Haven Thursday afternoon, to discuss ways and means of improving the changes for the future success of the party. Captain Fenton claims that the first he knew of such a meeting was Wednesday evening. Possibly the "overlooked" invitation did not come because of his keynote speech made at the last state convention in New Haven last September when he made a plea for democratic victory to save the state from the domination of the "powerful political clique" in the republican party.

Organizations not living up to the spirit and terms of the constitution, with a mention of the Ku Klux Klan, were heartily assailed in a talk on One Hundred Per Cent Americanism—What Is It? delivered by Allen B. Lincoln before the Willimantic Exchange club at its regular weekly meeting in the Nathan Hale hotel Wednesday evening. Mr Lincoln's address was the feature of the evening. He was introduced by the president, Professor Sherman P. Hollister. The former representative glorified the achievements of the various nationalities and creeds in America when the country was at war and engaged in peaceful pursuits. He mentioned local characters who professed different religions, were of different nationalities, but nevertheless received the unstinted admiration of the entire community. He was accorded a rising vote of thanks. Edwin J. Donnelly was heard in brief remarks. Mr. Lincoln, as chairman of the entertainment committee announced the following programs for the month: December 8, A Rational View of Prohibition, Walter Stemmons of Storrs; December 15, The Public Health, Dr. Stanley H. Osborne of the state department of health; December 22, an address by Rev. George J. Donahue of Pomfret; and December 29, an address by Rev H A. Coolidge of Union.

Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of the First Congregational church will deliver the eulogy and address at the annual memorial exercises of Willimantic lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. E. which will be held in the new Elks' home on Pleasant street next Sunday afternoon. The exercises, held in honor of deceased members, will be open to the public. With the ritualistic work there will be a musical program furnished by the B. P. O. E. band under direction of Charles N. C. Wheeler and selections by the Elks' Quartet. The arrangements committee is composed of Albert J. Fournier, chairman; T. Frank Cunningham, George H. Gurley, Charles N. C. Wheeler and Arthur Roy. The exercises will be the first function ever held in the new home of the lodge.

The entrance of the South Coventry road onto the Stafford-Willimantic highway was the scene of a bad crash about 9 o'clock Thursday morning when a Dodge truck, used to transport school children to Coventry schools and operated by William S. Sledjesky of Mansfield City figured in a collision with an Oakland sport touring car driven by Andrew Johnson of 79 Lincoln street, Passaic N. J. The accident was considered unavoidable according to the investigation of State Policeman Clifford Willis of the Stafford Springs barracks. No charges were preferred against the drivers who came to an agreement for the settlement of damages. The occupants of both machines escaped injury. Sledjesky was returning to Mansfield City from Coventry where he had taken a group of school children. The New Jersey car was going westerly toward Stafford Springs on the main highway. The frame of the Oakland was bent and the bumper damaged. The left rear wheel, running board and windshield of the truck was damaged.

Officers of Francis S. Long, Woman's Relief corps No. 23, elected for the year are: President, Alice Bentley; senior vice-president, Amy Anderson; junior vice-president, Lucy Champlin; chaplain, Sabra S. Mrs. Lena Tripp is the retiring president.

Arguments by the attorneys in the case of Alfred Rooney vs. Charles F. Robitaille on motion of Attorney Bradford for the defense to set aside the verdict on the ground that it was not in accord with the evidence and that the amount of $7,000 damages awarded by the jury was excessive, were made before Judge Alfred C. Baldwin here Thursday. Attorneys W. A. King and Harry Back appeared for the plaintiff. The case was the only jury case and the last case on the civil term docket of the superior court. It was heard last week.

A large sized bronze figure of a tiger, mounted on a pedestal, has been presented Willimantic lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks for the new home which is now in the course of completion. At the regular meeting Wednesday night the beautiful gift was displayed and a motion was passed to extend a vote of thanks to the donor, the J. C. Harlacker company, Providence, R. I. The gift was in recognition of patronage received at the Elks' Country fairs in past years.

JEWETT CITY

TARDY POLL TAX PAYERS GIVEN JAIL SENTENCES

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 3—Henry Vegarde, the collector of the town's personal tax gives information that he has had, in the levy of 1925, more trouble with delinquents than ever before. Repeated bills to them have failed to reduce the number which is well over 100.

Thursday morning, six from the list: Albert, Shorey, Mary Ralli, Joseph Default, Maryanna Kapowski, Albert Bassett and Stanley Kozlowski were presented before Judge John T. Barry, in Griswold town court. In accordance with laws made and provided in such cases, a jail sentence was imposed, where at a stated wage per day the tax may be worked out, as the state provides. In these cases, after some of them were made to understand, they were discharged and the sentence remitted upon payment of $1.50 and the tax of $2. In each case.

Man's condition serious

Forced to give up work when infection spreads

Read how he healed the trouble

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 20.:—"I had a very bad cut under my eye and also a dog-bite on my hand, both of which became infected. Although I did everything for these infections, nothing helped. They seemed to grow worse instead of better and were pronounced chronic. When my hand got very bad and when the infection caused by the cut under my eye spread, I began to give up all hope, as I was unable to do any work. Then a friend of mine recommended Resinol Ointment. After using about half of a small jar I was completely cured and am now back to work again. Resinol is certainly a wonderful salve and I mean to have a jar on hand from now on." (Signed) Edward Smith, 1016 Dolman St.

DANIELSON

BOSTON BANKERS LOOKED OVER PACO COMPANY PLANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 2—Officials of the Paco Manufacturing company were hosts here today to a party of 25—representatives of Boston banking institutions and of the sales organization of the Paco company—on a tour of inspection of plants of the concern here in Danielson and at Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pineville. The party dined at noon at the Attawaugan hotel. The Paco company is today probably the largest manufacturer of curtains in the United States, taking the raw curtain and putting it through all processes to the finished products and then selling it direct to the trade through its own very capable sales organization. The output runs into many millions of pairs a year.

With the visitors here Thursday were J. W. Powdrell and William H. Brown of Boston, treasurer of the company.

Of the mills that the Paco company acquired in the northern part of this town last September, the purchase from the Attawaugan company, which had its headquarters in Norwich, the Ballouville mill is running at capacity producing yarn for the Danielson plants. Weaving is being done at Pineville and spinning at the mill in Attawaugan, where looms also will be put in operation at a later date. The two Danielson plants are running to capacity, with night crews also engaged in production.

Relatives and friends filled the home of Mrs. Charles D. Chase, North Main street Thursday afternoon at 2:30, for the funeral services of her son, Attorney Warren D. Chase, who died in Southington Tuesday after a brief illness. Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church conducted the service. This service followed one conducted earlier in the day at Attorney Chase's home in Southington. The bearers here were Attorney Harry E. Back, former law partner of Attorney Chase, Judge W. Fenner Woodward, Judge Sabin S. Russell, W Irving Davis, H. Denham Arnold and Clayton Chase, Hartford. The body was taken to Springfield for cremation. Floral remembrances were beautiful and in profusion. A Southington undertaker was in charge of the arrangements, assisted here by A. F. Wood.

DANIELSON CHRISTMAS CHECKS TOTAL $100,000.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 2—Beaming faces of scores and scores of people here and in surrounding communities on Thursday was indication of happiness over the release by the Windham County National bank of its Christmas club checks—the first flood of Yuletide money that will flow out of the Danielson banks during the early days of this month. It was said at the Windham County National bank Thursday afternoon that the institution's distribution of Christmas club money and its savings department dividend, as of December 1, aggregated $100,000, a pleasurable sum to contemplate one might reflect. A dozen years have passed since this bank introduced the Christmas club savings plan to Danielson and meanwhile it has taken strong root. Each year brings a larger number of savers into the plan, which provides an easy manner of saving money for Christmas shopping costs. The checks this year run from $12.75 to $255, according to the amount paid in each week.

Eric V. Johnson, representative here of the Eastern Dairies, Inc., was somewhat, but not seriously injured Wednesday when an automobile in which he was proceeding from Putnam toward Providence skidded and was wrecked near the County Home for Children.

While there was ice on some small ponds hereabouts Thursday and great impatience among young people awaiting the season's first opportunity to go skating, the warning was general that the ice is not safe as yet and will not likely be without two or three more days of freezing weather. The experience of other years has been that drownings by breaking through the ice are most numerous and the beginning of the skating season and in the very late winter when the ice is rotting and breaking up.

Tuesday, December 7th, there will be held at the Orpheum theater the local amateur performance of "Mary Made Some Marmalade." Seats in all rows excepting the last five rows down stairs reserved at 75 cents; last five rows resedved at 50 cents; balcony, first two rows reserved, 75 cents; next four rows reserved at 50 cents; balance rush seats, 50 cents.—Adv.

At 3:10 Thursday morning an alarm from Box 34 called out the department to subdue what proved to be a stubborn chimney fire at the home of Charles Bacon on Main street, opposite Davis park. Getting the fire out proved a cold chore for the firemen, who were out on the call about one hour.

Agencies in many places are deluging Danielson people with boxes of Christmas cards, requesting that a certain sum, usually a dollar, be sent in payment for them if they are kept. Many who have been receiving the packages say that this plan is as much of a nuisance as the one with which Danielson people were pestered two years ago, when a New York firm sent, unsolicited, quantities of cheap neckwear through the mails and then threatened to take legal action against those who did not return them.
